CZECHS YIELD TO DEMANDS OF POLAND

Peaceful Occupation of Sudetenland by German Storm Troops Underway

Czech Part of Teschen Handed to Poles Sunday, First Area Transferred Within Ten Days Czechoslovakia Will Sever Remainder of Teschen District and Entire District of Freistadt — Plebiscites will be Settled in Direct Negotiations Between Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Polish Political Prisoners to be Freed

Government of Poland Rejoices at News of End of Painful Quarrel Between Two Nations and Settlement Corresponding to Peaceful Intentions of Poland—Czechoslovakia Accepts Ultimatum During One-Hour Extension Granted by Warsaw.

Warsaw, Oct. 1 (AP) — Czechoslovakia accepted Poland's territorial demands in full today, thereby averting a threatened invasion.

Under terms of the demands the part of the city of Teschen on the Czechoslovak side of the border will be transferred to Poland before 2 p.m. Sunday (8 a.m. E.S.T.).

Within ten days Czechoslovakia will transfer to Poland the remainder of the Teschen district and the entire district of Freistadt.

Matters of other territories and plebiscites will be settled in direct negotiations between Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Czechoslovakia also agreed to release immediately all persons of Polish nationality from the Czechoslovak army and to free all Poles imprisoned for political reasons.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 1 (CP)—The disturbance which was south of Yarmouth, N.S., last evening has moved northeastward to Cape Breton, causing strong winds and gales with rain over the Maritime Provinces, the Gulf of St. Lawrence and Grand Banks. Light scattered showers have occurred in the Western Provinces and in northern districts of Ontario and Quebec. High pressure and cool weather covers the central portion of the continent, while a trough of low extends from Manitoba northward to the Arctic. Temperatures continue above normal in the Prairie Provinces.

Lake Superior—Light to moderate winds; fair and cool. Sunday, fresh southerly to westerly winds; partly cloudy and somewhat warmer; probably scattered showers in western districts.

Manitoba — Fresh southerly to westerly winds; partly cloudy; possibly light scattered showers. Sunday, partly cloudy and somewhat cooler.

Saskatchewan — Fair and somewhat cooler today and Sunday.

France Jubilantly Turns Back to Peacetime Life

Paris, Oct. 1 (AP)— General Marie-Gustave Gamelin, chief of staff, today ordered the demobilization of more than 1,000,000 reservists called to the colors at various stages during the Czechoslovak crisis.

The first reservists to be demobilized following the Four-Power Munich accord are expected to return to their homes over the week-end. At the same time measures have been taken to free vehicles and animals requisitioned for national defence purposes.

The partial demobilization marked France's jubilant return to normal, peace-time life on a day it had feared it would be at war.

Statesmen, however, kept a wary eye to the future as they examined the shifts in European relations already apparent from the Munich conference that brought peace.

There were spontaneous outbursts of relief all over France, among armed reservists who had been called for preparedness and now were being discharged, as well as civilians.

It was evident, however, that a growing number felt uncertain that peace bought at the price of Czechoslovakia would bring an era of security to Europe.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN GOES TO COUNTRY FOR THE WEEK-END

Exhausted From His Duties And Activities During Crisis

PRESS SING PRAISES

London, Oct. 1 (CP Cable)—London today regained its normal composure after last night's tumultuous homage to Neville Chamberlain, the "ambassador of peace".

Downing Street, the Whitehall, the scene of the most spontaneous and joyous demonstrations a matter of hours ago, were deserted this morning and only a casual sightseer halted outside the prime minister's residence. Everywhere there were indications that the nation was gladly and eagerly turning to the routine of normal life and the enjoyment of a care-free week-end for the first time in a month.

Exhausted From Duties.

Exhausted from his duties and activities during the protracted crisis, Mr. Chamberlain rested. He did not take his customary walk in St. James's Park with his wife. They were busy, however, reading a flood of letters and telegrams from well-wishers in all parts of the world. Later they left for Chequers, his country home.

CAPTAIN WILLARD HELD ON CHARGE

Ferry Boat Captain Charged With Manslaughter And Now Out On Bail

Prescott, Ont., Oct. 1 (CP)—Capt. Hugh J. Willard of the ferry boat Joseph G. Dubrule, operating between Ogdensburg, N.Y., and Prescott, was arrested last night on a charge of manslaughter in connection with the death of Geo. R. Long, 45, of Andrewsville, Ont.

Long died in a hospital at Brockville, Ont., yesterday from what doctors said was a fractured skull. Police said the injury was received during a scuffle on the ferry wharf at Prescott.

Capt. Willard appeared before Magistrate George A. Wright and was remanded until Oct. 7. He was released on bail of $5,000.

COOPER RESIGNS DISAGREEING WITH FOREIGN POLICY

First Lord of Admiralty Sends Resignation To Chamberlain

COMES AS SURPRISE

Cooper Entrusted With Mobilizing Fleet Last Week

London, Oct. 1 (AP)—Alfred Duff Cooper, First Lord of the Admiralty, resigned from Prime Minister Chamberlain's cabinet today because he disagreed with the government's foreign policy.

The prime minister accepted his resignation.

In his letter of resignation Mr. Duff Cooper said:

"I profoundly distrust the foreign policy which the present government is pursuing and seems likely to continue to pursue."

Resignation Accepted.

In accepting, the Prime Minister wrote:

"Knowing you are sincerely convinced that the foreign policy of the present government is a mistake, I agree with you in thinking it would not be proper for you to remain a member of the government."

Mr. Duff Cooper is a Conservative, long known as one of the leading advocates in the cabinet of a strong Anglo-French alliance.

As civilian head of the navy he directed the mobilization of the fleet earlier this week when it appeared Great Britain and France together might fight Germany over the Czechoslovak issue.

The resignation came as a surprise in the midst of widespread public acclaim for Mr. Chamberlain for his achievement of a peaceful settlement of the crisis which only two days ago threatened to plunge Europe into war.

Cabinet Dissenter.

Mr. Duff Cooper, however, was understood to have been a cabinet dissenter even from the original Anglo-French plan of Sept. 19 for the cession of the Sudeten areas to Germany.

The First Lord of the Admiralty is the second member of Mr. Chamberlain's cabinet to resign in disapproval of the prime minister's policy of bargaining with Europe dictators for peace.

Anthony Eden quit as Foreign Secretary Feb. 20.

Mr. Duff Cooper's letter of resignation follows:

"It is extremely painful for me in the moment of your great triumph to be obliged to strike a discordant note.

'WE'VE BETRAYED VALIANT NATION' SAYS LABOR M.P.

Harold Nicholson Attacks What He Calls 'Surrender' At Munich

'TOO LATE NOW'

Says Peace Is Achieved Only For Six Months

Manchester, Oct. 1 (AP)—Harold Nicolson, National Labor Member of Parliament, criticized Prime Minister Chamberlain at a Manchester luncheon today for what he called the "surrender" at Munich and the "betrayal" of Czechoslovakia.

"It is too late now to repair the damage that has been done," Mr. Nicolson said. "We have betrayed a valiant little country and a great democratic idea.

"There are many people who feel in so doing that we achieved peace for a generation. They are wholly mistaken. We have not achieved peace for a generation. We have achieved it only for six months."

Disagreement With Policy.

Mr. Nicolson resigned the vice-chairmanship of the Foreign Affairs Committee of Government Supporters in April when he disagreed with Mr. Chamberlain's foreign policy.

The National Labor member declared the prime minister "was offered one of the greatest opportunities that ever befell the lot of any British statesman."

"He missed that opportunity," Mr. Nicolson said. "Had he taken a firm line at Munich he would have established perhaps for ever the superiority of the democratic faith over Fascist conceptions."

Mr. Nicolson contended the prime minister had been ill-advised by Sir Horace Wilson and should have listened to Sir Robert Vansittart, Chief Diplomatic Adviser to the Government.

Naval Mobilization Was Moment.

Declaring naval mobilization on Tuesday threatened to break the Rome-Berlin axis, Mr. Nicolson said "it was at this moment, had the prime minister realized it, that we held all the cards in our hands. Had the prime minister exploited his advantage he would have obtained peace with honor. He did not, however, understand the psychology of Germany and Italy and surrendered to them at the very moment when surrender was least necessary.

"He managed to short-circuit the House of Commons on an emotional appeal and I am still unaware that his final surrender had the approval of his own cabinet."

Gradual Demobilization of German and French Armies

Six Regiments From Britain To Aid In Police Duties In Sudetenland

LIAISON OFFICERS

London, Oct. 1 (AP)—Great Britain left Czechoslovakia to the mapmakers today and steered a course toward what Prime Minister Chamberlain hoped would be peace in Europe for years to come.

Immediate steps in the general European settlement which the prime minister expected to grow out of yesterday's four-power agreement for peaceful dismemberment of Czechoslovakia and the Anglo-German declaration against war were aimed at getting Europe's mobilized manpower back to normal.

Mr. Chamberlain was said by informed quarters to have asked Chancellor Hitler and Premier Daladier of France for gradual demobilization of the German and French armies as a prelude to settlement talks.

Reliable sources in London said six battalions of British troops would be sent to Czechoslovakia soon to aid in police duties involved in the partition. The detachment, which probably would consist of four battalions of Guards Regiments and two from regiments of the line, was expected to sail within a few days.

Part International Force.

The British detachment would become a part of the international force provided in the Munich agreement to police areas where plebiscites are to determine ultimate ownership.

In diplomatic circles there was talk that Mr. Chamberlain and Premier Mussolini of Italy were near an agreement on one barrier to full harmony in their relations — the Spanish situation. Any substantial withdrawal of Italian soldiers from Spain probably would bring into effect the Anglo-Italian Friendship Pact under which Great Britain would recognize the Italian conquest of Ethiopia.

Barrage of Criticism.

Popular admiration of Mr. Chamberlain's Munich mission — which brought peace to a western Europe on the brink of war — continued high. There were evidences, however, that his political opponents were preparing a barrage of criticism in parliament next week.

L. C. M. S. Amery and Winston Churchill were among Conservatives who have criticized Mr. Chamberlain's methods. The Liberal leader, Sir Archibald Sinclair, declared in a statement that "the power and will of the German dictator had prevailed over the will of the free people of Britain, France and Czechoslovakia.

CHAMBERLAIN BLVD. FOR FLEET STREET?

Toronto, Oct. 1 (CP)—Toronto should rename Fleet street 'Chamberlain Boulevard' to perpetuate the memory of Britain's greatest prime minister since Canning in 1823, said Thomas L. Church, M. P., last night at the first anniversary meeting of Branch 3, British Imperial Comrades' Association.

Czechs Receive Crown of Thorns Says Statement

Prague, Oct. 1 (AP) — A statement broadcast declared "all that Prague and the Czechoslovak nation received was a crown of thorns" from Four-Power Munich agreement to grant Germany parts of Sudetenland.

The declaration referred to "the great injustice" done to the nation by the accord and added: "The Prime Ministers (of Italy, France, and Great Britain) who after the Munich conference went to their homes were welcomed as saviors of peace.

"Not a glance was given to treaties of alliance and no recognition accorded to alliances of Czechoslovakia and all obligations arising from her international contracts."

Czechs, all of whom were saying 'We have been sold out'," paced the streets of the capital, collecting in small groups to discuss the government's decision.

It was unwise to speak in a foreign language in the streets of Prague, principally because of the danger of being misunderstood. A Danish newspaper correspondent, Sven Nielson, was struck in the face while talking English.

URGENT TO GET CANADIAN SOURCE SUPPLY FOR GUNS

Fact Brought Out At Commission Probing Machine Gun Contract

CLAUSES ELIMINATED

Ottawa, Oct. 1 (CP)—Testimony as to the urgency of getting a Canadian source of supply for light machine guns was on the records of the Royal Commission investigating the Bren gun contract today. The Commission will resume its hearings on Monday.

Yesterday C. Fraser Elliott, Commissioner of Income Tax and a member of the interdepartmental committee set up to control profits on government armament contracts, told Commissioner H. H. Davis the committee was reluctant to pass on a contract for Bren guns without competitive bidding by various manufacturers but did not wish to delay the undertaking.

"Voluntary" Free Corps Denied Entry as German Army Starts Occupation

First Steel-Helmeted Goose-Stepping Soldiers Enter Czechoslovakia Today Given Them to Keep Peace — Henlein's Troops Held Back to Allow Their Passions to Cool and Avoid Risking Bloodshed.

EXPECT 30,000 TROOPS TO OCCUPY AREA

Delayed Main Body of Troops in Nocturnal March Fearing Such Movement Might Breed Incidents—Hitler to be Given Welcome When he Arrives from Munich—First Zone Occupied is 20 Miles from Old Boundary.

(By Rudolf Josten, Associated Press Foreign Staff)

Berlin, Oct. 1 (AP)—Chancellor Hitler sent his first steel-helmeted, goose-stepping soldiers today into parts of Czechoslovakia given him to keep peace.

Thousands more, with full equipment and the pride of the new German motorized units, were poised along a 120-mile stretch of frontier and across from three other rich zones, ready to annex them in the name of Greater Germany before Oct. 8.

The entry was denied those to whom it may have meant the most—the thousands of Sudeten German natives who fled from Czechoslovakia into Germany last month and were formed into a "voluntary" free corps by the Sudeten German Party leader Konrad Henlein.

THREATENED REVENGE TO CZECHS.

The Free Corps men had threatened to take a 100-fold revenge for every drop of Sudeten German blood spilled in the German-Czech disorders. Free Corps headquarters in Bayreuth, Germany, forbade members to cross the border singly or in groups without special permission.

The instructions apparently were issued to hold the Free Corps back to let their passions cool and avoid risking bloodshed.

It will surely go down in future German history books as a symbolic demonstration of German unity that "the liberation march" of the stolid, highly-trained, gray-uniformed troops began from Aigen, in Austria, which less than seven months ago became a part of Greater Germany.

600 TROOPS IN FIRST 'TOKEN' ARMY.

Clocks in city hall and church towers had sounded only the first stroke of midnight, when the first small "token" contingent of 600 crossed into Sudetenland as the vanguard of a main force scheduled to follow them in several hours.

Aigen, in mountainous upper Austria province, is at the southermost edge of the border of zone one, which a four-power conference at Munich Thursday gave Hitler permission to occupy today and tomorrow.

Explanations were lacking for the nocturnal dispatch of the vanguard but it seemed the German army, trained to absolute obedience, wanted the glory of reaching in the shortest possible time the zone's innermost demarcation line at Krumau, twenty miles from the old boundary.

Zone one extends in a triangular shape northwestward to Studenbach on the Czechoslovak-Bavarian frontier near Straubing. The Krumau population is more than 90 per cent Sudeten German.

FUEHRER TO BE EXTENDED WELCOME

As preparations for a quick and frictionless occupation of Sudetenland ended last night, Berlin started preliminaries for regal welcome for the Fuehrer, who was scheduled to arrive from Munich shortly before noon.

Hitler was understood to have delayed the entry of the main body of men to take over the first zone at the request of the British Prime Minister, who feared a heavy nocturnal march might breed incidents.

Just how many soldiers would cross the frontier remained undisclosed early today, but the figure 30,000 was mentioned.

Military Law Rules First Zone in Czechoslovakia Occupied By German Army Under Hitler

(By Melvin Whiteleather, Associated Press Foreign Staff)

Headquarters of the German Army of Occupation, Passau, Germany, Oct. 1 (AP)—The main body of the German army crossed the Czechoslovak frontier at 2 p.m. (8 a.m. E.S.T.) today, to start its formal occupation of Sudetenland.

Reconnoitring units had preceded the main body of the occupation force across the border during the early morning.

The force, estimated at about 30,000 men, was commanded by Colonel-General Ritter von Leeb.

It planned to occupy about one-quarter of the first zone of the ceded territory today, going as far as the Warmer and Moldau rivers.

As the German troops advanced, they were separated from Czechoslovak forces by a neutral zone 3,000 metres (3,270 yards) wide running roughly parallel to the new frontier.

Military law today ruled the first Czechoslovak zone occupied by the German army.

Foreigners not attached to headquarters or not accompanied by officers were subject to immediate arrest.

A German army about 30,000 strong this afternoon occupied the mountainous Bohemian forest along a 60-mile stretch paralleling the Danube river.

The first zone taken over from the Czechoslovaks stretched from the border town of Studenbach through the towns of Rehoerg, Wallern and Reasberg, curving downwards towards the frontier just outside of Krumau and outside Kaplitz to the frontier town of Unterhaid.

KRUMAU AND KAPLITZ NOT INCLUDED.

Krumau, the chief town of the region, and Kaplitz were not included in the German occupation. It was assumed at headquarters

3,700 REGISTER AT TOURIST CAMP

Though tourist business at the city tourist camp is admittedly below that of last years in point of registration, up to the present time over 3,700 persons have visited this civic centre, it is estimated this week by camp caretaker, Geo. Wilder. Not all these, however, have been tourists visiting the city by car, much of the registration is composed of table parties who have taken advantage of camp facilities to hold socials, picnics and family reunions. During the past year or so this location has become increasingly popular for the latter purpose.

THEFT OF LOGS NEARLY STOPS BUCK-SAWING CONTEST

'Twas buck-sawing contest at the Picton Fair. Contestants stood around the enclosure where the battle of the saws was to take place. The judges took up their positions. Nearby an enthusiastic crowd voiced their opinions of their various favorites.

The names of the first contestants were called out. Then someone called for one of the logs to be sawn. But nary a stick was in sight. Someone had stolen the logs placed there for the contest even as the crowd milled around the fair grounds.

Planks were hastily substituted and the affair went off without a hitch.

ANOTHER FIERY CROSS BURNED AT BANCROFT

A fiery cross blazing forth in the night on a hill just outside of the Village of Bancroft, this week, gave volunteer firemen of the village a run, and before the incipient fire had been extinguished considerable area of the hill had been burned over. Apparently saturated with gasoline or oil, the rag-wrapped cross blazed fiercely, attracting attention of residents throughout the immediate district. It is the tenth cross that has been burned in Bancroft district during the past two years, but as in the case of others, it was believed to be the work of practical jokers. Police, however, are making an investigation.

DUCKS ARE WARY

"Ducks were flying a mile high", stated Wm. Justin, one of the first of the city's hunters to return this morning after a cold and unexciting vigil since long before dawn today in a Bay of Quinte cove. Just two birds were shot by himself and companion who described the ducks as being extremely wary and gun shy, a condition which apparently made itself evident almost overnight. Instead of the numerous unafraid flocks noted in the bay last week by observers, this morning but a few scattered flights were seen. Dozens of hunters from the city were out, however, with some of the shooters banging at the birds almost within the city limits.

LARGEST DISPLAY IN YEARS SEEN ON CITY MARKET

Fruits, Vegetables In Abundance Greet Saturday Morning Shoppers

EGGS UP

With the produce of farm and garden filling every available space, fruits and vegetables piled high on the pavements, and vendors occupying space on McAnnany Street, the city market today presented a colorful appearance as by far one of the largest displays of the current season was offered to a large Saturday morning clientele.

Warm September weather added an additional colorful touch to the imposing array of harvest produce.

Price tones showed a slight upward tendency in the vegetable and egg markets with the latter rising two cents to 35c per dozen for "A" selects. Mediums were quoted at 32 cents, with pullets, and some ungraded stock selling at 32c and 33c per dozen.

Chickens filled the inside market to near capacity where a fine selection of choice birds was offered. Prices for four months' chickens ranged from 80c per pair with yearling birds and fowl being quoted at from 75c to as high as $1 each. A few ducks were noted that were offered at 90c and $1 each. Farmers' butter remained steady at 35c per single pound with two-pound rolls offered at 65c each.

Apples Plentiful

Fall and early Winter apples headed one of the most variable fruit offerings seen on the market for some time. MacIntosh Reds were plentiful with a number of grades being in evidence. Tree-picked fruit was offered at $1.50 per bushel with windfalls quoted at anywhere from 50c to $1 per hamper. Wolf River and St. Lawrence were quoted at from $1 per bushel while the first Tolman Sweets of the season moved fairly well at $1 per hamper.

Golden peaches nearing the end of production were offered at from 39c to 40c per basket with a profusion of blue and white grapes selling at 30c and 35c per basket.

Watermelon and canteloupe were obtainable in all sizes and at all prices. Wild grapes were offered at 25c per basket with plums and greengages selling well at 35c and 70c per 6-quart basket respectively.

Slight Increase

Tomatoes noted a slight increase in price today with bushel-lots offered at 40c and 50c per bushel. Basket lots were quoted at 15c and 20c each. Potatoes remained steady at all-week quotations of 50c per bushel with bag-lots going at 75c each. Radishes, beets, carrots and lettuce sold in bunch lots at 5c, while some choice giant cabbage and cauliflower moved well at prices ranging from 8c upward.

Table and individual squash found favor in the eyes of shoppers with the former going at from 10c each with the latter variety offered at 5c.

Mushrooms were fairly plentiful, with berry-box lots selling at 10c each. Puff-balls in varying sizes sold well at various prices. Hickory nuts made their market debut today with a choice quality selling at 20c per quart.

Sweet corn, while not as abundant as last Saturday moved well at 10c and 15c per dozen ears for both yellow and white varieties.

Mudcats at two pounds for 25c, and pike at 10c per pound rounded out a slim fish offering.

THURLOW FARMER LOSES SHEEP

Complaints Made That Dogs Are Killing Sheep In That Section

Complaints that a pack of wild dogs have been attacking and killing sheep on the second concession of Thurlow Township were investigated by Provincial Police this week when it was reported that several sheep belonging to Gordon Craig had been attacked and killed.

Roaming the countryside under the cover of darkness at night, these dogs attack the sheep in the pasture fields and in each incident bring their prey down by attack upon the fleshy part of the body beneath the right front shoulder, it was discovered when several dead animals were found in the field. The breast below the shoulder seems to be a vulnerable spot for attack, the dogs merely chewing that part of the body and leaving the sheep to die. Others were injured, but survived.

Provincial Police have patrolled the section of countryside where the dogs have been active in their attacks at night, but to date the authorities have failed to find trace of the destructive animals.

Farmers throughout Thurlow are arming themselves with shot guns and rifles and state they no longer intend to permit the wholesale slaughter of their stock and will shoot stray dogs on their property regardless as to ownership.

$10,000 Saving to Hydro Users Estimated in Latest Rate Cuts

Rates Reach Lowest In Nine Years of City's Ownership of the Local Plant—All Classifications of Consumers' Gain By Cuts Effective Today Made By Belleville Utility

COMPARISON OF RATES

New Hydro rates in Belleville went into effect today, with reductions all along the line. The reductions will net approximately $10,000 saving a year to all classifications of consumers

The schedule of the new rates in comparison with the rates hitherto obtaining, is as follows:

	Old	New Domestic
1st 55 kilowatt hours per month	2.4	1.9
Remainder	.8	.7
Local discount	10%	—
Prompt payment discount	10%	10%
Water Heater Flat Rate per 100 watts 40c net—40c less 10 percent.
Commercial
Service charge	5c per 100 w.	4.5c per 100 w.
1st 100 hours use of load	1.8	1.6
Remainder	.4	.35
Local discount	10%	—
Prompt payment discount	10%	10%
Power
Service charge	1.00 per H.P.	1.00 per H.P.
1st 50 hours use of load	1.5c per k.w.h	1.3c per k.w.h
2nd. 50 hours use of load	.9c	.8c
Remainder	.33c	.33c
Local Discount	25%	25%
Prompt payment discount	10%	10%
Street Lighting	per annum	per annum
1000 c.p.	$38.00	$30.00
2.50 c.p.	18.00	15.00
100 c.p	8.00	7.00
300 w. multiple	23.00	20.00

Domestic Rates

In the new domestic rates, the local discount of ten per cent disappears. The former rate for the first 55 kilowatt hours was 2.4 cents per kilowatt less the local discount which made oud rate net 2.16 cents. The new rate as shown above is 1.9 cents without the ten per cent discount, which is a reduction of .26 cents. The local discount of ten per cent on the old rate of .8 per kilowatt for the remainder of energy used now disappears and the rate becomes .7 cents a kilowatt hour, which is also a reduction. The prompt payment discount of ten per cent remains in the new rates for domestic use. As seen in the schedule above there is a reduction of ten per cent allowed in the water heater flat rate henceforth.

Commercial Rates

In the commercial rates the service charge is unchanged 4.5 cents per 100 watts, for the old rate of 5 cents allowed a local discount of ten per cent which now disappears. On the first one hundred hours use of the load there is a slight reduction and also for the remainder of the power used. As said before the local discount is removed. The prompt payment discount still remains.

Power Rates

While the service charge in the power rates is unchanged, there are reductions in the rates for the first and second fifty hours use of the load. The local discount is still in effect together with the prompt payment discount.

Street Lighting

Large reductions are to be noted in the street lighting costs. The first rate is reduced from $38.00 to $30.00 per annum, the second from $18 to $15, the third from $8 to 7 and the fourth from $23 to 20.00.

Many Reductions

These reductions are the seventh domestic reduction since the purchase of the plant in 1929, the sixth commercial rate cut, the fifth power reduction and the sixth street lighting reduction.

There is going out from the Hydro utility office a rebate on last year's lighting of streets to the amount of $3,018.56 and the water works pumping is to receive a rebate on last year of $141.45.

To show the heavy reductions from the year 1929 when the plant came into possession of the city, the rates which ruled in 1929 are given below. These figures as compared with the above show how great has been the change in rates in the nine years of municipal operation.

1929 Rates

Domestic—Service charge 33 cents month first 60 kilowatts cost 4 cents per kilowatt, the remainder 2 cents.

Commercial—Service 5 cents first rate 4 cents, second rate 2 cents.

Power—Service charge, $1.00, first fifty hours, 2.3, second fifty hours, 1.5, follow up the same.

Local discount rate of 10 per cent (compared with the 25 per cent).

The money which the utility has made has been handed back to the consumers in the payment of the debt on the plant and in the shape of reduction after reduction in the course of the nine years.

Police Blotter

After receiving service in the matter of oil and gasoline at the Provincial Tire Corporation service station on East Dundas Street early today, a large powerful automobile, carrying five negroes, roared easterly on Highway No. 2 without paying for their purchase, service station employees informed Sergeant Arthur Harman shortly after 4.00 a.m. today.

Local police immediately notified Napanee police authorities with the result that the car load of colored persons was apprehended in Napanee. Later the men paid for the gasoline and oil obtained in Belleville and were released.

A cow, the property of Harry Sills, Latta, was destroyed after being struck by an automobile and injured yesterday. The cow was being herded along the highway, with other cattle, by Mrs. Sills when an automobile driven by Lester Milford, Picton, struck the animal, causing a compound fracture of a rear leg. Provincial Constables McBrien and Carruthers investigated and later shot the injured animal.

MUSKET BALL FOUND IN OLD INDIAN RELIC

Prince Edward County's 1938 edition of its annual Indian bone and relic story brings an additional touch of color with the discovery of an old ball bullet apparently fired from a musket used in the old days, found embedded in the shoulder bone of one of the braves of old.

Yearly when the wind is favorable an old Indian burying ground that lies in the sand dunes between West Lake and the Sandbanks, apparently rises to the surface, or sufficient sand is blown away as to expose the relics and bones that lie beneath.

Trudging across the "graveyard" the other day, Wilson Burd youthful son of I. L. Burd, genial postmaster of the village of Wellington, found evidences of old Indian pottery, pieces of musket and other relics of the Indian age. Stooping to examine the bones he picked up a scapula or shoulder bone. As the aged relic crumpled in his hand a round bullet dropped from a hole in the bone.

The pottery was old and easily disintegrated according to Burd. A powder horn, in which were traces of black powder was also discovered by the youthful searcher. A number of bones were embedded firmly in the sand.

The graveyard is well-known to residents of Wellington. Years ago Edward Bailey, now a butcher in the lakeside village in company with a group of friends discovered a number of bones and pottery relics. The years however seem to have been unkind to the latter for the pottery unearthed then was in more or less excellent state of repair.

From time to time, various bones have been unearthed in this lonely stretch of sand, although Burd's find of a bullet is the first of its kind to be made.

Duke of Windsor's Herd of Shorthorns Sold by Auction

High River, Alta., Oct. 1—(CP)—Auctioneers have disposed of the Duke of Windsor's fine herd of Shorthorn cattle, realizing $10,000 on 70 head for the Royal owner of the "E. P." ranch nestled in the foothills of Alberta's southern rangeland.

Gilbert Elken and Harold H. Hofstrand, North Dakota ranchers, and E. J. Whitlaw of Toronto, made the largest purchases of the six-hour sale yesterday. Some 500 cattlemen attended the sale.

Elken, from Mayville, M.D., paid $985 for 12 head of purebreds and Hofstrand whose home ranch is at Church's Ferry, N.D., $600 for four head. In partnership the North Dakota ranchers bought Bapton Orator, prize bull for which they paid $410, the highest price of the day.

Second price of the day was paid by the Toronto stockman for Larbert Templer which brought $400. Whitlaw also paid $350 for Princeton Omega, a prize herd cow and he purchased several other cows and calves.

Point Anne

Point Anne—On Wednesday evening Sept. 28, the members of the Pentecostal Assembly met in the Orange Hall to bid farewell to Miss Idella Haist who has been co-worker with Mrs. Joyce Knight in this church for the past few months. Miss Haist leaves on Thursday for her home in Kitchener from thence she will proceed to the mission fields in China, where she will be with her sister Miss Coralee Haist in the work there.

After the usual service in which Miss Haist preached her farewell message, Miss Marguerite Sweet read the following address:

Point Anne, Ont., Sept. 28

Dear Sister Haist:

It is with mixed feelings of regret at your departure and deep gratitude for your faithful service and Christian grace in our midst, that we ask you to accept these small tokens of our love for you.

Rest assured our prayers for God to bless you and make you a blessing, shall go with you.

You and your letters will always be welcome in Point Anne, and some day we shall all be gathered to be with Jesus never to part again.

We are your Christian brethren and sisters.

Signed on behalf of Point Anne Assembly and Sunday School, Joyce Knight, Daisy Wilson, Harry Ellis, Arthur Wilson, Charles Pringle.

Miss Haist was presented with an embossed leather writing case, a box of silk hose and a purse of $5.00, and in a few words thanked her friends for their gifts and assured them that they would be remembered after her departure.

All then joined in singing "God be with you 'til we meet again" and Mrs. Knight closed the meeting with prayer.

PIONEER IN PASTEURIZATION

THE CITIZENS' DAIRY

Introduced Pasteurization into Belleville more than twenty years ago believing that Pasteurized Milk was the ONLY SAFE MILK to protect Children and Adults from disease germs. We believe our policy has safeguarded the health of our patrons and been appreciated.

OUR PASTEURIZATION PLANT HAS NO SUPERIOR IN CANADA and we are in a position, as always, to furnish PURE, RICH, PASTEURIZED MILK AND CREAM TO PATRONS.

The Ontario Government has enacted that all milk for sale on and after October 1, 1938, must be Pasteurized, thus furnishing official endorsement of the policy of this firm in force over twenty years in Belleville.

BY ORDER OF THE ONTARIO LEGISLATURE ALL MILK FOR SALE IN ONTARIO MUST BE PASTEURIZED ON AND AFTER OCTOBER 1, 1938.

AT THE CAPITOL

"I Met My Love Again"

Joan Bennett and Henry Fonda are the harassed lovers of Walter Wanger's thrilling romantic drama, "I Met My Love Again," at the Capitol theatre and neither star has been seen to better advantage than in this screen adaptation of Allene Corliss' novel, "Summer Lightning."

The story casts the stars in the roles of adventurous Julie and studious Ives, girl and boy sweethearts in the New England of the the jazz and flapper era of 1927.

The romantic little New England girl meets Michael a sauve, worthless writer (splendidly played by Alan Marshal) and his worldliness so intrigues her that she elopes with him. Their Bohemian life in Paris is very disillusioning but the girl sticks to her bargain with this irresponsible chap until he dies in a duel over the merits of an absurd painting. Then she brings her small daughter home to her Aunt William in Vermont and realises that she still loves Ives, who has become a quiet young professor. The suppressed young man successfully conceals any trace of emotion he may feel at the return of the boyhood sweetheart who jilted him ten years before. The presence on th scene of a beautiful madcap student who is infatuated with Ives and magically transforms him into a quite normal and gay young man, complicate matters for Julie. For a time, it looks dangerously as though Julie has lost him, but the two finally confess that their love has never died. Julie's impetuous young rival tries desperately to wreck their wedding plans but her efforts are in vain and after a dramatic and thrilling climax the sweethearts go off happily at last on the honeymoon that fate delayed a decade.

The Jones Family

The famous Jones Family are now as well known to filmgoers as the folks next-door. And lately audiences are beginning to recognize the folks next-door to the Joneses.

The original production policy of maintaining the family intact throughout each picture of the series has been extended to include almost the entire town of Maryville—and with happy results, judging from the tremendous popularity of the series.

Jones Family fans remember from picture to picture the faces and personalities of the Chief of Police, of Mayor Dad Jones' councilmen, of the local butcher, banker and baker. Even the drug store cowboys in Dad's establishment are becoming as familiar as Maryville's Main Street and the Joneses' front porch.

"Safety in Numbers," latest of the 20th Century-Fox as hit No. 2, introduces a new section of Maryville to Jonesites. Barton Springs a suburb of the town, is discovered to be a spa of medicinal importance and the entire populace is aroused over the resort possibilities of the place.

Mrs. Jones is given a thirteen-week broadcast hour for a domestic advice program by the Springs' sponsors and Dad Jones heads the citizens' investment committee. When the spring turns out to be a phony, the Joneses get a chance to prove—in a hilarious and exciting climax—that there is indeed. "Safety in Numbers."

AT THE BELLE

Belle Celebrates 9th Birthday

Commencing today we are celebrating our 9th Anniversary as a Belleville institution. It is our birthday, but it is your party. We appreciate the splendid co-operation we have received from the theatre-going public and from our local merchants.

It has been the aim of the Belle Theatre to bring to you the finest pictures that the motion picture industry affords, presented with the finest equipment obtainable, with the latest inventions in projection, screen, accoustics and presentation. Your patronage and friendship has made this possible. Our theatre is your theatre. Without you we could not exist. We welcome your suggestions; our programs are built for your enjoyment, not our own. We are endeavoring to give you what we believe, the public wants. Not the choice of the few but the wish of many. We have endeavored to be a part of the community, to aid in worthwhile projects and to lighten your cares and burdens by offering entertainment which will take you into the land of romance, laughter and song; holding the mirror up to nature, picturing life in its myriad of phases, with its drama, its emotions and its lighter moments, sending you forth with the happy feeling of an afternoon or evening well spent. We shall always do our best to merit your continued patronage. Remember the Belle is your theatre. Two blue-ribbon programs have been prepared for presentation, today, Monday and Tuesday and a new program from Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Today, Monday and Tuesday Sonja Henie, Queen of the Silver Skates is appearing at the Belle Theatre in "My Lucky Star."

In their search for a colorful ballet to climax the skating numbers in her current 20th Century-Fox picture, "My Lucky Star", Sonja Henie and her dance director, Harry Losee, turned happily to one of the most beloved story-book classics of all time—Lewis Carroll's "Alice In Wonderland."

All of Carroll's fantastic creatures have come to life—and all on skates, Sonja skims across the ice in the company of Tweedledee and Tweedledum (appropriately played by Jack and Bob Heasley who are identical twins) and the Walrus and the Carpenter.

The philosophic caterpillar descends from his toadstool to join the dance together with the King and Queen and Knave of Hearts; there are the Griffin and the Dodo, the Mock Turtle and the Dormouse, as well as the Ugly Duchess, the Cheshire Cat, the Mad Hatter, the White Rabbit, the Red and Black court attendants.

The ballet is worked into the story of "My Lucky Star" as part of a gigantic ice carnival which Sonja stages for a big department store. Contrasting with the brilliant costumes of the skaters is the formal wear of several hundred extras who appear as fashionable spectators. Even during rehearsals, the extras loudly applauded each scene, as did the scores of stars and studio workers who took time off from other pictures to come and watch the ballet.

"My Lucky Star" is the feature offering at the Belle Theatre today, Monday and Tuesday, matinee daily, and finds Richard Greene, last seen in "Four Men and a Prayer" sharing top honors with Sonja. The cast includes Joan Davis, Cesar Romero, Buddy Ebsen, Arthur Treacher, George Barbier, Louise Hovick, Billy Gilbert, Patricia Wilder and Paul Hurst. Roy Del Ruth directed, with Darryl F. Zanuck in charge of production and Harry Joe Brown as associate producer. Mack Gordon and Harry Revel wrote the music and lyrics.

"Three Loves Has Nancy"

On Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, "Three Loves Has Nancy", the romantic surprise hit of the new season, featuring Janet Gaynor, Robert Montgomery and Franchot Tone will be the feature attraction at the Belle Theatre.

Don Ameche, Arleen Whelan, Gregory Ratoff and Binnie Barnes are featured in "Gateway", the companion feature attraction.

AT THE McCARTHY

"This Marriage Business"

Dealing with the things that happen to a small-town marriage license clerk when a high-pressure newspaperman starts campaigning him into a big shot, R.K.O. Radio's "This Marriage Business" feature presentation coming next to the McCarthy theatre, brings the highly popular Victor Moore to the screen in his first solo starring role.

"This Marriage Business", although it has highly dramatic moments is planned mainly for fast-moving comedy.

Allan Lane and Vicki Lester have the leading romantic roles; Allan Lane as a forceful New York newspaperman and Miss Lester as Victor Moore's attractive daughter. Coming to a little up-state town on the trail of an eloping heiress. Lane finds a bigger story in Moore, who claims that in twenty years no couple who ever got a marriage license from him has been divorced.

The ensuing publicity makes Moore famous and brings prosperity to the little town as would-be newlyweds pour in to get one of Moore's "Lucky Licenses." But when to satisfy Miss Lester, Lane starts a campaign to make Moore mayor, the campaign and the romance have an exciting time.

Written to fit Moore's mirth-making talents, the picture affords him exceptional opportunities for his individual type of characterization. The film also marks the debut as a leading lady of Miss Lester, recently one of New York's leading protographic models and hailed by studio officials as one of the season's most promising starlets. She recently made her first appearance for R.K.O. Radio in "Maid's Night Out" presented at the McCarthy theatre, as Allan Lane's cousin.

Jack Carson, as Lane's cameraman-pal; Jack Arnold as his rival, Richard Lane as a roadhouse owner, Frank M. Thomas as a crooked mayor and Kay Sutton as a girl of the night life, head the supporting cast of "This Marriage Business," with Cecil Kellaway, Bryant Washburn, Richard Bond and Leona Roberts, also in important roles.

A grand program of featurettes will precede the feature production daily, at each performance; smash musical comedy that is outstanding entertainment entitled "There Goes the Bride" with Fifi Dorsay, fiery French screen star and a select supporting cast of comedy favorites in this fast swell screen treat, also a specially selected technicolor adventure story "Sons of the Plains" featuring the Mauch twins, Billy and Bobby, popular juvenile stars, that is a four star featurette offering, that all will enjoy. "Saturday Night Swing Club" featuring a popular dance orchestra, presenting night club entertainers, in a merry routine of song and tap-dancing acts, is also an outstanding worth while screen novelty offering.

"Stella Dallas"

Samuel Goldwyn's smash dramatic hit "Stella Dallas" with Barbara Stanwyck, John Boles, Anne Shirley, Alan Hale and Barbara O'Neil in the leading featured roles, will be presented for the last times today and without fail, we urge you to see this tremendous screen production, it is the grandest entertainment that anyone could wish to see, rich in humor and drama that overwhelms one's emotions and leaves in your memory a human heart-touching story of life, that you'll never forget, again we urge you not to miss it.

A splendid program of short subjects is also presented in addition to "Stella Dallas" at the commencement of each complete performance.

Foxboro

Foxboro—Rally Day services were observed in the United Church on Sunday morning. The church was prettily decorated with flowers and Mr. Frank Finkle of Marsh Hill was the guest speaker and his address on "the Bible" was greatly appreciated. He asked that we daily translate the Bible by our lives. A solo by Miss Vera Walt was also enjoyed and readings relative to the Bible were given by Miss Edith Cooke. Miss Marion Daniels, Mrs. Wanda Sine. Master Eugene Spencer, and Master Gordon Priest. Over one hundred were in attendance at the service and some of the classes reported a record attendance.

Rev. E. M. Cooke, our pastor, conducted Sacramental Service on Sunday evening which was very impressive and special music was rendered by the choir.

Mr. Harold Stewart is improving after being confined to his bed with a heavy cold.

On the occasion of the forty-fifth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. W. Coulter, a number of neighbors called on Tuesday evening to offer congratulations.

Mrs. J. H. Yorke attended Anniversary Services at St. Andrew's Gilead on Sunday last. It was the seventy-fifth anniversary of the building of St. Andrew's Church.

Miss Bernice Dainard of Hastings is visiting her sister, Mrs. Harold Stewart.

Rev. and Mrs. Cooke entertained company from Fraserville one day recently.

AFTER MUNICH

A world realizing that the danger of war over the Czechoslovak-German issue has been removed by the Munich pact has recovered already its usual equanimity. It has heard Mr. Chamberlain tell of the great achievement in preserving peace and of his hopes that in this lies the beginning of appeasement in general of Europe. It has heard the Czech soldier-premier Syrovy declare that his nation yielded "to save life and the nation", and "as a soldier I had to choose the way of peace. We have chosen the only right course and the nation will be stronger and more united." General Syrovy said that "when the four powers asked from us annexation of German territories" the government had to choose between "a useless fight and sacrifices... We have accepted the unheard of sacrifices imposed upon us. We have had to choose between the death of a nation and abdication of some territories. The main thing is that we are remaining ourselves and we must be united." General Goering has said that he believed the four countries which participated in the meeting at Munich can be equally satisfied with the results secured. Premier Daladier finds a high degree of understanding of the western powers' representatives whereby war was averted and peace assured. He said that in Germany he noted no feeling of hatred or hostility toward France.

Dewitt Mackenzie, Associated Press Foreign Affairs writer, says Hitler has effected the greatest coup of his career towards his dream of a great Germanic confederation, a Germany greater than that of the pre-war empire. He says that many hundreds of millions of friendly, home-loving folk in all countries found sufficient cause for joy in the message "We give you peace", from the conference. However he points out the view of many statesmen that Hitler has made a gigantic stride towards the confederation by which the Nazis aspire to become a dominant power of Europe, they see a weakened Czechoslovakia and Little Entente with possible Germanic control of the Balkans ultimately, and say that the old dream of the former Kaiser is more near to reality than ever before. This correspondent points out on the other side that "the peace conference may mark" the beginning of a period of better relations and greater cooperation and says that the conference has provided a high point in a new type of diplomacy in which the heads of government do their own negotiating instead of entrusting affairs to subordinates."

Mr. Chamberlain on Tuesday it must be remembered, warned — "If I were convinced that any nation had made up its mind to dominate the world by fear of force, I should feel that it must be resisted." That stands as the British attitude.

The world has the guarantees of the four Great Powers with regard to the boundaries of Czechoslovakia to be defined and the integrity of the republic. The world heard Hitler's promise that the Sudeten territory was the last he sought in Europe. Then too, Chamberlain's great fight along with Daladier's sollidified a democratic world for peace which strengthened the hand of democracy and gave moral support to Britain and France. Germany with Hitler's Godesberg memorandum with regard to the immediate occupation of the territory by German troops was finding itself virtually alone, for Russia had practically assured the Czechs aid if attacked. There is also the fact that vast mass of the people of the world including no doubt people in Germany did not want war. It is doubtful if many nations will want war.

Italy has been brought into close touch with the major powers of western Europe and their association may spell a new day of appeasement as Mr. Chamberlain hopes.

These facts are placed against the almost certainty of a war which had it broken out would have more than decimated the population of Europe. Between seven and eight million men died in The World War. Another war's cost might have been twice as heavy. Against that awful condition, today we have peace and assurance of a better understanding.

In 1914 Britain strove to the last to effect a compromise which would prevent war. But the old sores which had then broken open could not be healed without the major operation of war, it seems. Recollection of the Great War's cost has given the peace-loving advocates boldness to assert their cause and to declare that they will fight for it if necessary. Some nations went nonchalantly to war in 1914. No nation would go to war so nonchalantly in 1938.

Milton once wrote—"Peace hath her victories no less renowned than war". Today the world realizes the victories of peace are more renowned than those of war.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN'S PLACE

To few men in history have come such moments as have found Right Honorable Neville Chamberlain, Prime Minister of Great Britain not wanting in fate's darkest hour. Today he carries the honors of service done for an anxious world as a man of honor, sincerity and modesty would bear them. He sought no personal glory but he has won world acclaim. Every democracy of the world looks up to this modern Sir Galahad who in shining British armor of peace saw before him the lives of millions of men and women and children blasted if he did not do his utmost to save the world's peace. In the hearts of the German people too there must come appreciation of this man who has saved that nation possibly from themselves. He saw the situation as it is and should be. Fortunately he had no distorted idea of life. He saw the priceless liberty of the world as in danger and in words which the British people will never forget he told how life would not be worth living if democratic liberty were lost under oppression. They cannot forget him for that and for all that he has done.

Democracies cherish their possession of liberty for liberty can make the only truly great and in that class is Mr. Chamberlain.

France is justly proud of her Premier Daladier, who gave to Chamberlain and Britain such cooperation.

A BIT OF LIVING

Don't be afraid to give a passing smile!
Although his face is dour all the while,
It may be from some hurt his heart still bleeds,
Perhaps a cheering smile is what he needs.

Don't be afraid to help some soul along,
Even if he has plainly gone far wrong;
A kindly word may open up the way
To keep him on life's path another day.

No one was ever helped to Heaven by blame;
No one was ever cleansed by crying "Shame"
Loving the sinner is the only thing
That shines a tarnished soul to glistening.

Why need YOU judge? And who gave YOU that role?
Who but the Maker reads the human soul?
Sinner or saint, I think each hides his face,
Confronted with a vision of God's grace.

Amid the cure-alls of a frightened earth,
Where people search for new cures brought to birth,
The old, old light shines on our modern day—
The way of Christ is still the Only Way.

MORE WATERING TROUGHS FOR HORSES is the slogan of a Sidelight Fan who complains that a watering trough on St. Paul street, has been put out of comimssion for some reason or other, presumably by the Waterworks department. He suggests that the Humane Society look into this matter in the interests of the horses which have been accustomed to drink at this trough and are now unable to do so.

STORY COMES FROM A SUMMER RESORT LAKE in Hastings County about a gull which visited the cottages and became quite tame, calling regularly for food. The gull kept widening its area of calls, apparently seeking something, according to our informant, until it reached the cottage of a doctor, who found that the gull had a bone in its throat which was causing pain and trouble to the bird. The doctor removed the bone and the gull flew away, apparently very grateful. That's the story of our informant and he is stuck with it, and states that he has plenty of corroboration.

Too Few Friends

The alert Shelby (Ala.), Democrat reports the case of a man who was defeated ignominously when he ran for the office of sheriff.

He got 55 votes out of a total of 3,500, and the next day he walked down Main street with two guns hanging from his belt.

"You were not elected, and you have no right to carry guns," fellow-citizens told him. ...."Listen, folks," he replied, "a man with no more friends than I've got in this country needs to carry guns."

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Oct. 1st., 1918.

Yesterday the gymnasium building adjoining Albert College. which has been converted into a school room for the pupils of Thurlow Township, who formerly attended the city schools, was formally opened with an attendance of 100 pupils. It is expected that this number will be increased shortly.

At the regular monthly meeting of the Y. P. S. C. E. in connection with Emmanuel Church last evening a pleasing event took place in the presentation of a handsome club bag to the Rev. A. M. Hubly, who after fourteen years service at Emmanuel Church is leaving to reside in Toronto. An address was read by Mr. A. E. Barlow and the presentation was made by Miss E. Curtis. A pleasant social time was spent.

Mr. "Bouncer" Brouse has returned to the city after spending some time in the eastern part of the province.

30 YEARS AGO

Oct. 1st., 1908.

Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Montgomery of Tweed were visitors in the city today.

Shortly after noon today a large plate glass window in the front of Tickell and Son's store on Front Street was broken. A good sized stone found below the window was evidence of how the glass was broken, but who threw the stone is not known. The police are making investigation and hope to find the guilty person.

Mr. Gerald Ponton has returned to Toronto University for his third year in the Mining Engineering Faculty.

Mr. Bert. Collip, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Collip, left yesterday to attend Trinity College, Toronto.

The steamer North King will leave Belleville Sunday at 11.35 p. m. for Rochester, N. Y.; return Tuesday morning. Fare for round trip $1.50.

40 YEARS AGO

Oct. 1st., 1898.

Potato thieves are at work in Irishtown.

Several maskinonge have been caught off the harbor recently.

Three cyclists were fined by the police magistrate this morning for riding their wheels upon the sidewalks.

Harbor Master Daniel Collins had good fishing yesterday, he caught a six pound maskinonge and three pike.

Plans are being prepared for a new Methodist Church at Madoc to take the place of the one destroyed by fire some time ago.

Messrs. Phil. Woodley and Harry Hamm enjoyed a successful hunting expedition yesterday. They secured seven black squirrels, one ground hog and a fox.

Messrs. F. R. Lingham and Alfred Gillan of Belleville spent a couple of days in Marmora this week.

50 YEARS AGO

Oct. 1st., 1888.

A flurry of snow descended upon the city early this morning.

The various companies of the 15th. Battalion are engaged in drilling two nights a week.

Mr. W. J. Taylor of Victoria, B. C., is here on a visit to relatives.

Mrs. Ress Price after visiting friends here has returned to her home in Goderich, Ont.

The long pending decision by the Underwriters' Association as to the rating of Belleville for fire insurance purposes, has at last been given. The city has been raised from class D. to Class B. for mercantile risks, which will effect a saving of 20 per cent to the insured on commercial risks. Local agents have received instructions in this matter.

TARTS VERSUS PIES

When the English schoolboys were being entertained at dinner here last week one of their number asked for a helping of "apple tart." The innocent request nearly precipitated an Imperial crisis. A battle royal ensued between English and Canadian word specialists over the use of the word "tart" as distinguished from "pie." There was no surrender. The Canadian hosts politely, but firmly, insisted upon their apple pie nomenclature, while their English guests with equal politeness nailed their tart confection firmly to the mast.

Subsequent research has failed to clear up the matter. Doctor Samuel Johnson's dictionary throws no light. Johnson's asservations on the subject of pies and tarts are, like some of his other statements, quite inconclusive. The Oxford dictionary, too, plays safe. It fails in the very moment of victory for the pie addicts by stating that tart for pie is "now in polite and fashionable use," though it does not quote a single example to bear out the statement.

The old nursery rhymes throw some light on the matter. From these it appears that the proper use of the terms depends upon the contents. Pie for flesh, it seems, and tart for fruit. The four-and-twenty blackbirds, it will be recalled, were baked in a pie; whereas the Queen of Hearts had placed jam in her tarts. However, this simple explanation is rather shot to pieces by Jack Horner's "pie" which we know to a certainty had plums in it.

In the face of such conflicting evidence, who can say which is preferable, apple tart or apple pie? Happily the matter has been firmly settled in practice. It is pie in Canada, no matter what's said elsewhere, by right of usage.—Winnipeg Tribune.

THANKS AMERICA

"We liked the easy friendliness of your people and the courtesy of American officials whom we encountered. We liked your highways and we liked your drivers. They drive fast, but they drive well. We thoroughly enjoyed your scenery, your beaches, your resorts. We liked your coffee and we liked your tea, which is sometimes maligned by Englishmen and even Canadians. We could go on all day outlining things which appealed to us.

We did not like being classed as foreigners. When you come to Canada, as you do in thousands each year, we do not look upon you as foreigners—cousins, perhaps, at least our guests, but not foreigners.

Another thing that all Canadians find annoying is the fact that you don' like our money. Close to the boundary our currency is accepted in small denominations, though not with any degree of favor. Ten per cent exchange is levied on notes of five dollars or larger. Farther inland Canadian currency is only rarely accepted at all.

Being the business men that you are I know that you will welcome this mild criticism and will, I hope, take steps to rectify a condition which is very annoying to tourists from north of the international boundary.—G. S.Anderson, Ottawa, in Letter to New York Times.

BAYONETS PASSE

We can remember the time we wasted and the tired muscles we suffered doing bayonet fighting exercises in France, yet we never saw bayonets used in war, ecept to open tins, so it is not surprising that bayonet fighting no longer is part of the curriculum of a modern army. At Camp Borden there is a concentration of the Canadian permanent force, but are they doing bayonet-fighting? They are not. They have limbering-up-exercises but no bayonet drill for, as the official announcement puts it, bayonets have no place in modern warfare."

The time formerly devoted to bayonet fighting will be utilized in gas drills. War has become a long range affair and seldom will there be hand-to-hand conflicts. The machine gun has made the rifle obsolete, for there is no sense in waiting for a man to be spitted on a bayonet when a bullet, many bullets are quicker. Men will kill and be killed without ever seeing the enemy. Wonder what has happened to the men who used to be bayonet instructors, perhaps the least popular of all the instructors? Maybe the race has become extinct. Indeed some of their pupils wished that long ago.—Niagara Falls Review.

Finding the Plants Which Cause Some Cases of Eczema

One of the sayings among medical students is that if one wants a good "specialty" he should choose to be a skin specialist as the patient never calls you at night, he never dies of his skin ailment, and the skin ailment itself never gets better or gets better for a short time only.

Still another reason why being a skin specialist is not as difficult is that as half the skin ailments are some form of eczema, if every skin ailment were to be called eczema, the skin specialist would be right at least half the time anyway.

As a matter of fact, the symptoms of eczema usually stand out sufficiently to be recognized because of the moist, 'weeping' or catarrhal condition of the skin with itching burning, and heat, but the cause of eczema may take some weeks or even months to discover. This is because skin specialists are now agreed that eczema is due to both inside and outside causes. The inside causes may be gout, rheumatism, disorders of digestion, lack of thyroid juice, being sensitive to various foods or other substances. The outside causes are what are called "contact" cases of eczema due to the fact that the patient touched or came in contact with certain substances known to cause eczema.

Among the common contact eczemas is that due to contact with plants. As the testing of these plants as a cause of eczema in any patient often takes weeks or months, Drs. Bedford Shelmire and J. Harvey Black, in the Journal of The American Medical Association tell of their 'short method' for testing suspected cases of contact eczema from plants by using plant oils as the testing material. They keep always on hand 40 oils which have been kept at room temperature for two years.

After explaining their simple method of obtaining these oils from the dried plants they state:

"The back is the part of the body chosen for application of the tests. In applying an oil a capillary tube (tube of glass so small that it allows just one drop at a time to flow) is used. A drop of oil is then placed on the skin and spread by the tip of the capillary tube over about two-fifths of an inch surface. The tests are applied up and down in four rows of ten each; no covering is placed over these 40 spots. After a few minutes allowed for drying, the upper test in each row is numbered with 10 per cent silver nitrate. Patients are advised not to bathe for 24 hours. About five minutes is required to apply and properly number the 40 tests with 40 oils."

The skin will show a reaction if any of the numbered oils is responsible for the eczema.

FRUIT OF ANTIQUITY

The Oriental fruit vendor may be displaying peaches more luscious in flavour. larger in size and earlier in seasonal appearance than any which his forefathers knew, for the Celestial who cares to delve into the manuscripts of his ancestors will find that peaches were eaten in China as early as 561 B.C., if the writings of the date are to be relied upon. According to the Journal of the Royal Horticultural society it was the Chinese who originated the peach, though its development of modern times is due to the research work of fruit culturists on this continent.

From China the new fruit was brought to Persia, whence the conquering Roman Legions brought it to Europe. Peach stones have been found among the ruins of Pompeii closely approximating the nut of the modern peach in size. From Anglo-Saxon times the peach was known in England, presumably brought over by the Roman conquerors, though other authorities believe that Phoenician tintraders were responsible for its introduction in the British Isles and along the Spanish coast.

The thirteenth century recognized peaches as the prerogative of kings and nobles. Whether it was too many peaches or too much ale that caused the death of King John in 1216 A.D., may not be known, for history briefly records that his demise was due to "a surfeit of peaches and ale."—Calgary Herald.

HOMEWORK VS. RADIO

W. J. Salter, principal of the collegiate institute, St. Catharines and Immediate Past President of the Ontario Educational Association, stated that 90 per cent of the students in the twelve first forms of the St. Catharines collegiate have radios in their homes, and 55 per cent, try to study while the radio is going full blast, then mothers wonder why their sons and daughters fail in their June examinations.

Dr. C. C. Goldring, Superintendent of Schools in Toronto, commenting on Mr. Salter's remarks stated that there is no question as to the harm to home study of school children by radios going full blast at home. While Dr. Goldring has no information as to the percentage of children in the Toronto schools who study under these conditions, he thinks Mr. Salter's statement is not exaggerated.—Canadian School Journal.

Weeds Worth Half a Million

One of the largest "takes" of marijuana ever recorded in Western Ontario was removed from backyards of the Terrace Hill district by local police officers. With an estimated retail value of over a half million dollars, between 35,000 and 50,000 weeds were lifted while bewildered citizens looked on, unaware that they were guilty of committing an offense, punishable by a heavy sentence, in allowing the weed to grow on their property.

Following the "tip-off," the police officers started on their job and worked for three hours, the weeds being taken to the city yards where they were piled to dry preparatory to burning. The pile of plants was 15 feet square and six feet high. The abundant growth was even more astonishing in view of the fact that none had been found in the city before. Chief Stanley of the Brantford city police, Provincial Constable Carl Farrow, Royal Canadian Mounted Police Corporal P. V. Monahan and Constable Payzant were among those who worked on the eradication of the plant in the city.

Provincial Constable Farrow said he believed that there would be considerable quantities of the weed scattered in the district around Brantford. Chief Stanley asked for full cooperation from citizens in the drive for extermination of marijuana, the use of which causes death and suffering to untold numbers of addicts. He pointed out that to have the weed on the premises is a criminal offense, whether the owner was aware of the growth or not and suggested that the best way to avoid trouble in that connection was, if in doubt, to notify the police who would investigate the matter. The plant is really wild hemp, and can grow as a result of scattered bird seed and many other accidental means. Some of the weeds taken in the drive towered to a height of nearly nine feet. It grows on a fairly slim stalf and has thin leaves with jagged edges. Before being converted into use as a drug it must be cured and then is rolled into "reefers" or cigarettes, which are sold at about 25 cents each.

About two or three leaves are needed to make a cigarette, which, in turn, is smoked by the drug addict. It is one of the commonest forms of "dope" and is in wide demand because of the low price.

Citizens who lived in the houses little realized that the incredible fortune of illicit raw material was growing around their doorsteps. Some of the dense patches, growing from waist high to over a tall man's head projected out into the street. The police kept the object of their work hidden until after they had torn up all possible plants, and are now keeping strict guard over it till it becomes dry enough to burn.

County Constable Farrow, Chief Harry Stanley and Corporal Monahan are working hand-in-hand in the drive to halt the drug racket which results from the growth of the weed. They believe that as the marijuana was destroyed before it went to seed, the majority will be exterminated, although they realize that there are many patches, with almost untold value if circulated in the "proper" channels, growing in the city and vicinity. Provincial Constable Farrow said that the weed had probably been growing for years, but that no extensive drive had been organized until recently when the police from coast to coast decided to wage war on the drug racket. The work is really in the hands of the R. C. M. P., but fullest co-operation is being given by all branches of police departments everywhere.

A smaller patch of marijuana was found near Blenheim where several thousand dollars worth of the weed was destroyed after it was found growing wild near a tobacco field by workers. In this district the police worked in yards along Buffalo, Sydenham, Terrace Hill and Broad Streets.

—Brantford Expositor.

A Professor Looks at Slang

The lexicographers compiling a dictionary of American English at the University of Chicago have brought to light much interesting evidence on the origin of various Americanisms. Patient delving led to the conclusion that the term "chewing gum" was sponsored at Yale; its first appearance in print that the lexicographers could find was in the Yale Literry Magazine of 1864. Not till later was it used by Mark Twain, who did, however, use a great many Americanisms for the first time. Approximately 12,000 reference cards bearing extract quotations from his writings are being used by the dictionary researchers in their work. "Central" in the sense of a telephone exchange operator was first used by him in his Connecticut Yankee in 1889. A term from billiards was taken over effectively by Oliver Wendell Holmes in 1860 when he wrote: "She glanced from every human contact, and 'caromed' from one relation to another." "Caromed" pleased Twain, for he used the word in the same sense.

Words as terms, such as Emerson's "candy-braids" which never passed into general use, are described in the dictionary as individualisms. Limited circulation only is attained by college slang, Harlemisms, slang of the show world and of the underworld. Felix Bauman, of Germany, who toured this country studying college slang, aided Dean Edward H. Lauer, of the University of Washington in compiling a United States college campus dictionary. Only by reference to this volume could the average person gather the meaning of such terms as "fever frau," "muddy-plow" and "honey-cooler". "Dicty" for "highbrow" and "gooferdust" for "magic powder" are not comprehended outside Harlem. Barry Buchanan, who set out to compile a dictionary of the amusement world, had 32,000 items at the end of four and a half years and estimated that the list was about 90 per cent. complete. He can talk in circus slang for half an hour without the lay hearer being able to catch the trend. On motion picture lots "butterfly" does not mean an insect, but a silk cloth on a frame used to soften light when making exterior scenes, while "canaries" means unidentified high-frequency noises in the recording system, and "high hat" is applied to every low camera stand.

According to Professor W. H. Davis, etymologist of Stanford university, figures of speech developed during each era of civilization are, and will be, of the utmost use to etymologists in determining the characteristics of the age that produced them. Generations from now, he explains, the fact that the crooner asserts his girl friend is his "vitamines A. B and C" or his "sugar plum and ice cream cone" will indicate to future etymologists that the present era was one of highly developed medical progress and of the art of eating. Why these evidences of interest in man's daily bread are of importance he does not say. Professor Davis hold that figures of speech are not slang and do not have the same value in the language. Figures of speech, he points out, specifically name the thing being talked about, while slang is usually meremetaphor, and hence valueless for future etymologists unless they find a Rosetta stone by which to translate it. Modern language is rich in figures of speech that indicate the characteristics of past ages, Professor Davis says. He thinks that traces of the cave age can be found in such figures as "cut-throat tactics" or "wieldnig the big stick."— New York Sun.

Scarecrows Slowly Die

A farmer writes the editor of The Post calling attention to an article in one of the farm magazines. "In reading one of the farm magazines which comes to our home, I noticed a small article on the subject of scare-crows, the correspondent writes. "I thought you would be interested to know that this article condemns the use of scare-crows because they don't do any good and it is written on the authority of one of the Agricultural research bureaus of the United States."

We were interested to hear this and also further information in the letter which pointed out that, in lieu of a scare-crow, other contraptions were suggested. One was the placing of thin pieces of shiny metal where they will sway with the wind and the sun's rays will be flashed from their shiny surfaces. Another suggestion was in regard to nocturnal birds and it pointed out that some firm had on the market a contraption which intermittently caused explosion as of a shot gun and which scared birds sufficiently to protect crops from such visitors.

We are rather sorry to hear that scare-crows are relegated to the ash heap by those who make a study of the science of agriculture their work in life. It has always been our idea that no farm was complete without a very grotesque scare-crow standing quietly in the field. Usually they were made of wooden sticks and covered with a cast-off pair of overalls, a battered straw hat and other bits of fabric.

The idea of having shiny tin in the field waving about in the breeze is all right but this thing of having intermittent explosions in the field at night appears like carrying a 24th of May spirit too far. We know a lot of farmers who will be sadly disappointed because they have wasted so much time and effort in erecting and caring for scare-crows and all for naught.—Lindsay Post.

USELESS PROFANITY

The trouble with profanity, is not so much that it is wicked, as that it is just plain dirty. It's not so much that you shock religious people as that you disgust decent people, that we object to it. Swearers are behind the times. They are hold overs from a former century. Nowadays anybody who swears is set down at once as being coarse and vulgar. The young man who wants to succeed needs to take advantage of everything that may help him on. And swearing will be a black mark against him in any job that he may have. And if he wants to associate with the right sort of girls he must keep his talk clean. Nobody wants a swearer in his office nor in the workshop nor on the train, nor in the hotel. The only place swearing fits is the saloon. Swearing means you don't know how to talk. Your vocabulary is limited. It is the sign of ignorance. Swearing means weakness. You will notice that forceful men, whose words carry weight, use simple, plain words. When you swear it shows your impotence. It is the petty refuge of the helpless. If you can help a thing, help it, if not, keep still; anyway don't swear.—Oshawa Times.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN

Meanwhile, the press of the land continued to sing the praises of the Prime Minister for his "glorious contribution" to the cause of the world's peace. Some, however, tempered their tributes with the challenge: "What of the future?"

The Manchester Guardian (Liberal) says that if Great Britain is to draw any real lesson from the peace of yesterday the test cannot be made too soon.

"We cannot discuss colonies with Germany without regard to the parallel interest of France and to the international system under which the mandates are exercised," the Guardian comments. "That is not to say we should not take up the question with Germany. We ought to do so quickly. It is better that the initiative should come from us, in association with France, than wait until Chancellor Hitler makes demands in his own way and at his own time."

Yorkshire Post.

The Yorkshire Post (Conservative) gives expression to similar views and urges Britain to redouble her efforts towards preparedness.

"Until an agreement on armaments is reached," the Post says, "the democracies, especially Great Britain and France, must impose upon themselves voluntary discipline, as effective for the purposes required as is imposed upon the authoritarian countries. Never again must our people sacrifice their future safety for momentary ease."

Declaring the problems of peace cannot be solved by words, the London Star (Liberal) doubts if any pact between Germany and Great Brittin will suffice to deal with them. "Peace in Europe can only be settled on a European basis and not by a partial or limited agreement," the Star adds.

Evening News.

"Cannot Britain now face peace as she faced the threat of war?" asked the Evening News (Independent). "It was not only fear which stirred in men's hearts. We have found something near unity again in facing a common danger. Does it need always a great peril to bring out that spiritual strength in a democracy? Need that spirit be lost?"

Meanwhile, Birmingham, the home town of the prime minister, was planning a popular welcome for its most distinguished citizen when he returns Oct. 14 to address his constituents. As a civic tribute to the prime minister, Birmingham's Lord Mayor announced inauguration of a peace thanksgiving fund to which citizens are invited to contribute. Disposal of the fund will be subject to Mr. Chamberlain's wishes.

Tomorrow special services of thanksgiving will be held in churches throughout the land.

URGENT TO GET

The inquiry is into a contract awarded the John Inglis Company of Toronto for the manufacture of 7,000 Bren guns on a cost plus 10 per cent basis. The same company holds a contract to supply 5,000 guns to the British War Office.

The inquiry results from a magazine article by Lieut.-Col. George Drew of Toronto in which the terms of the contract were criticized.

Department Takes Responsibility.

Mr. Elliott said the interdepartmental committee was called to meet on the then proposed Inglis contract in January, 1938. Major General L. R. Lafleche, chairman of the committee and Deputy Minister of National Defence, said his department would take responsibility for selection of the Inglis Company without competitive bidding.

He advised against further delay which would ensue from dealing with other companies. The Inglis Company, through its president, Major J. E. Hahn, had obtained an assurance of a contract from the British War Office and the capital cost of plane and equipment could be spread over the two contracts.

The committee had been informed the War Office would deal with no other Canadian company.

Two Clauses Eliminated.

Mr. Justice Davis said one of the questions he would have to consider was whether the committee had been brought into the picture early enough to enable it to deal with the matter in a practical way. The first negotiations took place in 1936 and the committee was not called until 1938.

L. A. Forsyth, associate government counsel, said the calling of the committee was determined by receipt of word from the War Office that it would purchase guns made in Canada.

A departmental memorandum submitted to the committee said if a crisis developed and Canada lacked guns to defend itself criticism would be directed to those responsible for providing guns if they neglected to urge speed.

After reluctantly giving up the idea of calling for competitive bids, Mr. Elliott said, the committee proceeded to examine the proposed Inglis contract in order to see that the public interest was protected. Two clauses, considered unusual, were eliminated. One would have given the company an exclusive licence for the manufacture of Bren guns and the other would have permitted it to assign its rights.

The Stars Say—

For Sunday, October 2

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE is for a particularly lively and eventful day, with much stirring of a sudden and surprising nature. This may cause an upheaval, with change of plans and surroundings, and possible contacts with those in high estate. A new business or a new deal of major scope seems to underlie this calling for splendid attacks and high-pressure activities. Finances, speculation, agreements with large corporations, diplomatic or political bodies should thrive.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a very important year. with major events climaxing much manipulation of powerful influences, political, diplomatic, financial or fraternal.

A child born on this day may have large ideas and ambitions, with much initiative, enterprise and aggressiveness attracting the support of capital and attaining fine position, probably in a far distant place.

For Monday, October 3

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

MONDAY'S ASTROLOGICAL forecast is for a very active and lively state of affairs, judging by the lunar aspects, but these will not be devoid of anxiety and friction. There may be enmity, jealousy and open quarrels, although the undercurrents of treachery and pernicious plots and schemes of a peculiar nature may be most menacing. In connection with writings, publishing and promotional enterprises, there should be fine opportunities.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a particularly lively and enterprising year, although this important movement may be beset by envy, jealousy, trickery and quarrels, open and above board as well as secret and sinister.

A child born on this day should be particularly brilliant and versatile. with many intellectual gifts furthering a possibly brilliant public career, which, however, may bestir much envy, hostility and treachery.

A HEN AND A HALF

Sir: I had my attention drawn to a magazine which recently published the correct answer to the question which has been puzzling many of your readers: "If a hen and a half laid an egg and a half in a day and a half, how many eggs would six hens lay in seven days?

The correct answer is worked out this way:

Most people assume that if a hen and a half laid an egg and a half in a day and a half, one hen lays one egg in one day. But if two men drink two bottles of beer in two hours, one man doesn't drink one bottle of beer in one hour. One man drinks one bottle of beer in two hours.

So one chicken will lay one egg in a day and a hilf.

Or one chicken will lay two-thirds of an egg in one day.

And six chickens will lay four eggs in one day.

In seven days therefore, six chickens will lay 28 eggs.

—Ferdinand Alexander in a letter to Victoria Times.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

The engagement is announced of Mary Elizabeth Simpson of Foxboro, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Simpson, Havelock, to Everett Grills, son of Mr. J. Grills, Stirling. The marriage to take place quietly the middle of October.

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mrs. Wm. Gunning, of Stirling, wishes to announce the engagement of her daughter, Velma May to Mr. Mac Sarles, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Sarles, West Huntington. The marriage to take place in October.

Rev. D. T. McClintock takes the anniversary services at Norham tomorrow.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Carter, who have been visiting at the home of Mrs. J. W. Black, Dunbar Street, have left to spend some time in Grand Rapids, before returning to their home in Balboa.

Among the passengers on board the "Corinthia" which docked at New York, on Friday, was Miss Velma Chapman of Toronto, who has spent the past four months in Nassau, Bahamas.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Gunn, Trent Road, returned home from Rochester, N.Y., after visiting friends there for the past week. Miss Helen Gunn stopped in Toronto to attend Miss Gunn's Silver Anniversary.

Members of Minerva Chapter, O.E.S., sponsored an interesting card party held at the summer home of Mrs. Vandewater, Rossmore, on Wednesday. Winners at bridge were Mrs. Jack Hinchey, ladies' first, Mrs. W. Oliphant, second; Mr. Frank Parsons, men's first, and Mr. W. Oliphant, second. For euchre, Mrs. Keegan won the first ladies' prize and Mrs. Goodfellow, second. Mr. Lazenby won the men's prize. Refreshments were served at the close of the evening. The conveners of the successful party were Mrs. Vernon Smith and Mrs. Frank Gillett.

At the home of Mrs. Bruce Beavis, Ann Street, a delightful Autumn tea was held yesterday afternoon under the auspices of Mrs. C. E. Bateman's group of St. Andrew's Guild. Mrs. Beavis and Mrs. Bateman received the many guests, who were invited to tea by Mrs. P. Ranson. The tea table was most attractive with its centrepiece of deep-toned dahlais, and tall ivory tapers in silver holders on a handsome lace cloth Mrs. A. B. Baird and Mrs. F. S. Douglas poured and the tea assistants were Mrs. G. Shaw, Mrs. J. Miller, Mrs. McConnell and Mrs. G. Milligan. Mrs. E. Allison was treasurer for the afternoon and those in charge of the home-cooking were Mrs. E. Pigden and Mrs. George Cherry.

An enjoyable bridge party was held last evening at the home of Mrs. Arthur Nayler, Bleecker Avenue, under the auspices of the White Shrine of Jerusalem. Prizes were won by Mrs. W. Oliphant and Mrs. J. Watson and the consolation prize by Mrs. W. J. Coulby. Mrs. J. Watson was winner of the lucky birthday prize. Dainty refreshments were served after the games.

Weddings

FERRIER—WILSON

The home of Dr. and Mrs. F. Cameron Wilson, Napanee, was the setting for a wedding, this afternoon, when their daughter, Miss Dorothy Eleanor Wilson was married to Mr. Lyall Bruce Ferrier of Brantford, son of Dr. George C. Ferrier of South Mountain. The ceremony was conducted by Rev. S. L. Osborne, and Mrs. Dorothy Mackinnon played the wedding music. The bride given in marriage by her father, wore a simply-cut gown of shell-pink romanette, with matching veil of tulle illusion, caught with clusters or orange blossoms. She carried an old-fashioned nosegay of pink and yellow roses. The bride's mother was gowned in grey lace with corsage of red roses. The bride cut the wedding cake, which was of the exact shade of her gown, at a table decorated in pink and silver.

Later Mr. Ferrier and his bride left for a motor trip, the bride travelling in a hydrangea blue boucle suit with smart navy coat hat and accessories. They will live at 55 Sheridan Street, Brantford.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. Harris Redmond, Miss Anna Lee, Miss Grace McClintock, Miss Jean McCabe, Toronto; Dr. and Mrs. Wickware, Perth; Dr. George C. Ferrier, Brockville; Dr. and Mrs. Bradley, Lansdowne; Dr. Archibald Wilson, Hartford; Mr. and Mrs. John G. Robinson and Mrs. Frost of Cleveland; Mr. Bruce Lattimer of Belleville.

Let Youngster Alone At Adult Gatherings

Fussing Over Child Only Makes Him Feel Self-Conscious

By LISA GRENELLE

DICK WAS having a fine time taking in the conversation of his elders at a party. It was mostly pretty dull and pointless, of course, but occasionally worthy of a chuckle.

And that nice friend of Father's, Mr. Dough, on his way to fetch sandwiches for a newcomer, would stop to join Dick in the chuckle, adding a few remarks of his own that Dick could appreciate.

Asking Dick for a hand in dishing out the refreshments, Mr. Dough would start telling Dick about his dogs, a subject that interested Dick quite as much as Mr. Dough, for didn't he have dogs of his own that were the pride and joy of his heart? Dick like so many boys of his age never tired of hearing or telling dog stories.

So standing alone within easy reach of the refreshments, munching, listening, exchanging periodic cracks and anecdotes with Mr. Dough, Dick was perfectly happy, quite at home and at ease.

At ease because no one, except Mr. Dough, an old and congenial friend, noticed him, looked at him, spoke to him. Relieved of all self-consciousness or feeling of conspicuousness, Dick was perfectly content, having a wonderful time in his own adolescent way.

Then a kindly spinster on the other side of the room decided to take the boy in hand and bring him into the group—draw him out, make him part of the party. First she shouted. It wasn't, of course, seemly for a spinster lady to leave her chair in order to pursue a 13-year-old boy, so she shouted for Dick to bring a chair and come over and [illegible] to her.

Felt Embarrassed

Dick, made conspicuous by the shout, felt immediately embarrassed. He blushed, he shuffled, he looked guiltily around him; he thought of pretending not to hear.

But the well-meaning spinster shouted again, and Dick could not refuse. He took that chair and edged it through the crowd, with everybody looking.

By the time Dick reached his goal, he was hardly in a responsive state of mind; in no mood to be drawn out, in no mood to answer questions.

The poor spinster worked hard, with many encouraging smiles, but could only get a yes or no out of Dick.

After that, Dick avoided grown-up parties for fear of the well-meaning spinster lady or someone of her like, someone who might decide to draw him out—to make him part of the party.

You can't make an adolescent part of a grown-up party unless you go in for games, and even then it's doubtful. You only succeed in embarrassing him, making him feel horribly and painfully conspicuous.

On the other hand, to stand around the outskirts unnoticed does not make him feel left out of it, as it would you or me. It isn't his world, after all—it's only a show, if it isn't made into an embarrassment.

Children do not like to be drawn out, cornered and asked a lot of questions. It makes them feel trapped, as it would you or me. Of course, if you can drift casually into their favorite topic, as did Mr. Dough, that is a different matter.

Getting through a room full of people, especially with a chair in tow, is an art. It takes confidence and skill, more confidence and skill than have most adults, certainly far more than can be expected of an adolescent.

Either makes the child useful or let him alone—that is, if you want to make him happy and help him to find his social self and grow to like and not fear parties.

V. O. N. Appeals For Funds

Victorian Order of Nurses, the public health service that offers splendid part-time care to those needing it, has firmly established itself in Belleville and grows in popularity each year. For 1937 the nurses made 5,681 visits to those requiring nursing care, Of these visits, full fee was received from 696, partial fee from 1,611 and from the remainder 3,374 no fee was received.

One can readily understand how, when over fifty percent. of the cases are free the Order depends on the voluntary help of generous-hearted citizens to maintain an efficient health service for those unable to pay for it themselves.

Last year, one of the major projects was the Welfare Department for pre-school age children and infants, a most important part of the health work of the community.

Three hundred and six babies were registered in 1937 with an attendance of 1,564 at the forty-eight clinics. A dental health survey was also held in connection with the clinic.

The V.O.N. appeals to the generosity of the citizens in its annual campaign for funds which begins on Monday and members of the committee hope that this year as encouraging support as formerly will be given the canvassers.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

When You Receive a Formal Wedding Invitation

When you receive a formal invitation to the reception or breakfast—the invitation which "requests the pleasure of your company"—and which usually also requests a reply, should be answered as soon as possible. You should write your answer on formal letter-paper (white, double-sheeted paper is in excellent form). The answer should be written on the first page and carefully space with the lines spaced similarly to the lines on the invitation.

The idea to keep in mind is that an invitation should be answered "in kind": that is, a formal, invitation, which is an invitation written in the third person, should be answered formally, written in the third person.

The acceptance to this formal invitation would, therefore, be:

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Atwater accept with pleasure
Mr. and Mrs. George Pierce
Graham's
kind invitation for their daughter's wedding
reception
on Tuesday, the fourth of October at five o'clock
At The Park Lane

If you decline the invitation, you write:

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Atwater regret that they are unable to accept
Mr. and Mrs. George Pierce
Graham's
kind invitation
reception
on Tuesday, the fourth of October

(The hour and place may be repeated in the regret, but this, obviously, if not necessary).

Second Marriage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I married about two years ago in the rectory and divorced the following year. Now I should like to remarry again. I am just 26 years of age and my fiance and I would like to be married in church. He wants me to wear white and a veil. I thought that perhaps a white dress, nothing elaborate, with a hip-length veil all around would be all right. Then I would have just a maid of honor and a best man. I have heard that it is not correct, but entirely up to the people concerned. You see, very few of my friend know of my former marriage and none of my fiance's friends (except his immediate family) know of it.

I would be very grateful for your opinion as we shall act on your advice.

M.

I realize how much you and your fiance have set your hearts on this kind of wedding, but if you a bride for a second time, wear a white dress (even a simple white 'dress) and a bridal veil (even a short veil), you will be sailing under false colors. And this I am sure you will not wish to do, if you stop to consider deeply the fact that this would be dissembling.

The fact that few of your friends know of your first marriage, and that none of your fiance's friends know of it, does not alter the case. You know of it, and your fiance knows it, and his family know it . . . . but the only really important thing is that you know it. The sacrament of marriage is too holy to tarnish. Let your spirit shine honestly when you come before that sacred altar, my dear girl.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

Reasons for Girl's Popularity Do Not Always Make Sense

Girls are continually writing me letters to ask me why they lack dates, when other girls are dated ahead for weeks. They tell me they're just as good-looking, just as amusing and dress as well as the date-getter. The reasons for the other girl's popularity do not make sense to them.

This is a question no one has been able to answer up to the present time. There is no record of it but Lilith and Eve may have had it out over the affections of Adam.

The date-getter as you may have noticed, is often not beautiful. She may not be smart-looking or well-groomed or amusing. She may not be brazen flaunt her sex or suggest that she's the stuff of which easy or difficult conquest is made. All rules fail when it comes to solving this mystery of mysteries.

A girl's popularity may be built up by circumstances in the beginning. In the initial stages of the game it has to do with a certain sheep-like quality on the part of young boys. Take an adolescent's party where a girl gets her first start as popularity plus. The party isn't really under way. Everything is more or less tentative. Boys are shy. She may succeed in getting three or four boys around, because one of them may be a cousin, a next-door neighbour or what have you? The corporal's guard hanging around Annabel conveys the art of discovery. Other boys sidle up to get an introduction.

Reputations for popularity have had no greater beginnings than this. If a girl is started off as a frost, she's likely to remain a frost. If she begins her social career as a siren, bit by bit that reputation will be built up for her.

But the secret of genuine fascination lies deeper, and the only thing discoverable about it is that the more feminine a woman is, the greater is her lure. For some reason or other, if she can subtly convey the idea that she needs protection from a cruel world —or, if there's nothing else handy, a mouse or a bat—the chances are she has scored a point.

The now distinctly old-fashioned boyish girl, whose figure suggested a slate set up on a pair of compasses, was no great success with the opposite sex. The good-fellow girl and the athletic girl are not the date-getters of their more feminine rivals. Elinor Glyn, who originated the now outmoded term "It", which swept the world, failed to define what "It" meant.

As you have observed, some of the handsomest and most charming women in every community are spinsters. Girls with no claim to beauty snatched admirers and fiances from right under the noses of these beautiful ones. The women who have held men enthralled from the beginning of time have not been conspicuous for their goodness, or their evil, for that matter.

A homely widow, no longer young Madame de Maintenon, married the most gorgeous king of France, Louis IV. She was good. Nell Gwynn who fascinated Charles II and established a ducal family, which still holds sway in England today, was no saint. She was witty, vivacious and pretty—there are the two types for you.

The "come-hither" look has in it a spice of flattery, a suggestion of a caress, which makes every man feel he's a hero for romance, and a "de'il with the women". The mystery grows apace with the years; and part of the mystery is that no other woman can understand why she hasn't got it and some other woman has.

QUINTE BRANCH W. I.

The September meeting of the Quinte Branch Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. S. Snider with an attendance of twenty members and four visitors.

Mrs. Arnold Mitchell, president, opened the meeting with the Institute Ode followed by the Lord's Prayer repeated in unison.

Community singing was much enjoyed with Mrs. Connor at the piano.

The roll call, "Name an Industry in Hastings County," was well responded to by many mentioning a number of industries in Hastings which one should be proud to have as one does not seem to realize the goodly number until attention is called to answer.

Letters of appreciation for gifts and fruit for the sick were read by the secretary, Mrs. Noble Brown, and thanks received from Mrs. K. Mitchell and little Miss Odrey Purdey and Mrs. Grills and Mrs. Greatrix.

The delegates were appointed for the district area, which will be held in Belleville in October. Mrs. Harry Greatrix and Miss Helen Brown were chosen to attend. Mrs. D. Atkins being group leader for the month of September took charge of the meeting.

Mrs. Elliott, District Convener, gave a very interesting paper on the manufacture of sugar from beets. She told of her visit to the factories and how sugar from the beets was made, touching on every point of interest from the field to the factory until the fine white sugar was a finished product.

Mrs. Stanley Grills sang a solo entitled, "Down by the Old Mill Stream."

Mr. Smith, representative of the Entomological Labratory, Belleville, gave an interesting talk on "Household Insects that Effect Health, the Food, the Home the Garden and the Trees," which was of great value.

Mr. Smith demonstrated a case of garden and orchard insects for which a vote of thanks was given him for his well planned topic.

Mrs. Arnold Mitchell in her pleasing manner gave a splendid paper on "True Canadians," which was very impressive and instructive.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem. The hostess, Mrs. Snider, assisted by Mrs. W. C. Mitchell, Mrs. Clazie, Mrs. H. Greatrix, Mrs. A. Reid served a dainty lunch and a social half hour was enjoyed by all.

SPRINGBROOK W. A.

The Springbrook W. A. met at the home of Mrs. A. Haslett on Thursday afternoon for their regular monthly meeting, seventeen members being present. The meeting opened with the usual exercises after instruction and interesting reading were given. Mrs. Thom. McKeown, vice president, took charge of the business part of the meeting. The meeting was then closed and after lunch provided by the hostess an enjoyable half hour was spent.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

Top off your fur coat with a matching fur-trimmed hat. For mink there is a handsome hat, a breton-bowl of brown felt with a wide cuff of mink. Two jeweled flowers give a touch of glitter.

Comfort means much if a fur coat is for really bad weather. A grand football game model or a good driving coat is of safari brown sealskin very full at the hem, allowing for a wide lap. It closes with self buttons framed in brown leather.

Soft and easy blouse silhouette marks many dresses. The bloused line is a smart feature of a cocktail dress fashioned of brown and silver lame. Skirt is full and circular, and belt is formed of tucked self-material.

Better by far, to keep away from fur wraps unless one can splurge. Without a speck of fur trimming, but very, very smart is a marvelous wrap of white wool, the fitted bodice trimmed with a leaf design in gold thread and gold paillettes. Wrap is long and slim.

Plenty of fresh air for those smart twin cardigan and sweater sets in new autumn colors. A nice set is of fur-knit soft mohair yarn in rust. The coat has four button-flap pockets and the belt has a link fastening. Nice with tweed or flannel skirt.

An invitation to dinner means a chance to wear a handsome dinner suit. A beauty is of black sheer wool with a bloused bodice of supple gold metal cloth. It has a round smocked yoke and closes with a self bow.

Kidney Troubles
Indicated by the symptoms

Scanty, highly coloured urine, headache, backache and constipation are among the early symptoms of kidney disease. The appetite is fickle, the tongue is furred and in time there is pallor and loss of weight.

The functions of the kidneys in filtering the uric acid poisons from the blood are halted and these poisons set up pains and aches, rheumatism, gout and lumbago.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are recommended as an effective and prompt means of relief because they quickly arouse the activity of the liver and bowels as well as the kidneys, and thoroughly cleanse the system of the acid poisons. Relieved of undue strain, the kidneys resume again their natural functions and the painful symptoms disappear.

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills have stood the test of time and will not fail you. At all drug stores or The Dr. A. W. Chase Medicine Co., Limited, Oakville, Ontario, Canada.

NOTES IN THE DIARY OF A FASHION MODEL

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

CYNTHIA WROTE to her people about me but they were in Italy. But they returned to London yesterday and telephoned asking me to dinner. They are really charming, not a bit high-hat or stuffy. Her brothers are grand fun. One boy is still at Eton, which is a famous public school, while the other boy is in his last year at Oxford.

The parents are charming, so good looking and so well bred, the kind of people that one expects aristocrats to be but seldom are, judging from those I have met. The boys wanted to know all about America in general and Hollywood in particular. I told them all I could and said that Cynthia would have all the news when she returned. I told them that every studio wanted to test Cynthia and give her a contract. Can you imagine, she hadn't even written and told her people about something that every other girl would broadcast. They were so pleased that I know Don so well, for his wife is an old friend and neighbor of theirs.

Going to Scotland

They are going to Scotland for the shooting at the end of the week and invited me to come along. Of course, I declined and would have done so even if I had not had the excuse of uncertainty in my plans. Well, anyway, it was nice to meet Cynthia's folks and to find them real people. They have a gorgeous town house and they were more proud of the fact that it had been equipped with central heating than that it contained marvelous pictures, tapestries and furniture that is worth a fortune.

Cynthia gets her looks from her mother who is handsome and looks like her sister rather than her mother. I'm told that she was one of England's greatest beauties, and so far as I am concerned she still is.

Dark beige wool sports suit.

I admired this nice little sports suit yesterday. It is of dark beige woolen with a brown thread woven through the fabric. Brown leather placed in criss-cross formation at breast and hips forms slit pockets. A zipper closes the front up to the turnback leather collar. The leather is a soft, supple kidskin. The coat is seamed through the midsection for a snug fit.

TORONTO STOCKS CLOSE

Toronto, Oct. 1—(CP)—Despite wide gains in three succeeding sessions of the Toronto Exchange the buying again was more heavy than the selling in today's short market and prices advanced again. All indices were up but, due to late profit-taking, the close was slightly under the best level of the day.

The market was featured by a strong demand for the base metals with Waite-Amulet outstanding. Waite traded about 30,000 shares in the first hour on a rise of 80 cents to 7.15. The seniors, Noranda, Nickel and Smelters advanced fractions. Silver stocks were quiet and steady.

Secondary golds continued to change hands in quantity.

Active traders at gains of 10 cents or more were Wright-Hargreaves, O'Brien, Pickle Crow, Hard Rock, Powell-Rouyn, MacLeod-Cockshutt. Senior golds showed little change.

Gains were narrow and trading fairly quiet in the Industrial section. Gains predominated in the Steels, Senior Oils, Foods, Papers and Beverages. Gains of a point or more appeared for Abitibi Pfd., Massey-Harris Pfd., Eastern Steel, Steel of Canada, National Steel Car and Page-Hersey.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Oct. 1 (AP)—Further optimism over the easing of European war tension, combined with hopes for a pickup in business now that world peace prospects have brightened, brought fresh buying into the stock market.

While profit taking intervals were frequent, gains ran to two or more points at the best, with a few issues such as Du Pont, Johns-Manville and Philip Morris posting new highs for the year.

Canadian issues shoved forward fractionally. A shade up were McIntyre Porcupine, Hiram Walker, Distillers, Dominion Stores and Lake Shore. Dome reversed the trend for a minor loss. Canada 4's were neglected. Montreal funds lost 1-16 of a cent at 99.37½.

Receiving support throughout were shares of U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown, General Motors, Chrysler, Western Union, Consolidated Edison, Montgomery Ward, U. S. Rubber, J. I. Case, Oliver Farm, Allis Chalmers, Sperry Corp., Westinghouse, American Can, Air Reduction, Owens-Illinois, Crane Co., American Smelting, Anaconda, Santa Fe, N.Y. Central, Great Northern and Chesapeake and Ohio.

HITLER WELCOMED BY DENSE THRONG

Returns To Berlin After Conference At Munich

Berlin, Oct. 1 (AP)—A crowd estimated at 500,000 gave Chancellor Hitler a triumphant, thankful welcome today on his return from the four-power peace conference in Munich.

The Fuehrer's special bomb-proof train arrived exactly on schedule at 10:40 a.m. (4:40 a.m. E.S.T.) while brass bands blared and tens of thousands in the station square thundered "Heil! Fuehrer!"

Leading men of the Nazi party, government and armed forces, headed by Field Marshal Hermann Goering, awaited the chancellor on the platform. During the night almost every inch of the station walls had been covered with flags, foliage and flowers.

Airplanes roared overhead as he rode to the chancellory through the streets guarded by shoulder-to-shoulder lines of storm troopers, and more than 100,000 school children yelled themselves hoarse in greeting.

FIREMEN'S BALL PLANS COMPLETE

Pronounced by the committee in charge to be the most elaborate affair of its kind ever staged in Belleville, the Annual Firemen's Ball being held here on Monday is expected to attract a large crowd, Fire Department officials stated today.

Nearly two hundred prizes have been donated by merchants and others of the city which will be given away on the night of the Ball. Euchre and bridge will hold the entertainment spotlight during the early part of the evening with dancing and refreshments climaxing what is expected to be a highly enjoyable event.

Members of the various committees have worked faithfully for the past two weeks and announce that everything is in readiness for the events, the proceeds of which replenishes the coffers of the Christmas Fund of the Department.

BAPTIST MEN HOLD BANQUET

Rev. A. G. Sinclair Speaks At First Banquet of Brotherhood

A splendid address by Rev. A. G. Sinclair was heard by the Baptist Brotherhood at their opening banquet in Victoria Ave., Baptist Church on Friday evening. Mr. Sinclair spoke concerning the man's place in the Christian Church.

"Unfortunatly many artists have depicted Jesus as a effeminate, delicate figure," said the speaker. "That is not my conception of Jesus at all. On the contrary, I believe he was strong and muscular in appearance and perfectly noble in character. Christ was distinctly a man's man and the religion of Christ is a man's religion.

"The vision of virile manhood at its best, is the conception of Jesus that we should present to men in a busy work-a-day world. There are great possibilities for men in the Christian church. Our purpose is not pink teas and back-patting parties but to invest all the energy and time and ability that may be required of us to bring to successful achievement that which we set out to do. It is no easy thing today to tackle a manly Christ's job."

The dinner prepared by Mrs. Hogle's young ladies was abundant and satisfying. Mr. Bruce Sills played two accordion solos and Mr. Frank Whittle sang "Keep on Looking for the Bright Sky" and "Dear Land of Hope" as an encore. The devotional service was conducted by Mr. Art Wynne. Mr. Gordon Bray presided over the business session.

A COSTLY FOG

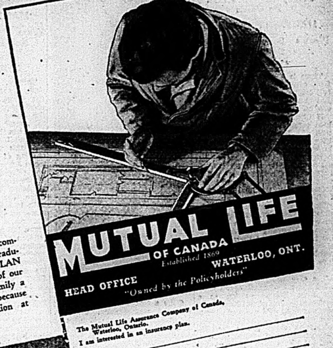
No fog was dense enough to subdue the glitter that tied up the Queen Mary for twelve hours on the very entrance to New York. She was bright with the gleam of gold and silver in the amount of $45,152,000; $45,000,000 was in gold, $132,000 was in silver.

If there is any question in your mind that the fog doesn't run into money, consider that the Cunard White Star Line had to pay overtime to the customs inspectors last night and that the extra food bill according to Chief Steward E. B. Pimbly, amounted to $4,000!

The liner did not expect to serve breakfast as the Queen Mary was scheduled to dock so early; so first breakfast had to be served; then luncheon was served and before the fog and tide came to terms, dinner was served.

All in all, 2,000 meals were served yesterday instead of 500—New York Post.

Mutual Life PLANNED Insurance—saves you money . . .



Planned life insurance is like a planned house. Instead of buying a policy haphazardly you sit down with a trained Mutual Life representative, discuss the future income needs of your family and yourself, and are given a sound, fundamental "insurance plan" which, if followed, will give you and your family future income at ALL times—when it is likely to be needed most.

There will not be any gaps in protection. There will be:

Income for you—to meet emergencies; to educate your children; and to retire in ease:

Should you die; there will be income to pay outstanding debts; income with which to raise and educate the family, and permanent income for your wife.

It may not be possible to embark on the complete plan at once, but rather to build it gradually as your means permit. But it is the PLAN that is important. A discussion with one of our representatives may save you or your family a great deal of worry and actual cash, because planning gives you maximum protection at minimum cost.

Butter ¼c Easier at Toronto

Toronto, Oct. 1—Prices dropped ¼c per pound on butter solids and were slightly weaker for cheese to the wholesale trade during yesterday's session of the local produce market. Eggs held steady to firm.

Dealers reduced values on the butter market in an effort to keep current supplies clear as traders once again moved to the sidelines. Fresh receipts continued light. Ontario creamery solids were quoted at 21¾c for No. 1 grades, 21c for 38 score and 20¼c for 37 score. Prints maintained former levels, with top grades selling at 23½c to 24c.

Fair demand kept offerings clearing readily on the egg market, and prices edged higher on top grades in the graded division. Arrivals of grade A-large and medium were showing a decline, while pullets were heavier in volume. Sales in retail channels were reported to be holding up well. Graded shipments traded at 34c for grade A-large, 33c for medium, 29c for pullets, 26c for B's and 21c to 21½c for C grades. Other sections were steady at previous price levels.

Produce Eases at Montreal

Montreal, Oct. 1 —The Dominion Department of Agriculture reported that open produce markets were quiet and slightly easier Friday.

Creamery butter prints to retail dealers sold for 23½c to 24c and creamery solids at 23c to 23½c. Receipts 1153 boxes, including 501 boxes for export.

Graded egg shipments in used free cases were offered at 35c a dozen for A-large, 33c for A-medium, 29c for A-pullets, 26c for B-large, and 24c for C. Receipts 1082 cases including 500 cases for export.

STAR RING FOR WINNIPEG BLUE BOMBERS

The western football championship is still very much in doubt, but it looks like a race between Regina Roughriders and Winnipeg Blue Bombers. Attempting to bring the Manitoba capital's team to the heights it scaled three years ago when it captured the dominion title, are these players and their mates. At the TOP, Jeff Nicklin, hard-hitting outside wing player, LEFT, and the team's brilliant quarterback, Art Stevenson, BELOW, at the left, is Wayne Sheley, this year's four-star special in the importing business, who is making up for the loss of Fritz Hanson, out with an injured ankle. More than one critic will tell you Sheley is better than Hanson. CENTRE is Lou Mogul and RIGHT Greg Kabat, veterans of the line, and turning in great performances as the Bombers shoot for that title.

Accurate Weighing Establishes Confidence

There is no one factor that is more essential in establishing the confidence of the farmers in the drover or packing company than accurate weighing. The Federal Department of Agriculture has taken definite steps to eliminate as far as possible the chance of error.

The position of weighmaster at a stock yards or a packing-company is a position of much responsibility which is equally divided between the man who buys and the man who sells.

For this reason all men employed as weighmasters must be approved by a representative of the Federal Department of Agriculture.

League Race May End Today If Cubs Win Two and Bucs Lose One to Cincinnati Reds

Chicago Had Chance On Friday But Were Tied By Cards

HARTNETT INJURED

Pirates Split With Reds After Being Beaten In First Game

There is a chance—more than a faint one—that the National baseball league race may end today just short of exhaustion for everyone concerned.

If Chicago Cubs manage to win both games of their doubleheader with St. Louis Cardinals, where they couldn't break a 7-7 deadlock before darkness caught them yesterday, of if the Cubs win one game and Pittsburgh Pirates lose another to Cincinnati, it will be all over. Otherwise it can't end before Sunday, the final day of an exciting season.

There was a somewhat similar situation yesterday, but the Pirates pulled out by the skin of their teeth by whipping the Reds 4-2 in the second game of their twin bill after Cincinnati's Paul Derringer had let them down with five hits to take the opener 7-1.

Must Win Twice

The only thing that keeps that 1 1-2 game that is Chicago's margin from looking as big as a mountain is that if the Bucs don't lose, the Cubs also must win twice. Two Pittsburgh triumphs and two defeats in three games for Chicago would leave them virtually tied, but by playing fewer games the Pirates would gain the edge of one percentage point, .587 to .586.

Derringer gained his 21st victory of the season yesterday with a masterful performance against the Pirates while homers by Wally Berger and Ernie Lombardi in the fifth sewed up the game.

Just Turn About

Then is was turn about as Russ Bauers limited the Reds to four blows and made a double and triple himself, while Arky Vaughan hit for the circuit and Gus Suhr whacked out three hits.

The weary Cubs, after getting a 6-1 lead over the Cards, couldn't hold it.

The rest of the day's action was confined to a doubleheader in which Chicago White Sox beat St. Louis Browns, 7-5 then tied them 3-3 in a game halted by darkness in the eighth. The Giants-Phillies game was cancelled because of rain.

MARATHON MADNESS

Quite a furore in the world of nonsense was created, when J. Smith Ferebee played 144 holes of golf in one day, not so long ago. An epidemic of dizzy marathons followed till J. Smith himself decided to top things off by playing 600 holes of golf in four days, travelling across the continent to do so. He accomplished the feat and is seen here as he stepped from the airliner used for his hops. He started in Los Angeles and wound up in Westbury, N.Y.

WITH THE LAWN BOWLERS

by

GEO. E. WATKIN

Ten more Bowling days before Xmas.

Our greens will close on Monday, Oct. 10th, on that day a mixed rink tournament will be held. Only twenty-four ladies and twenty-four men will be able to play on account of lack of greens so get your name in early. Phone me before Saturday the 8th, the draw will be made and given to the paper on that day.

Mrs. Cross our weather profit says there will be no cold weather until after the 20th of October.

A general meeting of our club was held on Thursday evening when matters of importance to the club were discussed and arrangements made to keep our members together during the winter months. A committee with Frank Correll as chairman along with Joe Black and Harvey Stewart will work with a committee from the ladies' section (I have not their names at present) to arrange the various functions we will have, let us all get behind them and some real good evenings will be assured this fall and winter.

Eighteen of our boys went down to Kingston on Wednesday and on Thursday morning early eighteen boys returned again all holding the bag 100 percent a record hard to beat.

Which reminds us very much of the story Napoleon had an army of one hundred thousand men, he marched them up the hill and he marched them down again.

On Wednesday next we will hold a mixed tournament weather permitting.

Charlie Doran our chairman of greens has put the upper green in first class shape for spring and next week will start on the ends at the lower green, this is the first time this has been done, good work Charlie.

The election of officers for 1939 should take place before the end of October, this gives them a chance to formulate their plans during the winter months the same should apply to the ladies' club.

As this will be the last of my bowling notes for this season there are one or two remarks I would like to make, first I am sure the club join me in thanking the Ontario Intelligencer for our column, if this has not been interesting it is not their fault and secondly the help I have received from the members and officers of the club. Our officers have performed their duty well and the season has been a good one. Let us all pull together in 1939 and make it a banner season. So good Saturday evening and "Thank you?"

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Johnny Mize, Cardinals — His triple with bases loaded led Cards' comeback to tie Cubs 7-7.

Paul Derringer, Reds, and Russ Bauers, Pirates—Derringer gave five hits to win doubleheader opener, 7-1: Bauers' four-hitter took nightcap 4-2.

ARGOS MAY BE TEAM TO BEAT IN INTERPROVINCIAL

Safe Thing To Do Is To String Along With The Champion

MANY STARS GONE

Team Depending On Big Bob Isbister For The Punting

By SYDNEY GRUSON

Toronto, Oct. 1 (CP)—The safe thing in sport is to string along with the champion. So until someone knocks them off, Toronto Argonauts, the league and national titlists of 1937, must be considered the team to beat in the Interprovincial Rugby Football Union this season.

At this date, a week before the opening of the Big Four schedule sends Argos against Hamiton Tigers and Ottawa Rough Riders against Montreal Cubs, it would appear that the bulky Riders will again provide Argos with their main opposition. Both teams fundamentally are the same as those which waged the knockdown struggle for the Union crown last year.

Shorn of most of the stars who performed for Montreal Indians, the newly-named Cubs do not figure on pre-season performances to dispute the Argo-Rider fight. Neither do Tigers, assembling under a new coach with a number of juniors and intermediates replacing the aging Tiger regulars who retired.

Argos have been weakened by the loss of eight members of the championship team, but it may be that they hold the answer to any questions about the Big Four championship in big Bob Isbister, an outstanding punter. If Isbister, at present suffering from a sore leg, kicks back to form, the extra yardage Riders undoubtedly will gain on the ground may go to waste, as in 1937.

Lost Capable Centres.

Argos lost Reg Barker and Bud Lewis, their 1937 centres, and that section of the line may be slightly weaker with Red Vail and George Heen, a former University of Toronto star. But strong replacements came along for Bill Bryers and Leo Deadey, last season's outsides. The veteran Wes Cutler is assured of a berth and the addition of Bill Burkhart from Ottawa and Bernie Thornton from Queen's University fills the position capably. Thornton was a standout in the college circuit.

Johnny Edwards has retired to direct athletics at Queen's, but the backfield remains strong with fleet Art West, Johnny Munro, another Queen's graduate, and Earl Selkirk as running halves and Bud Thomas, Doug MacPherson, Red Storey and Teddy Morris as plungers.

Bulk of the line duty will fall on Jim Staughton, Jim Palmer, Bill Zock and Dave Ferris with Art Evans, the team captain, as the key man on secondary defence.

Argos, riding high as Dominion champions, were cocky and overconfident until Balmy Beach slapped them down 7-2 in the city series. Now they're "hungry" again and they'll be hard to stop.

Sports Roundup

New York, Oct. 1 (AP)—They're certainly not making it any easier for Hankus Pankus Greenberg. . . . Knocking off tomorrow's game for a doubleheader Sunday is almost sure to slice at least a couple innings off big Hank's chances of catching the Babe — 'cause darkness always catches up with the second games of these October double bills. . . .

Cub pitching staff looks so-o-o tired . . . makes you wonder what'll happen when those Yanks show up—provided the Cubs do get the flag. . . . Sharpshooter Wilfred Hetzel, the Minneapolis basketball whiz, may take his trick shots into the movies this winter, and then bring 'em to the world fair here next year. . . . He's the fellow who can sink his shots any way you call them. . . .

The big name golfing pros are thinking over an invite to take a crack at the Philippine open. . . . Wonder what those other National Pro Football League bosses think of themselves for passing up a chance to land Purdue Cecil Isbell in the draft. . . . Looks like the Green Bay Packers have the goods on that feller.

Texas Mines (nickname, Ore Diggers, in case you haven't heard) will be quietly uniformed in flaming orange and white this year . . . and Gus Dorais will trot Detroits out in blazing cardinal jerseys, gold pants and red and white striped helmets. . . . Paavo Nurmi took one look at Gunnar Barlund, the heavyweight, on a running track in their native Finland—and told him he should get into the fight game . . . he did.

In the world series it'll be fun to watch Carl Reynolds, the Cub ballhawk, come sliding home against Bill Dickey, the Yanks' catcher. . . . They haven't seen much of each other since Bill hung one on Carl (then a Senator) back in '32, and they carted Carl off to the hospital with a busted jaw. . . . Minor League bill broke all records this year . . . with 37 clubs starting and finishing the season, and not a dime in debt. . . . Dutch Bergman is calling it his "League of Nations" football squad down at Catholic U. . . . 14 nationalities, including a couple of Greeks and one honest-to-goodness Chippewa Indian.

Stevenson, Sheley Lead Bombers in Battle For Western Football Title

But Regina Stands In Way of Repeating Triumph of Three Years Ago

By CLEM SHIELDS

Central Press Canadian Correspondent

Winnipeg, Sept. 30 — Eenie, meenie, minie, mo, drop the coin and let it go . . . and that's just about all the chances you have of picking the 1938 Western Canada rugby champions. It's an even money bet whether Winnipeg Blue Bombers or Regina Roughriders make the trip east this year.

The Western Canada grid season has been in progress for four weeks and already it is obvious which three teams will meet in the play-offs—Winnipeg, Regina and Calgary. Edmonton, the 1938 baby of the conference, has yet to notch its first victory. Winnipegs are tied with Regina at the top of the league with three wins and one loss apiece, each team having beat the other. Calgary Bronks have scored a brace of wins at the expense of Bob Fritz' Edmonton Eskimos, and since they meet the Eaks twice more it looks as if they will be the third play-off team.

The rivalry between the Regina Roughriders and Winnipeg is one of the greatest on any Canadian sport front, and it is little wonder that record crowds are clicking the turnstiles at both Park de Young, Regina, and the enlarged Osborne stadium at Winnipeg. Never in the history of football in Western Canada has interest been at such a peak.

Hanson Out

The Blue Bombers lost a sparkplug in the one and only Fritz Hanson....on the sidelines to date with an injured ankle....but they got in his place a piece of football machinery that would open the eyes of the East were he eligible to make the trip. We refer to Wayne Sheley from Augustana College, South Dakota, a laddie who has turned down pro offers. In four conference games to date Sheley has scored three touchdowns ....and Threlfall, who knows whereof he speaks, claims Mr. Sheley has not yet shown his real stuff.

By the time the play-offs roll around, Fritzie Hanson will be fit, according to the Blue Bombers' doctor. He's in good shape right now and it will take little limbering up for him to be ready to take his place in the line-up.

A quick survey of the games played so far this season may be of interest. Winnipeg and Regina opened their grind the same date, Sept.2, the Blue Bombers blanking Carl Cronin's Calgary Bronks, 6-0, while Dean Griffing was leading his powerful Reginas to an 11-0 triumph over Bob Fritz's Edmonton Eskimos. On Sept. 5 the Bombers trounced the Eskimos 33-8, with Regina defeating Calgary on the same date, 9-0.

Danaher Defeats 'Pegs

Sept. 12 Regina visited Winnipeg and in the last few minutes of a great struggle scored a kick to the deadline, the Regina's sensational Leo Danaher intercepted a Winnipeg forward pass and raced 30 yards for a touchdown and the Bombers were left without time to counter-attack. On the play the Reginans were well worth their victory and undoubtedly are one of the greatest teams ever assembled in the Saskatchewan city. Danaher is just about tops in grid warfare, a player every coach would love to have in his line-up.

On Sept. 17 Calgary was host to Edmonton and pasted a 16-3 defeat on the Fritzmen. Then on Sept. 24 came an epic struggle at Regina when the Roughriders and Blue Bombers tangled for the second time. A stadium jammed to the doors saw a fighting, savage Winnipeg squad emerge with a 17-10 triumph to move into a tie for first place with the losers. While the 'Pegs were beating Regina the Calgarians were downing Edmonton 5-3....but the victory was gained over a far tougher Eskimo team than had been seen in the Western conference previously.

For the sake of the West in the Dominion title class it would be best if Winnipeg took the Western honors, for should Regina come out on top their list of ineligibles via the import rule is such that only a skeleton team could play against the Eastern champions. On the other hand, Winnipeg can send all their players with the exception of Sheley and Rebholz, the latter returning to the fold after an absence of one year and playing just as sound a game as he did when he electrified the Easterners with his lightning forward passes in the 1935 game against Hamilton Tigers.

Stevenson Standout

If one were looking for an all-round star on the Winnipeg team, Art Stevenson, quarterback de luxe, who caused such a stir in official circles last year regarding his eligibility under the student rule, is possibly the man to plunk for. Art, a medical student in Manitoba University, kicks, passes, receives, and he can carry that ball! In short, a good player.....very good!

Then there is veteran..as football players go.....Greg Kabat. Greg saw action in that 1935 game and played against the Argos of Toronto last year and he swears he will see action in the East again this year.

The Blue Bombers have plenty of imported grid talent, but no one could say that the home-brews are not showing real stuff this year. Bill Ceretti at inside wing has proven his mettle this season and in the last Regina-Winnipeg game was voted the best man on the field. Then there are Lou Mogul, Eddie James, Cliff Roseborough, Eddie Kushner, Bill Nairn, Jeff Nicklin, Percy Daigle, Ches McCance and Tom Cook, all playing great football.

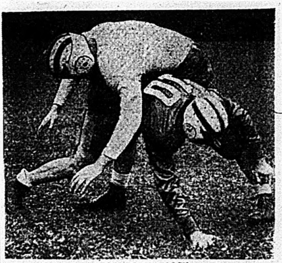
All in all, it looks like a fight to the wire for the Western grid crown and then a grand battle for the Canadian title!

FACTS ABOUT FOOTBALL

Cross-Body Block Used By Backfield and Line

Opponent Should be Hit Across the Thighs

By Lew Hayman



CROSS-BODY BLOCK

Note the crab-like position taken by the blocker after he hits opponent. His hands and feet are wide apart and his inside leg on the other side of the man being blocked. This position gives him free movement and stops his man if the impact when he hit him fails to knock him down.

When one man is assigned to block an opponent who is free and clear the most effective block is the cross-body block. Backfield men use it when blocking to protect a passer, or when moving out to hit a crashing defensive outside on an end run.

Linemen use this block when pulling out of the line to lead the interference on reverse plays and also, like backfielders, when moving from the line to protect a passer.

Outsides will occasionally use it when they have to block the defensive middle alone. If their assignment calls for them to go out wide and take out the defensive outside they would again use the cross-body check.

In executing a cross-body block run close to the opponent, picking up speed, power and drive. Concentrate on the contact to be made, keeping your head and eyes up and then at the opportune time, take off. Aim at your opponent's midsection, which will allow for the distance between you and should enable you to hit him across the thighs.

Keep your head and shoulders on one side of your man and the inside knee on the other. The force on the block is made mostly with the impact of the hips and legs. Should the impact not knock your opponent down, contact must be maintained by supporting yourself on the ground with hands and feet. This allows you to move forward and backward, always manoeuvring to keep between the opponent and the play.

In using the cross-body block be careful of your timing. You must guard against leaving your feet too soon. When you start don't take off too low, and watch out for your opponent's backing up. Too little attention to any of these things leads to a poor blocking effort and exposes you to injury.

In the picture of this block notice how the body is thrown across the thighs with the inside leg behind the opponent. The actual contact is made mostly with the hips. Note particularly the bridge-like effect against the body of the opponent. His feet and hands are wide apart and if he doesn't hit his man hard enough to knock him down the bridge-like position will hold him and move him back.

We have now discussed all the important methods of blocking. Other types of blocks are used but they are all secondary to these and used merely as extra measures. So as the three important blocks we have:

1. Shoulder block.
2. Pin block.
3. Cross-body block.

Master these blocks and when you can use them effectively no coach can keep you off his team . . . no coach will even want to keep you off. No team is better than its blocking. Blocking is tackling without using the arms.

Ottawa Rough Riders Boast Powerful Line

By GORDON HEADLEY

Central Press Canadian Correspondent

Ottawa, Oct. 1—Undoubtedly a team of tremendous possibilities, Ottawa Rough Riders are looked upon as a distinct threat to Canadian football supremacy this year and a glance at their powerhouse line-up bears out this contention. The red machine won their last Big Four championship in 1936—after a lapse of ten years and this season experts predict they will have a lot to say about the eastern crown and the right to contest the Dominion title.

To begin with there's an entirely different atmosphere prevailing in the Riders' camp, and Coach Ross Trimble believes the team, once it gets under way, will prove one of the biggest obstacles and surprise packages of the year for Toronto, Hamilton, Montreal, et al. The team still boasts the heaviest tank corps in the country but Trimble has concentrated on developing a streamlined backfield and has some of the finest material in eastern Canada to go about his task with.

Griffin the Ace

Tommy Daley, a product of the city's high school gridirons, Stan O'Neil, Orville Burke, Andy Tommy, Jack Leore, Eddie Rocano, Wilf. Trembley and last, but not least, Murray Griffin, an outstanding ball-carrier and passer, comprise the list. Griffin, a star with Queen's university, is probably the pick of the lot at this writing but the back division is one that is certain to demand attention this season.

Two years ago Rough Riders lost out in that memorable battle with Sarnia Imperials for the eastern Canada championship and the red team has not forgotten it. Consequently it is fired with ambition to avenge that defeat and if it lives up to the form shown so far, has a great chance of doing so.

Griffin will balance the backfield while Arnie Morrison and Orville Burke have shown themselves capable of directing the team from the quarterback position. Morrison was the spark in Rough Riders' 1936 drive and his young understudy has proven himself under fire with his brilliant passing and running.

At secondary, Rough Riders have Cal Moore, Harry McCauley and Joe Zellocvitz to spill enemy ball-carriers, and Trimble couldn't have chosen a more capable trio. All are 60-minute men. McCauley and Zellcovitz have been with the club for several seasons while Moore came here this year from Sarnia Intermediates. All three are deadly tacklers and of the type that rarely cracks under pressure.

Powerful Line

The capital squad is not worrying about the front trenches. There's power and more power in that front line with big Dave Sprague, Bunny Wadsworth, Colin Ross, George Fraser, "Tiny" Herman, Wank Ussher, Rick Perley, Tony McCarthy and Curly Moynahan facing the enemy. There isn't a line in the country that appears to have the power that's loaded into this collection of stars, and the secret of the team's success in the last four or five years lies in his startling line-up. Practically every team in the east has felt the sting of their smashing ground attack.

The one big question mark surrounding the chances of Rough Riders this season is their kicking department. They haven't a "Bummer" Stirling in their castle, but Eddie Rocano, Jack Leore and the ponderous "Tiny" Herman are out to make this season the best in their careers. Herman is the best placement-kicker in the Big Four but whether Rocano and Leore can match the tall, ground-gaining punts of other booters is a question that has yet to be answered. Rocano will be remembered as the boy who proved the kicking sensation of the east in 1936 and Ottawa fans are pulling for him to regain his old form and put the finishing touches to a powerful machine.

After all—there's nothing like being consistent and if leaving the city softball championship in abeyance and unfinished year after year constitutes consistency—well then the local softballers take the fur-lined shoe laces and first honors, because we understand once again the Belleville softball finals will be left unfinished and no titlist will be named again in 1938. Year after year a softball league is operated locally with all good intents and purposes, but invariably some person tosses the proverbial monkey wrench into the post-season league playoffs.

Last year in the city league championship the clubs concerned could not agree upon a date, which ultimately resulted in no final contest, but Point Anne claimed the city league trophy by default. This year Corbys A. C. and Point Anne are tied in the city final series with the deciding game now left unplayed. Secretary Harry Knott tried to get the two clubs together today, but there still remained the question of players Art Cole and Harold Reid who were suspended by the O.A.S.A. Point Anne refused to field a team versus Corbys unless the suspensions on Cole and Reid were lifted, stating they did not want to endanger the 1939 playing status of the Cementmen. The O.A.S.A. flatly refused to reinstate players Cole and Reid yesterday. Corbys will not play without these two players, while Point Anne say they will not play against them. So there's the stalemate from both camps.

Just why the O.A.S.A. assumed such an attitude is hard to understand, as doubtless both Cole and Reid will be reinstated next spring, so why should the provincial moguls toss a monkey wrench into a little city league series that in no way affects them. Actually Reid should never have been suspended in the first place as he was an innocent victim of circumstance. In future years the local softball moguls would avoid these post-season squabbles by awarding the league trophy to the club finishing atop the regular league schedule, then if they desired a post-season play-off it could be arranged separately. In the meantime Secretary Harry Knott is endeavouring to open negotiations with the two clubs in hopes of yet deciding the city honors.

(Tip Off)

Veteran hunters tell us there may be a drought of partridge this season, but as a consolation there seems to be an abundance of wild ducks throughout the district, all of which will doubtlessly get a sweet lead welcome today as the duck hunting season opens. Doing a little pre-season scouting on his own behalf a local wild game hunter made a survey of north Hastings this week and here's his personal report as given us last night. "I drove my car north to Bancroft thence over the Monck Road and on my return trip I took the old highway back to Ormsby and from the time I left Madoc until I got back I saw exactly one partridge, but everywhere you went near the lakes and waters there were plenty of wild ducks. Personally I like partridge better but it looks as though I'll be out of luck this season," the veteran game hunter woefully reported.

(Tension Still Strenuous)

The Chicago Cubs muffled a chance to virtually cinch the National League pennant yesterday when their game at St. Louis ended in a seven all tie with the Cards. Darkness intervened and now the Cubs must play a doubleheader at St. Louis on Saturday in order to get in the tie fixture. Gabby Hartnett's crippled pitching staff can hardly stand a doubleheader at this stage of the pennant race, but even the Pirates, who are doubtless in a groove, missed their golden opportunity also, as they split a twin bill with the Reds, which leaves the Bucaneers still a game and a half astern the Cubs. Yesterday's tie game may prove a bad break for the Cubs, as we pointed out their weakened hurling staff can't stand twin bills, while they may lose the services of Manager Gabby Hartnett, who split another finger yesterday, after a similar accident the day previous. Second guessing would say Hartnett never should have risked injury yesterday, but it only goes to prove the veteran Chicago catcher and manager is battling strenuously for a league pennant and also to assure himself of a renewal of contract as manager of the Cubs for 1939, something that is still to be decided.

(A Gleam of Light)

Perhaps there is Santa Claus after all—at least Coach Archie Duffield is still hoping—even if he hasn't hung up his stocking. Coach Pete Beach, of Albert College, attended last night's practice of the Panthers and upon learning the local gridders were short on linesmen, whispered glad tidings into Duffield's ear. "I've a couple of husky 18 year old boys at Albert, who tip the beam around 180 pounds and they've both played football before," related Beach and the change on Duffield's face resembled that expression of anticipation culminated with satisfaction. After a short exchange of ideas it was decided to have the Albert College squad tangle with the Panthers in a scrimmage practice at the Collegiate campus on Tuesday evening at which time Coach Duffield will have an opportunity to observe the Albert kids in action.

Offensively the Panthers seem strong enough, all remaining is to bolster their line of defence. It was like the answer to a coach's dream to have Don McKee, former Lindsay gridder, show up with the Panthers. McKee is handling the squad at quarter and doing a marvelous job. Morley Baker is booting 'em higher and farther than ever, while young Jim Pepper's tossing of forward passes simply dazzles the railbirds at times. The kid gets plenty of distance, but needs polishing on his accuracy. "Hotdog" McCreary seems headed for a sterling season also.

Although it was at one time announced that Kenneth (Artso) Partis, star Kingston Junior centre ice puckster, would line up with the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" this coming hockey season, it seems the Flyers were a little too premature, or optimistic, over Partis' future home. The latest information has Partis accepting a position in Atlantic City, where he will play for the Sea Gulls in the United States Eastern Amateur League.

Damask Roses

By SADIE STULL

The first damask roses were abloom in Great-aunt Alicia's garden the morning she permitted me to read Mistress Betty Linley's diary. Their rare fragrance mingled with the lavender and musk still clinging to the little blue covered book.

"The same garden my dear," Great-aunt Alicia said very softly. "Each generation of Linleys have proudly perpetrated the roses Mistress Betty so loved."

She drew aside the curtains that I might have a clearer view. The simple movement seemed to dispel more than a century's mist. My glance traveled past the wonderful display of roses to the distant highway. The latter's macadam surface vanished as if by magic, leaving the natural road bordered by weeds and wild flowers. Deep ruts in the rain-soaked earth marked the passing of the stage from Albany.

So it must have looked to Mistress Betty the morning she penned the entry of June 2, 1775—

"The Post brought a letter from Patty Royston. She writes that her mother is distraught because of Jasper's avowed intention to take up arms against all his kin. Patty hints that I should know why he is so ardent a rebel now, when only a year ago the king had no more loyal subject—his excellency no more trusted secretary than Jasper Royston."

"That was before he met fair Mistress Betty," Great-aunt Alicia laughed softly. "Family tradition says they first met at one of the roal governor's grand routs.

"The very gown worn by Mistress Betty on that occasion is preserved in the old treasure chest in the attic. A deep pink taffeta tied with tiny bodice with rare lace fichu and a round, full skirt. In her powdered hair nestled a perfect damask rose."

Great-aunt Alicia turned back the diary's yellowed pages to June 11, 1774—

"Somehow I lost the rose from my hair last night. I wonder that I lost not my head as well. Such vain flatters—not even excepting His Excellency! Only one did I regard with favor. Patty Rayston's brother, lately home from college in England, was the best dancer and of a surety the most gallant beau of the evening."

Once again Great-aunt Alicia laughed softly. "That was before she met young Joel Ronalds. Tradition states it was Doctor Warren who introduced him to Betty—one sunny May morning when she was pruning the rose bushes. Tradition further states that the yong doctor carried the choicest bud away with him—promising to return for the choicest rose when they should bloom in full." Great-aunt Alicia's voice grew very tender: "Read the entry for June 16, 1775." I read:

"My heart is both glad and sad this day. In the morning came Doctor Joel for his promised rose and my prayers for his safety in the battle at Charles Town on the morrow. At dusk came Jasper Royston. The dear lad showed me a withered rose, worn next his heart since the night of the Governor's Rout—the rose I had thought I lost from my hair. . . He, too, wanted a fresh token and my prayers for the morrow. Ah, me! In all sincerity I promised to pray for him, but my heart made me tell him of Joel."

I turned eagerly to the next entry June 17, 1775—

"Tidings at last from across the river!

"Our untrained men held their own against the king's regulars until their powder gave out. Dear Doctor Warren fell— facing the enemy like the dauntless patriot we all knew him to be....No tidings of Joel or Jasper. Dear God—hear my prayers!"

There were tell-tale blots on the following page—tear stains the long, long years had not effaced.

"June 18, 1775.

"Poor Jasper was killed at Joel's side. His last breath was a prayer for our happiness—and the success of the patriot cause."

I gently closed the diary and my glance wandered out of the window. The high road was again macadam, but the roses in the garden below still breathed of ye olden days—the days of fair Mistress Betty and the two brave men who loved her.

SYMBOLIC FIGURES PLACED ON ARCH

Prime Minister King Officiates At Ceremony In Ottawa

Ottawa, Oct. 1 (CP)—With Prime Minister Mackenzie King handling the derrick, the heroic figures symbolizing "peace" and "liberty" were lowered into position at the top of the 70-foot arch comprising the superstructure of the national war memorial here yesterday.

"Peace and liberty are now in place," the Prime Minister said as he descended from the operations platform of the huge granite arch which forms the centre of the memorial group.

The event, coinciding with the day on which the four European powers signed an agreement averting a world war, was attended by cabinet ministers, representatives of foreign countries and the clergy.

It will be another four weeks at least before all the 25 bronze figures are in place and the memorial is ready for formal dedication which may take place Armistice Day.

Won Competition.

More than ten years ago the March family of sculptors of Farnborough, England, won an international competition for the design of a Canadian national war memorial to be placed in Ottawa.

Three of the March brothers are now in Ottawa supervising assembly of the monument which stands in a prominent position formerly occupied by the postoffice, close by the parliament buildings.

The monument was placed for a year on exhibition in Hyde Park, London, before being brought to Canada. Later, it was altered to widen and elevate the arch and additional figures were added.

Heroic bronze figures representing all branches of the Canadian forces overseas during the war of 1914-1918 will be grouped about and on the granite arch.

MUNICH AGREEMENTS EXAMINED MINUTELY

London, Oct. 1 (CP Cable)—London's morning papers, having passed through the shock of peace instead of war, today began to examine the Munich agreements and this is what they concluded:

The Times (Independent) declared there were days when the terms of the Anglo-German anti-war declaration "could be dismissed as a pious platitude likely to be forgotten before an occasion could arise the present, it is fair to think, is for it to be practically tested. But the present, it is fair to think, is not such a time.

"Civilization has been so near the brink of collapse that any peaceful issue from the dispute of the last months would have been overwhelming relief," the paper continued. "But close examination of the Munich terms show they constitute not only a settlement but a hopeful settlement.

"By the terms thus concluded the most dangerous threat of war in Europe is at last removed and by the joint declarations we are given hope that others will be peacefully eliminated.

"That two-fold achievement by common consent we owe first and foremost to the Prime Minister."

Daily Express

The Daily Express (Independent) declared the Anglo-German pact was a new step in the direction of detachment from Europe which "affords us the opportunity to develop to extreme limits the unity of our empire."

"It holds out to our people the prospect that turning at last from Europe and its interminable problems, we may seek security within our empire and unity of endeavor with our brother states," continued the Express, owned by Canadian-born Beaverbrook.

Daily Herald

The Daily Herald (Labor):

"Summing up, we must say that this plan is open to grave criticism on a number of important points. Nevertheless, Herr Hitler has had to abandon the most brutal of his Godesberg terms.

"For the first time he has had to realize that there are forces in the world more powerful than the absolute will of a dictator.

"If there is to be any hope of real European appeasement it cannot be done bilaterally, can be achieved only at a conference of all the powers."

Daily Mail

The Daily Mail (Independent) said the agreements were a triumph for Mr. Chamberlain and added:

"The nightmare of three days ago already is fading in the light of what the world trusts may be a new dawn for Europe. The grey hours when civilization stood face to face with the foul spectre of war should never be forgotten."

News Chronicle

The News Chronicle (Liberal):

The face of war had come so deathly near by the middle of this week that the people could already feel the breath of its nostrils. There is none, whatever his principles, but feels intense relief at its retreat."

The paper called attention to the fact the four-power agreement did not include solution of Polish and Hungarian claims and added: "From the point of view of the Czechs and of our own security, it was a vital omission that Russia is not a party the new guarantee.

Daily Telegraph

The Daily Telegraph (Conservatime) foresaw trouble for the international commission in determining the racial areas of Moravia which it described as "like pieces in a jigsaw puzzle."

It called attention to the fact the Munich agreement envisaged amputation of the Polish and Hungarian minorities which were not mentioned in the original Anglo-French plan, but decided such amputation was inevitable anyway.

It declared: "Although the Munich agreement appears not unfavorable from the Czech point of view as compared with the earlier (Godesberg) plan it certainly eliminates the feature of arrogant dictation backed with a threat of force, against which Mr. Chamberlain had taken his stand at Godesberg."

The Telegraph also called attention to Chancellor Hitler's declaration that his European territorial demands were at an end, but recalled he had similar remarked "after retrocession of the Saar and reoccupation of the Rhineland."

The practical outcome of his promises, the paper added, "has been vividly impressed on our minds during the current year."

MILITARY LAW RULES FIRST ZONE

the Czechs had withdrawn to Krumau, using the city as a new frontier base.

Twenty foreign newspapermen were accredited to the army of occupation. They were warned not to stray from a group for the purpose of independent observation, but were assured of an opportunity to see "everything".

Photographers were denied permission to enter the occupied territory.

Newspapermen travelling in private and army automobiles were accompanied by staff officers.

NEW TECHNICAL ARRANGEMENTS.

London, Oct. 1 (AP)—New technical arrangements designed as "safeguards against incidents" were disclosed today by informed sources for the occupation of Sudeten German areas.

The arrangements were:

1. Czechoslovaks have accepted a British proposal to send six additional British military observers to Czechoslovakia to watch developments. Two observers are already there.
2. Provisions have been made for a neutral zone one to one and a half miles wide between the advancing German troops and the withdrawing Czechoslovaks.
3. Czechoslovak and German liaison officers have been appointed.

COOPER RESIGNS

To Explain Position.

"For reasons with which you are acquainted and which I propose to explain in the House of Commons in due course I profoundly distrust the foreign policy which the present government is pursuing and seems likely to continue to pursue.

"Feeling as I do, I have considered that honor and loyalty demand that I should offer you my resignation.

"I do so with profound regret because I have been so proud to hold my office, one I envied beyond all others in the state, and I have been so grateful to you for having placed such confidence in me and for having shown me such invariable kindness and pateince.

"Yours very truly, Duff Cooper."

Chamberlain's Reply.

Mr. Chamberlain replied:

"I have received your letter in which you tender your resignation from the government with great personal regret.

"But knowing you are sincerely convinced the foreign policy of the present government is mistaken, I agree with you in thinking it would not be proper for you to remain a member of the government.

"Before submitting your resignation for approval of his Majesty, the King, I should like to thank you for your work in the great office which you are now giving up and to express the conviction that differences over public policy will make no breach in our personal relations.

"Yours sincerely, N. Chamberlain."

CZECHS RECEIVE

The Anglo-German friendship statement, virtually a non-aggression pact, announced by Chancellor Hitler and Prime Minister Chamberlain was of first concern to this group.

Czechoslovakia's future as an independent nation was the second.

Many newspapers echoed opinion of government circles that the new friendship between Great Britain and Germany did not affect French-British co-operation, which has become the one basis of French foreign policy.

Less optimistic observers, however, recalled Hitler's dictum in "Mein Kampf", the autobiographical statement of his creed, that a cardinal point of German policy must be to isolate France. These observers, therefore, saw the Rome-Berlin axis being extended to London, like a fence shutting France from the rest of Europe.

Despite this undercurrent of apprehension, there seemed little likelihood any serious attack would be made on the government at the special session of parliament called for Tuesday.

FRANCE JUBILIANTLY

Heed Admonition.

The little republic which struggled through twenty years of independence was saddened by cession of the Sudeten territory to Germany, but the Czechs appeared to be heeding the admonition of President Eduard Benes, Premier Jan Syrovy and General Ludwig Krejci, Commander-in-Chief of the Army, to refrain from demonstrations.

The population heard that the soldier-premier said in a broadcast that Czechoslovakia had been deserted by France and that the nation was making a vast sacrifice for peace. Spontaneous demonstrations started, but the crowds seemingly were impressed by General Syrovy's assurance that Czechoslovakia would live despite its dismemberment.

State More Cohesive.

Some found encouragement in his observation that the new state would be more cohesive and united and possibly happier because it would be relieved of the Sudeten minority problem (which had disturbed the republic since the depression of 1933, before which the Czechs thought the Sudeten Germans were satisfied with conditions.)

The government's acceptance of the Munich accord followed an all-day cabinet session. Many who did not have access to foreign radios did not know about the accord until the government's announcement late yesterday afternoon.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was smoking a cigar in back of the paper, and ma said, O Willyum is that the financial page you're looking at, for goodness sakes, look and tell me what International Byproducts Corporation is doing?

What's all this it's the first time I ever heard you express any intrist in the stock market, pop said, and ma said, Look it up, Willyum, look it up and dont ask any questions.

Here it 's under the eyes just as I sispected. International Byproducts Corporation, 88 and 3, eights, up 7 points, pop said. Yee gods, what a jump in an inactive market, the boys must be doing things wth that stock. Why, how did you know, where do you come in on this? he said, and ma said, Seven points, 7 points, I must call up Maud Hews this instant, or wait, I'm not sure yet. See what Oriole Oil is doing, Willyum, she said.

Oriole Oil, Oriole Oil, here it is, 30, down 2, pop said, and ma said, Then it's true she's lost and I've won, I really believe I have a 6th business sense, Willyum. How much is 7 times 20, Willyum? she said, and pop said, A hunderd and 40.

Good, then I've made a hunderd and forty dollers already, ma said, and pop said, Look here it would cost the best part of 2000 dollers to buy 20 shares of International Byproducts, you haven't been doing anything crazy with collateral or anything, have you?

RUSSIAN CAPTAIN SHOOTS TURKISH GENERAL IN MISTAKE FOR JAPANESE ADMIRAL BREAKS THE WORLD'S RECORD AND HIS OWN COLLAR BONE

Does a hundred and forty dollers over nite sound crazy? ma said. I'll tell you how it was. Maud Hews and I got together over the financial page yestidday and we each stuck in a pin in the stock that we'd buy 20 shares of if we listened to our own intution, and I took Byproducts Corporation and she took Oriole Oil, so dont you tell me again I knw nothing of business, she said, and pop said, By gollies this calls for a splurge.

The result being he took her to the movies.

TRAILERS COSTLY

The automobile trailer is said to be on the way out. Not so many of them are now seen on the highways and other motorists are glad of it. Owners are finding that first cost, haulage maintenance and nuisance are too high; that it is economy to stop at hotels or tourist homes. Many states and municipalities have helped the process of elimination by imposing severe regulations.—From the St. Catharines Standard.

Bread Into Roses

Kathleen Norris

"But it's something that ties me to you—something that my soul and my mind aren't strong enough to break. And so I'm not going to Reno. I'm going home. Terry'll be in England; I'll be here. I'll not try to give him what belongs to you—all the memories, all the hours I can't forget! I'd far rather hurt him! as I'm going to hurt him, by saying good-by. You see, Alec," Susannah went on, with a brief smile that instantly faded, "you've always had everything you wanted. He's never had any of those things—trips on yachts, women making love to him, races in Havana and at Paris, clothes from Regent Street, clubs and bridges and golf and first nights—none of that. He's simple. He finds everything he wants in his own mind. It takes much less to make him happy than it does to make you. But he wanted his wife," she finished in a half-whisper, looking away. "He wanted me beside him in everything he did."

She stopped. There was a long silence.

"What can I do?" Alec asked simply.

"Nothing. And I can't do anything, either. The claims you have on me would come between us, Terry and me, on our very wedding night. So you see you win again, Alec. I'll go back to Pemberton tomorrow—I don't know when. I'll tell him."

"Don't tell him," Alec said, frowning in pain and sympathy. "For God's sake, Sanna, carry out your original plan, go on to Reno tonight. You won't go on feeling this way; in a few weeks, in a few days perhaps, you'll feel differently. If there was anything in the world I could do, you know I'd do it, rather than feel that I'd wrecked your life again! I love you, Sanna; I suppose you can't help feeling it. But I've no right to, and if you have the feeling that you owe me the slightest shred of consideration in the matter, I beg you——"

"I haven't," she said. "It isn't that. It isn't you at all. It's in me, somewhere inside me—the knowledge that I can't give him everything, and that I w[illegible]'t give him less than everythin[illegible] that you're somewhere, perhap[illegible] remembering me as I remember [illegible]u—isn't fair to him. And I ha[illegible]o be fair to him. He's too fine [illegible]e—cheated."

"Sanna, after a [illegible]e, when it's all quieted down [illegible]ttle, might there be a chance [illegible]e again?"

"I don't know," [illegible]aid, looking away with da[illegible]sing eyes. "There again, [illegible] would be. I'd want you [illegible] what he gives me [illegible]st you as I trust h[illegible]

"And y[illegible] man said simply.

"No," sh[illegible]ite honestly. And [illegible]ent she gathered her [illegible]her and reached for her [illegible]. "I think if you'll take me back to your mother's, Alec...." she said. "I'm so horribly tired."

"Let me think about this," Alec said, frowning.

They went back to his mother's apartment and into the little library off the big drawing room. Philip, half undressed and lightly covered on a couch, had long been asleep; Mrs. Hazeltyne was reading in the arger room, her beautifully dressed white head illumined in a ring of lamplight. Everything else was in semidarkness at nine o'clock. Alec lighted a lamp.

"Sit down a minute, Sanna," Alec said. "Is it because of Phil that you won't make the break?"

"No, not Phil. I know you'd leave him with me," she said. She sat on the edge of a high-backed brocaded chair of carved black wood.

"Of me, then?"

"No, not that, either. It's something in me—something I can't help—something that means that as long as we two are alive and our memories are alive, I'm not free."

There was a silence.

"Then you belong to me," Alec said, ending it. "We are legally still man and wife, Sanna——"

"No," she said, staring into space. "It's not that. But it's that you might at any time remind me of that," she went on. "It's that in the background of my life—the new life with Terry in England, or back there in Pemberton—there'd always be the feeling that something, anything, might come up to remind me of it all, to make me feel bound to it all."

"Other women do it."

"But not with men like Terry!" she countered quickly. "I have to think of him. His family. I know how ridiculous considerations of family sound to all of us in New York. Most of your friends haven't any families. They started as actresses or newspapermen or free-lancers of some sort; they broke away from their families back in Nebraska or Oregon or Kansas. Half of them have been divorced and remarried, sometimes in the same little circle of intimate friends.

"The Duquesnes aren't like that. I don't mean that they're prigs. I don't mean that they go to meeting and eat cold lunch on Sundays! I've never laughed so much in my life as I have with Terry and Anne; I've never heard such thrilling talk as there is sometimes at their house when people come from Boston or Montreal or Baltimore. But their feelings are different—so different that one feels somehow—well, what shall I call it? One feels good, the old-fashoined goodness that—that doesn't get intoxicated and cheat on marriage and gamble all the time. It sounds dull, but it isn't. I think it's the way I've always wanted to live. But one doesn't live that way in Shanghai—nor New York nor in Palm Beach!"

She stopped speaking and brought her tired eyes to his. Alec was sitting at a little distance from her, his arms folded on his chest, his half-frowning look fixed upon her.

"Suppose I told you that I never, under any circumstances would bother you any further, Sanna?"

"Ah, but you couldn't, you see. There'd always be Phil, your child, not mine. You might marry, and want him. There might be other children some day, and I'd have to tell them that I had been married to Phil's father before I was married to their own. It wouldn't matter in your crowd, Alec. But can't you see that it would in theirs—to him and to me, too?"

"But, Sanna, things haven't changed so much since you did plan to do it."

"No, not actually. That is, although we weren't divorced, I could get a divorce, and in a month or two everything would be as I thought it was. But this last week has changed everything just the same, Alec. I'd let myself think that I had left all the past behind me. I'd been through so much, that I seemed to myself a different person. We never are, I suppose. We're always the same persons. Your writing me what you did, my seeing you, the whole thing coming up fresh again—awakened me from the dream."

"Does he see it so?" Alec asked with a keen look.

"Terry? He's a very quiet, very intense person of thirty-five," Susannah answered, "and he loves me. He was a long time discovering it, I think. Perhaps he'd rather put that sort of thing out of his life—or let it drift out. But when such a man loves——! I could make any condition with him; there's nothing that would matter. What his people would think wouldn't bother him!"

"And if I went away, and promised never to communicate with you again?"

"No, that wouldn't do it," she said almost absently. She stood up. "I think we won't start West tonight," she added. "I'll tell your mother."

"She'll immediately think that that means that we are reconciled, Sanna."

"Well, if she likes to think that...." Her voice trailed off indifferently. "But we know that there's no question of—reconciliation. It isn't quite so simple.

"And what are you going to do?"

"Why, tomorrow 'Liza and Phil and I'll go back to Pemberton. Terry will probably be there until they get his uncle's estate straightened out, but that only means a few weeks, and then he and Anne and her children are going to England—for a long time, perhaps. I may take Phil and go to China. I don't know what I'll do. It's all mixed up and no matter what I plan it doesn't seem to straighten it out. But a few weeks of quiet of thinking will make it all seem clearer. I'll have a few talks with Terry; he'll understand. And if I do come to any conclusion I'll write you.

INSTALMENT 28.

Alec was standing close to her in the dim shadows of the luxurious little library; he looked down at her with the kindly protective expression she had once so loved in his handsome eyes.

"And will you remember that if you can bring yourself to give me another chance I'll be ready and waiting, Sanna?" he said. "Will you remember that I've—I've changed, too That I'm sorry, that I'll give all the rest of my life to making it all up to you, making you happy? We'll live where you want to live, and the way you want to live, and for every unhappy hour I've caused you I'l repay you with a hundred other hours."

Susannah laughed in spite of herself.

"Alec!" she said, faintly shaking her head.

"But what is your life going to be, dear?" he asked. "You're not the sort of woman to travel with a little boy, never to be loved and cared for by someone again!"

"No, that doesn't seem like my life, either, Alec."

She moved, and he put an arresting hand on her shoulder and turned her about, and held her for a moment, looking straight into her eyes.

"Will you forgive me?" he asked very simply.

She felt tears thickening in her throat and stinging behind her eyelids.

"Alec—it isn't that——" she said with difficulty.

"But will you forgive me?"

"You gave me the happiest years I'd ever known," she said in answer. "They were such proud years, such full years! And I had Evelina. There never will be any talk of forgiveness between you and me. I loved you—perhaps I love you still, Alec. I don't know. That's one of the things I have to find out. I have to find out if this feeling of not being separated—being still a part of you as you are a part of me—might be something like loving.

"You must leave me alone to think it out," she said wearily. "I've got to go now and tell 'Liza we aren't leaving tonight. I'll not see you again. But I'll write you if anything happens that we—we ought to talk about."

"Oh, Alec, always!" she whispered, the tears she had been holding back coming in a flood.

"No, don't cry," he said. "I'm not going to make you cry any more. Not ever!"

He went with her to his mother, and kissed the older woman goodnight, and with only a perfunctory word of goodbye to Susannah, was gone. Susannah felt tired to the point of exhaustion; her mind was a whirl of distresesd and confused thoughts. But under them all there was a strange feeling of triumph and of peace.

It was on the following Monday morning that Susannah crossed the lane and went into the Duquesne orchard by the back gate, and to the old toolshed where Terry, in faded blue shirt and worn cords, was fussing with an old pony harness decorated with dulled red tassels, a bowl of dirty suds, some rags and a oft old chamois skin. She stood in the doorway, and Terry looked up.

"Sue! Good heavens, I thought you were in Nevada by this time!"

"I know you did. We got back last night, quite late, Phil and I. We came in Mrs. Hazeltyne's car."

"You're not going to Reno?"

"No."

Terry stared at her, uncomprehending.

"Tell me, dear," he said. "Don't look that way. I can see that—that it's all gone wrong. But don't worry, Sue."

"Oh, worry!" she said, breaking. Terry came to her and put an arm about her, and she dropped her face against his shoulder.

"Friday night, just before train time, everything changed. We didn't go."

"You didn't let me know."

"No use. You see," Susannah said, forcing her way, "you see that what I didn't understand was that—that there was Alec.

"Alec. He wants you back?"

"It isn't that. It's my side of it."

"You mean that you like him better than you think you did?"

"Oh, no, not that! How could I Terry?" Susannah asked. "I'm not an utter fool! He failed me when I needed him; he went away with another woman when I begged him—when I cried for days and days—He's always had everything, taken everything he wanted, never been made to think what other persons are feeling, never thought of anything but just amusement—"

"Well?" Terry asked, clearing his throat.

"Well, what I feel can't be love," she said somberly, after a while.

"What is it, then?"

"I don't know. It's so ridiculous," Susannah went on, "for anyone who has been through what I have been through to talk of love! There are other things stronger—there are ties one can't break—"

"He said so?" Terry asked. There was a hint of grimness in his voice that was new to her.

"No. Or if he did, I knew it without anything he said. Oh," Susannah said, "if I'd gone on in that sort of life, if Alec and I had had six—seven—ten years together, as so many of them do, and then had gotten divorces and remarried each other's friends, that might have seemed normal enough to me! One breathes a different air; one's on a quite different level there. But I can't divorce him and come to you, Terry not with your background, not with what your life is here—reasonable and dignified. What's gone before will prevent me from being Mrs. Terence Duquesne of Pemberton. I can't do that, not while he is in the world, he who was all my life for three years!"

"Then what are you going to do, Sue?" Terry asked.

She answered forlornly, "I don't know."

"You'll go back to him?"

"How can I? It's the same old thing. It would be dinners and cocktail parties and late nights again."

"He threatened to take Phil away, I suppose?"

"Oh no, Alec's not like that. There's something—grand about him. Something almost—royal," Susannah said.

"I can imagine," Terry commented with such obvious irony.

"I mean that what he does he does with an air that makes it seem the only possible thing. There is a sort of—of force about him. I felt it the instant I saw him last week."

"It means so much unhappiness for me," Terry said mildly, as if he spoke to himself.

"Yes, and for me."

"And what are you going to do?"

"I had to talk to you first, Terry. What are you going to do?"

"Go to England as soon as I can, I suppose, with Anne. I can't stay here if you're here. Once I might have, but not now. You'll—you'll go back to him some day, Sue.'

"Not now. I'm more married to you than ever I was to him. He keeps me from you, Terry, but not any more than you keep me from him!" Her smile was sad enough, but he made his own smile meet it more cheerfully as he said:

"But look here, you're not going to be the only one who faces this! Life takes queer twists and turns sometimes. I'll have my wife yet. Perhaps you'll go to Reno after all, Sue, when you've thought it all over quietly."

"Oh, Terry, let's think it!"

"Meanwhile, let's enjoy what we know we have," Terry said, laying down his sponge. "And let's talk, Sue, as if it were all going to come right, let's plan for England next spring, if not now. And even about divorce, my dear."

They went into the house, under the thinned maple shadows, together. The table was spread for luncheon, the three children leaping about with the usual vigor of school children in luncheon hour. Anne greeted Susannah unsurprisedly. Phil had already told her the little he knew of the change and the reasons for it. The good home odors of chops and baked potatoes and baking gingerbread were in the air.

"Oh, Terry, I didn't tell you!" Anne said suddenly. "Gus Trimler's waiting to talk to you in the old laundry. He's in some sort of fix. Come out with me and speak to him just a minute."

"Anne, you're terribly pale. Move your face," Susannah said, struck, as Anne stood up. You look sick!"

"I—my head aches," Anne said, her with a quick anxious question: going to the door. Terry followed

"Since when, Sis?"

They went out together. When they had reached the side porch, out of hearing of the lunch table, she caught at his lapel.

"Terry!" she said, her face colorless. "Minnie Brock just telephoned. She'd a telegram for Sue, but she didn't want to send it by the Trimler boy. She telephoned here to ask if you'd go over and tell Sue."

She crammed a paper into his hand.

"I copied it down," she said. "Read it! He's dead."

"Who?" Terry said, in a whisper, steadying his eyeglasses on their black ribbon. "Hazeltyne!"

"Read it! It says he was cleaning his gun. He'd gone up to Canada hunting, with two other men."

"My God!" Terry said, reading the scribbled penciled lines. His eyes met his sister's eyes. "Suicide?" he said.

"Do you think so?" Anne's eyes never left his face.

"Cleaning his gun, eh? And 'apparently in best of health and spirits.' Ah, well, we'll never know," Terry said, studying the telegram again. "She told me that he had been worried about his business affairs. He wouldn't be the only one who'd take this way out. They'll call it accident, of course. Dead! Hazeltyne dead!"

"How can we tell her, Terry? And poor little Phil! He's just been telling me that his father took him to a movie and is going to send him a shotgun. But oh, Terry," Anne said, holding tight to his arm, "it's a merciful solution for us all, isn't it? Oh, my darling think what it means to you! I can't be sorry. She'd come back to tell you that she couldn't go through with the divorce, hadn't she?"

"At first. It'll be a terrible shock to her. He had a great hold over her—she doesn't love easily, Sue, and she loved him. It can't help shaking her. But in the end she'll see. In one of his rare revealings of deep emotion, he gripped her shoulder with his arm, put his hard cheek against hers for a moment. "My God," he said, "what this means to me!"

"He must have seen what a position she was in, Terry."

"There must have been something generous in him, whatever he'd done to her," Terry said, "if he really did do this—if it wasn't an accident—if it occurred to him that this would clear it up, once and for all. Poor fellow!"

"Let's go back, Terry, we mustn't be gone too long. We can wait until the children go, and then I'll slip out and you tell her."

"Perhaps you're the one to tell her, Anne?"

"No; you. I'll be round somewhere near if you need me."

They went back to the dining room. Susannah glanced up at them casually.

"I begin to feel rested and quiet and right," she said. "It's good to get home!"

"It seems 's' if we sorter b'longed here," said Phil.

A door banged somewhere in a sudden onslaught of warm autumn wind; red leaves went down past the window; the light curtains streamed into the room. Then there was quiet again at the family lunch table, and the mellow harmony of its two-hundredth summer reigned again in the old Duquesne house.

COULDN'T SLEEP COULDN'T WORK

What a relief to settle down to a real night's rest, and awake fully refreshed, ready for the day's duties. I was tortured by fretful nights—tossing, turning—never comfortable. Half awake days—over-tired, driving body and mind to work when they needed rest. "Try Dodd's Kidney Pills," said a friend—"it may be your kidneys". I'm glad I followed his advice as now I'm sleeping like a top—thanks to 111

Stirling

Stirling—on Thursday evening Sept. 29th a large number of friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mrs. F. Jackman, for a surprise party and shower given in honor of her daughter Miss Pauline Jackman popular bride-to-be. The early part of the evening was spent in musical numbers, community singing etc. with Art Duncan acting as master of ceremonies. At the proper time the honored couple were conducted to a place of prominence and the purpose of the gathering explained by the chairman, who then called upon Mrs. C. A. Wells who read the following address to which the names of all guests present was attached. At the conclusion of the address boxes and bundles of all shapes and sizes were placed in the centre of the room and the unwrapping ceremony began. So great in number were the lovely and useful gifts that the next hour was taken up with this ceremony. When the final bundle was opened and displayed both Miss Pauline Jackman and Mr. George Tulloch made fitting addresses. Each setting forth in their own style the appreciation of the kindness exemplified by such a huge display of lovely gifts. Each guest was invited to share in the use of the many household articles as they found their place in the newly formed home of the days to come.

Dear Pauline and George:

We your friends and neighbors have gathered this evening to express to you in a tangible way the esteem in which you are held in our community. Having recently learned of your plans for marriage we wish to extend to you all the joy and success that goes with the making of a home. Added responsibilities necessarily will be placed upon your shoulders; but this will be offset by the new found pleasure in building up and maintaining a home of your own.

To you Pauline our sincerest wish is that the years to come will prove you to be a loving help mate and a pleasant homemaker.

And to you George may you ever be a faithful and devoted husband and may success and happiness crown every venture which you undertake.

May you find the road of time
A pleasant place to travel
May love and cheer go on with you
Each worry to unravel.

On behalf of the friends and neighbors we ask you to accept these gifts as a token of our sincerity in our wish for your wedded happiness. Signed on behalf of the community, Jean Potter, Francis Clarke.

Hitler and Mussolini Arrive at Munich

Adolf Hitler, fuehrer of the Nazi Reich, and Benito Mussolini, duce of Fascist Italy, are pictured on their arrival at Munich for their conference with Daladier of France and Chamberlain of England. Hitler had rushed to Brenner Pass to meet Mussolini's train. In the picture, which was transmitted by telephone from Munich to London, then flashed by radio to New York, are, left to right: Herman Goering, Rudolf Hess (behind Mussolini), Il Duce, Hitler and Count Ciano, Italian foreign minister. (Central Press)

Daladier Arrives at Munich for Parley

Premier Edouard Daladier of France is shown, in center, waving his hand in acknowledgment of the greeting he received on his arrival at Munich for the Four-Power conference with Chamberlain of Britain, Hitler of Germany and Mussolini of Italy in an attempt to find a peaceful solution of the Sudeten problem. At left is Joachim von Ribbentrop, Nazi foreign minister. This picture was telephotoed from Munich to London, then flashed by radio to New York. (Central Press)

Chamberlain Receives Ovation in Commons Over Peace Pact

Inhabitants Invited to Join Reich's March into Greater German Future

Shield of Germany Is Its Sword of Protection Says Chancellor

CROWDS CHEER WILDLY

First German Railroad Train Crosses Frontier

By MELVIN WHITELEATHER

With the German Army of Occupation in Sudetenland, Oct. 3 (AP)—Chancellor Hitler, triumphantly following the army across the newest border of growing Germany, declared today that "never will this land be torn from the Reich".

Welcoming Sudetenland within the fold of Greater Germany, the Fuehrer told its inhabitants his greeting was "at the same time a pledge" and invited them to join "our march into a great German future".

He spoke in the market place of Eger, one of the "capitals" of Sudetenland, from a platform colorfully surrounded by flower girls in their picturesque costumes.

"Over this Germany, this Greater Germany, is its shield, is its sword as protection," the Fuehrer declared.

He stepped unexpectedly before madly cheering crowds at Eger, in the third and most populous of the four Sudetenland zones his troops will occupy before Saturday.

Crowds Wildly Cheer.

Almost half of the six minutes of his speech was taken up by the crowds, cheering and heiling their "liberator".

"I greet not only you, but the entire Sudetenland, which in a few days will belong to the Reich," he told them.

"Welded together in unity we must stand together. All must support each other.

"The whole nation rejoices with

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

October's home garden! In mild summer the sun controls the weather, while in turbulent winter the weather is storm controlled. October's weather varies between these two. There are alternations of Indian summer with those that taste of the coming winter. In the North, the gardener should divide and replant rhubarb roots and finish digging potatoes. It is a good plan to dust stored potatoes with powdered sulphur. To blanch endives, tie their leaves together. In the South, plant spinach, onion sets and strap-leaf turnips.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 3 (CP)—High pressure and fair, cool weather extends from the region of the Great Lakes eastward to Newfoundland and pressure is also high over the Mackenzie Valley but relatively low over the northwest States and off the Atlantic coast, with a deep disturbance moving eastward across Hudson Straits. Light showers have occurred in the Prairie provinces, and it has become considerably cooler in Alberta, but above normal temperatures continue in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

Lake Superior—Moderate to fresh southeast winds; mostly cloudy with scattered showers tonight and Tuesday; not much change in temperature.

Britons Crowded Churches Sunday To Give Thanks

By GUY RHOADES

SPEAKS OF COLONIES

By RUOLF JOSTEN

Berlin, Oct. 3 (AP) — Economic supremacy in the Balkans, an understanding with France and a trade treaty with the United States emerge as new German land has been won in bloodless victory.

The Sudeten occupation marked the second time in less than seven months that the Reich's border has been moved forward. Austria was the first.

Germans reckoning of the future generally saw in the Munich four-power agreement for partitioning Czechoslovakia and in the British-German pledge not to war against each other a new morning in European relations.

Patience Is Motto.

It appears, however, that colonies have been relegated to the background momentarily. For, say those who know him, patience is Chancellor Hitler's motto and the time is not yet here to make the colonial issue paramount.

POLISH TROOPS ARRIVE SUNDAY

First Day of Occupation Passes In Perfect Order

By MARYLLA CHRZANOWSKA
Associated Press Foreign Staff

Teschen (at the Czechoslovak-Polish frontier) — Oct. 3 — (AP)—The first day of the Polish occupation of the Teschen area, given up by Czechoslovakia, passed in perfect order.

The first contingent of Polish troops crossed the bridge over the river Olsa into the Czechoslovak part of the city of Teschen at 2:05 p.m. Sunday. They were greeted with flowers and cheers.

The troops are to occupy an area of 300 square miles in the next 10 days. Most of the population of more than 200,000 is Polish. Plebiscites are to settle the fate of other territories, in which live some Poles, after which the Czechoslovak government has promised an exchange of populations.

The main job for the soldiers marching into the former Czechoslovak areas was to remove numerous mines laid by the Czechoslovaks during the past three weeks of tension.

Polish airplanes circled as the first Polish soldier, astride a motorcycle, appeared on the Osla bridge, followed by troops.

Thousands lined the streets, among them peasants from nearby villages, gay Polish girls in costume, and miners in holiday caps with bright feathers.

CHAMBERLAIN TO VISIT MUSSOLINI IN NEAR FUTURE

Will Discuss Withdrawal of Italian Troops From Spain

CABINET MEETS

Cordial Relations With France Not To Be Disturbed

London, Oct. 3 (AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain met with his cabinet this morning, before telling parliament his reasons for making peace with Chancellor Hitler at the expense of Czechoslovakia.

It was believed he presented further information on the four-power Munich conference and outlined the speech he is to make in the House of Commons this afternoon.

Diplomatic quarters said today that the prime minister likely would go to Rome in the near future to discuss a Spanish understanding, which would centre about the withdrawal of some Italian troops from Insurgent Spain in return for British recognition of the Italian conquest of Ethiopia.

Follows Up Policy.

This adheres to the British-Italian understanding with which Mr. Chamberlain began his foreign policy April 16 but which has not been made effective formally because it was predicated on the yet unsolved question of foreign fighters in Spain.

Some reference to new negotiations with Mussolini was expected from the Prime Minister in the House of Commons today after he reports on Munich conference by which Great Britain, France, Italy and Germany agreed on German acquisition of Czechoslovak Sudetenland.

Mr. Chamberlain also brought from the Munich talks a British-German agreement for consultations on all differences in the future, and presumably to alleviate French concern for this the Prime Minister yesterday sent a new pledge of Great Britain's union with France.

Writes To Daladier.

In a personal message to Premier Edouard aladier, Mr. Chamberlain associated France with the spirit of the pact between Britain and Germany, and said:

"I look forward to renewed and continuous co-operation with you in further efforts for consolidatin of European peace through the extension of good will and confidence which so happily inspires relations between our countries."

Reliable informants said Mr. Chamberlain was prepared to urge a liberal British-French loan to Czechoslovakia to aid the little republic's economic readjustment.

It was understood that the prime minister discussed the Spanish situation briefly with Mussolini at Munich on Thursday. That conversation and subsequent reports from the British representative at Burgos, Insurgent Spanish headquarters, have encouraged British hopes of getting some concessions from Italy.

Opposition Encouraged.

The opposition was encouraged by the resignation of Alfred Duff Cooper, First Lord of the Admiralty, who gave as a reason his "profound" distrust of the government's foreign policy.

The opposition leaders, however, faced a difficult parliamentary problem. Despite outspoken criticism of the Munich agreement by some influential Conservatives, it generally was conceded that the electors were grateful to Mr. Chamberlain for saving peace and that they would return him to office if he put the issue before the country in a general election.

Belleville Man Burned Alive As Truck Upsets, Catches Fire

W. Ewart Hannah, North Front Street, Trapped In Wreckage

CAPABLE WORKMAN

Believed to have become excited by the approach of a train at the railway crossing east of Cobourg, shortly before noon today, after successfully crossing the tracks, the tractor trailer owned by the Canada Transport Co., of which W. R. McCreary is the proprietor and driven by Ewart Hannah, 28, of 113 North Front St., went out of control and turned over in south ditch catching fire and burning to death the driver before he could be extricated from the wreckage. Harry McCreary, who was accompanying Hannah, escaped the raging inferno. The tractor trailer with a load of merchandise bound for Toronto, was completely destroyed.

Loaded With Merchandise

The tractor and trailer had been loaded with merchandise at Belleville early today and was being driven westerly by Hannah, accompanied by young McCreary. According to statements given Mr. McCreary by the survivor, his son, Harry McCreary, Hannah successfully negotiated the first set of railway tracks east of Cobourg, but upon approaching a second railway crossing it is said Hannah glanced towards the east, where he saw a train approaching from that direction, but some considerable distance back. Hannah drove the truck across the second railway crossing, but is believed to have become excited with the result the tractor and trailer left the south side of the road and turned over into the ditch, where it caught on fire.

Young McCreary managed to extricate himself from the burning truck, but despite frantic efforts of himself and passing motorists, who stopped to assist, it was impossible to release Hannah, who was pinned beneath the wreckage in the cab of the vehicle. He burned to death. The truck and entire cargo of merchandise was a total loss, Wm. McCreary, proprietor of the Canada Transports Company later revealed.

Well Known in City

Ewart Hannah is well known in Belleville and has been in the employ of Mr. McCreary ever since he established his trucking business, the Canada Transport. "Mr. Hannah was a capable driver and one of my best employees. I cannot understand what frightened him, as he was always a careful and considerate driver with a splendid road record. His death has proven a serious shock to myself and all the other employees of our company," stated Mr. McCreary upon hearing the sad news today.

Mr. Hannah leaves a wife and five children to mourn his loss.

FLINTON CHILD KILLED BY TRUCK

Running Across Street At Tweed Little Girl Did Not See Vehicle

Tweed, Ont., Oct. 3—(Special)—Fatally hurt when she was struck by a truck driven by H. McMullen of this village while attempting to cross the main street shortly after noon today, Irma, four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morley Leveck of Flinton, succumbed to injuries while being rushed to the Belleville General Hospital by Chief of Police Clare Hayes.

The girl was in the village with her mother and uncle. As the latter left a grocery store, the girl ran across the street to meet him, without looking to see if cars were approaching, reports state.

As she crossed the pavement, the truck, loaded with gravel, struck her, the front wheel and dual wheels of the rear passing over her body.

The injured girl was placed in the police car and rushed to Belleville Hospital but she died from injuries as the car was passing through Roslin.

An inquest and post-mortem have been ordered by Chief Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson.

Colorful Career Of Police Officer Ends in Death

Halifax, Oct. 3.—(CP)—As colorful a career as any that ever emerged from the pages of dime thriller was ended today with the death of Nicholas (Nick) Power, retired Halifax police chief. As a detective with a photographic memory, Power won international fame.

He died at his home here yesterday, aged 96. He had retired as Chief of Halifax Police in 1907 after 43 years on the force.

Most famous of a dozen exploits that brought him world-wide acclaim was his breaking of a conspiracy that was aimed at the life of the Prince later to became George V of Great Britain.

Back in 1883, in the days when a British fleet based at Halifax and royalty in the city was almost a monthly occurrence, Prince George was on one of the naval vessels going through the mill as a midshipman. Ashore was Detective Nick Power with 19 years of service as a cop.

Found Bay of Dynamite

On a routine check-up of hotels, Power noticed two men his instinct told him would bear watching. When they left their room he slipped in, searched their luggage and found a bag of dynamite. With the baggage stubs for other luggage, he went to the railway station and found two diving suits and apparatus for setting off the explosive under water.

Power arrested the two. They were members of a ring who, dissatisfied with settlement of the Irish land question, had planned to strike a blow at England through assassination of the young Prince George.

To his death, Power cherished the bronze medal presented him by Prince George for his feat.

Power was able to glance at a police circular, sometimes unaccompanied by a photograph, and recall vividly its information months later.

Caused Treaty Suspension

Once he indirectly was the cause of the suspension of the Extradition Treaty between Great Britain and the United Sates.

New York police sent down a circular bearing the description of John Gordon, wanted for forgery. Power remembered seeing a man of similar appearance boarding a steamship for England two days previously. He informed New York officers who immediately got in touch with Scotland Yard.

Gordon was arrested when he stepped off the boat but because he was tried for crimes other than that for which he was extradited, the treaty was broken off and not resumed until 1887, seven years later.

AIRMAIL SERVICE NOW A REALITY

Six Months' Experimental Operation Has Been Completed

Winnipeg, Oct. 3 (CP)—Scheduled airmail service between Winnipeg and Vancouver was a reality today following six months of experimental operation.

When two huge, all-metal Lockheed 14 airplanes of Trans-Canada Airlines landed yesterday at Stevenson Field here and at Vancouver Civic Airport they had successfully carried 3,500 pieces of mail over 1,500 miles of mountains and prairie.

The eastbound plane had an almost perfect run, leaving Vancouver at 9:30 p.m. E.S.T. Saturday and arriving here at 6.25 a.m. yesterday, only five minutes behind schedule.

Poor visibility delayed arrival of the westbound ship more than eight hours. It came into Vancouver at 4.20 p.m. E.S.T. yesterday after lifting from the Stevenson Field runway at 12:30 a.m. The plane crossed the Sea Island base at Vancouver on time at 8:20 a.m. but was forced to turn back and land at Oliver, 175 miles east of Vancouver, because of poor weather.

Mail service continued last night and plants will span the Winnipeg-Vancouver stretch daily. Officials anticipate carrying passengers within a few months.

Czechoslovak Troops Fall Back In Perfect Order

Prague, Oct. 3 (AP) — Czechoslovakia today tried to lay the foundations of a new economic life inside the narrower borders of this once-prosperous realm which has yielded to German and Polish territorial claims and agreed to negotiate the demands of Hungary.

With German and Polish military occupation of frontier regions proceeding quietly, the supreme economic council originally set by by Premier Jan Syrovy as a defence organization was considering the nation's new industrial and financial status.

NEW ZEALAND TO HAVE ELECTION

Domestic Issues Main Plank In Labor Government Platform

Wellington, New Zealand, Oct. 3—(CP)—Domestic issues such as social legislation and agricultural policy are the main planks in the Labor Government and Nationalist opposition platforms but foreign policy and defence have had their share of the argument in the general election campaign which ends at the polls Oct. 15.

Prime Minister Michael Savage has spent most of his time pointing to the record of his administration in the field of social reform and industrial government but when he issued his platform it featured a declaration supporting the principles of the League of Nations covenant coupled with the fullest cooperation with Britain.

His next plank was an assurance of widest measures for effective defence of the Dominion. Recently the Savage government has revamped its national defence policy, increasing expenditures to £2,700,000 ($10,800,000) — highest figures since wartime—to cover the whole field of war preparedness.

Adam Hamilton and his Nationalists, who have retorted with their own idea of social legislation and industrial policy, have bombarded Labor with criticism for their conduct of Empire and foreign relations.

They have charged the government's stand at Geneva against the recognition of the Italian conquest of Abyssinia had embarrassed the British government. They offer a policy which stands for "Closer Empire cooperation."

ENGLISH COAST WHIPPED BY GALE

Twenty Injured At Blackpool By a Falling Sign

London, Oct. 3—(CP Cable)—A gale whipped the west coast of England yesterday, injuring 20 persons at Blackpool where a giant electric sign was blown off a cliff onto three tramcars.

Reports reaching Hull said the trawler Saint Sebastien had foundered at Bear Island, above the Arctic Circle. Bodies of two of the 16 crew were recovered by the Norwegian salvager Jason.

Other trawlers were said to be standing by, but high seas prevented a close approach. It was hoped other survivors got ashore on the bleak island.

LADY STANLEY INJURED

London, Oct. 3—(C P Cable)—Lady Stanley, wife of the Dominions Secretary, suffered a broken ankle Saturday night and was taken to the same hospital where Lord Stanley has been recovering from a leg injury since his return recently from a visit to Canada.

Expects To Find Disarmament Possible Before He Retires

NO UNILATERAL POLICY

Duff Cooper Attacks Policy, Claims Prestige Lowered

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Oct. 3 (C.P. Cable) — Prime Minister Chamberlain, addressing a tumultuous House of Commons, today declared fresh opportunities for disarmament have been opened as a result of the Four-Power agreement at Munich.

Mr. Chamberlain, who was firm in his defence of the Munich negotiations, stated however that "disarmament on the part of this country will never again be unilateral. We tried that once. If disarmament is to come it must come by steps and with the active co-operation of other nations."

Continue Building up Defences

Mr. Chamberlain said Great Britain will continue to build up the efficiency of its army and defences, but he believed that eventually disarmament would be made possible as a result of the Munich conference.

The Prime Minister said he hoped there still remains time for him to conclude a disarmament agreement "before I had over my office to a younger man."

He concluded his speech with these words

"It is to such tasks as that, winning back of confidence, gradual removal of hostilities between nations till they feel they can discard their weapons one by one; it is to such tasks as that I would wish to devote what energy there may be left in me before I hand over my office to a younger man."

Defends Pact

With his speech punctuated by jeers and laughter from opposition labor members, Mr. Chamberlain defended the Four-Power agreement and his "no more war" declaration with Chancellor Hitler.

The day in parliament started with Alfred Duff Cooper, First Lord of the Admiralty, who resigned from the cabinet over the week-end, defending his action.

He stated the basic difference in opinion between himself and the Prime Minister was that he believed in dealing with dictators with the "mailed fist." Mr. Chamberlain believed in "reasonableness."

Both before and after his speech, the Prime Minister was accorded an ovation by his followers. Members of the government side of the House left their seats and waved handkerchiefs and order papers.

Minister Chamberlain told an intent House of Commons today that "I have nothing to withdraw or regret" concerning the four-power accord to Munich for the dismemberment of Czechoslovakia.

Mr. Chamberlain began his defence of his agreement with the German Chancellor after it had been bitterly assailed by Alfred Duff Cooper, who resigned Saturday as First Lord of the Admiralty because the Munich terms "stuck in my throat."

"When the House met last Wednesday," the Prime Minister recalled, "we were under the shadow of a great and imminent menace. War more stark and terrible than it had ever appeared before seemed to be staring us in the face.

"Today we know that the prayers of millions (for peace) have been answered."

British Credit to Prague Gov't.

The Prime Minister announced that the government had "requested the Bank of England to provide the necessary credit" for a loan of £10,000,000 ($50,000,000) to the Prague government.

The government is considering a Czechoslovak request for a total loan of £30,000,000, he said.

Prime Minister Chamberlain received a tremendous ovation from government supporters when he entered the House of Commons preparatory to defending his "peace with honor" agreement with Germany.

His followers left their seats and waved handkerchiefs and order papers.

The diplomatic gallery was packed by representatives of almost every country in the world. The Duke of Kent also was present.

Alfred Duff Cooper, who resigned Saturday as First Lord of the Admiralty, touched off the debate, which is likely to last for three

New Outbreaks Of Violence in The Holy Land

Jerusalem, Oct. 3 (AP)—At least 38 persons were killed today in new outbreaks of violence in the Holy Land, bringing to 106 the number of deaths since Saturday.

Six persons were killed when a house in Jaffa was blown up by a bomb early this morning.

Twenty Jews, including 11 children and three women, were slain and three were wounded when an armed band, described by officials as Arab rebels, raided a suburb of Tiberias on the Sea of Galilee.

Paris, Oct. 3—(AP)—The French government prepared today to press parliament for the strongest possible approval of its foreign policy, particularly its part in the four-power Munich accord.

Sources close to the government said the cabinet planned to make a formal statement to the session convened for tomorrow and then limit the assembly to one address of eulogy by the parliamentary leader of Premier Daladier's Radical-Socialist party.

The government holds a powerful whip over parliament—since this is a special session it can order adjournment at any time.

SHARP FROST IN SEVERAL DISTRICTS OVER THE WEEKEND

Still ponds in sections of Prince Edward County and in areas of North Hastings were ice-coated on Sunday morning and today, following sharp frosts which visited the central district Saturday night and last night. Little fear of damage from the increasingly colder nights is expressed by district gardeners, however, who declare that the last harvest of garden produce is now under way following the first frosts.

DEMAND FOR LEAVES

Falling maple leaves on residential streets as yet have given officials of the city public works department little trouble, even though nipping frosts have touched the trees with their fall colors. Requests for loads of the leaves for use as garden and lawn mulch have been received by the department from local residents and are on file. Formerly they were dumped by the ton in garbage disposal plots, but of late years have become increasingly in demand.

CUSTOMS RETURNS FOR SEPT. SHOW SPLENDID INCREASE

Better business conditions in this district during the month of September just ended are reflected in increased custom returns as collected at the local Port of Customs, though a decrease in receipts for the half year is noted.

Collections for September, 1938 are reported at $111,367.26, an increase of $16,176.46 over total collections of $95,190.80 for the month of September, 1937.

Collections for the half year ending September 30 1937 were given as $620,864.16, as against $590,810.22 for the preceding half year.

58 BIRTHS REGISTERED HERE IN SEPTEMBER

Vital statistics for the city as compiled for the month of September at the city hall revealed a record total of 58 births, not all of which were within the city however and an imposing total of 22 marriages. In births, girl babies led boys by a wide majority, female births being registered at 38, against a registration of only 20 boy babies, Deaths, on the other hand, were correspondingly low, a total of only 20 being recorded for the month.

STEPS DIRECTLY INTO CAR'S PATH

Stepping off the sidewalk directly into the side of a moving automobile, Mrs. McNeary, R. R. No. 5, Trenton, was knocked down on Front street early this morning. The force of the impact coupled with being knocked down desulted in Mrs. McNeary suffering from shock. The injured woman was taken to the surgery of Dr. G. S. Cronk and following medical attention was released apparently none the worse for her experience. The automobile which Mrs. McNeary collided with was driv-- by Bessie Roseberry, of Point Anne who reported the incident to Sergeant Arthur Harman at the police station. The matter was purely accidental police later stated.

CHURCH CHIMNEY A TRAP FOR PIGEONS

A pigeon sanctuary turned out to be a "graveyard" high in the chimney of Bridge Street United Church. Workmen dismantling the old chimney last week discovered the carcases of some twenty or thirty pigeons deep in the interior of the aperture where the birds had flown, in all probability to escape the elements, and were unable to find their way out.

The "find" is the second of its kind to be made during the renovation of the church. In the larger pipes of the church organ, skeletons of large bats were found. In one pipe no less than three bony skeletons of these, night-flying creatures were discovered.

Two 5-Day Periods For Shooting Partridge

Provisions have been made for an open season on Ruffed Grouse, Canada Grouse, Sharptailed Grouse and Prairie Hen, extending from October 10th inclusive and from November 5th to 10th inclusive according to a bulletin issued today by the Department of Game and Fisheries of the Province of Ontario.

A limit has been attached the shooting of the above mentioned game birds, however. The limits of catch will be five birds per day and fifteen birds over the entire season, that is no person may take any more than 15 birds during the two periods mentioned as open season for the current hunting season. This open season is not applicable in the various sections of the province where regulated game preserve areas have been established, Provincial Police authorities revealed today.

OBITUARY

LATE WILBERT S. FOX

(Ameliasburg)

The funeral of Wilbert Stanton Fox took place Saturday afternoon, October 1st, from his late residence in the 1st Concession of Ameliasburg Township, Prince Edward County. The service in the home and at the graveside in Albury cemetery was conducted by the Rev. W. H. Boomhauer, pastor of Centre United Church.

The bearers were Messrs. Wm. Fox, H. Pulver, B. Redner, W. Howell, F. Townsend and W. McFaul.

LATE HELEN M. MORRISON

Saturday morning, Oct. 1st., the funeral of Helen Margaret Morrison daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Morrison, took place from the family residence, 49 Geddes Street, to St. Michael's Church, where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father Baker, who said also the committal service at the graveside in St. James' cemetery.

The bearers were Harry McDougall, Donald Dell, William McQuaid, Charles Nixon, Frank Robertson and Clayton Provost.

LATE GEORGE T. FROST

(Frankford)

Frankford, Oct. 3 (Special)—One of the largest funerals ever witnessed in the village took place on Sunday afternoon when a prominent member of the community, the late George T. Frost was laid to rest. Friends and relatives from the entire district were present, and the church was unable to accommodate the large crowd present for the services. The wealth of floral offerings testified to the esteem in which the deceased was held.

Following service in the home, the cortege proceeded to Trinity Church where services were conducted by the rector, Rev A. S. McConnell. The impressive last rites of the Orange Order were taken by officers of Frankford L.O.L. No. 340.

Interment was made in Frankford cemetery, the pall bearers being four sons, and two sons-in-law of the late Mr. Frost, Messrs. Cecil Frost, Harold Frost, Carmen Frost, Bert Frost, Albert McCaskie and Claude Tucker.

CHARLES H. L. BROWN

(Roseneath)

After an illness of seven weeks' duration Charles Herbert Lewis Brown, an old and prominent resident of Roseneath, Ont., passed away in Belleville, at the residence of his brother, Mr. A. J. Brown, 11 Charlotte Street, on Sunday, October 2nd.

The late Mr. Brown who was in his 69th year, was born on a farm near Roseneath and resided in that locality all his life. At an early age he commenced as a clerk in Harston's general store at Roseneath and eventually became the owner of the business, which he conducted successfully for the past forty years. He also held the position of postmaster at Roseneath for 45 years. He was particularly interested in the Roseneath Fair and the success of the fair was largely due to his organizing ability and the time he devoted to it.

Charles Brown possessed a pleasing personality and a friendly manner and was held in the highest esteem throughout the district.

In religion he was a member of the United Church.

Surviving him are, one sister, Miss Eliza Brown, Roseneath; one brother, Mr. A. J. Brown of Virginia, Minn., and Belleville; two nieces, Mrs. (Dr.) H. E. Welsh, Roslin, and Miss Jean Brown, Orillia, Ont., one nephew, Dr. H. E. Brown, London, England.

Funeral will take place on Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 4th. Service in Roseneath United Church at two o'clock.

PRESENTATION

Tangible appreciation of the many happy associations made during his stay here was shown Mr. Ken Mallett, assistant manager of the Belleville branch of Kresge Stores, by members of the staff after store-closing on Saturday night, when they presented him with a Well and Tree platter in a silver tray, prior to his departure for Timmins, Ont., where he will assume similar duties in that branch.

The presentation was made by Mr. J. McVeigh, manager of the store who expressed the appreciation of himself and staff, of the many . alities that made for complete harmony between Mr. Mallett and themselves. The recipient caught entirely by surprise voiced his regrets and the severance of associations that will live long in his memory.

Mr. Mallett who left for his new home on Sunday will be succeeded by Mr. J. W. Hubbard, of Hamilton, who took over his duties today.

Harvest Festival Services Held at St. Thomas Church

The services at the Church of St. Thomas on Sunday were impressive and hearty, the special occasion being the annual Harvest Festival. The interior of the church was artistically and attractively decorated with flowers, fruits and grains. Many worshippers were present at the services, which were conducted by the vicar, the Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne.

The vicar based his sermon at the 11 o'clock celebration of the Holy Communion on the first verse of the 147 Psalm: "O Praise the Lord, for it is a good thing to sing praises unto our God: yea, a joyful and pleasant thing it is to be thankful" and he impressed upon his hearers that they always have many things to thank God for, but especially at the present service they should from their hearts thank Him not only for the bountiful harvest, but for the recent deliverance from war and the settlement of disputed matters upon a peace basis.

As an Introit the Doxology was sung and after the benediction the National Anthem was rendered.

Mr. E. A. Wheatley presided at the organ and the choral services were beautifully rendered by the choir.

Ignorant Hunters Spoil Opening Day Duck Hunt

When ignorance is bliss 'tis folly to be a duck-hunter. at least so two Toronto embryonic sportsmen believe who nearly ruined a perfect hunting day for a group of veteran hunters near Presqu'Ile Point on Saturday, according to William Davern, Wellington business man, who took time out to hunt the elusive "blacks" on the opening day of the season.

Lying silently in their "hides" since the first pale streaks of dawn illumined the eastern horizon, the hunters were suddenly surprised to hear the firing of guns. Looking up they noticed two figures on the shore merrily blazing away at birds that were anything but ducks. Up and down the beach the hunters strolled, shooting at everything and anything that had wings.

It was not until an incensed veteran left the quiet of his "hide" to vociferously remonstrate with the shore hunters that the shooting subsided.

In their explanation, the Toronto men stated that they did not know anything about "hides" or the rudiments of hunting, and thought all that was necessary was to patrol the beach until the ducks flew near them.

It was some hours later before the birds returned to the scene after their scare. At that, Davern said, the day was practically spoiled as only a few bags were brought down in the day's shoot.

Women's Auxiliary Tag Day Nets $437

The first tag day held on Saturday for Belleville Hospital under the auspices of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary was an outstanding success, $437.00 being realized by the ninety-six taggers who worked zealously all day long. This is the largest amount ever collected during a single tag day, and the workers are to be congratulated for their splendid efforts. It is hoped to make this tag day an annual event.

Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson organizer of the tag day, expressed today appreciation and thanks to all members of the auxiliary and to the citizens who co-operated to make the tag day such a success particularly Mr. MacLean Haig, Mr. Fred Deacon, Jr., Chief Kidd, Mr. Mott, Mr. H. Newby and Miss Elizabeth Corbett. The captains in charge of the various taggers were Mrs. G. H. Stobie, Mrs. E. P. Bernstein, Mrs. J. H Forrester, Mrs C. A. Cameron, Mrs. J. D. O'Flynn, Mrs J. W. Imlah, Mrs. R. Hamilton, Mrs. R. S. Stafford, Mrs. Gordon Robertson andl Mrs. Mackenzie Robertson. The treasurers for the day were Mrs. W. C. Mikel, Mrs. R. L. Brown, Mrs. A. E. McColl and Miss Norma Clarke who looked after the taggers collections most efficiently.

Appreciation Epressed

Appreciation of the generous response of the general public on the occasion of their tag day held on Saturday was voiced today by Mrs. (Dr.) G. H. Stobie, president of the Belleville General Hospital Women's Auxiliary.

The splendid sum of four hundred and thirty-seven dollars was netted by an enthusiastic group of sellers who worked tirelessly all day for this splendid cause.

Mrs. Stobie paid a fine tribute to Mrs. A. H. Ketcheson, convener of the tag day committee, whose tireless efforts as well as those of her capable assistants were a large contributing factor to the success of the affair.

"We wish to thank the public for it's splendid co-operation," Mrs. Stobie said today, "in contributing to the hospital fund. It was a fitting culmination to the hard work and efforts on the part of Mrs. Ketcheson and her committee."

BELLE 9th ANNIVERSARY
This week we are celebrating our 9th. Anniversary as a Belleville institution. It is our birthday, but it is your party. We appreciate the splendid co-operation we have received from the theatre-going public and from our local merchants.
It has been the aim of the Belle Theatre to bring to you the finest pictures that the motion picture industry affords, presented with the finest equipment obtainable., with the latest inventions in projection, screen, acoustics and presentation. Your patronage and friendship has made this possible. Our theatre is your theatre. Without you we could not exist. We welcome your suggestions; our programs are built for your enjoyment, not our own. We are endeavouring to give you what we believe, the public wants. Not the choice of the few but the wish of many. We have endeavoured to be a part of the community, to aid in worthwhile projects and to lighten your cares and burdens by offering entertainment which will take you into the land of romance, laughter and song; holding the mirror up to nature, picturing life in its myriad of phases, with its drama, its emotions and its lighter moments, sending you forth with the happy feeling of an afternoon or evening well spent. We shall always do our best to merit your continued patronage. Remember the Belle is your theatre.

REV. A. G. SINCLAIR ACCEPTS CALL TO CHURCH IN WEST

First Baptist Church In Saskatoon Invites Belleville Minister

Rev. Alexander Grant Sinclair, pastor of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church has accepted a call extended to him by the First Baptist Church of Saskatoon, Saskatchewan. Mr. Sinclair is leaving for Western Canada the first week in November. He will succeed Rev. Dr. James Strachan, who is retiring after a nine year pastorate.

The popular young minister has, during his pastorate in Belleville, endeared himself in the hearts of the citizens of this city. His many friends, both Baptist and those of other denominations with whom he came in contact, will feel a keen sense of loss in his departure from their midst but at the same time they will rejoice in view of the important new post that has been offered him with its attendant responsibilities and wider opportunities for Christian service. He was president of the Belleville Ministerial Association in 1937.

TO SASKATOON PULPIT

Rev. A. G. Sinclair, minister for the past four years at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, who has accepted a call to a very important congregation in the western city. He will leave Belleville during the first week of November.

Possessed of a ready wit, keen sense of humor and unquenchable spirit, Mr. Sinclair is especially popular with young people. Under his guidance the B.Y.P.U. of Victoria Ave. Church has enjoyed remarkable success and is today one of the largest young people's organizations in Eastern Ontario.

Four Years In Belleville

Mr. Sinclair came to Belleville four years ago from Cobourg where he preached for about two years before relinquishing his charge to accept the pastorate of Victoria Ave. Baptist Church. He was born in Owen Sound, received his early education in that city and later studied for the ministry at McMaster University in Hamilton.

From folk familiar with Saskatoon it is learned that the First Baptist Church in that city has a membership of over four hundred and is the key church of the Baptist Convention in Western Canada.

Saskatoon, which has a population of nearly 50,000, is an important educational centre. It is the seat of the University of Saskatchewan, normal school, three theological colleges, agricultural college and three collegiate institutes. There are numerous large industries, including the Western Plant of the Quaker Oats Co. and Government grain elevator with 3,500,000 capacity.

When a successor to the Rev. Mr. Sinclair will be chosen, is not known, but the Deacons' Board has already taken the matter under consideration.

Police Blotter

En route to visit sick relatives at Actinolite, John Clark, Toronto, sustained minor injuries when the automobile he was driving was in collision with another motor car, driven by Carman Huffman, Corbyville, in Belleville on Saturday night. Clark was taken to the Belleville General Hospital by Dr. R. A. Flynn, where several cuts and lacerations received medical attention.

Mr. Clark was proceeding north on Station Street on Saturday night, while Huffman was going in the opposite direction.

Investigating police today stated there were motor cars parked on both sides of the street, which forced the drivers into the centre of the street, where they collided practically headon. Both vehicles were badly damaged during the impact, necessitating tow trucks to haul them away to garages for repairs. The injuries sustained by Mr. Clark were the result of flying glass Constables Ellis and Evans stated after investigation.

Alderman Glencoe Thompson, Sinclair Street, reported a minor robbery to police over the week-end. During the absence of the family from their home persons unknown entered the premises and stole about one dollar from a child's banks. Minors are believed by police to have been responsible.

An axe, reported stolen from the premises of Harry Burke, West Bridge Street, was found in a nearby vacant field. The axe was returned to its owner.

Local police were busied over the week-end with numerous investigations of minor matters, which included the apprehension of two inebriates, one of whom had apparently been set upon and beaten before the arrival of the police. All such cases will be aired in subsequent police court hearings, however.

Editorials Advocate Compulsory Service For Peace Maintenance

London, Oct. 3 — (CP) — The Times (Independent) today urged compulsory service as an essential precaution for maintenance of peace.

Editorially it stated:—

"The volume of applause for Mr. Chamberlain which continues to grow throughout the globe registers a popular judgment that neither politicians nor historians are likely to reverse.

". . . much as the Czechs have suffered they have also shared in the universal deliverance (from war.) . . . "What is now required as an essential precaution upon which peace may some day depend is such an organization of the manpower and womanpower of the nation as will enable us all to know in advance and prepare for the part that we shall play in an emergency.

"To undertake some service should be compulsory."

London morning papers today examined critically Prime Minister Chamberlain's foreign policy and his statement that he brought back from Germany "peace with honor."

Daily Herald

The Daily Herald (Labor) decided the war situation of last week was the "fruit of the foreign policy which has governed Great Britain and Europe ever since 1931."

"That policy has brought triumph after triumph to the dictators" the paper said. "It has broken the League of Nations and killed collective security. It has reduced British influence in the shaping of international events to the lo est level for 200 years."

"Failing immediate, agreement for disarmament, we must redouble the energy of our defensive effort, especially in the air," the Daily Telegraph (Conservative) said.

Daily Telegraph

While not expressing any criticism of its own, the newspaper pointed editorially to the resentment raised in many quarters against the "unnecessarily high" price paid for peace.

"Peace for its own sake is a gain immense indeed," it said. "Nevertheless the satisfaction that hails it is not by any means undivided. There are many who believe that the price which has been paid for it is not only high, but unnecessarily high. During the week-end a voice of criticism has begun to raise itself in sometimes demonstrative terms.

"A Minister (Alfred Duff Cooper, First Lord of the Admiralty) has resigned and certain supporters of the government, as well as members of the opposition, have left no doubt as to the sense of grave misgivings.

"Amid the prevailing jubilation it seems to be completely overlooked that of all the contributors to peace the greatest are the Czechs. Surely, as victims of a peace negotiated over their heads, they are entitled to warm public acknowledgement of Great Britain and France, instead of the icy silence which has existed hitherto.

"To Great Britain the moral crisis is clear. Failing immediate agreement for disarmament, we must redouble the energy of our defensive effort, especially in the air."

Daily Express

The Daily Express, (Independent) criticized Prime Minister Chamberlain's commitment of Britain as a guarantor of Czechoslovakia's new frontiers.

"For the future our course is plain," this newspaper said. "We do not mean to attach ourselves to any power in Europe. We shall follow the path of isolation."

The editorial termed the guarantee given Czechoslovakia an unwise departure from that "wise principle" of isolation.

"Mr. Chamberlain had the good sense to refuse that guaranty while Czechoslovakia was strong," it recalled. "What possible explanation, what sorrowful reason can justify a guarantee now that Czechoslovakia is weak?"

Both "Scrutator" in the Sunday Times (Independent) and J. L. Garvin in the Observer (Conservator) agreed that one of the principle "errors" of the Treaty of Versailles has been corrected. Both said that the Anglo-German anti-war statement at Munich was as valuable—if not more so—as the four-power accord regarding cession of Sudetenland.

They agreed that the declaration against war might serve as the point of departure for organizing a new Europe.

"Scrutator," who has been a particularly outspoken critic of the Franco-Soviet pact, expressed satisfaction at the fact that Moscow was not represented at Munich.

Lamentable Weakness

Garvin, who has long favored closer Anglo-German relations, praised the Hitler-Chamberlain statement, but added that any durable accord between Germany and Britain must be made between strong countries.

"The ordeal of last week exposed notoriously the lamentable deficiencies in the arrangements for defence in the democratic systems of both Britain and France," he said. "This is the weak point in the government's position in our own country, and to this the attention and insistence of both houses (of parliament) should be unsparingly devoted."

The Sunday Express (Independent) said that both the Order of Merit and the Order of the Garter have been mentioned as a reward for the Prime Minister, but that he will accept no honor until after his work has been approved by parliament.

The Daily Mail

The Daily Mail (Independent) had nothing but praise for the Prime Minister.

"The mood of rejoicing and acclamation of Mr. Chamberlain will be renewed today in parliament," it said. "His triumph is based on the hard facts of the four-power settlement."

It suggested it was time to increase armaments but paradoxically spoke of an European air pact as one of the possible results of Mr. Chamberlain's policy.

The Daily Mirror (Independent) decided "it is time to give up shouting. . . . London is not Nuremberg. The House of Commons is not yet a Nazi rally. . . . Do not forget that we owe our brief respite to the humiliation and prospective ruin of a gallant people."

News Chronicle

The News-Chronicle (Liberal) warned that "it would be a mistake to confuse enthusiasm resulting from relief at the sudden removal of the threat of war with endorsement of the policy by which that removal was brought about."

". . . Last week at the very climax of the crisis it was proved that the policy of standing firm would be successful," the paper said. "The quiet and steady preparation of the British people for war mobilization of the fleet, announcement that this country would stand with Russia and France concentration of moral opinion—and especially the messages of President Roosevelt — throughout the world had their predestined effect. . . . It was an hour of destiny but the opportunity was lost."

Costly to France

But even if the government is successful, despite efforts of the Communists who are in open revolt and many Nationalists who are making common cause with them, it cannot conceal the fact that Germany's peaceful victory in Czechoslovakia has cost France dearly.

German has taken over an area of Central Europe which Bismark called "the key to Europe" and which French military authorities say will release 30 divisions of German troops for duty along the French frontier.

Keystone in East Gone

France has lost Czechoslovakia as the keystone of her eastern European policy. At the same time Rumania and Yugoslavia and Poland have been given a demonstration that they can not rely too strongly on their treaties with France. Probably they will now seek the most advantageous terms possible with Germany and Italy.

With Czechoslovakia went Soviet Russia, which was linked to France mainly through the Central European Republic. Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff, who returned to Moscow from Geneva over the week-end, did not pay his usual call at the French Foreign Ministry.

INTEREST CENTRED

It is said, unofficially, that Chancellor Hitler and Prime Minister Chamberlain touched upon the question but briefly, sounding out each other on the possibility of returning Germany's war-lost colonial possessions by a 99-year lease.

Germany's interest at present appears primarily centred upon economics—domination of the Balkans as far down as Turkey and including Hungary, Yugoslavia and Bulgaria, all of which countries Economics Minister Walther Funk visited on a recent tour.

Hungary First Stone.

The country's editorial writers repeatedly have emphasized that Hungary, having swerved to friendship with Germany, is a first stone in the new central European economic structure.

Likewise, healthy economic relations with the United States have been stressed repeatedly by German officials.

Sudeten Germany, with its wealth or world-famed spas to which have come thousands of foreigners annually, may help fill the Reich's chest with much needed foreign currency. This in turn may play a decisive role in a German-American trade accord.

Optimism prevails in German circles that these revenues in foreign monies may enable the Reich to make a cash-down, instead of barter or compensation agreement, with the United States.

A Franco-German understanding also is looked upon as not far off. Premier Daladier's visit to Munich during Europe's most critical hours is interpreted as a first sign of a gradual but definite step toward ending the ancient thesis that each nation regards the other as its "arch enemy".

CARMEL Y. P. U.

The re-opening meeting of the Carmel Y. P. U. was held on Wednesday evening, Sept. 28th.

The meeting was in charge of Miss Marron Waddell, Christian Citizenship convener. The Worship Service was opened by quiet music played by Miss Ferne Patterson, followed by a Call to Worship given by Miss Marron Waddell. Hymn 40 was sung. The Scripture was read by Miss Irene Haynes followed by prayer led by Miss Evelyn Fox.

Miss Marron Waddell then took charge of the topic, "The Canadian Provinces."

Owing to the loss of the Christian Fellowship Convener, Mrs. Donald Spencer, Mr. Earl Dafoe was appointed to take her place. A hymn was sung, followed by prayer. After the meeting Miss Monna Wright conducted the recreation.

you.

"Your happiness is that of the 75,000,000 in the Reich that was hitherto."

The Fuehrer evidently was referring to the fact that Germany's population soon will be almost 80,000,000.

"Similarly your sufferings of the past period were also our sufferings," he exclaimed.

Asks For Guidance.

"In this solemn hour let us thank Almighty God that on our way thus far He has blessed us and pray that under His guidance our steps in the future may also be guided right."

Almost at the same time that the first German troops entered Eger from three sides at 9:30 a.m. (3:30 a.m. E.S.T.) the first German railroad train with German trainmen crossed the former frontier.

In places of honor with the Fuehrer's personal, black-shirted body guard were the Sudetenland German "free corps" of Eger, the Sudeten labor service and formations of men and women gymnasts in grayish blue costumes.

Konrad Henlein, the Sudeten Nazi leader whom Hitler named Sudeten Reich Commissioner for his work in behalf of annexation, accompanied the chancellor.

They crossed the former German border into Sudetenland at Wildenau, one-half mile from Henlein's home town of Asch, at 11:16 a.m. (5:16 a.m. E.S.T.).

Greeted By Sudetens.

Hitler, instead of meeting Czechoslovaks at their old customs house, was greeted by delegations of Sudeten women in colorful native costumes.

Hitler came into Sudetenland several hours after his army, which formally annexed the Asch-Eger region, heart of the territory, at 8:05 a.m. (2:05 a.m. E.S.T.).

Thousands lined along cold, drizzly streets were hoarse from cheering the army, but they somehow found even greater cheers for their new Fuehrer.

Hitler's automobile was preceded from Selb, Germany, by two armored cars and detachments of brown-shirted storm troopers, who remained at the border. Airplanes flew over as Hitler entered the new territory.

Hitler Rode With Henlein.

The Chancellor rode with his Adjutant and Henlein, the official welcomer.

About 2,000 German troops commanded by Reneral Walter von Reichenau had rolled across the frontier at Wildenau, in camouflaged trucks, for the early occupation of the Asch-Eger region, third of the zones being taken over progressively by the Nazis.

This column met a second of about 6,000 men in Asch. Their arrival in Asch ended the Asch free territory self-government established when the Sudetens chased out Czechoslovaks Sept. 21. Hitler's troops at once took over street policing from Sudeten party volunteers.

Free Corps Moves Out.

As the German troops marched in the Sudeten Free Corps which Henlein organized to combat Czechoslovaks marched out, wearing civilian clothes, steel helmets, and swastika arm bands.

The local heroes' march was like that of tired veterans returning from a long war. The excited crowd cheered them, too.

Long lines of little girls in pig-tails waved swastikas and chanted "one people, one Reich, one Fuehrer".

The troops rode in with dahlias stuck in their gun barrels.

The troops were en route all night. Many slept until they reached Asch, where the cheering throngs awakened them.

POLICE COURT

His Worship, Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., reserved judgment after hearing all the evidence adduced in a case which saw Samuel R. Sherwin, Toronto, facing charges of drunken driving. The accused pleaded not guilty when arraigned on a charge preferred by Motorcycle Patrolman H. Caldwell, Trenton. Constables Isard and Evans of the Belleville Police Department, testified as to the condition of Sherwin when he was apprehended and brought into the police station. Both officers stated Sherwin was intoxicated. A motor accident at the time in which Sherwin was implicated, resulted in the automobile being impounded and the charge preferred His Worship will deliver judgment on Friday.

Charles A. Payne, K.C., local barrister, appeared in court on behalf of Sherwin's employers, who, Mr. Payne stated, owned the vehicle. Mr. Payne tendered a writ for the release of the vehicle from impoundment. "The driver did not own the vehicle," stated Mr. Payne. A release was given Mr. Payne. Mr. A. B. Collins K.C., appeared on Sherwin's behalf.

"If my client doesn't get out on bail his landlady has threatened to throw his belongings out into the street," revealed Jacob Goodman, local barrister, while representing James Bradford, who has been in custody for some considerable time charged with assaulting his wife and causing her actual bodily harm.

"Doesn't that landlady know it is a breach of the law to throw personal property onto the street?" replied His Worship as he refused the request.

William Shier, Belleville, was sentenced to serve one month in the common jail after being convicted of intoxication. Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., preferred a second offence charge against the accused, following a plea of guilty of intoxication. Shier indicating he was unable to pay a fine of $50.00 received the jail sentence in default.

800,000 MAGYAR

Probably not until the end of the year will the borders of the new state—which the premier declared "has the firm will to live"—be determined exactly.

Fixed By Plebiscites.

The precise German and Polish frontiers are to be fixed by plebiscites. Prague is ready to start negotiating with Hungary on the dispute over the 800,000 Hungarian minority.

Although the new borders have not been determined, the nation knew it had lost almost all of its textile industry, which ranks fifth in the world. Gone, also, was the entire porcelain industry west of Bohemia, many coal mines and much of the paper industry.

On the bright side of the picture was the salvaging of almost the whole iron and steel industry. The Skoda armament works and the Witkowitzer and Kladnoer steel plants remained within the borders of the new state.

Near Normal Life.

Prague and other cities were returning to a semblance of normal life. Soldiers were coming home, children were playing in trenches which had been dug in parks, and merchants were removing strips of paper which had been pasted on windows to prevent shattering during air raids.

By ALVIN STEINKOPF

The Czechoslovak Government announced the Poles occupied Teschen, a Polish area in North Central Czechoslovakia.

German tanks and artillery were moving into Zone No. Two, on the northwestern border of Czechoslovakia meanwhile crossed into the extreme western end of the Republic-Sudeten leader Konrad Henlein's stronghold.

Troops Fall Back

Czechoslovak troops fell back in perfect order ahead of the occupation armies, the Ministry of Defence reported.

Between the armies was a temporary no-man's-land where for periods of 30 minutes to several hours there were no military authorities. In this strip between the armies there were moments of confusion.

The Jones Family in "Safety in Numbers" at the Capitol Theatre.

Several clashes were reported in the southern zone, near Krumau, between Henlein followers and their political opponents after the Czechoslovak army withdrew.

The Sudetens welcomed union with Germany in typical Nazi fashion. But there was anxiety in the hearts of Jews, German Social Democrats and the few Czechs who had not joined the flood of refugees fleeing into the interior of the Republic.

Refugees Moving

Refugees were moving both ways, Czechs and Jews and non-Nazis moving out of the Sudeten district and Henleinist Germans entering the territory about to be occupied.

Jewish refugees accounted for 20,000 of an estimated 70,000 who sought shelter in Prague, Brno and other cities. Red Cross and other organizations provided refugee stations in social institutions, hotels, and other establishments.

TODAY IN CENTRAL EUROPE

Today Chancellor Hitler went into Czechoslovakia under the terms of the Munich Pact and officially the land of the Sudeten Germans became part and parcel of the German Reich. This time last week it looked very much as if that advent of Hitler would have had to await a struggle of nations, compared with which the world war would seem peace and could then have been assured only by victory. But for sudden developments at the middle of the week, war would now be raging with a violence which cannot be realized. The world would be aghast at the struggle which would have been going on in the mountainous western border of Czechoslovakia. A terrible cost would have been paid already by many men and younger men in both Czechoslovakian and German armies and no one knows to what extent air raids might not have been already carried out. Everyone knows how dark affairs appeared last Tuesday evening and on the early hours of Wednesday, when suddenly the arrangement of the conference was decided upon.

Today British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain appeared in the British Commons and received acclaim on his achievement in preventing Europe from falling into the abyss of war.

Meanwhile the Czechs are gallantly, under the terms of the agremeent, retiring from the areas which the Germans have been occupying since Saturday and are to continue annexing until this week-end. The Czechs' task has been the most difficult task but they are performing it like the heroes they showed themselves to be when they were ready to defend Sudetenland. Sympathy is felt for them by the nations in the turn of developments with the loss of Sudetenland and the Polish territory and the Hungarian minority issue which is to be laid before a commission on the suggestion of the Czech government. There is this to be said that while Czechoslovakia has lost the spas which brought in a large revenue and the valuable resources on the west by the German annexation, General Syrovy has expressed the view that now with th questions settled, Czechoslovakia will readjust her affairs and go forward with her development. It has been said that the first President of Czechoslovakia, the great Czech Mazarik, who died not long ago, did when question of the inclusion of areas into the new republic were discussed before the state boundaries were establish, express the view to a friend that it would be a mistake to include the Sudeten land, as he realized the probability of difficulty with Germany over this minority.

In the churches yesterday there was thanksgiving for the preservation of peace and for the fact that Britain and France were strong enough to yield a point for the peace and for the ultimate hope of appeasement of Europe and the creation of better world conditions. Ministers expressed the opinion that Germans can see that Britain and France desired peace, and that they did not want to quarrel with the German people. One minister said it provided the world a last chance to work for world peace, placing a task upon the shoulders of all people to utilize the opportunity so presented.

Naturally a discordant note has been struck in some quarters which fear Nazi attempt to dominate Europe through the Balkans. But on the other hand there is peace, which means that men and boys and women and children are now alive who would, no doubt, have been dead or wounded long before this time had Mr. Chamberlain not 'fought' for peace, that if peace had not been kept nothing could have stopped the reign of terror until complete exhaustion of most or all of the nations. The world has shown itself as peace-minded and against that even any possible aggressors may halt for they know that the man who loves peace will fight for it and that he is in the majority and that he has most of the wealth and resources on his side. Then too, Mr. Chamberlain holds up the hope of appeasement in Europe.

An interesting light on the present situation is conveyed in the words of Prime Minister Lyons of Australia, who on behalf of the people hailed the Munich agreement as "a very striking demonstration of the value of personal contact. It now appears there are real prospects of a lasting and settled peace. The mere fact that these great personalities have been brought face to face will be a big factor in maintaining world peace."

I look upon indolence as a sort of suicide for the man is efficiently destroyed, though the appetite of the brute may survive. —Cicero.

Idlesness among children, as among men, is the root of all evil, and leads to no other evil more certain than ill-temper. —Hannah Moore.

Not only is he idle who is doing nothing, but he that might be better employed. —Socrates.

Supervised by The Lamplighter.

RADIO COMMENTATORS HAVE PRODUCED SUCH A CROP OF JITTERS during the recent world crisis that informed opinion believes something should be done about it. Sensationalism in transmitting news, official and otherwise, has caused much needless suffering and in some cases possible deaths. Toronto Telegram says:

> Radio has produced some commentators whose review of current events demonstrated a background of preparation which has fitted them for their work. Their commentaries have been enlightening and instructive. BUT THE CURSE OF RADIO DURING A CRISIS, SUCH AS THE PRESENT IS THE ABUNDANCE OF COMMENTATORS WHO HAVE NO APPARENT UNDERSTANDING OF THE SITUATION, and who grasp at sensational reports for the purpose of building up suspense to the anticipated culminating point. A favorite phrase of these uninstructed commentators is that "it needs only a spark to send the whole of Europe up in blaze!" They have sounded the alarm hour in and hour out, day in and day out, from early morn till the midnight hours send exhausted listeners to bed. For a week they have had a jittery public sitting on the edge of their chairs and waiting for the bang."

This might have been expected from United States stations where there is no government control, and where the people are not directly concerned in the question of war or no war. Canada, however, has government radio control and they should have an official commentator in such a state of public excitement, and give out only official news. United States commentators should be kept off Canadian programs, and if folks want to listen to them on United States programs the fault will be theirs. They will only have themselves to blame if their nerves are shattered.

ANOTHER NATURE STORY COMES FROM ANOTHER SIDELIGHT FAN. He states that a wild duck family was adopted by cottagers along the bay shore. Ma and Pa Duck and little ones swam about and came regularly to the cottages for food. Then calamity struck —Pa Duck was shot by an over-anxious hunter and removed from the scene. Then the mother and four of the little ducks were captured by another duck hunter, while the last free member of the family still swims about in mournful manner seeking its parents and companions.

CHRISTMAS CARDS ARE BEING ADVERTISED ALREADY, which is a hint to begin to save money for Christmas Gift shopping. Summer has folded its tents and silently stolen away, fall is gum-shoeing through the leaves, the days are drawing in, and winter is just around the corner, with a possible fine October to fill our hearts with joy before banking the house for those days when wintry blasts shriek around the old home and try to get under the foundation boards. 'Member when folks used to bank the houses sure as shootin' every fall — sometimes with manure, sometimes with leaves, and even snow at times? That was when there was a pig for almost every pot. When the squeals of the porkers rent the autumn air in a cacophony of sound which indicated that there would be plenty of eats of a kind all winter in most houses. For a pig was a necessity in the home those days — sure he or she ate all the scraps and furnished meat for the winter. Opulent folks even kept a cow for the milk and butter it provided, and there was always a big bucksaw and hefty axe to ensure that the men folks got plenty of exercise. Then there was always a bucket of fresh water to be brought from the well by the first one in. Supply other homey details yourself, dear reader, for this just fits this space. Home was really home in those days.

MILD LANGUAGE

An old lady called at the local post office and complained to the postmaster about the bad language used by two workmen while they were engaged on a telegraph pole outside her house.

The postmaster asked the workmen to make a report out and this is what he received:—

"Dear sir,—Me and my mate were repairing the pole outside Mrs. Smith's house. Bill was up the pole and I was at the bottom. Bill upset some boiling lead, and it fell down my neck. 'Now, Bill, you should be more careful.' Nothing more was said!"

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

Oct. 3rd., 1918.

Thanksgiving Day will be observed on Monday, Oct. 14th.

The churches in the Province of Ontario are to be asked to co-operate in conserving the available coal supplies. The new Fuel Controller, R. Home Smith, has already laid before representative clergymen of all denominations a suggestion that church services be curtailed or combined in a way that will effect a saving of fifty to sixty per cent in the consumption of coal. The controller believed that two or three churches can arrange to hold their services in the one building and that where union services are not favored the congregation can meet at different hours in the one building. The suggestion is meeting with approval.

Mr. J. Green of Bloomfield has taken over M. H. Osborne's barber shop on Front Street, Belleville.

Oct. 3rd., 1908.

A rather unusual thing happened in the store of Tickell and Sons yesterday, about five o'clock. A farmer purchased a chair and in leaving the store, instead of going out by way of the door, he stepped upon the platform upon which goods are displayed in front of the large window, and as he was carrying the chair in front of him he failed to notice his mistake and walked right through the large plate glass window, smashing the lower portion of the glass to pieces. He was a very astonished man when he saw what he had done. His head was slightly cut by coming in contact with the upper part of the broken glass. The window was valued at $75.00. This is the second time in within a few days that a window was broken in the front of this store. The first was broken by a stone which was thrown by some unknown person.

The Rev. J. Connolly Dixon, Rector of the Anglican Church, Rawdon, was a visitor in the city today.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Miller have returned to Cleveland, Ohio, after visiting friends here.

40 YEARS AGO

Oct. 3rd., 1898.

Mr. Archibald Blue, of the Provincial Bureau of Mines, after inspecting the recent corundum finds in Hastings County, reports there are large exposures of corundum, and that the deposits can be followed for fifty miles across Hastings County and part of Renfrew County. They occur in pockets, some of them of great extent. Corundum is the richest of all the ores in aluminum, the manufacture of which bids fair to rank among the greatest of industries at no distant date.

Mr. Hugh Quinlan went to Montreal today on Business.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Naylor of Deseronto are visiting friends in the city.

Mr. W. B. Deacon will leave tomorrow on a business trip to New York City.

Mr. Fred Carscallen, druggist of Bancroft, formerly of Belleville, spent yesterday in the city with relatives.

50 YEARS AGO

Oct. 3rd., 1888.

One of the delivery wagons belonging to John Burke, wood dealer, broke down on Front Street this morning.

Foster and Foster, stove dealers, have had a telephone placed in their store.

The police station is badly in need of a new stove, the present one being in a dilapidated condition. The police officers found it necessary yesterday to stop the cracks in the stove with mud, owing to the leakage of gas. They certainly deserve better treatment.

Conductor Morris of the Midland Railway, between here and Peterboro, has returned after a successful hunt out north. He killed a large black bear and many friends are thanking him for his kind remembrance of them with portions of the bear meat.

The street car company is putting the tracks on Front Street in first class condition.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton M.D.

Fever—Rise in Temperature—is Not Injurious

A few years ago certain types of insanity accompanied by paralysis were cured by injecting the malaria organisms and causing an attack of malaria. When the malaria attack was cured by quinine, some of the patients were found to be free of their mental symptoms and were able to return home. Later it was discovered that it was the great heat—fever—of the attack of malaria that brought about the cure. Physicians had remembered that heat is of great help to the body when attacked by any ailment.

Physicians remember that it is not many years ago since reducing the temperature in a patient was done almost regularly. Patient was given a laxative, his food reduced in amount, and a drug given to reduce the fever. To-day in many cases only a light laxative is given, food is not reduced, and no drug is given for the fever as the fever is recognized as Nature's method of fighting of the ailment. It is only when the fever gets within dangerous limits that any attempt is made to reduce it.

In speaking of fever in Urology and Cutaneous Review, Dr. F. H. Redewell says:

"Fever is a process which aids in the removal or destruction of injurious substances which get into the body. It results in an increase in leucocytes (the white corpuscles or disease fighters in the body), an increase in the rate at which all the body processes work, and a great increase in clasmatocytes (large blood cells) that increase resistance to infection, in the blood, in the lymph (the other portion of the circulation) and all tissues of the body.

Today, instead of reducing temperature, it is not unusual for physicians to use methods— electricity and others—to increase the temperature of the body thus actually increasing its fighting or disease resisting forces.

Dr. Redewell states further that when these 'heat' treatments become more common, the habit of 'lowering fever' will be forgotten

The point then is that fever is not injurious and parents and others make a mistake in trying to reduce temperature whenever the thermometer shows a rise of one or two degrees. A rise in temperature means that trouble is present and that the patient should be off his feet, thus saving the strength of his heart. It does not mean that the temperature should be reduced. This rests with the physician.

FOLLY BRIDGE

Folly Bridge — a curious name for the graceful old bridge that spans the Isis, linking Oxford with the Royal County of Berkshire. Crossing it, one is tempted to pause and gaze at the gay down-stream scene: the banks fringed by tall elms, the scores of small craft floating on the broad surface of the water, the river steamers, and the long line of elegant college barges that creak gently at their moorings.

But Folly Bridge is not only a main entrance to an historic city—it has a story of its own.

Centuries ago it had upon it a gateway, in a room of which the great scientist of medieval times, Roger Bacon, pondered his abstruse problems of science and philosophy. Bacon was an intellectual giant of his day; a man of such originality of mind and in outlook so far ahead of his contemporaries that he was held to be a necromancer—and many were the strange works attributed to him. And is he not reputed to have discovered gunpowder?

In the 18th century one Welcome came to live in Bacon's gateway and added another storey, thus acquiring for his home the soubriquet "Welcome's Folly." In 1771 the building was pulled down, but the bridge of today still serves to remind us of it.

This little story is one among a thousand that Oxford has to tell.—Coming Events in Gt. Britain.

'ARRY 'ARRISON

The story now being told about the lady arguing about the pronunciation of Harewood, and remarking: "Well, Mrs. 'Iggins, they can say what they like, but I shall always call it 'Arewood, with the haccent on the haitch," reminds one of a Cockney conversation which comes from 'Erne 'Ill and runs as follows:

Cockney: Good morning, Mr. 'Arrison.

Mr. 'Arrison: My name ain't 'Arrison.

Cockney: Ho, ain't it? If a haitch, a hay, two hars, a hi, a hess, a ho and a then don't spell 'Arrison, what do it spell?

SHIRT TAILS GOING

The end of the shirt-tail may be in sight. A patent has been issued in Washington to the inventor to "a combination coat shirt—that leaves off the tail—a sort of abbreviated shirt and collar that button into the coat."

And now it remains for conservative man to abandon the ways of his ancestors and adopt this ingenious piece of haberdashery.

A decade or so ago shirt-tails were attacked all along the line.

A shirt was patented that buttoned to the trouser tops and left nothing to be tucked in.

An elongated garter was invented that fastened high on the shirt, extended down to the socks, and rendered the shirt-tail as useless as a vermiform appendix.

A third remedy for shirt-tails was a shirt that turned into underwear when it disappeared below the belt.

The surplus material in men's shirts has survived all these efforts to discard it as an unnecessary and inexplicable appendage.

And it seems highly probably that it will continue to survive for some time yet, a boon to the cotton industry and something for inventors to play with.—Detroit Free Press.

PROBLEM CRAFTS

The problem of balancing the output of craftsmen and white collar men is very real. Probably the desire of mothers everywhere to have their boys go into clerical and professional work has had something to do with the present lack of balance. But that natural and laudable desire is based on the hope that the boy will improve his station in life compared with that of the parents. Even Prof. E. W. Robinson, of Acadia University, who blames mothers for the existing preponderance of white collar job seekers, would hardly care to denounce such a proper maternal instinct.

The problem, then, is to prove to mothers and boys that the crafts offer as much of what is good in life as any clerical job. Already there is a shortage of skilled artisans. The dying out of the apprentice system has resulted in a scanty supply of artisans and craftsmen, to replace the older men, especially following years of depression when the demand for that type of labor was at a low ebb.

While many boys are attracted by machinery, it is a fact that young men do not aspire to become painters, carpenters, electricians, plumbers and so on, as in the old days. College is available on easier financial terms, and the prestige of a university education has given rise to a caste distinction against the crafts with which young men were proud to be associated a generation ago.

The problem was studied in Edmonton nine or ten years ago, and a proposal for a composite high school was one of the results. Here, it was argued, with students taking commercial, technical and academic courses all grouped together, the caste feeling would be pretty well broken down. Under the present system, distinctions that should not exist are strengthened because each type of high school is housed separately. However, the school board has been unable to secure endorsation of expenditure necessary for a composite high school and the proposal has been shelved for many years.

Some day, however, the problem will have to be tackled again.—Edmonton Journal.

READING MACHINE

By the use of microfilm only about 12 feet of such film is required to expose a 300-page book. By the use of the film newspapers, or bank records, or millions of index cards can be stored safely and permanently—and inexpensively. Instead of keeping files of newspapers, which deteriorate, a copy of each issue may be recorded on microfilm and kept permanently in a fraction of the space required for the copy of the paper itself.

When you want to read that paper you can look at the film through a magnifying glass, or project the image on a screen in enlargement. The third method is to print the film on paper and look at it, either by glass or reflection. Microfilm apparently finds most favor when its image is thrown on a screen. The manufacturers have developed a single unit for desk purposes, and thus we now have a new device called the reading machine.—Shining Lines.

Trenton

Special to the Ontario Intelligencer

Trenton, Oct. 3—Change of quarters for Trenton's non-permanent active militiamen came without much warning on Thursday of this week when two dun-coloured ordnance trucks from headquarters at Kingston arrived in town to transfer the all-too-meagre equipment from the ancient and antiquated "armouries" adjoining the public library on Dundas St., to the recently acquired whitewear building at the foot of Quinte St. Rifles, tunics, greatcoats, caps, Lewis guns, bayonets, and all sorts of stores were loaded in the trucks and transferred across the river in a minimum of time. Just what further steps will be taken immediately is a question as the whole matter rests at the discretion of the military authorities at Kingston. Certainly the need of some more suitable place has long been felt.

In the new quarters, which will require a great deal of renovating before they will be of much use as a training spot, it is tentatively planned that eventually both an N. C. O's. mess and an officers' mess will be fitted up, thus providing places where members can spend quiet evenings in comfort and privacy. A few easy chairs, a few pictures and magazines, perhaps a radio, with possibly a billiard table, will certainly alter the appearance of the present quarters, and will undoubtedly alter the viewpoint of the officers and non-commissioned officers who have worked so loyally to make "A" Company of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment the outstanding company which it undoubtedly was at this year's camp in Barriefield. It is been difficult at times to hold this nucleus of the company together, but a change of locale, with attendant increases in comfort, may do much to give the company a more lasting personnel from year to year. Certainly men who enroll for only one summer are not as desirable as those who will train year after year with the company; and if a place is fitted up where these can gather occasionally it will certainly add much to the efficienep of the group.

A long distance telephone call from Kingston to Major H. D. Graham late on Wednesday afternoon was the only warning of the imminence of the move from the old armouries to the new, and early on Thursday the work began. Company-Sergeant-Major H. Weeks was in charge assisted by Sgt. J. Reid, and the transfer was surely a rapid one. If plans are carried out as certain hints would lead the members of the company to believe, the present supply of company rifles will be called in and new ones will be issued before next summer. The present rifles are in very poor condition owing to the action of the moisture in the former damp quarters, and new ones are definitely in order.

Several local officers plan to attend the field tactical exercise held in Belleville on Saturday and Sunday next. Visiting officers from all over Military District No. 3 are expected to be present.

Possibility of the immediate transfer of a large portion of the members of the Technical Training School has been suggested in certain R.C.A.F. quarters this week, but in view of the change in the European situation no action will be taken for the present, this writer is reliably informed. Many of the T. T. S. recruits have been here only a month or two, and the balance of their training would have been given, it is said, at Camp Borden or some similar spot. Just what a move of this sort would imply it is impossible to say definitely, but it would appear that the obvious idea would be to make room for new recruits to the force.

Following the collier Valley Camp into the local harbour the smaller "Cadwell" docked for a few hours on Thursday and cleared the same afternoon heading west. A large supply of winter fuel is now piled at the B. W. Powers docks, and more is expected, it is reported.

Motorists travelling the Carrying Place-Consecon highway are very pleased with the new five-mile stretch of concrete, and another great improvement has been made at the Murray Canal where the construction people have paved the bridge approaches.

Children of Dufferin school are looking forward to field day events today, while pupils of St. Peter's Separate School held their events on Wednesday afternoon.

Teachers of Murray township met at Wooler on Wednesday afternoon for the first of their regular monthly Teachers' Council meetings.

Miss Flora Macdonald, music teacher in more than a score of the public schools of Murray and Sidney townships, has been unable to resume her duties as yet this autumn owing to a throat ailment. Temporarily her place is being taken by Miss Poulter of Wooler.

Murray township school fair was held at Wooler on Friday of last week with a large crowd attending, while the annual Wooler Agricultural Fair, always a popular event, drew crowds this week.

Does YOUR System Make Excess Acid?
Acid Indigestion, Colds, Headaches, Bilious Attacks, Constipation
OFTEN START THIS WAY

Some people are what are known as acid-makers. They can't help it—and often they don't know it. The results of an excess of acid may seem just like ordinary stomach trouble — but they can't be put right by ordinary stomach remedies! Excess acid may be the reason why you wake up flat, sour, bleary-eyed, bilious — and the reason why fierce purgatives only leave you in the grip of a weakening habit and the same old symptoms.

But there's one thing that acid can't face. That's the neutralizing power of Vange Salts, the alkaline remedy with the natural mineral spa action. A teaspoonful in warm water surges through your system just like the medicinal spring water far away in England where Vange Salts come from. Excess acid is neutralized quickly, painlessly. Your blood is purified of poisons. Your sore stomach walls are soothed. And that mass of hard, poisonous waste matter lying in your intestines is softened gently, naturally, and passed out of your body. Then do you feel good! It's marvellous! But the most marvellous thing is that Vange Salts are only 60 cents a tin! At your druggist now—but if you're wise, on your bathroom shelf tonight!

Theatres

AT THE McCARTHY

"This Marriage Business"

What a wide-awake press-agent can do in the way of booming the marriage-license business in a sleepy little town forms the swell entertainment provided in R.K.O.'s gay romantic comedy "This Marriage Business" now at the McCarthy Theatre, with Victor Moore, the grandest old sport the screen has ever known, in the top role.

Victor Moore, however, is not the press agent. He is the kindly old county clerk none of whose wedded couples ever lapsed into divorce. Allan Lane, who was last seen at the McCarthy Theatre in the hilarious comedy "Maid's Night Out" as the milkman, is cast as the publicist of a New York paper who learns of this unusual record and who spreads the news far and wide—with hilarious results.

A romance between Lane and Moore's pretty daugter, Vicki Lester, provides the heart interest in "This Marriage Business" and also many of the complications when, at her urging, Lane agrees to campaign Victor Moore into the Mayor's chair. This brings the unsuspecting old clerk into competition with a strongly-entrenched political ring and plenty of exciting events result.

As the shy little official, Moore has one of the finest roles of his career, and one that gives full rein to his inimitable type of comedy.

The settings of the picture are presented in two phases—the little town before the publicity wave strikes it, and again after the surge of prosperity has brought about a virtual rebuilding of the community. Much of the action takes place at Moore's old-fashioned home, at the county court and a roadhouse where a "frame-up" plot against Moore makes for an exciting climax.

Jack Carson, Jack Arnold, Bryant Washburn, Ida Vollmar, Kay Sutton and Leona Roberts support the principals in the cast in an excellent manner throughout the entire production.

"There Goes the Bride"

Fifi Dorsay, fiery French commedienne in an excellent musical comedy presentation, "There Goes The Bride" provides a splendid twenty minutes of fun and smart musical numbers that will thrill everyone. The Mauch twins Billy and Bobby in a four star featurette treat in technicolor entitled "Sons of the Plains" and a peppy floor show revue entitled "Saturday Night Swing Club" also provides supreme screen enjoyment to keep you smiling, in addition to the outstanding feature presentation, "This Marriage Business."

AT THE BELLE

"My Lucky Star"

At last the miraculous Sonja Henie appears in a picture as American as an ice cream cone. A dazzling modern girl, having a modern good time on a co-ed campus, wearing swank clothes, keeping swell dates—that's Sonja as you'll see her in "My Lucky Star," her new hit for 20th Century-Fox.

A credit to Darryl F. Zanuck and to everyone who had a hand in its making, this is a picture that winks and glitters with fun and romance and the magic of stars hanging low on a still frosty night. It has songs and laughter that seem to sail through the air like ski jumpers and Sonja's magnificent "Alice in Wonderland" ice ballet—climaxing what is by all odds her happiest screen story—is a thing to make you cry out in wonder and delight.

Sharing star honors with Sonja and giving an excellent account of himself is Richard Greene, handsome young British actor last seen in "Four Men and a Prayer," while Joan Davis, Cesar Romero and Buddy Ebsen are featured in widely divergent comedy roles which will delight their fun-loving fans.

Gordon and Revel's delightful melodies lend fresh enchantment to the breath-taking ice ballets in which Sonja surpasses even her sensational performances in "Thin Ice" and "Happy Landing."

The splendid supporting cast includes Arthur Treacher, George Barbier, Louise Hovick, Billy Gilbert, Patricia Wilder and Paul Hurst. The screen play by Harry Tugend and Jack Yellen is from an original story by Karl Tunberg and Don Ettlinger. Harry Losee arranged the skating ensembles.

Roy Del Ruth, who directed two of Sonja Henie's previous pictures, has done another fine job, with Harry Joe Brown as associate producer. The film is a Movie Quiz $250,000 contest picture.

3 Exceptional Shorts

The most unusual featurette ever screened is Jimmy Fidler's Personality Parade, introducing all your favorite screen stars of the last twenty-five years, Mabel Normand, Milton Sills, Barbara LaMarr, Will Rogers, Marie Dressler, Jean Harlow and many, many others, in a grand screen round-up, we guarantee you will enjoy the whole twenty minutes of this most novel film that will probably never be duplicated again. "String Bean Jack" the best color cartoon seen on the Belle screen in months and Paramount News with its gist of important World Events completes the grand 9th Anniversary program.

Sonja Henie and Richard Greene in "My Lucky Star," with the grand surrounding show continues. It's the ideal screen program, every unit a hit!

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Jones Family"

As long as Hollywood turns out pictures as good as "Safety In Numbers," the Jones Family's latest, no one can challenge the industry's current slogan that "Motion Pictures Are Your Best Entertainment."

At the Capitol Theatre, this delightful comedy finds America's favorite folks ten times better than ever—because this time they're all in a jam together, proving that where there's a jam there's bound to be a Jones, and vice versa!

The picture opens with Mrs. Jones agreeing to go on the air with a weekly broadcast on domestic problems. Her sponsor controls the site of a new mineral water discovery in which the good citizens of Maryville — led by Dad Jones — are anxious to invest their savings. So preoccupied is the family with visions of sudden wealth that no one realizes that Jack Jones has fallen in love meanwhile with pretty Toni Stewart, a newcomer to Maryville, who wants Jack to elope with her.

Jack suggests that they send his mother an anonymous letter in care of the radio station, asking her advice. She discusses the problem in her next broadcast and to Jack's and Toni's utter surprise, gives her approval to the match.

On the day the two lovers plan to elope, it is discovered that the spring water contains no mineral —which means that Dad and the other investors have been duped about $100,000 worth! It is only the quick thinking of Mrs. Jones using her regular broadcast time, that lures the swindlers back to their eventual capture by the entire family and, incidentally, brings Jack and Toni back to their senses.

"I Met My Love Again"

Joan Bennett and Henry Fonda starred in "I Met My Love Again" a thrilling romantic drama based on Allene Corliss' novel, "Summer Lightning," now playing the Capitol as a grand revival showing.

Wanger has lined up a great supporting cast for the stars, headed by Dame May Whitty, Alan Marshal, Louise Platt, Alan Baxter and Tim Holt.

The story casts Joan as a headstrong maiden of the jazz and flapper era of 1927, and Fonda as the studious young New Englander to whom she is engaged.

The romantic girl meets adventure in the person of handsome Alan Marshal, playing an irresponsible Bohemian writer. Joan is swept off her feet by this wordly fellow and the pair elope to New York.

Joan finds their life in the Bohemian Colony of Paris very disillusioning, particularly when even the birth of their daughter fails to awaken her husband to his responsibilities. However, she is too proud to return to Vermont to face her kindly Aunt William and the boy she jilted, until Marshal is killed in a duel fought over the merits of a worthless painting.

Then she comes home, realizing that she still loves Fonda, who has become a successful young professor; but it is not until after a series of dramatic developments that she wins him back.

New heights in line and luxury are achieved by some of the new fur hats. A high "tea cosy" line is used for an off-face hat entirely of mink with blue and coral ostrich tips at one side.

Novel effects mark many of the new clothes. A new evening frock of yellow satin uses quilting in a novel manner, for the all-over diamond pattern starts small at the bodice and becomes very wide towards the hem.

CARTER—ELLIS

Morgan Memorial Chapel at Queen's University was the scene of an interesting autumn wedding at three-thirty o'clock Saturday afternoon, when Edith Ray, daughter of the Rev. J. D. Ellis, D.D., and Mrs. Ellis, was united in marriage to Mr. Edmund Harris Carter, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Carter of Picton. The bride is a graduate of Queen's University.

The chapel was beautifully decorated for the occasion with white mums on the altar and tall standards of ferns. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Ellis, father of the bride, and Miss De Long played the wedding music. The bride, who was escorted to the altar by her brother, Mr. Donald Ellis of Toronto, was a radiant figure in her wedding gown of ivory velvet, simply fashioned on long slim lines, the bodice caught with a pearl clasp and wearing a juliet cap of velvet with pearl trimming. She carried a shower bouquet of Butterfly roses and lily-of-the-valley. The bride was attended by Miss Verla Kennedy of Montreal, as bridesmaid, wearing a lovely frock of periwinkle blue taffeta with touches of wine color velvet, a juliet cap of matching wine velvet and carried a bouquet of shaded pink pom-pom 'mums.' The best man was Mr. William Hepburn of Picton.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on Frontenac Street, which was prettily decorated with gladioli, Zinnias and other autumn flowers. The bride's table, which was effectively arranged with white mums and white tapers in silver holders, was presided over by Mrs. W. T. G. Brown who poured tea and Mrs. George Schmidt, of Pembroke, who poured coffee. Mrs. J. D. Ellis, mother of the bride, was wearing a handsome gown of black crepe with transparent sleeves embroidered in silver, a matching black hat and a corsage of white pom-poms; Mrs. C. W. Topping of Vancouver, B.C., sister of the bride, wore an effective gown of blue net made bouffant style with a short jacket, a matching hat and a corsage of red roses; Mrs. Donald Ellis of Toronto, sister-in-law of the bride, wore a smart gown of black velvet and a black velvet hat with ostrich tips.

Later the bride and groom left on a motor trip to the States, the bride travelling in a smart frock of green crepe, with matching hat and accessories and a geryx wool coat, trimmed with grey Persian Lamb. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Carter will reside in Picton.

The out-of-town guests included: Mr. and Mrs. James Carter of Picton, parents of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Carmen Slack, brother-in-law and sister of the groom; Mrs. Harold Carter and little daughter Katherine, Mr. and Mrs. Lance Nethery and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Church, all of Picton; Mr. and Mrs. Edward Vanderwater of Belleville; Mrs. George Schmidt and Miss Schmidt of Pembroke; Miss Edith Nichols of Montreal; Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Smith of Ottawa; Miss Mary Beatty of Toronto and Miss Florence Macvety of Toronto.

BUNNETT—THOMSON

A pretty wedding took place at Holloway Street United Church, Parsonage, 44 Hillside Street., on Saturday, October 1st at one-thirty when Vera Mae, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ross Thomson, Thurlow, became the bride of Mr. Robert Cameron Bunnett, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Bunnett, Thurlow. Rev. R. E. Newman officiated.

The bride was attired in a tailored navy silk velvet dress, with blue accessories and corsage of pink and white carnations.

She was attended by her sister, Mrs. Fred Bowers, Trenton, who wore a figured sheer dress with black sheer redingote and black accessories.

Mr. Harry Sedore Thomson, brother of the bride, was groomsman.

After a dinner at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Bunnett left on a wedding trip to Niagara Falls. Upon their return they will reside on the groom's farm, Thurlow.

TWIDDY—FITCHETT

A quiet wedding was solemnized in Campbellford, when Edna May, daughter of Mrs. Fitchett and the late G. F. Fitchett, became the bride of Lyle Arthur Twiddy, son of Mrs. Twiddy and the late Paul Twiddy. Rev. H. B. Neal officiated.

After a motor trip around Lake Ontario, the young couple will take up residence in this city.

HART—CHRISTOPHER

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the Bayside parsonage, on Saturday, October first, when Mabel Winnifred, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Christopher was united in marriage to Mr. Elvin Goldsmith Hart, only son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Hart of Sidney. Rev. Mr. Flatt officiated.

The bride looked charming in a brown silk crepe dress with matching accessories. The attendants were Miss Agnes Christopher and Mr. Rex Adams.

After a wedding trip to Ottawa and Montreal, the bride and groom will reside on the Third Concession of Sidney.

Using Mushroom for Hat Is Clever Idea, at That

(Goodnight Stories)

By MAX TRELL

JUST THEN the sky grew dark with clouds. The sun was hidden. There was a flash of lightning and a crack of thunder. The next moment the rain came beating down.

Knarf and Hanid, the shadow children with the turned-about names, sprang up from the flat stone on which they were sitting and started to run. But they were far from the house.

"If we don't find some place to hide under," Knarf said, "we'll get all wet."

Just then they heard a pop-pop-pop coming from the little patch of grass along the bottom of the garden wall. They looked and saw that three mushrooms had sprung up.

"Quick, Hanid! Let's get under them. They're just like umbrellas."

So Knarf stood under the first mushroom and Hanid stood under the second.

Made Selves Small

You mustn't be surprised that Hanid and Knarf were able to stand under a mushroom. You remember, they had both made themselves as small as match sticks. That was because they had both wanted to fit in the new boat they had just made out of a matchbox.

The little matchbox boat was still standing on the edge of the road, not far from the three mushrooms. Knarf and Hanid had been wondering how they could bet it to the water. Now Hanid exclaimed: "Look, Knarf! Our boat is beginning to float!"

"Hanid! We've got to get in it!"

"But it's raining!'

Knarf quickly broke off the top of one of the mushrooms and put it on top of Hanid's head. "Now you've got a hat," h esaid. Then he broke off the top of another mushroom and put it on his own head. Then they both ran as fast as they could and finally jumped into the boat.

And then suddenly the rain stopped and the sun came out again.

"Now we'll have a nice sail," said Knarf. "We'll float right down to the ocean. We'll go far, far away. Oh, we're going to have lots of adventures, Hanid. You'll see."

Wedding Announcements

If the wedding is a very small one, with no general invitations issued, it usually is considered convenient to send formal announcements of the marriage. Announcements are not sent to those who have been invited to the ceremony or to the reception. They should be ordered well in advance of the wedding date, so that they will be ready—engraved, addressed, stamped— to be mailed as soon as possible after the ceremony has been performed.

Like wedding invitations, the announcements are engraved on folded white or ivory sheets of fine quality paper. If both invitations and announcements are sent, as is often the case when the entire list of friends of both families cannot be invited to the wedding and reception, the style of engraving chosen for announcements should be the same as that used for the invitations.

In the announcements, the hour of the ceremony is not included, since this is obviously not necessary. But, unlike the invitation, the year is included, and is spelled out. The place where the ceremony was performed must also be given and, if desired, the church in which it took place.

When the parents are making the announcement, this is the correct form:

Mr. and Mrs. John Farrand Strong have the honour of announcing the marriage of their daughter Mary Thayer
to
Mr. Alexander Winthrop Clark
on Tuesday, the eleventh of October
Nineteen hundred and thirty-eight
Haven, New York

Some notes about announcement forms:

The word honour is spelled with the u.

The second line may read "have the honour to announce", or "announce the marriage of their daughter". But the form given is the one usually used, and the form "announce the marriage" is considered abrupt.

The year may be written either "Nineteen hundred and thirty-eight", or "One thousand nine hundred and thirty-eight". The first form is usually preferred, since this is the natural way of referring to the year.

With the announcements an At Home card may be enclosed. Since these cards are mailed after the wedding, the married name is used.

The most formal wording for this card is:

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Winthrop
Clark will be at home after the first of November
Ten Gracie Square
New York

The second form, very practical because the plate may later be used for the engraving of a joint visiting-card, is:

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Winthrop
At Home Ten Gracie Square
after the first of November
New York

While an announcement does not "call for" a gift or other acknowledgement, it is polite to acknowledge it with a gracious note of good wishes, and to send a gift, if circumstances and our wishes prompt us to.

Introductions

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—When introduced do we both say, "How do you do", or "I am happy to meet you?"

2—If my new acquaintance says "I am happy to meet you", what is a pleasant reply?

3—Please tell me what would be a beautiful expression on a gift card to go with a wedding present?

4—Should I sign Mr. and Mrs. D. Turner, or our Christian names?

5—When a friend takes me to dinner at a hotel or restaurant, do I tip, or does my host or hostess take care of that too?

T.

1—Both people being introduced say "How do you do", to acknowledge the introduction. This is the conventional thing to say first, and then you may add, "I am so happy to meet you, for Mary Lane has told me such delightful things about you that I have wanted for a long time to know you."

2—"I am happy to meet you" is not a proper thing to say when we acknowledge an introduction, and your new acquaintance probably won't say it as an introduction acknowledgment. But, if she does you would graciously say, "I am happy to meet you too, Mrs. Graham". If she says it in the way I have indicated in the first answer, you would say something like this, "I am glad too that we are meeting at last. Mary has promised me for so long that I could have the pleasure of meeting you."

3—Would you like this: "May you and Tom and Happiness always walk close together", "Dearest love to two dear friends, and my salutations to their new home."

4—Since you plan to send a card with a message written on it—this makes it a note—you would sign a consistently informal signature. Therefore, sign your first names (informal) rather than the Mr. and Mrs. (formal).

5—No, your host or hostess gives the tip, which is a part of the "hospitality".

The Stars Say—

For Tuesday, October 4

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A VERY LIVELY and progressive day is forecast from the important mutual aspects of the planets. Surprising or quite unexpected events may occur, causing much perturbation or upset conditions. However, all in the pursuit of major objectives or propositions drastically affect the future and its success. Aspirations and ideals are high, and elders, superiors and powerful influences are at work to encourage these and assist in putting them on firm foundations.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves launched in a year of large interests and surprising events, with major propositions or sudden opportunities of a quite unpredictable nature causing a sudden reorientation of the objectives and the surroundings. Important persons have a part in this, either furnishing capital or otherwise contributing to sound results. Seek such co-operation with confidence, but be careful in financing too recklessly.

A child born on this day may be progressive and energetic. It may have high ideals and possibly startling ambitions. These may be aided by elders, superiors or those of affluence, who may be generous with bequest or insurance.

Advice to Dateless Girls

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Please let me say a few words to Harry who was grieving over a girl who two-timed him, as mentioned in your column a couple of weeks ago.

I, too, went with a Harry for over three years, and while we were not engaged, he wrote me over five hundred letters, which I still have. His job was out of town so I stayed home and declined many invitations as I was so happy in having him as a friend. His letters were so real, so sincere, I felt I needed nothing more.

Once when he came to see me, he picked up a photograph of mine and asked me about it. For a joke I answered: "That's for the other boy friend". Believe it or not, he got angry and has never come back or written since. There was no other boy friend. But I see the unwisdom of staying home dateless. My pride will not permit me to ask him to return though I'm still very fond of him.

No Longer Dateless

Congratulations, my dear, on doing the sensible thing at last. You were not engaged to this young man, and there was no reason why you should go dateless. Take notice, young ladies, and do not carry loyalty too far.

Light Biscuits or Heavy Conversation?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm a young professional man and would like to have a home and a wife to take care of me. It's the old question, which is better? A girl who is a good cook and housekeeper or a business girl who has no knowledge of these things but is a witty and amusing talker, a good companion and a fine out-of-door girl. But from what I've seen of her two-room apartment and the way butter, bread, fruit and flour are mixed up with her hats and scarfs on the living-room table, I wonder.

Bachelor

It would take Solomon to answer your question, my dear young friend. Sometimes a clever girl, if she's enough in love to mend her ways, can become a capable housekeeper. Housekeeping demands a high degree of intelligence, if it's to be well done. Dumb-Dora can't be clever, amusing and interesting companion with the best intentions in the world.

In the final analysis, which do you prefer—light and airy biscuits or light and airy conversation?

Wife Needs Change of Scene

Dear Miss Fairfax:

That sure was a hand grenade you threw into our sewing circle when you printed a letter from a man saying he didn't take his wife to the movies because he preferred to put his car in the garage and read a book or the evening paper.

If he had to eat and sleep in the place where he works, without even one day or night of change, I think he'd be kinder to his wife.. People who work outside the home are stimulated by the people they meet. But the women who work, work, work all day long and see nothing of life outside the home are candidates for madness.

Shame on that man. He should take his wife to the movies not once but twice a week.

Another Stay-at-Home Wife

Here's hoping this lady's letter may soften the heart of those husbands who think their entire duty is done when they pay for rent or groceries. Have a heart, gentlemen.

Seek Aids To Beauty In Home

By HELEN FOLLETT

When the balance in the check book is languishing, bills loom ahead and your conscience hurts you about your beautifying expenses—such times come to all of us—peek in the kitchen cabinets and the refrigerator. You'll find any number of beauty aids within reach of your finger tips.

Rich cream brought by the milkman is wonderful for the complexion. It does away with roughness of surface, puts on the smooth finish. The flesh laps it up. If you are inclined to start a freckle fight, use lemon juice before you spread the cream over your countenance.

Corn meal mixed with soap suds will bring loveliness to hard-working hands that have been polishing furniture or silver or cleaning closet shelves. The tiny grains grind into knuckle creases, their starchy content acts as a soothing agent.

Do you realize that some colors are friendly, make people want to know you, that others are cold and austere, make people afraid of you? Yes, madame, we are judged to a considerable extent by the colors we wear.

Cast away color fear if you are one who naturally gravitates to grays, dull greens, black or characterless browns. Put a red feather in your hat, add a gay belt to a somber frock. Have a bit of brightness on your gloves. Carry a gay purse. Be daring.

The popularity of prints and bright-colored house coats has awakened many a woman to the favorable effect of colors on her spirits. They put ginger in her heels, songs on her lips, starshine in her eyes.

A good reason why many women like winter is that it gives them a chance to wear velvet. A nice afternoon frock is of black silk velvet with a lumber-jacket bloused top marked by silver thread embroidery.

Well-To-Do Parents Owe Their Children College Education If Children Want It and Will Work At It

(Copyright, 1938 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Dear Miss Chatfield:

In a few days all my chums will be going off to college and I will be left at home grieving. If my father were a poor man I could understand why he refuses to let me go, but he has plenty of money. He says I have more education than he had and don't need any more. He won't even listen to my arguments because he's not interested in anything but money. He says flatly that he won't waste his money on college education for me. If you could only tell me how to convince him that he's making a mistake I would be eternally grateful. PEGGY.

ANSWER: Peggy, if you've exhausted all your bag of tricks and made no impression on your father you might call on a family friend or a former school teacher to plead your cause with him and show him what a short-sighted policy he's pursuing. If this fails then you will have to give up hope of going to college the first semester. However, this is not the last call for the college dining hall.

It's possible that your father suspects you are hungering and thirsting after good time rather than after knowledge and only you can dispel this suspicion. Then get down to your books and give him such a demonstration of home work during the fall months that he won't be able to escape the conviction that he owes you a chance at college.

Generally speaking, men who have had poor educational advantages in youth feel their limitations all through life and they strain every nerve to give their sons and daughters what they have been denied. And so they should; for every parent owes it to his children to prepare them for life as best he can. The best preparation is education—for those that will take it.

Talk about the arrogance of college-bred men and women! Why it's not in a class with the arrogance of the narrowminded people who've made their pile without the benefit of degrees, and stand up to tell the world that culture is the bunk and colleges a spoiling ground for youths who would amount to something had they stayed away.

After all the proof of the pudding is in the eating; and business, big and little, is interested in the letters after a man's name and the man who has the letters is interested in marrying a girl who can share his thought life, his intellectual interests as well as his bed and board.

Grasshopper a River Bug

Goodnight Stories

By MAX TRELL

Have you ever gone sailing down a rain-river in a matchbox boat? That's what Hanid and Knarf, the shadows with the turned-about names, were doing. Shadows are luckier than children in some ways. They can make themselves any size they please. Just now they were as small as match sticks. So they fitted very nicely inside the boat.

"It's drowning, Knarf!"

It had rained quite hard. And now the rain-river was rushing along the edge of the road, down to the foot of the hill where the frog pond lay. The matchbox boat sailed along swiftly.

All at once Hanid, who was standing in the front of the boat near the mast (which was made of a twig with a leaf for a sail), shouted back to Knarf, who was steering: "Look out, Knarf! There's a grasshopper ahead of us! It's drowning, Knarf! It can't get out of the water. Oh, we must save it!"

Grasshopper Saved.

Knarf quickly threw out the anchor (it was just a bent pin tied to the end of a thread) and the boat stopped. Then Knarf got out a life preserver, made of a bit of cork tied to another piece of thread, and threw it to the drowning grasshopper. "Hold on- Hold on and we'll pull you in!" he shouted.

Fortunately, the grasshopper seized hold of the life preserver with one of its legs and the next minute it was safely inside the boat.

The grasshopper was quite pale with fright. "Thanks . . . thanks for saving my life," it said.

Meanwhile, Knarf pulled up the anchor and the boat continued sailing down the rain-river again. "Are you going very far?" the grasshopper asked.

"We're going to sail far, far away. We're going to see the world," Knarf explained.

"Do you know," said the grasshopper, "I've never seen the world, except just in little hops. Would you mind taking me along with you? I'll do anything you say. Please take me along."

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

Written by DEAN HALLIDAY

For Central Press Canadian

The group of bulbous iris include the Dutch, English and Spanish iris. This type of iris should be planted in September. They will begin to grow at once, and later will send up long, grass-like shoots. These shoots stay green over winter and as the ground freeze they should be protected with a loose mulch.

These iris get their name from the fact that they grow from bulbs similar to those of the daffodils, only, as shown in the Garden-Graph, the iris bulbs are a trifle smaller than those of the daffodils. The bulbs should be planted four inches deep and six to twelve inches apart.

The Dutch iris are the earliest to bloom. They are also easy to grow, needing only plenty of sun. The Spanish iris bloom about two weeks later than the Dutch and are a little smaller in size. They are easy to grow. They like a dry, sunny location. The English iris are the latest bloomers. They have large-size foliage and blooms, but require a moist, heavy soil plus sunshine.

Sod edges may be trimmed now and garden beds trued up for the last time this year. Also all your notes of garden changes for next year should be brought up to date before any more plants have disappeared for the season.

COMBAT RHEUMATISM

Rheumatism is often caused by uric acid in the blood. This blood impurity should be extracted by the kidneys. If kidneys fail, and excess uric acid remains, it irritates the muscles and joints causing excruciating pains. Plan to help prevent rheumatism by keeping your kidneys in good condition. A big demand for smart hostess gowns is reported. A charming gown is of sheer black velvet with high collar, high full, wrist-length sleeves and full trailing skirt. The bodice is richly embroidered in braid and metallic thread in green, gold, silver, red and blue.

No Magic in Medicine Today

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

In many of the inquiries I receive, as well as in discussions with people on the subject of sickness and health, I discern an attitude of mind which is a sort of belief in magic. I realize these people would be very much surprised at this and would probably resent it if it were announced to them bluntly, but at least there is a lack of understanding of the fundamental principles on which treatment in modern medicine is based.

The modern scientific physician judges the problem of a sick person, not by rule of thumb, not by empiricism, and not by applying some dogma set down in a textbook, but by applying the principles of anatomy, physiology, pathology and bacteriology.

I am going to try, in the articles during the next week or two, to give my readers this viewpoint and to state in simple language the fundamental conceptions of modern medicine. In following this, I believe that the reader will gain a far clearer conception of what he really wants to know from his doctor.

First, let us get a general philosophic view of man so far as his body is in relation to his universe. He is an animal differing only in inventiveness, mental resource and adaptability, from other animals.

How It Is Adapted.

The human organism is adapted to the use of the other products of the earth to furnish him energy through the functions of digestion, respiration, circulation and metabolism. It is adapted also to the reproduction of its own kind.

It is adapted as no other animal is, to long-range planning, to discovering the secrets of the universe, to turning them to its own uses, to living life by reason—in short, to what we call thinking.

On all of these levels the body is liable to get into trouble.

All over the world enemies lie in wait for it. These enemies unconsciously prey on it in the never-ending struggle for existence. Germs, parasites, poisons, heat, cold, fire, automobiles, poor and deficient food, are among the tangible forces that are arrayed against the smooth workings of that wonderful mechanism.

Furthermore, these wonderful processes wear down in the course of time. A hundred years from now there will scarcely be a score of the present inhabitants of the earth carrying on at all. Professor Pearl gives a hundred years as the upper limit of the span of human life. All will have ceased functioning through some inherent degeneration of the organs. In some, the hereditary nature of the material will have hastened this, so, quite unfairly but quite remorselessly, they will have been carried off long before the others.

Your New Job Depends On Your Appearance

By JULIET SHELBY

Our first impressions of persons or places are the ones we retain. This is sometime unfortunate, for some who may be judged at a moment when they feel they are not at their best. Busy women who do their own housework may not have the time in the early part of the day to think of makeup or clever hair-styling, but they can wear a neat house dress and a band of ribbon to secure the hair until there is the opportunity when it may be carefully dressed.

The young school girl or the girl who goes to business has no excuse for presenting herself in a disheveled or careless way. Even if one is tired and out late, the makeup should be removed, and when it does not disturb others, a warm bath is in order. Then the hair should be combed and brushed back into waves and curls and a net cap put on to keep it in place. We will always brush the teeth and use a mouthwash before going to bed, then a quick creaming of the face, neck and hands will give us a sense of cleanliness and relaxation, with the morning dressing and toilet arrangement made easy.

We can make a practice of the right thing and benefit by it and it will be sure to pay high dividends as we go on. This will be realized by the girl who begins to look for her first job. There will be no need for the special grooming frantically indulged for the first time. She will be able to think of the business in hand with a calm, poised manner, assured that she is as neat and attractive as one can be.

There are a few rules for the girl who enters the business office for the first time. They are as follows:

1. Before you present yourself, take a few days, if necessary, to perfect your appearance. If you need a permanent wave, have one and get your hair shaped to the contour of your head, short or long enough for the hairstyling you can best manage by yourself.

2. Do some special work on your hands and nails so they will not embarrass you and need only a few minutes care to keep in order. Avoid the dark or brilliant polishes. There are any number of the lovely inconspicuous shades, or the colorless polish that will give you more distinction in busines.

3. Do not put up with tired or aching feet. Have the kind of shoes you need for comfort. Extra high heels will not add to your smartness and may lead to foot misery. Bright sandals, so gay for your sports attire, should be put away for the next season.

4. An inconspicuous blouse and suit is correct, for the first interview. You can use your discretion about the gay blouses and kerchiefs after you are installed. A smart hat is important. It need not be an expensive model, but something becoming. Leave the heavy perfumes and brilliant makeup for the evening. Use a cologne or toilet water after your bath instead.

5. You should use powder and lipstick, and if the lashes are lighter than the hair, stroke them lightly with mascara, but keep it natural and subdued. If it has an artificial look, leave it off. The lipstick should be definite but natural. Never have pale lips. Don't be sirenish. Sirens went out with the dodos.

6. Be cheerful and let your nice smile show clean healthy teeth. Never smoke while waiting. Speak with assurance and you will stand a better chance of getting the job.

Luxurious Fur But at Low Cost

By ALICE ALDEN

This is the season for short fur coats, as bulky as they are luxurious in appearance. Somehow, every gal who likes to look smart and who goes places will contrive to drape a short fur coat around her dainty shoulders. And the fashion-wise woman knows that it does not have to be a luxury pelt, since there are smart furs that are decidedly in the budget class. Before she fares forth for furs she makes careful inquiries, and knows just what to look for. Gladys Parker, pint-sized beauty, one of America's greatest dress designers contributes to the happiness of womankind by designing this magnificent chubby of timber wolf. It is supple and silky, and is mounted on strips of chamois—a luxury coat at an incredibly low price. Miss Parker's dinner dress is her own creation, too.

NOTES IN THE DIARY OF A FASHION MODEL

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

Just when I despaired of ever hearing from Madame again, she came through. Yesterday Eileen and I were lounging at home when the telephone rang and it was a call from home. Madame came to the telephone and said that the store was so busy that she would like me to make arrangements to sail at once. She didn't cable because she wanted to be sure that she got me and that I would attend to my ticket at once.

She called very early in the morning, since the time here is five hours ahead. I received the call in time to dash over to the ticket office, and was fortunate enough to get a lovely cabin on a boat sailing at the end of the week. And just as I arrived back, I met Consuelo and found that she had been out all day and had booked passage on the same ship. Well, you can just imagine how happy we were to find that we would be having a nice transatlantic trip together! We will both be as busy as bees until sailing time, as there is so much to do.

Madame was nice enough to say that the imports were never lovelier, and that she felt justified in having sent me to assist Eileen. She wants me to contact a manufacturer of leather suits before I leave, and to make arrangements for representation. Eileen knows a man who designs lovely things and who has recently started to manufacture. It looks like a likely tie-up. His things are really beautiful. I have never seen suede dyed in more exquisite colors. There are some grand country suits, combinations of suede and tweed, that I could use.

Buying New Suit.

There is one suit that I am buying for myself, for I simply can't resist it. It is of violet and violet-blue cross-barred tweed, with a detachable waskit of deep lavender suede. The suit itself will be ideal for town wear and when I go out of town the suit, plus the suede sleeveless waistcoat, will be marvelous. I have just cabled Madame about this manufacturer, for I feel sure that if a shop can charm money out of me when I'm almost broke, then what about our wealthy customers! I'm sure that Madame will tell me to go ahead and make arrangements.

Purple and gray krimmer coat.

Here's another grand purple coat, this one combined with gray krimmer. It is very new and smart. Seaming from a slanting yoke to the hem gives a slight flare to the skirt. The sleeves are of krimmer to the dropping shoulder line. The little hat, which terminates in the twisted and buttoned collar, can be dropped to form a hood in back. The set-in belt ties in front.

Date Cheese Jumbles Tasty

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

Undoubtedly you have stuffed dates with cheese ever since you were "knee-high" to a kitchen table. Now try stuffing cheese with dates to make a little cookie that's called a "jumble". Date cheese jumbles are made with one-half cup each shortening, sugar and cottage cheese, one and one-half cups sifted flour, one-half teaspoon salt, two teaspoons baking powder and 24 pitted dates. Cream shortening, sugar and cheese together until smooth and fluffy. If cheese is dry, moisten with a little milk. Sift flour with salt and baking powder and add gradually to creamed mixture. Shape into a roll and chill in refrigerator. Cut in thin slices. Press each date between finger tips or with a spatula until flattened, place on one cooky round, cover with another round and press edges firmly together. Sprinkle tops with sugar. Bake in moderately-hot oven (400 F.) 10 minutes or until delicately browned. This recipe makes two dozen small cookies.

Frosted Gingerbread.

Frosted gingerbread is one of the nicest desserts in our extensive repertoire. Use one package of gingerbread based on the Washington family receipt. Add one cup of water to the mix and bake in loaf pan in 350 F. oven. When cool, top with coffee caramel frosting and cut into squares. To make frosting, take one-half cup each brown sugar and white sugar, one egg white, one-quarter cup freshly brewed coffee, cooled; one-half teaspoon vanilla and salt to taste. Put sugars, coffee and unbeaten egg white in top of double boiler over gently-boiling water; beat constantly with rotary beater until frosting is fluffy and stands in peaks. Remove from the water at once, add vanilla and salt and beat with spoon until cool enough to spread.

Honey date bars are versatile. They are nice served as cake, rolled in sugar or served as a pudding, or as just a sweet mouthful. Two eggs, three-quarters cup honey, one-half cup each all-bran and flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one-quarter teaspoon salt, two cups chopped dates and one-half cup chopped nut meats will make 20 bars (eight by eight-inch pan). Beat eggs well, add honey and bran. Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Add to first mixture with remaining ingredients, and mix well. Spread batter one-half inch thick in shallow, greased baking pan. Bake in moderate oven (375 F.) about 30 minutes. While warm, cut into bars or squares. Roll each piece in sugar or serve as pudding with whipped cream.

Try this cucumber sauce on your mixed vegetable salad and also with cold meat or fish. Serve cucumbers in sour cream, too, as they are now at the peak of their goodness.

Cucumber Sauce — One-half cup cream, one cucumber, chopped and drained, salt, two tablespoons vinegar. Chill ingredients thoroughly, whip cream until stiff, fold in salt to taste, vinegar and chopped cucumber.

Seen on Fifth Avenue

It isn't going to be easy to pick out your first real autumn hat or to be able to withstand buying but one model. If you like the tricorne you'll find plenty of lovely models, including many with lace veils draped Venetian fashion—that is to say, below the chin and up on either side to the tricorne points. If you like velvet in lovely colors, then you will want a copy of a toque by Agnes, fashioned of knotted velvet. It is very shallow, the crown a mere cap that sits on top of the head. It is done in ribbon shaded in various tones of blue. A similar model is done in shades of purple or in shades of coral. It sits very much to one side, dipping over the right eye. Most of the new models have a very forward tilt. And if only for the fun of it, get one of these diminutive postage stamp models.

RHEUMATIC PAINS
Take
"Salts of the Earth"

Why do well-known specialists send Rheumatic sufferers to take the costly treatment at famous Spas? It is because Spa waters contain mineral salts with relief-giving properties for such painful ailments.

In Fynnon Salt you get similar benefits of these valuable "Salts of the Earth" containing the elements of Sodium, Potassium, Lithium, and other ingredients with high remedial value. Fynnon Salt attacks Uric Acid (usually the cause of rheumatic pains, sciatica, lumbago, etc.). It helps dissolve the acid crystals and gently aids in removing them from the system. Get rid of the acid and the crystals cannot form. In case after case of Rheumatic trouble in the hands, elbows, knees, ankles, back and shoulders, Fynnon Salt has helped others. If you are a Rheumatic sufferer try Fynnon Salt—"Salts of the Earth". Take a $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoonful in a glassful of water every morning. Fynnon Salt costs only 75c at your druggist's for a bottle good for from 5 to 10 weeks' treatment. — 38R

The Parent Problem

A Day in Rural Schools

Having begun to teach in a one-room rural school where I taught for three years, I am always eager to visit rural schools of today. Let me tell you of some things I saw in Warren County, New Jersey.

Arriving about 11:30 a.m. at Franklin Grove school, a one-room school near Blairston, with Miss Anne S. Hoppock, a "helping teacher", we found Miss Julia Weber, the teacher, outside the school with the thirty children grades one to eight inclusive. They were rehearsing for Play Day, the last day of school, when the parents come with their lunches and stay all day and the children entertain them.

By and by, on the signal of one of the children, all of them assembled in the schoolroom, and under the child-leader proceeded with devotions and flag-salute. With the teacher, we looked on. When the leader dismissed them, they went out leisurely in groups on the grass and ate lunch. Though they talked freely, there was general quiet for twenty minutes.

Children Prepare Lunches.

We learned that during winter days they have hot lunches prepared by the children themselves under their own leadership, the children taking responsibility for preparing the meal, serving it, and tidying up everything, under the teacher's guidance. Grace is said before they eat. At each table is a hostess: good manners are learned. Fine if city schools would emulate this practice, instead of the usual bedlam at lunch time. During the year, Miss Weber has all the children in small groups, take a meal with her at her home. On Saturdays she takes them places, fishing, swimming, exploring. Regularly she takes the boys to Scout meetings ten miles away. Once a week, all year, she stays in the community, usually invited to some home, and leads a community recreation evening for those of high school age and older.

She studies each child and knows his home in which she is made a welcome guest. They eagerly invite her. She let me read samples from her diary in which she writes each day about all they do at school and in the community, and about her problems with the children and how she met them — a great treasure book.

This young woman, with an M.A. degree from Columbia university, does all these things because she loves to do them and loves the children. And how they and their parents adore her! And all this for $100 a month, though she has been offered more than twice as much to go elsewhere. Beaming with enthusiasm, but with perfect poise, this smiling little lady told me she is sure that no graded school could afford the opportunities for these children they can have in this one-room school. She believes it. Maybe she is right. If all teachers were like her there would be little argument for consolidation.

Major Loops Finish Schedules In as Wacky a Season as Game Has Worked Through

Feller Fans 18 For Record Yet Loses Game By 4-1

MANY SORE ARMS

A Number of Pilots Get Gate While Wilson of Phillies Resigns

(By Sid Feder, Associated Press Sports Writer).

The baseball world took a deep breath today and wondered just a little how come it still retained some semblance of sanity at the windup of as wacky a season as the game ever has worked its way through.

There was still the problem of getting the world series out of the way, but that was up to New York Yankees and Cubs, who begin the classic in Chicago Wednesday. The rest of the fellows finished their work yesterday, and, saved for the finale the silliest situation of all-master Bobby Feller of Cleveland fanning 18 batsmen in one game for a new major league record, and losing the game anyway.

Of course, there was no question of sanity involved when it came the magnates' turn to count the profits. You can't laugh off more than 10,000,000 paid attendance for a season, no matter how you try. That's a new all-time high for one campaign, and shows just what a tight season can do to arouse fan interest.

Reds Surprise of Year

Surprise of the year were Cincinnati Reds under Will McKechnie. He took the 1937 cellar occupants to fourth place. They even put on a fancy finale yesterday by trouncing the Pirates 5-4, while St. Louis Cardinals, in sixth place, whipped the Cubs 7-5. The Cincinnati pitcher in the windup was Johnny Vander Meer, who turned in the greatest hurling job of the year with two straight no-hit, no-run games.

In the American League, Detroit Tigers wound up under Del Baker, after a surprising dismissal for Mickey Cochrane in mid-season. They ended the campaign on the up-beat, taking the Indians twice 4-1 and 10-8. It was in the opening game that Feller fanned his 18 for a new all-time high. Hank Greenberg went through the afternoon without a homer and thus failed in his chase after Babe Ruth's 60-for-a-season record. Greenberg was stopped at 58.

Epidemic of Sore Arms

Perhaps the outstanding development of the year was the epidemic of sore arms that struck the long-time star pitchers. Dizzy Dean, after costing the Cubs $185,000 a record price for a pitcher—hurled only 75 innings. Carl Hubbell and Lefty Grove, certainly the two greatest left-handers of this generation, were stricken Hubbell forced to undergo surgery and Grove shunted to the sidelines with a mystifying "dead arm." Paul Dean and Schoolboy Rowe were returned to the minors. Van Lingle Mungo wasn't any more use to Brooklyn than their doubleheader win over the Phillies yesterday, 7-3 and 7-2. Despite that success, they finished in seventh place.

Two other managers, beside Grimm and Cochrane, "got the bounce" during the season. Gabby Street was let out by St. Louis Browns, although, with the help of Buck Newsom, one of the year's four 20-game pitching winners pulled the Brownies out of the cellar. The Cards and Frankie Frisch came to the parting of the way. Another was added to the ranks of unemployed when Jimmy Wilson, wily pilot of the Phillies, resigned over the final week-end.

Foxx Wins Crown

By way of adding a few parting shots: Jimmy Foxx came back, sinus and all, to win the American League batting championship; Ernie Lombardi did it in the National....Lou Genrig and Paul Waner finished up under .300 for the first time in their careers.... Casey Stengel, jinxed all the way, did a neat job of master-minding the Bees into fifth place in the National....They lost their finals 3-2 to the Giants yesterday....With Vince DiMaggio's 32nd homer gave the Yanks a 6-1 windup win over the Red Sox....A's and Senators split the finish—Washington 5-2 in the opener; Philadelphia 4-2 in the afterpiece....Browns did the same with the White Sox: Buck Newsom clicking 4-2 in the first; the White Sox 3-0 in the second.

EDMONTON TEAM SCORES FIRST WIN

University of Alberta Taken Into Camp By 35-0 Count

Winnipeg, Oct. 3 (CP)—Alberta's entries in the Western Interprovincial Union featured a five-game football program in the West Saturday with two of the season's highest scoring displays.

Bob Fritz' Edmonton Eskimos scored their first victory of the year with a smashing 35-0 win over University of Alberta Bears in an intracity exhibition while Carl Cronin's Calgary Bronks were equally as impressive in walloping North Dakota State Teachers' College 38-0.

University of British Columbia, Thunderbirds won their second straight Vancouver Big Four football league game, defeating Vancouver Meralomas 18-0. Regina's Western Canada junior champion Dales journeyed to Saskatoon to vanquish University of Saskatchewan senior Huskies 13-5 and Winnipeg Blue Bombers scored a 16-6 triumph over North Dakota State University behind Wayne Sheley's brilliant passing.

Harold Sutton led the Edmonton scoring parade with two touchdowns and a convert from placement. Bob Fritz crossed the last line twice and Eddie O'Brien and Ernie Stevens once each.

Native of Calgary, Jimmy Gilkes led the touchdown parade against North Dakota Teachers with two major scores. Paul Rowe, Johnny Mike Sullivan, Buzz Buzzard and Chet Hagen scored a touchdown each. Only two major scores were converted.

Blue Bombers made little headway against North Dakota State in the first half of the game here and Greg Kabats field goal was the only score. Sheley's passes to end Bud Marquardt set up touchdown plunges by Eddie James and Russ Rebholz in the second half. Kabat converted James' score.

BRITISH WOMEN GOLFERS WINNERS

Defeated Canada In Five of Seven Matches Played

(By Ross Munro Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

Ottawa, Oct. 3 (CP)—Five members of the victorious British golf team which defeated Canada five points to two in the International match teed off here today with 89 other competitors in the 18-hole qualifying round for the Canadian Women's Open Golf Title.

The field of 94 will be trimmed to 32 by the end of the day and match play will start tomorrow winding up with the finals on Saturday.

Clarrie Tiernan a chubby Irish girl from Dublin whose sparkling golf contributed to the British win Saturday, is on the experts' list of favorites to win the open championship now held by Mrs. John Rogers of Winnipeg.

A little Scottish girl from Perth, Jessie Anderson, is also seen as a title threat due to her superb game in the singles of the International match when she toppled the highly-rated Ada Mackenzie of Toronto 4 and 3.

The British won the two foursomes in the International match as well as three of the five singles.

HANK GREENBERG

"Hammerin' Hank", who failed to hit a home run in his last three major league games this year and finished two circuit blows below Babe Ruth's record with a total of 58 four base blows to lead both major leagues in home run hitting for the season of 1938. Ruth's total of 60 home runs in one season still remains tops in that department, but Greenberg's attempt this year is the closest ever reached in the attempt to establish a new home run hitting record, aside from Foxx's effort.

SARNIA IMPERIALS STILL "TOPS" IN ONTARIO UNION

Easily Defeat Tigers of Hamilton By 19-1 Count

VARSITY WINS

Beaches Downed 10-6 For City Championship of Toronto

(By Sydney Gruson, Canadian Press Staff Writer).

Though performances in the east's exhibition football circuit are not to be taken too seriously, with players lacking condition and coaches experimenting, they provide the only basis for speculation on the regular schedules.

And with official opening of the section's season less than a week off, speculation is rife on the changes for an overthrow of Queen's in the Intercollegiate Union and Toronto Argonauts in the Interprovincial. Sarnia Imperials still are the "tops" in the senior Ontario, however. These three were crowned champions last year.

Saturday's results in the final pre-season exhibitions left the impression Queen's perhaps are the weakest in the college group. The collegiate champions took a 15-1 pasting from Ottawa Rough Riders of the Big Four while University of Toronto achieved an impressive 10-6 over Balmy Beach of the O.R.F.U. to retain the Toronto city championship.

Continuing their warmup work against intermediate opposition, University of Western Ontario Mustangs defeated Dundas Bombers 15-5 and McGill University romped over Royal Military College cadets 36-5. The college circuit was the only one with all teams in action.

Imperials Going Strong

Imperials, prepping for a try at an eighth successive O.R.F.U. championship, scored their second straight victory over Big Four opposition by licking Hamilton Tigers 19-1 at Hamilton. With Hugh (Bummer) Stirling showing the way, Imperials got going late in the second quarter after Tigers held them to a single point in the first. Stirling passed to Mike Hedgewick for one touchdown and to Bernie Moroz for the second.

The rebuilt Tigers showed no offence that could gain with any consistency against the heavier and better-drilled Imperials. Their lone single came in the second quarter.

University of Toronto Blues surprised a crowd of 13,000 with their hard-fought victory over Beaches, who only a week before had downed Argonauts, the national champions, in the first game of the series. A second-quarter attack featuring Cam Gray's touchdown pass and placement field goal scored all the points.

Though Beaches subdued the hard-charging collegians in the second half they crossed their line only when Murray Scott dropped a ball on his three-yard line and Sammy Sward plunged over.

Queen's Easily Beaten

Queen's, shutout 5-0 in their first game last week, had little chance against the Rough Riders. The Ottawans led 10-0 at half-time on a single, Tony Herman's placement and Dave Sprague's touchdown and Arnie Morrison got another major in the third quarter.

McGill's play against the Cadets confirmed the impression they left on observers after beating Montreal Cubs last Saturday. Gaining almost at will on the ground, the Redmen rolled seven touchdowns over the R.M.C. line with big Bob Keefer, outstanding on the backfield, scoring two.

Forward passed led to all three Mustang touchdowns against Dundas. Lyn Thompson passed to Clem Faust for two and Faust tossed the other to Brian Casey late in the second quarter, when the Bombers tightened their pass defence they held the collegians even.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz, Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, Oct. 3 (AP)—Wait and see if it isn't Gomez and Ruffing and good knows who in third.... Cubs' pitchers are all tired out or their chances would be better....At that you can get odds here the Bruins carry the Yanks to six games. That is if you spot a few points.

Prof. Crisler did all right for himself out at Michigan....And Toss McLaughry of Brown can step up for a bow....His team beating Harvard was not entirely unexpected, but it was a feat, nevertheless.

Major Biff Jones' stand against Minnesota showed one and all they had better keep the storm warnings up....Clemson, after a great start, folded against big time opposition.

Suppose you've already noted that the Pirates eliminated the Reds from the National League race, and then the Reds turned around and eliminated the Pirates —which we call pouring it on .... The Pittsburgh pitcher in both instances was Red Lucas, an old Red ....This is baseball for you: Bob Feller fans 8 Detroiters to win the Major League strikeout record, but loses the ball game....They may be looking at the next heavyweight champion of the world when they watch Gunnar Barlung against Lou Nova tonight.

Rangers and Tuxis Conduct Initiation

Friday night last was a big night for the boys' groups of Bridge Street United Church. The Live Wires Trail Rangers conducted the initiation ceremony for four new members, Allan Gregory, Jack Diamond, Gordon Ling and Bill McIntyre. Officers in charge of the initiation were, Stanley Kellett, Chief Ranger; Norman Mills, Sub-Chief; Gerald Hyde, Tally; Armstrong Boyle, Cache; Jack Marsh, Sponsor; Donald Moore and Myles Morton, Trail Ranger Guides. After the ceremony group games were enjoyed under the leadership of Ross Clare.

The recently organized Tuxis Group were initiated at eight o'clock. The new members of this group are, Frank Foley, John Locke, Douglas Lattimer, Raymond Hall, John Randle, Herbert Correll, Fred Smith and Vance Colling. The initiation ceremony was conducted by Mr. C. W. Burr, Pretor; Mr. Ross Clare, Sponsor and Deputy; Mr. J. E. Dixon, Scriptor and Mr. C. R. Rowe, Comptor, Mr. D. W. Moore, Mentor.

At the conclusion of the ceremony Frank Foley, Pretor of the new group thanked the officers for assisting in the organization. Mr. Burr, Mr. Clare, Mr. Rowe and Mr. Dixon made short addresses in which they wished the new group every success. John Locke acted as cheer leader and gave three cheers and a tiger for their Mentor, Mr. Moore.

Mr. D. W. Moore will act as Mentor of both the Trail Rangers and Tuxis with the able assistance of Murray Clare and Ross Clare.

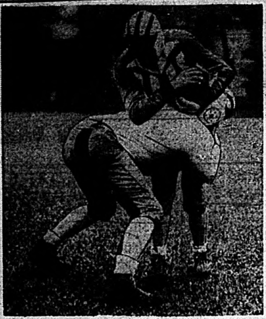
After the meeting the Tuxis boys were guests of their Mentor at Dickens' tea rooms where refreshments were enjoyed by all.

FACTS ABOUT FOOTBALL

When Tackling, Judge Runner's Speed; Use Shoulder and Side of Head

Keep Eyes Up and Strike Between Knees and Hips.

By Lew Hayman



THE TACKLE

This one is made from an angle, as are most tackles except in plays through the line. The tackler has hit the ball carrier between the knees and hip sand his drive, or follow through, has moved him up higher. His feet are wide apart, head and eyes up.

Tackling is to the defence what blocking is to the offence. A team that tackles quickly and effectively is mighty tough to defeat.

There are basically two types of tackles, (a) the front tackle, used mainly in stopping plungers hitting into the line of scrimmage, and (b) the angle tackle, used in the open field and on wide line smashes. Both these types are executed in fundamentally the same manner except for the position of the tackler, which, as the names of the tackles imply, is in front of the ball-carrier or at an angle to him.

Good ball-carriers will not run into a tackler's arms or wait to be tackled; hence most of your tackles will be from the side, or angle tackles. In executing this tackle the first thought should be to obtain a good position. NEVER RUN DIRECTLY AT THE BALL-CARRIER. Calculate his speed and go for a point ahead of him so that you both meet at the imaginary point at the same time. Be careful not to underpstimate the runner's speed. If you are near the side lines keep your opponent between you and the line, cutting down the angle so as to either tackle him or run him out of touch.

Don't leave your feet too soon or you will fall flat on your face, not the most pleasant way to spend your time on the field. Run into the ball-carrier, giving him a bit of a lead, for remember he too is in motion and probably going pretty fast.

As you are about to hit the ball-carrier, keep your eyes up, duck under the straight arm with your head, and aim to hit him midway between the knees and the hips with your inside shoulder. Get you head and outside shoulder in front of the runner's body, and with the inside shoulder, head and side of neck DRIVE for power and a hard-hitting effort at the same time. The arms are thrown around the opponent's legs, squeezing the knees inwardly.

By keeping your body in front of the runner you have more chance of bringing him down and the chance of injury is reduced as you roll with the tackle.

Today's picture shows how the tackler's body is well across the front of the ball-carrier's body, feet wide apart, for drive, with the shoulder, neck and side of head making the contact just above the knees, going up and down through the opponent. Head and eyes are up making certain of the timing, leading and point of contact. In the picture, of course, the tackler's body has moved up in the follow through from the original point of contact.

Practice Indispensable

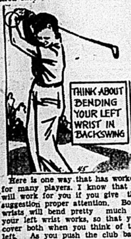
Tackling must be practised at least three times a week. The feel, the rhythm and the timing will come only with lots of work. A team that masters the art of tackling takes the fight and ginger out of the offence. It discourages and slows down the attack.

The more a ball-carrier is tackled and the harder he is hit the less effective he will be in carrying out his assignments. A good tackling team gives spirit, spark and dash to all its members.

Tackling is the most important fundamental of the defence. Tackling IS defence.

Wrist Action

Wrist action must be produced at the end of the backswing. Most players know this and they all try to do it but few are successful. There are countless reasons for the great amount of failures and any number of ways of gaining the desired end.



THINK ABOUT BENDING YOUR LEFT WRIST IN BACKSWING

Here is one way that has worked for many players. I know that it will work for you if you give the suggestion proper attention. Both wrists will bend pretty much as your left wrist works, so that you cover both when you think of the left. As you push the club back with your left hand, think about bending the left wrist at the end of the backward motion.

During your first attempts it will not do to pay too much attention as to how this wrist is bent, but after you make sure that you are bending it then you can work on the idea of bending it properly. It should bend as near as possible to the line of your left arm and not forward toward the ball. As you start the club away from the ball you can begin to talk to yourself about bending the left wrist, and keep talking about it until you feel yourself actually bending it.

The main job is to make sure that you bend it, not to accept any questionable performance. If necessary, talk around about the wrist until there remains no doubt about it.

HE'S BACK AGAIN

When eastern Canada's college teams go into action come Oct. 8, the linemen of Queens, Western and McGill will have one of last year's problems still on their hands—how to stop Don Mulford, ABOVE, plunging back with University of Toronto, and rated one of the country's best ground gainers last year.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

Ken J. Colling

Baseball's classic—the world series—looms on the horizon and will be the chief topic of discussion from now until the two contesting clubs—the New York Yankees and the Chicago Cubs—clash Wednesday. The inability of the Pittsburg Pirates to stand up under pressure let the Cubs in under the wire and after reviewing the season's schedule no doubt the better club eventually won, although Gabby Hartnett's hurling staff is what might be termed as quite wobbly today, due to sore arms, etc. As the two clubs take two days' rest before the big series gets under way, that relief of tension will be most acceptable for the tired and nervous Cubs after a last-minute drive to the pennant.

Back in 1932 the Yankees humbled the Cubs in the fall classic and unless we miss our guess history will repeat itself in 1938. Of course the Cubs are hot following their dash under the National League wire during which they won 19 out of their last 23 games and may continue in their winning ways. It must be remembered that the Yankees have been losing games with regularity of late, but no doubt Manager Joe McCarthy is saving all of his reserve energy for the big series.

Connie Mack, veteran manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, comes out and openly says the 1938 edition of the New York Yankees is the greatest baseball club of all time. The veteran Mister Mack has played in the National League and managed in the American League and is recognized as one of the game's better authorities. When a man the type of Connie Mack goes out on the limb to call the current edition of the Yankees the greatest ball club ever in existence he is taking in a lot of territory, but he cites McCarthys infield of Gehrig, Gordon, Crosetti and Rolfe as tops, making no particular mention of the Highlanders power in the outer garden or their hurling staff which seems to be quite staple.

The Yankees hung up their third consecutive American League pennant this year with little opposition. The winning of three consecutive major league pennants is considered a remarkable feat in the realm of big league baseball— the late John McGraw being the only manager ever to win four pennants in succession with his New York Giants. The Yankees have the distinction of having won the American League three times in a row on three separate occasions, but today they are faced with the problem of doing something no other major league ever accomplished — the winning of three world's championships in succession. Various clubs have won two world series in succession but no club ever won that third one. It seems to be a jinx—will history repeat itself?

Invariably there seems to be a 'goat and a hero' to every world's series. What the Yankees are facing is the psychology of no club ever winning three world's series in succession, so will the time honored "goat" be with the Yankees and the much-referred to "hero" be a Chicago rookie or vice versa is the paramount question confronting all baseball fans today.

Cites 1919 White Sox as Greatest

John C. Hoffman of the Chicago Daily Times arises to differ with Joe McCarthy and Connie Mack in their contention that the 1938 New York Yankees are the greatest club in the history of the game and advances the Chicago White Sox of 1919 in rebuttal.

"The other day, in St. Louis McCarthy raised the cup that was flowing in celebration of a third successive title for the Yankees and thundered, "Boys, this is the greatest ball club I ever managed. I might say this is the greatest club in history of baseball'," notes Hoffman. "Only a few days before, a 75-year-old gentleman named Cornelius McGillicudy had said: "I've been in the major leagues since 1886 and there never has been anything like these Yankees.'

"But wait. White Sox fans who are not really so old like to call their 1919 club the best that ever stepped on a diamond. You can't—and never will—convince them to the contrary. In the order of their efficiency, we should like to list these clubs: (1) The White Sox of 1919, (2) the Yankees of 1927, and (3) the Yankees of 1938. Morally, of course, the White Sox team of 1919 would have to be, with the exception of a minority, tossed into the junk heap. But for the efficacy of its workmanship, it had everything.

"These things may be open to dispute, but the Yankees of today have no second baseman like Eddie Collins. Joe Jackson still is recognized as the greatest natural hitter in the game's history. We have seen DiMaggio try to field low drives to centre and we have seen him throw, but he is no Happy Felsch in either department. At his best, you would take Gehrig over Gandil, but not this year, and after all, they're talking about this year. Crosetti certainly is no Risberg, and it would be hard to find a smarter, more alert catcher than was Ray Schalk".

PICTURES FOR THE PAPERS IN THE MAKING

Photographers, like reporters and the local gossip, have their noses . . . and camera lenses . . . into everything. They work singly, in pairs, and in batteries, and when something big is going on the scene is inundated with them. The crucial baseball series in Chicago, on which the National League lead depended, was considered something big, and here is a group of demon camermen clustered around third base for action pictures . . . which they are getting. Bill Jurges, Chicago Cubs' shortstop, is put out as he slides into the base. Lee Handley, Pirate third-sacker makes the putout, and the photographers get their picture.

Lady for Shanghai

CHAPTER I

OFF TO THE EAST

"Just think of my feelings, mother, instead of fussing about Christine losing her holiday," Fay cried angrily. "What's it going to be like for me, to have my sister running about the ship in a cap and apron, emptying slops and that sort of thing? It's going to give me a fine start in Shanghai, isn't it? And after all the trouble I've taken not to let anyone at the Bold Street salon know that my sister is a stewardess."

Mrs. Lind looked up from the letter which Christine had just handed to her across the breakfast table, the letter from the Tor Line office, telling Christine that she was transferred to the Hay Tor, sailing for China in a few days' time. Christine' own ship, the Brent Tor, was not due to sail for a month, but one of the stewardesses from the Hay Tor had been rushed into hospital for an operation.

"You've no right to speak like that, Fay," Mrs. Lind, said, for once speaking sharply to her younger daughter. "If Christine hadn't gone to sea, where would you be? It's her money that's kept the home together since I had to give up, as you know, and it's because I went to sea, and Christine after me, that you've had a good education and an expensive training in beauty culture. You've no reason to be scornful about stewardesses, Fay, for you wouldn't be going to this fine post, in Shanghai, if Christine and I had been too proud to empty slops —thought that's not all we do on board."

"But it'll be too awful to have Christine on the Hay Tor, when I'm going to be a passenger on the same ship," Fay said sulkily. "I can't cancel my passage at such short notice, but why can't Christine refuse to be transferred."

"On what grounds, Fay?" Christine asked. "They can't get hold of anyone else on such short notice as this, for the crew has to sign on this afternoon. I'm the only stewardess from the Brent Tor who lives in Liverpool, and there's no other Tor liner in port."

"You can say you must have a holiday—you've only been at home a week. Get a certificate from the doctor saying you need a rest."

"Christine can't play a trick like that on the Company," Mrs. Lind insisted. "Although this transfer's hard on her, it's what you have to face when you're at sea. And Christine's all the more bound to do what they ask, because the Company's been so good to us, allowing her to take my place when I couldn't sail again, though she was years below the right age."

"I wish I could cancel my passage," Fay said, almost in tears. "It's going to spoil everything—and I was so thrilled at getting this Shanghai post, even though I did get it because none of the others was keen to go out there."

Christine, looking at her sister's flushed, charming little face, suddenly knew that she couldn't bear to let Fay be unhappy for a moment longer. She had been deeply hurt by Fay's attitude, though she had known for a long time that Fay was ashamed of the way in which she earned a living for the three of them, but she couldn't hold out for long, when Fay's blue eyes were dim with tears.

"There's nothing for you to worry about, Fay," she said with a smile, "for there's no earthly reason why anyone on board should know that we are sisters. Why, we haven't even got the same surname, thanks to being half-sisters and not whole ones."

"Do you mean that we could keep it a secret?" Fay asked eagerly.

"Unless we're very unlucky, Fay. I'm not going to tell the world that we're related, and I'm sure you're not —there may be someone on board who knows us both, but it's unlikely that it's hardly worth considering."

"And you'll agree to say nothing?"

"I certainly will, Fay. Odd though it may seem to you, my dear, it wouldn't add to my own popularity on board to have a sister amongst the passengers—the staff doesn't think so highly of passengers as all that. And of course I do realise that it would make things difficult for you."

"I must be off," Fay said, glancing at the clock. "It's my last day at Jon's, thank goodness, for how I'm going to cram all my shopping into three days—. You'll come and help me choose hats tomorrow, won't you, Christine?"

"Unless you're afraid that someone from the Hay Tor may see us together,' 'Christine said drily, but Fay wasn't listening to her. Now that Christine had promised that they should be strangers on board, Fay wasn't worrying on that subject any more.

Fay rushed off, and Mrs. Lind, crippled by rheumatics, hobbled into the kitchen to speak to the daily woman, who had just arrived, and who must be sent off at once to the laundry, to make sure that Christine's clean uniform would all be back by Thursday night—three blue print dresses and a blue alpaca afternoon dress for cool climates, six white dresses for the tropics, twenty-four aprons, dozens of collars and belts and caps. Christine's sea outfit wasn't very interesting, but it was very large, since she had to allow for the slowness of an overworked ship's laundry.

Christine began to make out a list of the small things which she must buy before she sailed. On the Tor liners, which carried first-class passengers only, and not more than two hundred even when the ship was full, the barber's shop was the only one on board, and pricese there were high. Like most of her fellows, Christine always laid in a stock of the innumerable small necessities which she needed for the long voyage to China and back.

"Stockings, toothpaste, talcum powder, collar studs, tape," she wrote, and then paused, for her, thoughts had drifted to Fay, that selfish irresponsible young sister of hers, who hurt her so often and was always forgiven.

It had been so fatally easy to spoil Fay, and Christine was as much to blame as her mother. George Lind had deserted his wife when Fay was only six months old, and Mrs. Lind had gone straight back to sea, because it was the only way she knew of earning a living —she had gone to sea first after the death of Christine's father, Robert Jordan, who had been a captain on the Tor Line, and her marriage to George Lind had been so brief an interlude that she continued to be known as "Mrs. Jordan" on board ship.

Christine, five years older than Fay, had mothered her little sister even in those early days, when the two little girls were boarded out with an elderly ex-stewardess during the long months when their mother was away at sea. She had never dreamt of being jealous because Mrs. Lind openly adored the exquisite, fair-haired baby whom she saw so seldom, and could never mar the happiness of their time together by scolding Fay for anything.

FAY COMES FIRST

It was Christine herself who urged her mother to let her leave school at the earliest possible moment, and to work in a big store, so that there might be more money for Fay's education. And then, just when it had been arranged that Fay was to start an expensive training in a beauty salon in Bold Street, Mrs. Lind was attacked by an incurable form of rheumatism, and was told by the doctor that she could never go to sea again.

When the Company offered to allow Christine to take her mother's place, she jumped at the chance. Her wage at the store was low, but at sea, if she saved all her tips, she could earn enough to pay for Fay's training. The "allotment money," which the Company deducted from her wages and paid to her mother while she was away, covered the expenses of the tiny flat.

Now, at nineteen, Fay was independent at last, and had secured a splendid post in Shanghai—splendid if you ignored the unsettled conditions, as youth is ready always to do. She no longer needed Christine and her mother— and Christine knew, in her heart, that they had done too much for Fay, made too many sacrifices, so that Fay took their devotion for granted and considered their mode of life degrading.

"Mrs. Price has gone to the laundry," Mrs. Lind said, coming back into the sitting room. "It's going to be a terrible rush, Christine, to get everything ready in three days, with Fay's things to see to as well."

"My things won't be much trouble—it's not as though I need anything new this trip. I can pack the things straight into my trunk when they come from the laundry."

"I wish you weren't going so soon, Christine, though I'm glad, in a way, that you'll be with Fay, even though you con't see much of her."

"I shall see hardly anything of her, I expect. She won't even be in my section, for I'm sure to get the top deck, as I'm the junior, and Fay's got one of the little rooms on the lower passenger deck."

"But she'll turn to you if she's in any trouble, Christine. She's — She's not so hard as she sounds, and she thinks the world of you still, just as she did when she was a little thing."

"Fay won't get into any trouble, mother," Christine said lightly.

"I've been a stewardess myself, Christine—don't forget that," Mrs. Lind reminded her, with a grim little smile. "I trust Fay, but I know just how many sorts of trouble are waiting for a very pretty girl, on the China run—and I'm glad you're going to be within reach."

"I'm rather glad myself," Christine admitted. "I suppose we're both so used to making a baby of Fay that we don't realise she's grown up—we're like two old hens with one chick."

"And we're going to lose our chick, which makes her all the dearer," Mrs. Lin dsaid, picking up the jumper which she wa sfinishing off for Fay, and beginning to knit busily, as if she did not want Christine to notice how deeply moved she was.

It was going to be terribly lonely for Mrs. Lind with Fay in China and Christine at sea, but she had made no protect at all when Fay applied for the Shanghai post, without even consulting her. Even to Christine she had only said how glad she was that Fay should have such a chance, at the very outset of her career, and she had never hinted that Fay ought to stay in England with her crippled mother.

"Who's Chief Steward on the Hay Tor—do you happen to know?" she asked casually.

"Mr. Perrin, I believe."

The knitting fell into Mrs. Lind's lap, and she gazed at Christine in dismay.

"Perrin!" she exclaimed. "Oh, Christine. I do hope you're wrong. I sailed with Perrin once —in the Torquay that was, on the Jamaica run—and I was glad enough to be transferred at the end of the trip, for I never had such a miserable trip in all my years at sea."

"Why—what's the matter with Perrin?"

"He's one of the worst bullies on the line, Christine—spends all his time looking for a speck of dust, and bellows the ship down when he finds one."

"I've always managed to satisfy Mr. Robins, and no one can say that the Brent Tore isn't a clean ship."

"Robins treats his staff properly, and they work well for him, and he always has a clean ship, but Perrin has different methods. Oh, Christine, I'm afraid you're going to have a bad time. You've been so lucky on the Brent Tor, with that nice Mr. Robins, and with Mrs. Trimble and Miss Scott so ready to help you because of being old shipmates of mine. You don't know—yet—what a ship can be like with a bullying Chief Steward, and with half the men trying to keep on the right side of him, and the rest up against him all the time. You don't know—"

"For goodness sake, Mother," Christine laughed. "don't be such a Job's comforter. You know I hate leaving the Brent Tor, where I'm friendly with everyone—if you make any more dismal prophecies about Mr. Perrin, you'll have me wiring to the Company to say I've got scarlet fever, and can't sign on today."

"I'm an old fool, Christine," Mrs. Lind said, trying to smile. "After all, you may be wrong about Perrin being Chief on the Hay Tor or he may have changed a lot since I knew him—it must be close on fifteen years since that trip and a man may mellow in fifteen years. Someone told me once that even Robbins was a bit of tyrant when he was Second."

But she hadn't really succeeded in reassuring Christine, though they went on talking cheerfully about Mr. Robins and other people they both knew. Christine knew well enough that she had been lucky in her first ship, for the Brent Tor was a very happy ship from the point of view of the staff. Sometimes, when she listened to the tales told by those two experienced women, Mrs. Trimble and Miss Scott, Christine had been overwhelmed by sheer panic, knowing that sooner or later she was bound to be transferred.

Even on the Brent Tor, with a full ship and stormy weather they were so overworked that they were too tired to sleep, but at least Mr. Robins was kindly. Miss Scott had told Christine about a Chief Steward who had stormed at her because a fork on the tray she was carrying was crooked, though the ship was in the Bay of Biscay, and she had eight trays to carry up to passengers who were in bed.

THE AUTOCRAT AFLOAT

The Chief Steward was an autocrat against whom there was no appeal, from whom there was no escape during the three and a half months of the double voyage. He was in sole control of the staff which served the passengers—stewards and stewardesses, chefs, bakers and pantrymen, waiters and bellboys—and so long as there were no complaints of bad service no one enquired into his methods.

Early that afternoon, Christine changed into the plain navy blue suit which was her shore-going outfit, and which she believed made her look at least twenty-eight —though no one else had ever told her so. She put on her beret almost straight, and tucked in the soft little curl of dark hair which always bobbed forward, even when she was in uniform.

"Shall I give your love to Mr. Perrin, mother?" she asked, putting her head round the sitting room door on her way out.

"You won't be seeing Mr. Perrin," Mrs. Lind declared. "You'll find when you get there that you're wrong about Mr. Perrin being Chief Steward of the Hay Tor. Don't you start getting in a panic, Christine."

Christine, waiting for the tram which would take her to the ferry across the Mersey, guessed that her mother knew exactly how she was feeing. Twenty years ago perhaps only the thought of her little-girl at home had driven the young widow to plunge into a life which was strange to her—and joining a new ship was almost like starting all over again. Signing-on day was worse, far worse, than sailing day, because there was no bustle and excitement to make things easy.

She knew her way of course, to the wharf alongside which the Tor liners were berthed, before they crossed the river to the Liverpool landing stage on sailing day. Almost as soon as she left the ferry, she found herself in that strange no-man's-land of warehouses and wharves, of narrow streets with cranes swinging above them, with which she had grown so familiar during her two years at sea, for docks all the world over have more points of resemblance than of difference. Christine, going ashore from the Brent Tor at Singapore, Shanghai or Dairen, had to make her way past just such warehouses as these, their open doors giving glimpses of huge piles of unknown goods.

When she had walked a mile, she turned down a narrow lane between two warehouses, and saw the grey funnels circled with scarlet of the Hay Tor, and a maze of masts and spars outlined against the blue sky. On the wharf, half a dozen men and boys were talking together, and they stopped talking and stared curiously at Christine as she passed them and went up the long gang way.

"Signing-on in the smoke room?" she asked the quartermaster, who lounged at the head of the gangway, his elbows on the rail.

"This companion-way is shut," he said, uncivilly enough. "You'll have to go along the deck to the iron companion to the smoke-room terrace. Know your way?"

"I think so. I'm from the Brent Tor, and this is the sister ship."

"Then you don't want me to show you," he said, turning his back on her.

It wasn't a very friendly welcome to her new shift, but Christine was determined not to be discouraged. After all the quartermaster's surliness didn't matter to her, since she might never speak to him again during the whole voyage.

She walked along the deck, past the closed and shuttered windows of the passengers' state-rooms, and climbed the spiral iron companion leading to the smoke-room terrace, which was divided off from the smoke-room itself by glass doors. For one panic-stricken moment she paused before pushing open the door nearest to her, and then plucked up her courage and went in, to face the men and woman with whom she was to spend the next three and a half months.

The chairs and settees were still covered with dust sheets, and the little tables were piled in a heap against one wall, except for two which were covered with papers—three bored looking officials sat behind them. At one end of the room was a mixed crowd of stewards, chefs, pantrymen and boys, some of them in ordinary street clothes and some, who had been working on the ship, in dirty white coats.

Christine, looking round desperately for the stewardesses, for every eye was upon her, saw them sitting on one of the sheeted settees, two elderly women in dowdy hats, one stout and one very thin, but both with the detached expression which experienced stewardesses do assume at signing-on, as if they had just dropped in by accident.

She sat down by the stout one, who turned her head and stared at her for a full minute before she spoke.

"Yes—I'm Christine Jordan."

"I've heard of you. You've been on the Brent, haven't you, and you're Mrs. Jordan's daughter? There was a lot of talk. I remember, about the Company taking on anyone so young, considering the length of the waiting list. How old are you?"

"Twenty-four," Christine said, knowing that it was hopeless to add a few years on to her age, since it was written clearly on the signing-on sheet.

"And you've been at sea two years already! Well, I suppose the Company knew what they were doing, or thought they did, but in my experience—thirty years at sea—a young stewardess always means a lot of bother for everyone else. Don't you agree with me, Miss Crane?"

"I do, Mrs. Parr, but perhaps Miss Jordan is the exception that proves the rule," Miss Crane said gloomily, as if she were perfectly sure Christine was no exception.

They both lapsed into silence, and Christine sat with her hands tightly clenched in her lap, as if she were holding on to her courage. How on earth was she going to endure the company, night and day, of these two old women who obviously disliked her already, only because she was young? The two kindly women in the Brent Tor had been all the more gentle with her on account of her youth, teasing her as, "the baby of the Line," but rather proud of their very efficient baby.

"There's Mr. Perrin," Mrs. Parr muttered, without turning her head.

A very big man, in the dark blue, gold braided Chief Steward's uniform, pushed his way through the crowd at the door, and crossed the smoke-room to speak to one of the officials: he walked with a rolling gait like a sailor on the stage.

As he turned to go out again he caught sight of Christine stared at her for a moment and then picked up a list which lay on the table. She guessed that he was looking for her name, but he went away without speaking to her.

"I'VE WARNED YOU!"

So she had been right about Mr. Perrin being Chief Steward— and from the look of him he hadn't mellowed very much since her mother sailed with him. He had stared at her with the lowering expression of the true bully, as if he wanted to impress her, to make her a little afraid of him even before they had anything to do with one another. But she wasn't afraid of him. That look had aroused the fighting spirit in her, so that she was less upset by him than she had been by the hostility of the two women. He couldn't scare Christine Jordan by scowling at her.

"You'll find Mr. Perrin a bit of a change after Mr. Robins of the Brent," Mrs. Parr said acidly. "Miss Crane and I have sailed with him for three trips now, and we've settled down together, as you might say, but he's not one to stand any nonsense. He believes in being master in his own ship, I can tell you."

The smoke-room was now nearly full of men and boys, for it was almost the hour appointed for sign-on, though it was rumoured that some of the necessary papers had not yet arrived from the office. Christine, glancing at the newcomers as they came in wondered which of them she would know quite well before a week was over. They all looked so much alike on signing-on day, just a herd of strangers, but some would soon be her friends and some, perhaps her enemies.

A cheeky little bell-boy elbowed his way into the room, and called at the top of his voice: "The Chief Steward wants to see Miss Jordan at once in his office."

Christine, startled by this very unexpected summons, hesitated for a moment, but Mrs. Parr gave her a sharp nudge, and she stood up and went out of the room, the men pressing back to let her pass. The bell-boy joined a group of other boys and left her to go alone.

The ship had just been re-painted and there was a smell of new paint and soap, and stale air in the alley-way which led from the smoke-room to the main companion. On sailing day, the gleaming white paint, and the green rubber flooring of the alley-way would look bright and cheerful, but the closed shutters, through which only a little light filtered, gave the place a strange, ghostly look as if it had been deserted long ago.

Perrin was standing outside the Chief Steward's office, at the foot of the main companion. He watched Christine coming down, his slow, scornful glance travelling from the wandering ucrl which had bobbed out from under her beret to her small, neat shoes, but he did not speak to her until she stood in front of him.

"Were you the only stewardess available?" he asked her. "The office sent a note to say that they were sending one of the Brent Tor women, but I expected someone of the usual age."

"The others don't live in Liverpool, Mr. Perrin," she said quietly.

"You're Miss Jordan? Are you related to Mrs. Jordan, who was with the company for some time?"

"I'm her daughter," Christine told him.

"I remember her well enough, and I'll bet that she remembers me even better. Has she told you anything about me?"

"She said that she once sailed with you, on the Jamaica run—on the Torquay."

CHAPTER II

A COLD RECEUTION

"Another young man just qualified, and trying to scratch up the money at sea to buy a practice," Mrs. Parr sniffed. "He'll be under our feet all the time, I suppose, like that last young man who was on the make, and who persuaded every silly woman on board that she'd got some disease which needed a lot of attention from him."

Mrs. Parr and Miss Crane, ignoring Christine completely, began to talk about the doctor as they all went out of the smoke-room together.

It had been with a feeling of relief that Christine had seen that the stranger with the friendly eyes was wearing the uniform of ship's doctor. He was the only officer with whom she would come into personal contact, for she would be working under his orders in case of sickness among her passengers, and it was something to know that he was not likely to make her work more difficult. If she had had to cope with some elderly martinet of a doctor, as well as with Perrin, her luck would have been out.

"Perhaps he's come to sea because he's got something against him," Miss Craine suggested. "I've heard tales about ship's doctors—"

"But not in this Company. This Company gets the raw youngsters who want experience, and who are full of silly ideas—that last young man actually started showing me how to put on a bandage."

"I've got to take this parcel along to our cabin—you'll come with me, won't you, Mrs. Pafr?" Miss Crane said, as they reached the foot of the companion.

Quite obviously she wanted to get rid of Christine, and Christine was glad enough that she would not have to walk the ferry with them—she woud have more than enough of the two of them after the voyage began. They did not even speak to her as they turned away, though she knew that the moment they were out of hearing they would begin tearing her to shreds.

And as she walked alone to the ferry, leaving the Hay Tor behind her, Christine was almost sorry for Mrs. Parr and Miss Craine, though she knew that once they were at sea togther she was going to dislike both of them pretty badly.

They were so old that they had a grudge against youth itself, so that they were prejudiced against every one who was young and hopeful and full of life. There were some stewardesses, like her own mother and the two on the Brent Tor, whose experience at sea made them even wiser and more tolerant, but there were others like Mrs. Parr and Miss Crane, clinging desperately to petty conventions, so afraid of losing their dignity that they still formally called one another by their surnames after months together.

Fay was already at home when Christine reached the flat, eagerly talking to her mother about the shopping which she had to do before sailing day.

"Was it Mr. Perrin, Christine?" Mrs. Lind asked hurriedly, when Fay had gone to her own room for a moment to fetch some patterns.

"It was, and he remembered you" Christine said, in a very casual tone. "As soon as he saw my name on the list, he sent for me and asked whether I was your daughter."

"And he was—kind about it?"

"I can't find those patterns anywhere—do come and help me look, Christine," Fay interrupted and Christine smiled at her mother and went away.

As Christine had expected, Fay and her shopping kept them all busy until the night before sailing day, when Christine had to join the ship. Most of the men did not join until the last possible moment, but it was the custom of the stewardesses to be in their own cabin fairly early in evening.

Christine was a little later than usual that night, for Mrs. Lind was trying valiantly to hide her grief at the thought of losing Fay, and Christine knew that it was easier for her to pretend to be cheerful when they were all three together. She lingered at the flat until after nine o'clock, and by the time she walked to the wharf it was close on eleven.

The quartermaster at the head of the gangway told her the way to the stewardesses' cabin. Her heart sank when she saw that there was no light in the cabin, and realised that Mrs. Parr and Miss Crane must be already in bed.

With a murmured word of apology, she switched on the light. The cabin, like that on the Brent Tor, had really been planned for two stewardesses only, and had two bunks one above the other: when three stewardesses were quartered here, the third had to sleep on the settee.

Mrs. Parr was asleep or apparently asleep in the bottom bunk, and Miss Crane in the top one, and the settee was nearly filled by two large trunks, and Christine's own trunk, brought on board earlier in the day, was out in the alleyway.

She saw at a glance that they had set themselves to make her feel like an interloper. The two small shelves over the "clock"—the tip-up wash-stand which they must all share—were crowded with framed photographs and other personal possessions. Every peg was occupied. They had left her no space at all for the small treasures which stewardess takes to sea.

"So you have come on board, Miss Jordan," Mrs. Parr said, waking up with an affected start as Christine closed the wardrobe door. "Mr. Perrin was here at nine and he seemed a little surprised that you were not already here. He came to tell us the arrangements for the voyage— of course, as the junior, you will have the top deck."

"Is it a full ship this trip?" Christine asked.

"Every state-room occupied on this deck. I advise you to go to bed at once Miss Jordan, without wasting any more time. We shall all be busy tomorrow, and we need our sleep—at least, Miss Crane and I do."

She lay down again, and Christine hastened to unpack the few things she wanted for the night, and to go to bed.

It was very quiet on board. The stewardesses' cabin was on the lower of the two passenger decks, so remote from the men's quarters on the deck below that they could not hear the noise and bustle of the crowd of stewards and cooks unpacking and settling in. Until the engines started at midnight, there was no sound in the cabin except Mrs. Parr's heavy breathing, and an occasional smothered snort from Miss Crane.

SAILING DAY

Christine hated sailing day, which was one long series of small tasks, with everyone on board in a bad temper.

"Have you a copy of the passenger list?" she asked pleasantly when Mrs. Parr woke with a dreary yawn and sat up in her bunk.

Without a word, Mrs. Parr pulled a typed list from under her pillow and handed it to Christine. It was the list which told them for which state-rooms they were responsible, and how many women and children there were in each, and it had to be studied carefully.

Christine, glancing down the list, saw that Fay was in Miss Crane's section, on the starboard side of the lower passenger deck. She herself, as junior, would have the top deck, for the rooms there were more expensive, so that sometimes several were empty, and there were fewer three-berth rooms: on the lower and more crowded deck, one stewardess had the port side and the other the starboard side.

On this trip, they were all going to be kept busy, for the women passengers were fairly equally divided between their sections. Since the stewardess was only responsible for those rooms occupied solely by women and children, and kept strictly to her own section, it sometimes happened that one stewardess had very little to do while another was run off her feet.

"Your bedroom stewards are Grant and Cator," Mrs. Parr said, sourly enough, but as if she was remembering that she couldn't very well refuse to speak to Christine for the whole of the voyage. "Cator has been on bedrooms for a long time, but Grant only came up from the saloon last trip. And Edwards is your bath steward."

"Are they easy to work with?" Christine asked, welcoming even this small sign of friendliness.

"You'll find Grant easy enough I expect," Mrs. Parr said, and pursed up her lips—so Grant must be young and suspect, Christine guessed, and the other two were older men.

She would not see any of them until close on sailing time, for the rooms were put into order by the staff which had been working on the ship, and there was nothing for Christine to do in her own section until passengers came aboard in the afternoon.

The morning passed quickly, for there were the flowers to be done in the saloon as soon as they had finished breakfast, trays and china to be obtained from the storekeeper, and dusters and glass-cloths from the linen-keeper. These things had to be stowed away somehow in their own cabin, but Christine hoped that she would be able to get permission from the deck steward to use one of the cupboards on the upper deck for her junk.

Soon came the time to dash away and to change into afternoon uniform, dark blue dresses and snowy aprons and caps and cuffs. It was by no means easy for the three of them to dress in that tiny cabin at the same time, and Christine, with never a chance to glance into the mirror, sped up the companion to her station, with the uneasy feeling that an elusive little curl was bobbing out from under her starched cap. Thank goodness Perrin would be in his office and would not see her.

Passengers were not coming aboard yet, and she had nothing to do but stand in the alley-way and wait until they did come. There was no one there when she arrived but after a few moments a young steward, with red hair which woud have been unruly if it had not been so violently brushed, came leaping up the companion three steps at a time. He came up to her buttoning the high collar of his white jacket.

"Hallo, Miss Jordan," he said cheerfully. "I'm Grant—BR on the port side. You're going to be pretty busy this trip, and you can count on me to back you up. You've come from the Brent, haven't you? I've heard about you from a friend of mine, Tony Fellows."

"He was one of my bedroom stewards," Christine said, with a smile, knowing at once that she was going to like Grant.

"You'll find it a bit of a change after the Brent," he told her. "I tried to wangle a transfer myself, to be with old Tony—and away from Perrin—but it couldn't be done." He added swiftly. "I didn't say that about Perrin to try to draw you, Miss Jordan."

"As if I should think such a thing," she said.

"You'd better think such things—not with me, but with other people," he advised her, suddenly looking grave. "Believe me, Miss Jordan, you'll find lots of 'em simply aching to know your opinion of Perrin —and if you say a word, they'll be off to him wtih it."

"It certainly is going to be a change after the Brent," she sighed.

"Well, you can say what you like to me, for I'm not one of Perrin's pets," he said, grinning at her in a friendly fashion. "He can't find much the matter with my work, but if I'd got a chance of that transfer, he wouldn't have done anything to keep me here."

Another steward, an older man than Grant, with sleek dark hair and sly eyes, came swinging round the corner from the cross alley-way, a couple of towels over his arm. He glanced curiously at Grant and Christine as he pushed open the door of one of the bathrooms and put the towels on the rack.

"Good afternoon, Miss Jordan," he said, coming out again. "All ready for your passengers?"

"You're going to have a rotten time this trip, Edwards," Grant laughed. "I've got Royde in the cabin de luxe, and that means late nights and late mornings for a good many of them, as you know."

"Royde? Is that blighter back again?"

"His name's on the passenger list —whether he'll manage to catch the boat train—"

"Well, there's one fellow who'll be singing songs of joy when he hears that news—George, in the bar. Royde's chits for drinks mounted up to as much as thirty quid a week last time he was on board."

"Did you ever have Royde on the Brent Tore Miss Jordan?" Grant asked, turning to Christine.

"Never in my time," she said.

"He comes back from Shanghai about every two years," Grant explained. He must be rolling in money—always has the cabin de luxe, and gives parties almost every night and generally makes thing hum."

"Cator will be wild because you've got him, Grant," Edwards said. "He's got some official or other in the starboard cabin de luxe—and Royde is always good for a tenner at the end of the voyage, beside a lot of stray drinks and boxes of fags on the way."

"And his bedroom steward earns every penny of it," Grant declared. "Royde may be popular among the passengers—though the decent ones aren't too keen on him—but I never knew a steward who had a good word for him."

PASSENGERS ARRIVE

A third steward, a small man with a sallow face and a peevish expression, came to the end of the alley-way and shouted: "Passengers coming on board now, Grant."

"All right, Cator, we're all set," Grant shouted back, and he and Edwards left Christine, and hurried off to see to the baggage.

In a few minutes the rush began. Passengers, most of them accompanied by groups of friends, came up the main companion talking and laughing, and wandered down the alley-way in search of their state-rooms, stewards hurried along with trunks and parcels, and every now and then a small bell boy pushed his way through the throng almost hidden behind his burden of bunches of flowers and baskets of fruit.

Grant, carrying a huge cabin-trunk and followed by an agitated old lady who kept warning him not to drop it, gave Christine a swift wink as he passed, but no one else took any notice of her as she stood waiting in her appointed place and she stepped back into a bath-room doorway to be out of the way.

Opposite her was the state-room assigned, as she knew, to Mrs. Smythe and Mrs. Collins, both for Shanghai. She watched for them with some interest, since they would be her passengers, wondering whether they were friends or strangers to one another: strangers so often bitterly resented having to share a room, and friends were so often at daggers drawn after a long voyage at very close quarters.

When they came at last, she saw that they were both women in the early thirties, over-dressed and hard-eyed, of the type with which she had grown familiar enough during her time at sea. She sighed to herself, foreseeing a state-room which would always be cluttered up with odds and ends, a dressing table always sticky and messed with make-up and a very small tip at the end of the voyage.

They were alone, and it was clear that they were friends, for they were talking eagerly together as they came along the alley-way. One of them went at once into the state-room, but the other lingered at the door, still talking to her friend, but evidently watching for someone.

"Hallo, Martin," she called out suddenly, "so we haven't left you behind—you must have run it pretty fine."

A tall man, with a handsome, dissipated face, who was crossing the end of the alley-way, turned and strolled towards her. He had run it pretty fine, for already they could hear the shrill voice of a bell-boy, calling: "All visitors ashore, please —all visitors ashore!"

"So this is where they've put you, is it, Dora?" he said. "If I had missed the boat it would have been your fault. For I couldn't decide between orchids and roses—so I ended by getting both. He said curtly to Grant, who was passing: "Steward, fetch me the florists' box which came on board with my things—the cabin de luxe."

This must be the notorious Royde, Christine realised, but he followed the woman called Dora into her state-room, and Christine saw no more of them. Since no one seemed to want her just then, she went down to her own cabin, meeting Grant laden with an enormous box.

"A spot of work for you," Grant grinned. "You'll have a lovely job sweeping rose leaves off the carpet."

"It's your job to sweep the carpet," she reminded him.

"But you have a tidy mind, Miss Jordan—I see it in your eye. These roses will be trickling all over the carpet at all hours, and you'll feel bound to tidy up every time you go into the room—there's only one good thing about flowers in the rooms we only have to cope with them for the first few days."

"There'll be plenty to cope with in number eighteen, all through the voyage," she sighed. "Lip-stick on the pillow cases, drifts of powder all over the dressing table—"

"Setting lotion spilling into the eyeblack when the ship begins to rock—"

"One slipper under the pillow on the top bunk and the other under the clock, smears of cold cream on the mirror—"

"Never mind," he said sympathetically. "You've got a clear old lady in number ten, and a mother with two sweet little children in four."

Christine laughed and ran down to her own cabin, where Mrs. Parr and Miss Crane were drinking black tea. Mrs. Parr poured out a cup for Christine but went on telling Miss Crain a story about a passenger.

Before long, it was time for Christine to go the round of her state-rooms, to introduce herself to her own passengers, and to find out what they wanted in the early mornings—tea, fruit, or plain hot water. People did not want to be bothered with these questions as soon as they came on board, but in the quiet interval before dinner, when they had done some of their unpacking but were still in their state-rooms, Christine was likely to be welcome.

She had half hoped that she would have time to slip down and try to see Fay before dinner, but the passenger in number four kept her for a good ten minutes, making arrangements for her young baby to have a special patent food made five times a day, and for Christine to look after the baby and his four-year-old brother during meal times.

Number eighteen was the last door at which she knocked. Someone called, "Come in," and she went in to exactly the scene which she had expected—clothes flung all over the place, the settee piled with half-unpacked boxes, and the wardrobe already so full that the door swung open.

The woman, whom Martin Royde had called Doris was sitting on a stool in the midst of the confusion, idly polishing her nails, and she looked up as Christine came in.

"You've come about teas and so on, I suppose," she said to Christine in the slightly insolent tone which a few passengers used to those who served them. "Well, I can tell you this, stewardess— it's no good your trying to get us out of our room early, for it can't be done. Put me down for tea at 8 o'clock. That goes for you, too, I suppose, Iris?"

"And your baths?" Christine asked quietly.

"You can tell the bath steward eight thirty, but he'll be lucky if he sees either of us before nine. We don't mind missing breakfast—unless we can have it in bed?"

"You will have to apply to the Chief Steward if you want breakfast in bed regularly," Christine told her, confident that Perrin would never listen to such a request. Of course passengers could have meals in bed if they were ill, but not just because they were too lazy to get up.

Christine slipped out of the room again, having noticed the initials D. S. on one of the trunks—so Doria was Mrs. Smythe, and Iris was Mrs. Collins. She knew that she was going to have a good deal of trouble with these two and she was thankful that they were in Grant's section, for Grant would remain good-tempered even if the room had to be done in a tearing hurry just before inspection at eleven.

As she carried out the routine tasks which were so familiar to her, Christine was trying to plan how she could possibly get to Fay's room unseen. Until now, when for the first time she wanted to do something which must be kept secret, she had not realised how seldom the alley-ways were entirely deserted, and how difficult it was to avoid prying eyes.

HOW TO OVERCOME ITCHING PILES

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's waning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is a physician's prescription and is highly recommended. It is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

WALL ST. CLOSE

New York, Oct. 3—(AP)—Selected stocks once more took the ascending trail in today's market after an early mild profit selling set-back.

Gains in the majority of cases ranged from fractions to a point or so. A few high-priced specialties were up three to four.

Small losses ruled in the forepart of the session, but buyers soon arrived in sufficient numbers to stem the decline. A handful of stocks failed to make progress, but advances were fairly well distributed near the final hour.

Although the ticker tape was never pressed, dealings broadened after the start. Transfers were about 1,500,000 shares.

TORONTO STOCKS CLOSE

Toronto, Oct. 3 (CP) — Trading quieted down on the Toronto market today, still holding the wide advances of the previous three sessions. Mining shares registered a margin of gains over losses while the industrials and western oils were unchanged to slightly lower. Volume was around 900,000 shares or well below last week's average turnover.

MARKET COMMENT

To forecast the immediate market future is difficult for the reason that the exchanges are still not in a normal state. Short covering and urgent buying on the part of sold-out bulls has created an advance above average proportions. Once conditions reach normalcy, the business situation as affecting individual companies will receive due consideration, and the market will act accordingly.

International Petroleum

For some little time now it has been known that a good-sized block of International Petroleum was being liquidated in New York for the account of an estate in Pittsburgh. The Street learns that arrangements are under way whereby these shares will be sold privately. With such pressure lifted 'Pete' should give an excellent account of itself.

Livestock

Toronto, Oct. 3 — (CP) — Dull cattle trading prevailed on the Toronto Livestock Market today with prices about steady. Left over from last week were 200 head. Calves and sheep were steady while lambs sold 25 cents lower. No hog price was set by mid-session.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle 4,600; calves 1,290; hogs 1,620; sheep and lambs 3,220.

A few choice weighty steers sold up to $6.50. Small lots of butcher steers and heifers ranged from $3.70 to $5.70. Early sales on cows brought $3 to $4.25 but bids around noon were 25 cents lower.

Bologna bulls sold steadily $3.25 to $5.50. Fed calves moved from $6 for common up to 9.50 for tops. Bulk of stocker calf sales were between $4.25 to $5. Fresh cattle receipts included 990 from the West.

Choice veal calves traded at $9.50 to $10 with some tops at $10.50. Grassers sold between $4.50 to $5 and some heavy western calves were priced from $5.50 to $7.

Previous close on off truck bacon hogs was $8.75

Good ewe and wether lambs delivered by rail, made $7.75 and those by truck $7.75. Bucks sold at $1 discount. Culls were $6 to $6.50. Sheep went from $2 to $4.50.

Montreal, Oct. 3—(CP)—Active trading during early dealings on Montreal Livestock Markets kept prices steady and boosted them 25 cents in some sections, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported today.

Receipts: Cattle 1,141; calves 1,329; sheep and lambs 3,879; hogs 1,380.

Hogs: Bacon fed and watered $9; sows $7-$8.

Butter Weakens at Toronto

Toronto, Oct. 3.—On the Toronto produce market Saturday eggs had a strong undertone, continuing to benefit from the gradually steadying influences of the week. Grade A-large graded eggs, cases free, edged upward to a range of 34c to 35c from the 34c prevailing previously, following a move toward higher quotations in Montreal. Dealers looked for further improvement this week.

A definite end of the war scare which had advanced butter prices recently, together with bearish figures eminating from Winnipeg, started butter solids tumbling. Ontario No. 1 creamery solids opened around 21 3-4c with talk of 22c in some quarters but shortly after 11 o'clock the market, lacking support, started to collapse. The session ended with butter solids somewhat chaotic, the market indefinite and without a large volume of business having been done. At the close most offerings were around 21 1-4c to 21 1-2c, the latter being the top asking price.

A heavier inter-storage movement was shown by figures released Saturday, a quantitative increase in butter coming without surprise.

Montreal, Oct. 3—Creamery butter prints to retail dealers sold for 23 1-2c to 24c and creamery solids at 23c to 23 1-2c. Receipts: 18,926 boxes, including 5,774 boxes for export.

Cheese sold at 14 3-8c to 14 5-8c for Ontario white; Ontario colored 14 1-2c to 14 3-4c. Receipts: 36,595 boxes, including 6,888 boxes for export.

Graded egg shipments in used free cases were offered at 35c a dozen for A-large, 33c for A-medium, 29c for A-pullets, 26c for B-large, and 21c for C. Receipts: 13,039 cases, including 5,122 cases for export.

NEW OUTBREAKS

The band entered numerous houses, firing indiscriminately at the sleeping occupants.

Other bands raided Tiberias itself, burning a Jewish Synagogue, Government Offices, Law Courts and numerous other buildings before they were driven out by police and troops. Six of the raiders were killed.

Jewish constables on the Nazareth - Tiberias Road a short time earlier killed six armed men in a skirmish.

Official figures placed at 67 the number of Arabs killed Saturday in two large-scale engagements with British troops and police. A British inspector was killed.

DEMAND APOLOGY FROM ABERHART

Canadian Legion Members Object To Statement Allegedly Made

Calgary, Oct. 3.—(CP)—An "immediate, full and complete retraction and apology" is demanded of Premier William Aberhart for a statement he is reported to have made on the European crisis, in a speech at Edmonton Sept. 25, in a resolution adopted yesterday by the Calgary Branch, Canadian Legion, British Empire Service League.

The Canadian Legion, the resolution declares, objects to the statement made "when the British Empire stood on the very brink of war."

Premier Aberhart was quoted as saying: "British, French and Russian people are being stirred by that other equally foolish concept of contractual obligations which demands its fulfilment no matter what the conditions are."

The Canadian Legion resolutions approved by two hundred members at the meeting, declared Premier Aberhart "referred to the attitude of the government of Great Britain as 'foolish' and by unmistakable inference, endorsed the position of the German government and condemned that of the British government as to the immediate cause of the war in August, 1914.

Military Exercises Concluded After Three Day Session

Tactical exercises connected with the annual staff tour, held in the rolling fields of farm lands northwest of Belleville under the direction of general staff of Military District No. 3 for over 100 senior officers of military units of this military district for three days were declared the best yet held by the general staff of Kingston.

Well pleased with the results of the annual exercises, it was reported by Lt.-Col. A. B. Gribble, O.C. of the local Argyll Light Infantry and assisting officers to have proceeded without a hitch. The officers' bally held in the local Armouries by the Argyll Officers for visiting officers and wives was a scintillating success on Saturday evening.

During the program and military survey over the week-end various military movements and field tactics were carried out without the aid of troops or mechanical units. One of the special manoeuvres was the carrying out of a theoretical attack on a certain section of the district. Between open field exercises, special courses of inside instruction in the officers' quarters of the Armouries were held by the instructing staff.

Duff Cooper's Explanation

Explaining his position from a private member's place, Mr. Duff Cooper said he "felt lonely and isolated" when he heard Mr. Chamberlain, from a window of 10 Downing Street, tell a cheering crowd last Friday that he had returned with "peace and honor."

"That there was cause for relief last week, I am aware, but that there was a cause for self-congratulation I am not certain," Mr. Duff Cooper said.

The opposition cheered the resigned Minister when he entered the House a few seconds before Mr. Chamberlain. Amid the cheering, William Gallacher, only Communist member of the House, shouted at the Prime Minister:—

"Shameful! Hitler's yes-man!"

Mr. Duff Cooper, saying he had "a painful and delicate task" in explaining his resignation, declared he realized the majority of the House "is most anxious to hear the Prime Minister and that I am standing between them and him.

'Defeat Of Our Foreign Policy'

He said Great Britain should "let them know where you stand and what, in certain circumstances, you are prepared to do."

Mr. Duff Cooper continued:

"We have been drifting day by day into war with Germany. We never said until the last moment—and then in uncertain fashion—that we were prepared to fight.

"Yet we knew that information to the opposite effect was being poured into the ears of the German leaders.

Points To Germany.

Everything pointed to the fact that Germany was preparing for war and the one way that it could be prevented was by Britain making a stand and saying she would be in that war on the other side.

"We should have been fighting in order that one great power should not be allowed, in disregard of treaty obligations and the laws of nations and the decrees of morality, to dominate by brute force the continent of Europe.

"We were always told that on no account must we irritate Herr Hitler. It was dangerous to irritate him before he made a public speech.

"Such reserved utterances as were made by the Premier and Chancellor of the Exchequer meant nothing to the mentality of Hitler or Mussolini.

"With new methods and a new morality they (the dictators) had introduced a new vocabulary. They discarded the old diplomatic methods of correspondence. During the whole of this crisis there had not been a German ambassador in London and the German charge d'affaires had hardly visited the foreign office.

Mobilization Language Understood.

"I had urged mobilization (of the fleet) for many days. I thought it was the kind of language it would have been easier for Herr Hitler to understand.

Mr. Duff Cooper said Great Britain must be prepared to fight against any other attempt by a nation to dominate Europe by force.

"For that principle we fought against Napoleon," he went on. "We fought for it against Louis the 14th of France and Phillip the Second of Spain.

"For that principle we must ever be prepared to fight, for on the day we are not prepared to fight for it we shall have forgotten our empire, our liberty and our independence."

Terms Stick in Throat.

"I tried to swallow the Munich terms but they stuck in my throat," Mr. Duff Cooper said amid opposition cheers.

The resigned minister broke down and sobbed in the midst of his speech. He was unable to speak for a few moments and when he recovered his composure the opposition cheered him.

Protesting against the granting of Germany's demands that some of her troops should be allowed to enter the Sudetenland last Saturday, Mr. Duff Cooper said:

"The German government having got their man down were not to be deprived of kicking him."

He also protested against the fact that Mr. Chamberlain signed with Hitler Friday at Munich an Anglo-German agreement "without consultation with his colleagues, reference to his allies, or communication with the dominions."

"This is not the way foreign affairs of the empire should be conducted," de declared.

Charges Loss of Prestige.

As a result of the Munich agreement, Mr. Duff Cooper continued, "we were left with the loss of prestige and also a tremendous commitment, as for the first time in history we agreed to defend a frontier in central Europe."

Along with Germany and Europe's other big powers, Great Britain agreed to guarantee the shrunken Czech frontiers.

While Mr. Duff Cooper spoke in the Commons, Viscount Halifax, the Foreign Secretary, began a statement in the almost deserted House of Lords similar to that Mr. Chamberlain made to the Commons last Wednesday. He paid tribute to the efforts of Viscount Runciman to effect an agreement between the Czechs and Sudetens and explained the reasons why he was unable to do so.

Mr. Duff Cooper said now that Britain was committed to defend Czechoslovakia's frontiers "we should maintain an army on the continental basis; we should quicken our rearmament scheme on a broader basis."

He concluded, amid opposition cheers: "Although I may have ruined my political career I can still walk about the world with my head erect."

Chamberlain Receives Ovation

Mr. Chamberlain was given a great ovation by his supporters when he arose to speak at 3.32 p.m. (10.32 a.m. E.S.T.)

"When the House met last Wednesday we were under the shadow of a great and imminent menace," the Prime Minister began. "War, more stark and terrible than it had ever appeared before, seemed to be staring us in the face.

"Before I had sat down the message had come which gave us new hope that peace might yet be saved.

'Joy and Thankfulness'

"Today we know with joy and thankfulness that the prayers of millions have been answered."

Referring to Mr. Duff Cooper's criticism, the Prime Minister said, "I have nothing to withdraw or regret."

"The responsibility of the members of the House during the last few weeks has been almost overwhelming," he continued.

"Some of us will carry the mark of it for the rest of our days.

"Time was one of the essential factors at Munich. All the elements were present for the outbreak of a conflict which might have precipitated a catastrophe.

"There were extremists on both sides ready to work up provoked incidents. Therefore it was essential quickly to reach a conclusion so that the painful operation of transfer might be carried out at the earliest moment."

In the meantime Lord Halifax told the House of Lords Great Britain had been asked by Czechoslovakia for a "guaranteed loan of £30,000,000. ($150,000,000.)

Nothing to be Ashamed of

"Assistance given quickly is of double value," he added. "His Majesty's government are informing the Czechoslovakia government that they are prepared immediately to arrange for an advance of £10,000,000."

Labor members shouted "shame" when Mr. Chamberlain referred to his sympathy with the Czechs.

"I have nothing to be ashamed of," he retorted. Pointing his left hand at the Labor benches, he added: "Let those who have, hang their heads."

After describing what he called Hitler's concessions at Munich, Mr. Chamberlain said: "In giving a verdict we should do well to avoid describing it as a personal or national triumph for anybody."

Amid government cheers and Labor shouts of "No," Mr. Chamberlain said:

"I say in the name of this House and of the people of this country that Czechoslovakia has earned our admiration and respect for her restraint, her dignity and her magnificent discipline in the face of such a trial."

Tribute to Duce, Daladier, Roosevelt.

After paying tribute to Hitler, Mr. Chamberlain said Premier Mussolini's contribution to the Munich agreement "was perhaps decisive."

"It was on his suggestion that mobilization in Germany was postponed for 24 hours to give an opportunity of discussion and during the conference he and Count Ciano, his foreign secretary, were most helpful."

The Prime Minister then paid tribute to Premier Daladier and President Roosevelt.

"The message of President Roosevelt, so fairly and yet so persuasively made, showed how the voice of the most powerful nation in the world could make itself heard across 3,000 miles of ocean and sway the minds of men in Europe."

Mr. Chamberlain said it was Mussolini and Ciano who "early in the proceedings at Munich produced a memorandum which M. Daladier and myself were able to accept as a basis for discussion.

"In my view the strongest force of all was that sense of unmistakable unanimity among the peoples of the world that war somehow must be averted."

Pacification of Europe

The Prime Minister continued: "This increasing desire for peace prevaded the whole atmosphere of the Munich conference.

"Ever since I assumed my present office my main purpose has been the pacification of Europe to remove those animosities which have so long poisoned the air."

Regarding his conversation and the joint declaration he signed with Hitler, Mr. Chamberlain said:

"I entered into the pact. I made no new commitment. There is no secret understanding. Our conversation was hostile to no other nation.

Contact With Hitler Necessary

"It was an endeavor to establish a contact with Hitler which I believed to be essential to modern diplomacy. That declaration is something more than a pious expression of opinion."

Mr. Chamberlain indicated he discussed the question of disarmament with Hitler in the following statement:

"Disarmament on the part of this country will never be unilateral. If disarmament is to come it must come by steps and with the active co-operation of other countries.

"Let no one think that because we have signed the Munich agreement we can afford to relax our efforts.

"I am too much of a realist to believe that we are going to achieve our paradise in a day. We have only laid the foundation of peace. The superstructure has not even begun."

Mr. Chamberlain said his conversation with Hitler at Munich last Friday was "a friendly and entirely noncommittal one."

Symbolic Declaration

He then read the joint declaration he and Hitler signed—symbolic of the desires of Britain and Germany never to fight each other again.

He paused after the first paragraph dealing with the importance of good relations between Britain and Germany and asked amid cheers "is there anyone who would deny that?"

The prime minister resumed, saying:

"While we must renew our determination to build up the deficiencies that remain in our armaments and in our decisive precautions so that we may be ready to defend ourselves, I see fresh opportunities to approach disarmament opening up before us."

Mr. Chamberlain concluded at 4:25 p.m. Clement Attlee, leader of the opposition, then began to speak, calling the Munich agreement "a victory for brute force".

The prime minister said in concluding, that the "lesson we should learn from last week was that lasting peace was not to be attained by sitting still and waiting for it to come."

"It requires active and positive efforts," he declared.

In explaining the agreement he signed with Hitler, Mr. Chamberlain said, "I believe there was sincerity and good will on both sides here" and that the "significance of the declaration goes far beyond its actual words."

Attlee's Attack on Munich Policy.

Launching Labor's attacks upon the "Munich deal", Mr. Attlee said:

"We have seen the cause of democracy, civilization and humanity receive a terrible defeat."

He declared relief might be felt that war has not come "this time". But, he said, "we cannot feel that peace has been established or that we have anything but an armistice.

"Events of the last few days constituted one of the greatest diplomatic defeats this country and France ever sustained. It was a tremendous victory for Hitler."

"Most of the people in this country believe the Czechs have been shamefully betrayer by those pledged to stand by them. Hitler has struck at the roots of the life of all civilized people. The great weakness throughout has been the cold shouldering of Russia. A firm declaration by Britain, France, the U.S.S.R. and other states would have stopped this tragedy which amounted to recognition that the rule of armed dictators is supreme in the world."

Anglo-French Confidence.

Lord Halifax was quick in the House of Lords to remove what was reported to be French misapprehension over the Anglo-German declaration that Hitler and Chamberlain signed at Munich.

"Mutual confidence between the French government and ourselves, as strong as it was before, has emerged stronger than ever," he said.

WILD DUCK SHOT, HAS LEG-BAND

Though a duck-hunter of years, Mr. Robert Andrews of this city has only twice shot wild ducks bearing a leg-band. The first was shot years ago and the other on Saturday. The band was No. 613454, year 1938. As requested Mr. Andrews has sent identification to the Biological Survey at Washington.

Mr. Andrews got his complement on Saturday before nine o'clock.

FRATERNAL VISIT WILL BE PAID

Moira Lodge No. 11 A.F. and A.M. members will be visitors to Ancient St. John's Lodge No. 3 at Kingston, on Thursday evening of this week.

OFFER BETTER PRICES FOR EARLY TURKEYS

Buyers of Canada's national Thanksgiving Day dinner, the lordly turkey, are at present visiting the district and report prices a little better for the fowl than offered last year. The increase was reported by one Montreal buyer, Phillip Gurneon, to be from one and one-half cents to two cents higher this season. Plenty of turkeys have been offered, and farmers have apparently raised more of the birds this year, it was stated.

SEEKS POTATO MARKET IN NORTHERN ONTARIO

Farmers of North Hastings are finding a ready market for a record potato crop this year in Northern Ontario, according to latest reports. Mr. Geo. McGowan of Monteagle Township reports last week he shipped a transport load of the potatoes to Timmins, and is making a further investigation of prices in the mining districts. If prices warrant, he is prepared later to ship a carload to that section.

BRUNO MUSSOLINI WILL SOON MARRY

Rome, Oct. 3.—(AP) — Bruno Mussolini, 21-year-old son of the Premier, is to marry Gina Ruberti, daughter of Professor Guido Ruberti. The brief published announcement did not set a date.

Bruno, an aviator, served in the Ethiopian war, made a transatlantic flight to South America, and flew a bombing plane in Spain. His brother, Vittorio, who also was in Ethiopia, was married last year.

BRITONS CROWDED

nominations also celebrated the passing of the war crisis. A Solemn High Mass was celebrated at Westminster Cathedral.

Saturday night people flocked to restaurants and dance halls around the Strand, Piccadilly and Oxford Circus. Englishmen sang German drinking songs in Jewish-owned restaurants. In one big Strand eating house that holds a thousand or more, the patrons ate, drank and sang British wartime songs, barked for "John Peel," roared the "Marseilles" and "Ach Der Lieber Augustie."

They yelled "More" every time the tired band sat down for a breather.

Young Couples Happy

Young couples embraced on the embankment where piles of sandbags marked anti-aircraft gun emplacements, but the guns which were there a few hours before had been hauled away.

On high Holborn men stood four deep before a mechanical toy shop they had not noticed for days. Many who had believed their sons would have no more time for play hastened to buy them things.

Flower sellers did a roaring business as men rushed to get bouquets for wives and sweethearts. Soldiers, sailors and Royal Air Force men on leave walked, the streets looking happy.

A notice before a Strand pub read: "We have always sold beer, but never so fast."

Nevertheless London was left many a reminder of the grim days when people dug or stood in line for hours waiting their turn at gas mask fittings. Public parks were filled with great piles of newly-turned earth surrounding trenches in which the populace would have sought shelter from air raiders if the Munich Four-Power conference had failed.

One Man Killed

One man was killed in a trench collapse. A little girl was seriously injured when buried in another trench. A man died when he sought to test his mask by placing his head in a gas stove oven.

Even children were rescued in cases where they had gas-proofed a room and donned masks, then turning on the kitchen gas. The masks are not proof against illuminating gas.

The disposition of the people still was to express relief and thanksgiving over the passing of the crisis, though opposition groups, Liberals, Labor and Communists, expressed as well as some Conservatives—violent disapproval over what they considered the betrayal of Czechoslovakia.

People in some newsreel theatres applauded Hitler and Mussolini, but those in labor districts hissed them. Mr. Chamberlain still was the man of the hour and his image on the screen was greeted with tremendous shouts.

Wreath on Cenotaph

Nearby in Whitehall a different temper was displayed by persons who placed a wreath on the Cenotaph with a card reading: "In memory of Mannock, McElroy and Kennedy. We fought to defend democracy—not to betray it."

As the crisis waned the rush of marriage-bent couples to registry offices and churches suffered a sharp slump.

At Westminster Abbey, Dean Paul F. D. De. Labilliere remarked that "for once it seems to be impossible not to break through the silence of reserve and to voice the nation's gratitude to our Prime Minister for, under God, we believe we owe our reprieve to him."

The Dean did not forget the Czechs, adding: "Let us remember those who have turned their backs on their homes, their work and possessions to go out to start life again in a strange district."

3,000 in Line

Almost 3,000 stood in a queue in rain to enter City Temple where they heard service conducted by the Rev. Leslie Wetherhead who asked them

"Do you feel a little uneasy, as though you had made friends with a burglar on condition that he took nothing from you or your immediate friends, and that you would say nothing about what he took from somebody else? I feel like that. I hope the burglar has been converted because a converted burglar can do as much as a converted imperialist like John Bull."

Military Notes

Military orders for this district announce that Colonel E. Forde, D.S.O., V.D., Royal Canadian Signals, has been detailed to command Military District No. 3 temporarily during the absence on leave of Major General C. F. Constantine, D.S.O., district officer commanding, from October 10 to October 15 and from October 18 to October 22.

A staff college preparatory course for officers particularly selected to take it commenced at the Royal Military College, Kingston, today and will continue for a period of six weeks. Officers taking this course have been selected from all over the Dominion.

Probabilities

Moderate east to southeast winds; fair today. Wednesday, winds shifting to northward; partly cloudy with light scattered showers; cooler towards night.

MOBILIZE INDUSTRY FOR DEFENCE—BALDWIN

Heavy Death Toll and Property Damage Caused by Autumn Gale

War is Never Inevitable In Future, Says Baldwin; Praises Chamberlain

British Prime Minister Only Man Who Could Have Succeeded

STRABOLGI'S CHARGE

Morrison Charges 'Cowardly Drift' Is Government Policy

By PAT USSHER

London, Oct. 4 (CP)—Earl Baldwin win, in his maiden speech in the House of Lords, today called for the mobilization of industry to bring Great Britain's defences to a satisfactory point with the least possible delay.

The former prime minister paid warm tribute to his successor, Neville Chamberlain, for his decision to visit Chancellor Hitler.

"I know of no other man who would have brought it to a successful issue," Lord Baldwin declared.

Answering those who felt war must come eventually, Lord Baldwin said "war is never inevitable in the distance and if there were a 95 per cent chance of war at some future date, I would hang onto the five per cent until I died."

Conference As Rainbow Across Sky.

"I would mobilize our industry tomorrow," he said, in warning that the coming year was bound to present many difficulties. "On how we face them might depend the settlement of Europe and of the world," he warned.

Recalling the scene in the House of Commons when Prime Minister Chamberlain announced the Munich conference, Lord Baldwin said "it was just as if the finger of God had drawn a rainbow once more across the sky and ratified again his covenant with the children of men."

"My mind went back to that day in August, 1914," he said, referring to the day Great Britain decided to go to war against Germany, "and I have never forgotten Edward Grey's face, the face of a man who looked as if he had been through hell, and I thought the skies were completely black."

Strabolgi Charges Dictatorship.

Lord Baldwin spoke in the House of Lords after Lord Strabolgi, Labor, who expressed the opinion that the Czech-German quarrel would have been composed in an "honorable settlement" if the British fleet had been mobilized at the time of the Nazi congress at Nuremberg.

He charged that for the past fortnight Great Britain had been living under a dictatorship.

Lord Baldwin declared that "when the prime minister took that decision to go to Berchtesgaden there was nothing else on earth he could have done and I thank God that he was able to do it."

He was given a tremendous ovation. It was his first speech in parliament since May, 1937, when, still a commoner, he spoke in the Lower House.

"No Difference of Party"—Baldwin.

Elaborating his proposal for industrial mobilization, Lord Baldwin asserted that "there is nothing more important from every point of view than that insofar as the defence of this country is concerned there should be no difference of party."

"I am in entire agreement with those of you who would push on to bring up our defences to a satisfactory point with the least possible delay," he continued.

Contact With Dictators.

"I cannot help wondering when people talk as though there were something unclean in having to face discussions with dictators if they realize that one of our greatest difficulties throughout the last five years has been how to get into contact with the dictators.

"It troubled me long before I was prime minister. It (the difficulty) became obvious, since dictators will not use the machinery of diplomacy. They have scrapped that machinery.

"If you want to get anything to them it has got to be told to them direct by a man with a policy.

"There are dangers, I know. It is hard for a democratic prime minister to commit himself in the same way as man with absolute power.

"That is a risk that must be taken unless you are willing to ostracize them completely, with results that may be formidable for the whole world.

'War Never Inevitable in Distance'.

"War is different today from what it was up to the last three or four years. No prime minister ought to commit his country to war unless he is convinced that that country is ready.

"I have no desire today to dwell on the past. I want to speak of the present and a little of the future. If Czechoslovakia's climate! The climate of this country can not be exactly compared with that of any part of the United States or Canada; it may be said, however, to have temperatures similar to those of Denver, and precipitation similar in amount and distribution to that of Winnipeg, Canada. The annual mean temperature varies from 43.1 degrees at Aravavaralja to 49.2 at Uzhorod. Prague, the principal city, has an annual mean temperature of 48.2 degrees, a July mean of 67 and a January mean of 30 degrees. The rainfall is about 20 inches a year; of this 69 per cent falls in the winter half of the year and 31 per cent in the summer half. June and July are the wettest months and February the driest.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 4 (CP) — Fairly heavy rains have occurred in Alberta and light to moderate showers in Saskatchewan and in Northwestern Ontario, while from the region of the Great Lakes eastward to Newfoundland the weather has been fair and cool, and it is now cool throughout the Prairie Provinces. Pressure is high over the eastern postions of Canada and the United States and over the northwest territories, and low off the middle Atlantic coast and to the southward of the Grand-banks, with a shallow depression moving eastward across Minnesota.

Lake Superior—Fresh southeast to northeast winds; cloudy with scattered showers; cooler tonight. Wednesday, fresh northerly winds; mostly cloudy and cool with scattered showers.

Manitoba — Northeast to east winds; cloudy and cooler today and Wednesday with scattered showers.

Saskatchewan and Alberta—Moderate winds; cloudy and cool today and Wednesday with light scattered showers.

3,000,870 Slovaks Seek Automony Within Republic

No Obstacle Is Seen To Granting Autonomy Shortly

49,000 SQ. MILE AREA

Prague, Oct. 4 — (CP) — The Czechoslovak government today was negotiating with representatives of the Slovak minority on the question of complete autonomy for Slovakia.

Minister without - portfolio Cermak raised the question in the name of the Slovak People's Party.

The official view was that there was no obstacle in the way of granting autonomy for the 49,000-square mile Slovak section of eastern Czechoslovakia provided Slovakia remained a part of the Republic. An agreement was expected in the near future.

The relation between Czechs and Slovaks in the new state was first defined by the Pittsburg Pact of May 30, 1918. This agreement between Czech and Slovak societies in the United States was that Czechoslovakia, whose independence then had not been proclaimed, should grant "cultural self government" to the 3,000,870 Slovaks.

General Election Urged to Test Public Opinion

London, Oct. 4 (CP Cable)—Under the heading 'Let Opinion Be Tested," Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard today urges, from the consideration of the national interest, that a general election be called at the earliest convenient date.

Referring to the resignation of Alfred Duff Cooper from the Cabinet and a growing divergence of opinion in the ranks of the Government's own supporters and the public regarding the Munich four-power agreement, The Standard says:

"Let the issues be clarified. Let policy be crystallized and laid before the electorate for its endorsement. Let all doubts as to the country's wishes be dispelled—by a verdict given at the polls.

The need today is not for recrimination about the past, nor for partisan tactics. What is wanted is an opportunity for the electorate to have future policy clearly expounded and for the voters to return a fresh Parliament with an indisputable mandate to carry out that policy."

Self-Styled Escaped Convict Of U. S. Dies

Blind River, Ont., Oct. 4 (CP)—Self-styled escaped convict from the United States, a man who told police his name was Harold Olsen, Washington, D.C., died in hospital here today. He was shot by police Sunday night after the reported theft of a Sudbury, Ont., cab-driver's car.

A companion who refused to give his name is held in jail. Police seek a third man.

Tommy Campbell, the cab-driver, told police the men hired him Sunday to drive them to Whitefish, Ont. When they reached Whitefish he said he felt a gun in his back. One of the men commanded him to "move over, we are taking your car".

"We are escaped convicts from the United States, so watch your step." Campbell said one man warned him.

Campbell said he escaped when the car reached Spanish. The men continued westward but the car crashed into a ditch a few miles west of Spanish.

Police were advised by Campbell and a squad of provincial officers captured them near the Canadian Pacific Railway tracks west of Serpent River bridge.

Police fired four shots and a bullet apparently ricocheted and struck Olsen.

Politics Curtailed In Permanent Forces

Melbourne, Oct. 4 (CP-Reuters)—Curtailment of political activities of Australia's permanent and militia forces is planned under new military regulations approved by the executive council.

Officers and all ranks of permanent forces are forbidden to take an active part in the affairs of any political party, and those of the militia may not use their military ranks when taking part in politics.

Members of parliament or municipal bodies, or duly-nominated candidates for those offices, are exempted but others may not write articles or speak on behalf of political organizations, or distribute literature.

STIFF PENALTIES, NOT MORE CRIME, EXPLAINS TOTALS

Hon. Harry Nixon Says Vagrants Now Sent To Prison

PRISONER TOTAL HIGH

Motor Vehicle Driving Offences Considered Far More Seriously

Toronto, Oct. 4 (CP)—Although Ontario's prison and reformatory population is "extremely high", Hon. Harry Nixon, Provincial Secretary, examining the situation today concluded that stiffer penalties for some offences and not increased crime, were largely responsible.

"The situation is not alarming." Mr. Nixon said shortly after he had announced that the Ontario government farm at Monteith would be converted into an industrial reformatory. He said many offences, particularly motor vehicle law infractions, were regarded far more seriously today than in the past.

Terms Now Not Fines.

The result was, he said, that prison sentences were now imposed for offences which in the past have been punished merely by fines. Furthermore, amendments to the Criminal Code had increased the penalties for drunken and reckless driving.

Another reason suggested for the increase in the population of the smaller county prisons was the recent intimation by the Attorney-General to magistrates that they must discontinue the practice of ordering vagrants to "get out of town". That old practice had virtually been stopped, Mr. Nixon explained, and therefore many more vagrants served jail terms. This was particularly applicable in Northern Ontario where the mining areas attracted "floaters".

The increase in population of Burwash Industrial Farm to an all-time high of 670 prisoners is attributable to the recent plan of segregating all "third offenders" in that institution, the minister explained.

SHAUGHNESSY, 55, SUCCUMBS TODAY

Served Overseas As Aide-de-Camp To Late Sir Arthur Currie

Montreal, Oct. 4 (CP) — Lord Shaughnessy, son of the first Baron Shaughnessy, late chairman of Canadian Pacific Railway Company, died in hospital today of double pneumonia. He was 55.

The younger Shaughnessy was born in Montreal Sept. 29, 1883 and received his early education at Bishop's College School at Lennoxville, Que., later attending McGill University and Laval University in Montreal and Trinity College, Cambridge, England.

On completion of his studies in 1910 he entered the law firm of Meredith, MacPherson, Hague and Holden, becoming a partner in 1912. Eight years later he was appointed King's Counsel.

Aide-De-Campe in War.

As Captain Adjutant he went overseas with the Irish Canadian Rangers and was transferred in France to general headquarters, Canadian section and later served as Aide-de-Campe to the late General Sir Arthur Currie.

In 1920 the Canadian Irish Rangers were amalgamated with the 199th Irish Canadian Rangers and Capt. Shaughnessy took command in the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel.

In addition to his law practice, Lord Shaughnessy was associated with a number of financial houses and served as director of the C.P.R. and West Kootenay Power and Light Company.

Survivors include three daughters and one son. His wife, Marian Laura Graham, niece of the late Lord Atholstan, died several years ago.

PROBE COMPLAINT LOSSES INCURRED

Ottawa, Oct. 4 (CP)—City council last night approved appointment of Dr. H. D. Brittain and Professor W. A. Mackenzie of Toronto to report on charges of Deputy City Treasurer F. R. L. Lazier that the city incurred losses on sinking fund investments made in 1935 on the advice of Commissioner of Finance G. P. Gordon. Dr. Brittain is director of the Citizens' research Institute of Canada and Professor Mackenzie is of the University of Toronto.

Berlin, Oct. 4 (AP)—Hopes are high among Berlin political and economic theorists that the world may look forward to an upsurge of prosperity, now that the war scare has dwindled.

They argue that the Munich fourpower accord on peace restored confidence among European nations.

Germany will profit from the industries and raw materials received by absorption of Czechoslovak Sudetenland, one informed economic spokesman acknowledged today. The Reich already has begun plans to link the newly acquired industries with the German four-year plan for economic independence.

Some contend the establishment of a long-term International Credit System could be the spring-board for adjustment of trade wars.

DALADIER GIVEN SWEEPING POWERS TO RULE FRANCE

Wants To Rule Country Without Parliament For Short Time

FINANCIAL TROUBLES

Paris, Oct. 4—(AP)—The Cabinet today unanimously approved Premier Edouard Daladier's plan for decree powers to "rebuild France's economy and finances".

The Premier's proposal, which was to be submitted to parliament after today's debate in the Munich four-power accord, was approved after two Cabinet meetings, the second meeting with President Albert Le-Brun.

The extent and nature of the powers to be demanded were not disclosed in the communique, which also declared the ministers had unanimously approved a declaration defending the Munich agreement which Daladier was to read in

Airliners Endangered When Power Supply on Landing Field Fails

Chicago, Oct. 4 (AP)—An accidental "blackout" of the Chicago Municipal Airport virtually paralyzed the crossroad of the United States Airlines during the rush hour last night.

A break in a power cable plunged the huge airfield in total darkness for more than an hour. The fourteen radios in the control tower went dead.

An American Air Line ship from New York, with Pilot Tommy Claude and First Officer Patrick Boyer at the controls, landed in the dark with the aid of flickering lanterns on the field.

Pilot J. H. Walker of another American Air Line plane, arriving from Fort Worth, Tex., with fifteen passengers aboard, stayed aloft for ten minutes and then prepared to land in the dark. The lights came on as he was half way down.

One Dead, Two Ill, Drank Soft Drinks, Flavor Extract Added

Montreal, Oct. 4 (CP)—Elie Beauvais, 43, of suburban Ville St. Pierre died last night and two youths were taken ill seriously from drinking soft drinks, police said today, to which a flavoring extract was added. An inquest will be held.

ROADS BLOCKED

All Airlines Cancelled Flights Due To Storm

London, Oct. 4 (CP Cable) — A fierce autumn gale swept the British Isles today, taking a toll of at least eight lives.

Three persons were killed and nine injured when a tree crashed through the roof of a double-decker bus in South London. The bus was filled with passengers bound for their day's work. It took two hours to release some of the victims.

A nearby tree smashed the roof of the house and wrecked the bed in which Julia Besley, 14, was asleep. She was not hurt.

3 BRITISH SHIPS BOMBED TODAY

Two Set Afire In Raid On Barcelona Waterfront—No Casualties

Madrid, Oct. 4 (AP)—Three British ships were struck by bombs today and two of them set afire in a renewal of Spanish Insurgent air raids along the Mediterranean coast of Government Spain.

Fourteen Savoia (Italian) type planes in a raid on the Barcelona waterfront bombed and set on fire the Thrope Bay, 2,182 tons, and the Gothic, 2,146 tons. No casualties were reported.

Lost Rings Found After Four Years; Dog Unearths Them

Gananoque, Ont., Oct. 4 (CP)—A Syracuse woman who declined to give her name returned home today with two diamond rings she lost here four years ago. She valued the rings at $1,000.

Mrs. Thomas Nelson of Gananoque found the rings while raking her lawn. They were in a bag and were undamaged. A dog was believed to have unearthed the rings from a hole in the ground.

Farm Girl Wears Dress First Time In 10 Years

Truro, N.S., Oct. 4 (CP)—When the Nova Scotia ploughing matches open here today one of the competitors will be a 20-year-old girl who wore a dress this summer for the first time in the past ten years. Roberta Ruddock can work better in slacks or breeches.

Miss Ruddock came to Canada from Colchester, England, ten years ago. Because of her continuous farm work she wouldn't find dresses very handy, she says.

Crosses Pacific in Chinese Junk After Battling Whales and Fog

Doctor And Bride Often Wished They Had Not Started On Voyage

MONTH OF GLOOM

Los Angeles, Oct. 4 (AP)—There were times, Dr. E. Allen Petersen admitted today, when he and his crew wished they had never started their 85-day crossing of the Pacific in a frail Chinese junk.

Refreshed after the first night in nearly three months spent in a bed which remained horizontal, instead of "bobbing around like a cork", the 37-year-old osteopath who turned sea captain recalled experiences of his voyage from the Orient to Southern California—much of it spent battling whales and fog.

Dr. Petersen, with his bride, Tana, California-born Japanese, consummated a long ambition when he brought the 36-foot junk Hummel-Hummel into San Pedro yesterday with two Russian youths, Nick Permanoff and Victor Ermeloff, as crewmen.

Fog was their biggest problem, the doctor said, for after two sunny days out of Yokohama, they went through a month of murky gloom, seeing neither sun nor stars.

As for the whales, they were present during most of the voyage.

"They were 70 or 80 feet long—twice as long as the boat. And they looked really vicious.

"We suddenly realized one day that we were surrounded by six of them. They were diving under the craft and we were afraid they would tip it over. They gave us some bad moments before deciding to swim away."

Great Britain Speeds up Rearmament in Effort to Preserve 'Munich Peace'

New Arms Campaign Will Include Some Form of Conscription

3 STEPS PROPOSED

Air Raid Protection Will Be Given First Consideration

London, Oct. 4.— (AP)— Great Britain speeded up rearmament today in an effort to preserve the "Munich Peace".

As opposition to Prime Minister Chamberlain's settlement of the German "Czechoslovak dispute entered its second day in the House of Commons, it was suggested freely that the new arms campaign would include some form of conscription.

Diplomatic circles said that even the Prime Minister was not prepared to believe that Chancellor Hitler had no more territorial demands in Europe, as the German Fuehrer asserted just before he, Mr. Chamberlain, Premier Mussolini and Premier Daladier of France agreed to split up Czechoslovakia as the price of peace.

Three Steps Expected

Three steps in British rearmament were expected in some quarters:

1—Increased air raid protection activity and a concerted effort to grow more food.

U. S. RAILROAD PRESS 15 P.C. CUT

Contend Average Pay of Workers In 1938 Highest Since 1916

Washington, Oct. 4 (AP)—United States railroads, defending their demand for a 15 per cent wage cut, contended today the average pay of their workers during the first half of 1938 was the highest in 22 years.

J. Elmer Monroe, statistician for the Association of American Railroads, gave to President Roosevelt's fact-finding board a table showing average earnings of $918.83 for rail workers in the first six months of this year, or an annual rate of $1,837.66.

This compared, Monroe said, with an average of $871.83 paid workers in the industry for the first six months of 1937 and an average of $1,781.21 for the year.

Monroe's figures showed, however, that despite the higher average pay per worker the roads' total payrolls for the first six months of this year were $126,183,570 under the $997,697,399 paid in wages in the first six months of 1937. This was accomplished by reducing the number of employees from 1,121,426 to 926,688.

A. J. WHITNEY DIES AT 86

Lethbridge, Alta., Oct. 4 (CP)—Albert James Whitney, 86, native of Kingston district in Ontario, who came west in 1881 and established a ranch at Kipp in 1883, died in hospital here yesterday. He is survived by a brother Fred, in Kingston.

HUNGARY PRESSES FOR ACTION IN NEW NOTE SENT

Reports of "Increased Czech Terror" Cause Bitter Feeling

ARMY IN CONTROL

Budapest, Oct. 4 (AP)—Numerous war veterans more than 45 years old had orders to report to the nearest army recruiting station today as the Hungarian government pressed its claim to Hungarian minorities of Czechoslovakia.

The requisition of certain raw materials and orders prohibiting the exports of metals, textiles, chemicals and leather were made known today, apparent indications that Hungary was preparing for all eventualities.

While the foreign office awaited Prague's answer to a note in which the immediate beginning of negotiations for the return of Hungarian territories was asked, a cabinet meeting was called for this afternoon to decide what measures should be taken should Czechoslovakia refuse to comply with Hungarian demands.

HUSBAND UNHEARD OF SINCE HURRICANE

St. Andrews East, Que., Oct. 4—(CP)—Mrs. Blanche Draper is seeking word of her husband, Norman E. Draper, 45-year-old Great War veteran unreported since he made a trip to Boston and other New England points about the time a hurricane swept the Atlantic coast last week.

He is a nephew of Gen. D. C. Draper, chief constable of Toronto police.

WOMAN IS JAILED ON DRIVING CHARGE

Saint John, N.B., Oct. 4.—(CP)—For the first time in this district a woman was sent to jail today for driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. A west Saint John resident, she was sentenced by Magistrate S. W. Palmer to seven days in jail.

VEHICULAR TRAFFIC IN PARK STOPPED

Vehicular traffic has been suspended on Victoria Park for the remainder of the current season and until such time as deemed necessary to reopen that Park for vehicles, Chairman W. A. Woodley of the Belleville Parks Commission announced today following a regular fortightly meeting of the Parks Board held last night. Victoria Park was opened to motorized and vehicular traffic this summer for the first time in many years and attracted hundreds of motorists, who enjoyed the cool breezes off the Bay of Quinte throughout the hot sweltering days of last summer. It is understood that the approach and main roadway will be repaired before vehicular traffic is again permitted on the park, however. In the meantime motor vehicles are prohibited from that area.

BLOOMFIELD BREEDER SELLS YOUNG BULL FOR PRICE OF $500.

Shades of the halcyon days for pure-blooded cattle breeders were brought back over the week-end when Fred Hubbs, prominent Holstein-Friesian breeder of Bloomfield, Ont., sold a fifteen-months-old blooded bull to Baron Von Trutschler, German breeder now living in England where he owns extensive breeding farms, for a reported price of five hundred dollars.

The baron, who has been in Canada for the past two months for the purpose of purchasing pure-bred Holstein stock, has bought over 330 head for his dairy farms. The highest price to date is said to be that paid to Mr. Hubbs.

GETS FREE COURSE FOR LUCKY GUESS

Ward Archer, popular Campbellford district resident, can have a free course at a Toronto business college if he wishes. He got the good news this week. While visiting the Toronto Exhibition this year Mr. Archer guessed within one figure the correct attendance at the Exhibition on September 7th. His guess was 77,777, and the correct figure was placed officially at 77,776.

LARGE QUANTITY APPLES BEING SHIPPED TO BRITISH ISLES

Largest consignments of apples since before the year of the "big trees were ruined in this central area trees wer ruined in this central area by killing temperatures in the winter of 1933 are now being shipped from this area to marketing points in the British Isles, it is reported by Mr. C. T. Stevenson, Inspector of the Fruits and Vegetables Branch of the local office of the Dominion Department of Agriculture. Trenton Cold Storage lately has been particularly active, shipping far heavier packings than for some time past.

Heaviest bulk of shipments are McIntosh apples for which there is a keen demand overseas, it is reported by the local office. Though almost all other varieties of eating apples this year are in extra demand owing to lighter shipments during recent years.

MANGEL CROPS ARE REPORTED GOOD

Farmers of the district are now busy harvesting root crops, potatoes and mangels particularly, according to the regular report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. The late potatoes are not considered a heavy crop, it is further stated. The mangel crop, however, is an extra good one. The buckwheat crop has not filled out too well in some sections, and the yield will be low. "There seems to be an increase in the acreage of fall wheat sown and the crop has a reasonably good start. In sections where alfalfa and red clover seed has been produced, a light production of seed will be shown this year," the report further notes. Lambs are well developed in most districts, and grass fed cattle are in splendid condition.

HUYCK'S PT. FARMER CAPTURES TIRED DUCKS

You don't have to be a duck-hunter to get your quota if you happen to live near Huyck's Point, according to George Vancleaf, and his son, who farm near the point of land that sticks out in Lake Ontario at this point.

For on Saturday morning, while the guns of hunters were blasting in the official season's opening a few miles away, Vancleaf and his son, noticed four ducks, apparently exhausted from a long flight, waddling about the beach, a short distance from their barns.

Too tired to fly, the ducks allowed themselves to be driven a distance of one hundred yards to a driveshed, where today they are enjoying meals furnished by their new owners.

OFFER PRIZES FOR BEST MAPLE LEAVES

School children and others of the city have turned to the old fashioned hobby of collecting brightly colored maple leaves following the announcement that $215 in prizes will be awarded in the sixth annual maple leaf contest which has been organized jointly by the Canadian Travel Bureau, the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Canadian National Railways. Each leaf must be mounted on a separate card, must be gathered in Canada and sent from a Canadian point. For protection, the leaves must be also packed flat between two pieces of stiff cardboard, with a sheet of paper accompanying.

TO PAY VISIT

Local Masonic fraternity will welcome to the city this evening J. C. Cooper of Picton, Grand Superintendent of District No. 11 Royal Arch Masons, who will pay his official visit to Moira Chapter, No. 7. A special program of entertainment has been prepared for the visiting Grand Superintendent and visiting brethren, in Masonic Hall.

JEWISH CITIZENS START YOM KIPPUR BEGINNING TONIGHT

At sunset this evening Jewry from throughout the city and immediate district will gather at the Pinnacle Street Synagogue where with the musical lament, Kol Nidre the annual 24 hours of prayer, fasting and meditation will commence. During the period which is officially observed as Yom Kippur, the Day of Atonement, supplication for forgiveness for the sins of themselves and the world will be asked. Services during the period will be under Rabbi B. Gerstel. The conclusion of this twenty-four hour period will mark the close of the ten days of penitence which began last week with Rosh Hashanah, the Jewish New Year.

Mrs. G. G. Ostrom Celebrates Her Ninetieth Birthday

On Wednesday, Sept. 28th, Mrs. George Gilbert Ostrom celebrated her ninetieth birthday with all the surviving members of her family and her granddaughter present.

She awoke at the dawn of day thankful that she had all her faculties and a song of praise to God on her lips.

At 1 o'clock all sat down to a sumptuous repast. The table was centred with a birthday cake decorated with "Happy Birthday" and ninety candles. After all did ample justice to the good things provided Mrs. Ostrom was called upon to speak. She replied affectionately stating she was very happy in having her family and granddaughter with her on this happy occasion. She was also very grateful that God had spared her and guided her all these years. She tried to do all she could both spiritual and temporal. She also thanked her many friends for the armfuls of flowers, gifts and congratulations. All present replied to Mrs. Ostrom's address with heartfelt thanks and appreciation.

During the afternoon readings were given by Mrs. Walton Eggleton, "Heavenly Love"; Mrs. Ernest Snider, "Revelation"; Mrs. Edward Phillips, Poems that live "The Oblation"; Mrs. Charles Cassidy "Follow the Star"; Miss Mildred Phillips! "A Granddaughter's Appreciation", also a piano selection.

Hymns of memories were sung such as "For the Beauty of the Earth", "For a Christian Mother," "Father in Heaven We Thank Thee" "Beaulah Land" and "To Wear a Starry Crown."

Then for half an hour we were all children again and childhood hour songs were sung such as "The Cold Water Song", "I met a Sweet Robin one Morning in May" and "Jolly Boys".

The home was artistically decorated with autumn leaves and flowers. The leaves to serve as an emblem of mothers life, the more beautiful as it fades. "God be with you till we meet again" was then sung and we left for our homes feeling it was good to be here.

Rotary Did Not Invent Service Idea

"A Newcomer Looks at Rotary" was the subject of a very interesting address given by Rev. H. L. Morrison of Tweed before Belleville Rotary Club Monday in the Hotel Quinte. The speaker was introduced by Rotarian W. J. Morrison, and Rotary appreciation was voiced by Rotarian Dr. A. C. Locke. Rotary has many useful functions, said the speaker, but does not claim to have invented the various services rendered humanity, most of which were being attended to by other organizations before service clubs were thought of. Rotary however, did find a useful place in bringing together representatives from various vocations in a common bond to spread high ideals in business and life generally. Rotary, in its rapid spread over the world, has proved its usefulness, and is co-operating for good with many organizations trying to promote world fellowship, help the unfortunate and encourage high ideals in business and life generally. The speaker went into the various ramifications of Rotary and its usefulnees to humanity, emphasizing the adoption of Rotary ethics in business tending to put business on a high plane of honesty and good service. Rotary did not discover the ideal of service—this had been practised in various ways years before Rotary was born, and functioned more or less efficiently. Rotary, however, took old ideals and expanded them to produce greater good to a greater number, and was glad to co-operate for good with all organizations seeking to help humanity.

Rev. Mr. Morrison is Past President of Kemptville Rotary Club, and brought to his subject a wide knowledge of Rotary in all its worldwide activities.

Guests present included: Rev. Dr. Bates of Tokyo, Japan; H. J. Cordy, Sulphide; D. T. Martin, Toronto; A. E. Cuff, Trenton; S. G. Green, Toronto; C. Gilbert, Napanee.

New members introduced and instructed by Past President R. J. E. Graham were Wm. Springer and Fred Houston.

Birthday congratulations were extended to Russel White, Alf. Baird and J. R. Guthridge.

HAROLD VAUGHAN NEW PRESIDENT

Y's Men's Club Hold Induction Meeting For Fall Term

President Harold Vaughan and his executive officers of the Belleville Y's Men's Club were inducted into office at the initial meeting of that club held following a lengthy summer vacation last night. Y'sman Newton Thompson, Past President of Y's Men's International, acted as the chief inducting officer of the night.

Following the installation of officers for the 1938 autumn semester, President Vaughan gave a detailed report on the annual Y's Men's International convention held this summer in Toronto. Y's Men delegates from all parts of the world were present, the Australian delegates getting the honors for travelling the greatest distance to attend the International conference. "Two things were stressed at this year's International meeting; first, world outlook and second, boys' work," related President Vaughan following which he introduced a plan for the extension of boys' work in the Belleville Y's Men's Club for 1938-39.

A depletion within its ranks due to former members leaving the city, resulted in a membership campaign being announced last night. Efforts to add at least ten new members throughout the month of October in an effort to replenish the club's membership were announced by Chairman Jack Wilson. The club will again sponsor its annual Hallowe'en Party, to which all children of the city are invited, as in former years the party will be held at the Y. M. C. A.

The officers installed into office for the ensuing year were: President, Harold Vaughan; Vice President, Lorne McDougall; Secretary, George Fisher; Treasurer, George Pauley. A hearty vote of thanks to retiring President, Lorne McDougall, was passed.

OBITUARY

LATE MISS MINNIE BROWNSON

Eldorado (Special)—On Tuesday evening, Sept. 27th, death came with startling suddenness to Miss Minnie Brownson, a resident of Eldorado. She had been in usual health and about her daily tasks till within about two hours of her death, she was working in the garden when stricken with a stroke, and in spite of all that medical aid could do she passed away in about two hours.

The late Miss Brownson was a daughter of Mrs. Emily Brownson and the late Simeon Brownson, and was born 54 years ago. She spent her whole life on the farm with her parents. She was of a guiet and kind disposition ever trying to make those happy she came in contact with.

Besides an aged mother who is in her ninetieth year, there are left to mourn 2 brothers, Murney of Toronto and Fred on the homestead, also a sister Maizie at home, two sisters Mrs. Charles Robinson and Blanche Brownson, also one brother Lyman predeceased her.

The funeral was held from her late home on Thursday afternoon to the Presbyterian Church, Madoc, where a large crowd gathered to pay their last respects. The lovely floral tributes were beautiful. Rev. W. A. Hunter, B.A., of St. Peter's Presbyterian Church conducted the service at the church and graveside.

The bearers were nephews Messrs. Daniel, Bruce, Frank and Arthur Robinson, James Keene and Simeon Brownson.

WILLIAM ETWERT HANNAH

William Etwert Hannah, who died as results of injuries received in a motortruck accident near Cobourg, Ont., on Monday, Oct. 3rd resided in Belleville for the past twenty years and for some time his residence was at No. 113 1-2 North Front Street. He was in his 34th year and was born in the County of Lennox and Addington; his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Huram W. Hannah. Before coming to reside in Belleville he made his home in Stirling.

William Etwert Hannah was popular with many friends and acquaintances to whom his sudden death has brought sincere feelings of regret. As an employee of the Canada Transport Company he was an efficient driver and held the confidence and esteem of the management.

Surviving him are his widow, who prior to her marriage was Miss Evelyn Rowe; two daughters, Dorothy and Barbara, at home; four sons, Corey, Clayton, Billy and Bobbie at home; six sisters, Mrs. Walter Quelch, Toronto; Mrs. Ernest Thompson, Murray Township; Miss Lottie Hannah, Belleville; Mrs. Warren Soules, Belleville; Mrs. Eddie Schrieder, Belleville; Mrs. Arthur Savage, Belleville; three brothers, Arnold Hannah, Toronto; Clayton Hannah and Nelson Hannah, both of Belleville.

Much sympathy is entertained for the family in their bereavement.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

2nd Thurlow

2nd Thurlow—A large number of Neighbors' Aid friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. A. Keene Laura and Ila met at their home on Wednesday evening, Sept. 29, with a delightful surprise party before leaving for their new home on College Hill.

Mrs. H. Grills called the gathering to order and the following address was read by Mr. Donald Leeming.

Belleville, Ont., Sept. 28, 1938

Mr. and Mrs. Keene, Laura and Ila:

We your neighbors and friends have learned with regret that you are leaving our community. Experience teaches us to expect changes. Madame Swetshine said "in this world of changes naught which comes stays, naught which goes is lost." We are sorry this change is our way but there is naught to do but submit, we shall miss you as friends and helpers in this neighborhood and school. As a token of our esteem and love we would ask you to receive this gift, may it at times remind you of your friends and neighbors and of the second line. We say good bye, for now but hope to still have the privilege of greeting you many more times. Farewell if ever fondest prayer for other weal, wailed on high, our will not all be lost in air, but waft thy name beyond the sky.

We need not wish you joy or cheer
God's love goes with you through the years,
And through each trial you may meet
His love will guide and cheer you all (unknown) the way.

And you Laura and Ila, we ask you to receive these lamps and rings as a token of love and esteem.

[illegible] on behalf of neighbors' Aid and friends, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Bunnett, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Atkins, Mrs. Harry Grills.

Mr. J. T. Bunnett on behalf of the friends and neighbors presented Mr. and Mrs. Keene with a lovely electric floor lamp and the Misses Doris Atkins and Irene Stolicker presented Laura and Ila each with electric dresser lamps and rings. All made suitable replies, thanking all for the gifts and invited them to come to see them in their new home. All sang "For they are jolly good fellows." The remainder of the evening was spent in cards and dancing. Coffee, cake and sandwiches were served and a social time enjoyed by all.

The many friends of Mr. Geo. Greatrix are very sorry to hear he is seriously ill at the home of his son Mr. Archie Greatrix.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Bales, Mrs. Ila Savage, Los Angeles, Cal., Mr. and Mrs. T. Hopkins, Belleville, Mrs. Norman Pollitt and Delores, Kingston, Mr. and Mrs. C. Clapp, Charles and Wayne, 3rd line, spent the tea hour with Mr. and Mrs. Harry Grills on Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Bowers, Mr. and Mrs. S. Bowers Sr., spent Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. Cronkwright, Thomasburg.

Mr. and Mrs. Potts spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. G. Atkins.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Plunder and Mr. and Mrs. Ted Plunder called on Mr. and Mrs. A. Keene on Sunday.

Miss Margaret Donaldson spent the weekend at her home here.

Several friends and relatives of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Howe, well equipped with cow bells, tin pans, etc., met about 8 o'clock and gave them a rousing old surprise, it being the 25th anniversary of their wedding. After hearty congratulations and hand shakes, progressive euchre was enjoyed. Prizes were given and Mrs. Eric Leeming won 1st, Mrs. S. Bunnett 2nd, Mr. J. T. Bunnett 1st and Mr. E. Leeming 2nd. Rawdon

Rawdon—Mrs. G. W. Hagerman and daughter Marjorie entertained sixteen friends in honor of Miss Frances McKeown on Wednesday afternoon. All enjoyed a round of games and several pictures of the group were taken. Miss Marjorie Hagerman read the following address:

Sept. 28, 1938

Dear Frances:

We have gathered here this afternoon to spend an hour or so with you before you leave for your new home. We are very sorry you are leaving our community but we are glad you are not going far and that we shall see you often. We shall miss you as you have always been a great friend and helper amongst us. You have enjoyed all sports and especially softball where you played a very important part. We all knew that without you our team was not complete. However what is our loss, is another's gain and we feel sure you will be the same friend and helper in your new community.

Frances, we trust and hope you will be very happy in your new home and as a slight token of our friendship we ask you to accept these few gifts and may they help you remember your girlhood days amongst us.

Signed on behalf of your girl friends, Dorothy Eggleton, Ruby Stapley, Irene Tucker, Marjorie Hagerman.

The guest of honour opened the various gifts which revealed a fine array of kitchen articles.

At this juncture Frances graciously thanked her girl friends for their kindness and invited one and all to visit her when she was settled in her new home near Sine. The hostess served a delicious luncheon of angel cake, cookies and ice cream.

REARMAMENT GOES ON

That the Munich Conference opened up fresh possibilities for disarmament was the momentous statement of Prime Minister Chamberlain in the British Commons yesterday. But the man who relentlessly continued his efforts for peace and succeeded in turning away the spectre of war, declared that "disarmament on the part of this country will never again be unilateral. We tried that once. It nearly brought us to disaster. If disarmament is to come it must come by steps and with the active co-operation of other nations." This was his view on the means to make the Munich pact effective and lasting.

He accompanied this with the statement that Britain will continue to build up the efficiency of its army and defences, yet believed that eventual disarmament would be possible as a result of the agreement at Munich.

That he believed it is not a far-off dream for centuries hence is clear from his statement that he hoped there still remains the time for him to conclude a disarmament agreement. He pictured a great day for the nations of Europe and the world when he said, "It is to such tasks as that, winning back of confidence, gradual removal of hostilities between nations till they feel they can discard their weapons one by one; it is to such tasks that I would wish to devote what energy may be left in me before I hand over my office to a younger man."

So far British rearmament has undoubtedly prevented war and strong forces may provide the security while the disarmament idea grows.

Those persons who prayed for the Empire and the world and peace, all those whose public efforts through their high offices helped to preserve peace today can read with pride these words of Mr. Chamberlain: "In my view the strongest force of all was that sense of the unmistakable unanimity among the peoples of the world that war somehow must be averted." It is not difficult to realize how strengthened he was by these evidences of the desire for a peaceful world for which he was battling. Then he shows his confidence: "This increasing desire for peace pervaded the whole atmosphere of the Munich conference." He went on to say that ever since he assumed his present office, his main purpose had been the pacification of Europe—to remove those animosities which have so long poisoned the air.

"I am too much of a realist to believe that we are going to achieve our paradise in a day. We have only laid the foundation of peace. The superstructure has not even begun." He realizes the task is a big one.

Britain has had one experience and is not to fall into the same error of reducing her armaments to the point of weakness and danger. "While we must renew our determination to build up the deficiencies that remain in our armaments and in our decisive precautions so that we may be ready to defend ourselves, I see fresh opportunities to approach disarmament opening up before us."

"I have nothing to be ashamed of," he could say, as he replied to some criticism from labor.

"I have nothing to withdraw or regret," he declared in reply to the attack on his policy by the resigned First Lord of the Admiralty, Mr. Duff Cooper. The debate goes on today.

"FOR THE REST OF OUR DAYS"

Such efforts as his have been made at sacrifice of Mr. Chamberlain's own rest and comfort. He pointed out yesterday how the grave crisis brought responsibilities to members of the Commons. "Some of us will carry the ma[illegible] of it for the rest of our days." It is to be hoped that Mr. Chamberlain will not be one who will feel permanent physical effects of the days through which he has passed. If ever a public man gave everything for what the world deems best—peace rather than war—he gave it. The Empire and the world will hope that his burdens may be henceforth much lighter and that the ordeal of those trying days and nights may leave his health of body unimpaired. But it is the burden which falls to public men, particularly public men with the highest sense of duty to the state.

"KNOW THYSELF"

"Know thyself" was the phrase which the old Athenian philosopher Socrates held as the supreme requirement of the individual.

Harvard University has launched a long-time study of "the forces which produce normal young men," which is a new type of medical research. Students will be chosen for the investigation, each one voluntarily subjecting himself to the study of causes of success. At least five years will be spent in the research among normal young men. The use of the word normal is applied to that combination of sentiments and physiological factors which in toto is interpreted as successful living.

As a statement explains, a "body of facts is needed to replace current suppositions. All of us need more 'do's' and less 'don'ts'. To this end the study proposes no innovation in the techniue of medicine." The study will apply generally accepted and existing methods to the case of the constitution and personality of well, successful young men.

TRAFFIC ACROSS THE NEW THOUSAND ISLAND BRIDGE has been as high as 4,000 motor cars in one day, and the boat ferries have felt the competition. Boat ferry fares were reduced to the same level as bridge dues but the traffic flocked at the bridge and two ferries went prematurely into winter quarters. The bridge will be illuminated and kept open all winter, which will be a great convenience to travellers who in past winters have had to wait for ice bridges to form in some places before being able to cross.

CYCLING IS COMING BACK TO CANADA, and bidding fair to attain its one-time popularity. Better roads encourage the return of cycling, the only flaw being the congestion of motor car traffic which adds danger to cycling not present in the old days. In this connection the Sports Goods Journal of Canada published the following TEN COMMANDMENTS FOR CYCLISTS:

1.—Keep to the right, near the curb. On narrow roads, or busy streets—ride single file.

2.—Meeting traffic, pass on right; overtaking traffic, pass on left.

4.—Raise one arm when stopping and slowing up and to indicate direction when turning.

5.—Ride straight. Don't wobble.

6.—Watch for STOP signs and traffic officers' signals.

7.—Give traffic coming from right the right-of-way at intersections.

8.—Do not hang on to moving vehicles.

9.—Don't "cut in" in front of a moving car.

10.—Keep your feet on the pedals—your hands on the handlebars. Always use a light at night.

AN IRISH COP IN CAMBRIDGE IS A CANDIDATE for delegate to the State Democratic convention—against his will bedad, for cops are not permitted to take part in politics down Boston way. And so, Thomas H. Leary, P.C., is asking folks not to vote for him and in a "Wrong Way Corrigan" manner is conducting a campaign which is almost sure to result in his being elected. Some one put his name on the ticket while he was away on vacation, and now Policeman Leary has added to his troubles a political campaign which he wants to lose, so he says. Leary is running on a platform of 'Be leery of Leary.' He says: "If elected, I will look out for myself." He says: "I promise to attend all dinners, funerals, weddings and beauty contests. If there is any time left over I will start investigations to get publicity." He says: 'Leary and Mrs. Leary first; relatives next; the public last." He will always be late for church, he says, so he will be sure to be seen there. He will call opponents every name he can think of, true or untrue. He says: "I will put up more signs saying "Men at Work." There won't be any more men working, but you will see more signs." Are these not fundamental principles—principles that shape the actions of 90 per cent. of all political candidates? Then why should they sound so funny? Officer Leary means his platform to be funny. The people take it that way. It is, as a matter of fact, hilarious. The truth, Gilbert Chesterton said, "is the funniest thing in the world."

SAMBO'S PRAYER

An old Negro servant was seen by his master cooking a fine turkey. The master, having his suspicions as to how the turkey was obtained, asked the Negro how he got it. The servant explained that he had prayed for it, and the master had to accept that statement. A few days later however, he told the servant that he had put his method of getting a turkey to the test—he had prayed for a turkey—and it had failed. How did the servant explain that? The old Negro was ready with his reply. His master had not prayed the right way evidently. For instance, if he (the servant) were to pray "Lord send Sambo a turkey," he got no turkey, but if he were to pray "Lord, send Sambo to get a turkey," he got one every time.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

OCT. 4TH, 1918

Former pupils of the Belleville High School, employed in the office of the Superintendent of the Grand Trunk Railway here, have not forgotten their school days, and their action in presenting a handsome silver cup for athletic competition is very commendable. The cup is to be retained by the Form in the school which obtains the highest number of points at the annual school field day and when won two years in succession by the same Form it becomes the property of that Form. The former pupils who presented the cup are A. A. Andrews, C. R. Bone, C. A. Boyd, H. H. Ferguson, W. H. Hart, H. J. Holland, Cecil Lent, A. G. Meagher, R. M. Ross, and T. C. Young.

The Intelligencer was shown today a large apple of the Wolfe River variety which was picked from a tree in Mr. W. S. Weese's orchard near Rednersville, in Prince Edward County. It weighed one pound and two ounces and was 14 inches in diameter.

Mr. Hugh McGillis left this morning for the west.

Mr. T. Blackburn will leave this evening for New York City on business.

THE WHITTLERS

Is whittling becoming a lost art? Not until vacation time when we watched a countryman leisurely and deftly reduce a pine stick to curly shavings with his jacknife did we realize how long since we'd seen a whittler before. In our boyhood, most everybody, man and boy, whittled and kept his knife sharp and shining. You sat on the milkstand by the barn or on the porch of the farmhouse or crossroads store and whittled — sometimes alone and often as you conversed with companions. If a neighbour pulled up beside the road with his horse and buggy and stopped under a shade tree, you put one foot restfully on the hub of a front wheel, and found a stick.

Most of the whittlers we remember, except a few who whittled out paddles, watch charms or other articles, semed to whittle just for the sake of whittling—just plain, pure relaxation, and let the shavings fall where they would. Not all whittling, however, was as simple and guileless as that. When Hiram Stebbins was cogitating a horse trade or wanted to buy your bay colt, he could whittle so nonchalantly that horse or colt seemed the farthest thing in creation from any thing that he wanted to possess—that is, if you didn't know Hiram.

Maybe a census of whitlers would show more of them left in villages and on farms than the city man thinks. If so, 'tis well. If whittling passed, something very American, neighbourly, and leisurely would go with it. It is needed to temper the tempo of today and continue its contributions to serenity and contentment as in simpler days.

SOCIAL RACCOON

The raccoon is a sociable little animal. He is an ideal family man, travels around with his wife and helps her to look after the children. He is rarely found alone. He is clean in his habits and when near water, washes his food before eating it, says Canada's Weekly.

The coon is a small cousin of the bear family, thickly built, a shaggy coat of grey-brown fur interspersed with yellowish and black hairs. The under-fur is dark and dense. He uses his toes, particularly those of the forefeet, much as a monkey uses his hands. The toes are long and well separated.

The coon of Canada is found mostly in western Britsih Columbia and in Ontario, Quebec and the Maritime provinces. He is an excellent climber and swims well. His favourite den is a hollow branch high up in a tree and well exposed to the sun, yet he hunts and obtains most of his food on the ground. He eats practically anything, from frogs to berries, and he is passionately fond of green corn, as the farmer well knows. He is nocturnal in his habits.

The coon coat is a favourite out-of-doors protection for the well-dressed Canadian and is also fashionable as a sports coat for the younger set. The number of pelts taken in Canada every year is about 25,000.—Hamilton Spectator.

FARMER ARTISANS

It would come as a shock to unthinking city dwellers to know what a variety of knowledge a successful farmer must include in his equipment before he can so much as begin to farm. He must be a chemist, a carpenter, a weather prophet, a farrier, a water diviner, a blacksmith, a doctor, a wheelwright, a bookkeeper, a veterinary surgeon, a bricklayer, a mechanic, a thatcher or tiler, a plasterer, and something of a linguist. When he has assimilated a sound working knowledge of these trades and professions the farmer may turn his attention to extracting the best from his lands. Then he has to make up his mind to specialize in whatever branch of agriculture his farm is best fitted for. If it be viticulture, or rearing slaughter cattle, or raising sheep, or growing the hundred-and-one necessities of existence, he is faced with a complexity of conditions and deterrents that a lifetime of study is all too short to exhaust. A glance through the Farmers' Supplement of the Sunday Times should be enough to convince the non-farming reader that the cultural background stressed by Mr. Botha never ceases to expand, and that the most exacting profession adopted by town dwellers is child's play by comparison with the book-learning needs o fthe agriculturist.—Johannesburg Times.

OLD DEBT PAID

The burden of a 38-year-old debt has, at last, been lifted from F. J. Proctor, who by endless toil, ceaseless saving and self-denial has paid his creditors in full.

In 1900 Proctor's grocery and butcher business failed and he filed his petition in bankruptcy. Since that time his one ambition has been to repay every cent of his debt, which, with interest, amounted to more than $2,000.

To do this Proctor and his family have gone without nearly all the luxuries and pleasures they normally would have enjoyed. Now that the debt has been paid, Proctor, now a grey-haired coal merchant of 65, is going to treat himself and his wife to their first holiday in forty years.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton M.D.

Men and Women are not Machines. They Have Personalities.

In these days when there is so much talk about psychiatry, which simply means the way we behave ourselves, it is well to recall the story of the country physician who was hurriedly called by a city psychiatrist to attend one of his former patients, a young woman in her twenties. The city physician had found it difficult to diagnose her case despite careful examination. When the country physician arrived he took the patient's pulse and temperature, carefully examined her heart, blood pressure, chest, and urine. He then asked her to lie on her abdomen and, without further examination or questioning, gave her a resounding spank as had likely been found necessary when she was younger.

The cure was complete.

It can be readily understood that the city physician could not know the patient or her history, nor could he likely get much information from such a patient despite long and patient questioning. He was at a great disadvantage.

Dr. G. H. Gundry, Ontario Hospital, Brockville, Canada, in the Canadian Medical Association Journal says:

"Psychiatry is that integral part of the art of medicine which has to do with the physician's knowledge of human nature, that knowledge which the family doctor intuitively uses in estimating the importance of signs and symptoms in his patients. He knows for instance, that one patient will make light of a condition that would seriously alarm another person. He knows that the symptoms of which his patients complain —heart, stomach, gall bladder, kidneys— are not due to any disturbance in these organs, but to anxiety and disappointment."

Dr. Gundry further points out that in these days of laboratory tests, Xrays, and other helps, together with putting together of the results of studies of heart, lungs, stomach and intestines, there is the danger that the patient as a human being will be forgotten. All these studies and findings are important and must be used in arriving at the nature of the ailment and the way it must be treated, but unless the individual himself, his personality, is studied carefully, the results in treatment are bound to be unsatisfactory.

In other words, men and women are not just machines and not merely animals, but are human beings with personalities.

THE STARLING

Forty years ago, we are told, a few English starlings were released in Central Park, New York City. Today there are millions of them throughout the eastern section of the United States and southern Canada. Have they any friends? As a rule, we have found them thought of by farmers and others as most objectionable visitors to our rural sections, and as veritable enemies of many other birds. However, Nature's News tells us that they are one of the most effective enemies of insect pests in this country. We do know that they are foes of blackbirds and also, to a certain degree, of martins, house wrens, robins and sparrows. Yet, investigations of the United States Biological Survey show that nearly half of their entire diet consists of insects, and that where the Japanese beetle has become a destructive insect pest, it has been found that practically all of the diet of the starlings consists of this pest.—Our Dumb Animals.

CIVILIZATION!

Seldom has the tawdriness of the New York crowd been shown up so completely as by the events surrounding the death plunge from the Gotham hotel. Here was a woung man with death at his elbow . . . and for long hours the crowds stood laughing, chatting, even wisecracking! There was the psychologist suggesting cruelly that the youth was exercising a crowd complex . . . the publicity-seeking young woman broadcasting, between giggles, the story of her vain attempts to bring him back from the ledge . . . the $100 radio offer . . . the jocular radio commentators! And those news pictures showing men and women standing in the presence of death, leering, grimacing and even waving at the cameras! And we wonder why certain barbaric tribes fight being civilized!—The Sun Dial.

TUNING UP FOR FISHING SCHOONER RACE

The fishing schooner, Gertrude Thebaud, skippered by famed Captain Ben Pine, inset, is shown here under sail as she engaged in a tune-up sail for the annual international race against the pick of the Canadian fishing fleet. Canada will be represented by the Bluenose of Lunenburg, Nova Scotia, with Captain Angus Walters, as skipper. The Bluenose and the Thebaud have split honors, each winning a race. This third contest, starting on October 9, may be the last.

THRILLING RESCUE AT SEA

Huddled in a lifeboat of the Deutschland is Mrs. Martha Bach (arrow) of Hubbard Woods, Ill., who was rescued after 20 minutes in the water. Mrs. Bach, depressed by events in Europe, plunged from port-hole of her cabin as the vessel approached New York.

RIVER DRUDGES

Mention is made in the August number of The P.L.A. Monthly of London's industrious collier fleet.

"Going up or down the river anywhere between the lower reaches and Wandsworth one is bound to meet with London's colliers. You may pass them stamping up with the tide, ducking under up-river bridges, moored alongside the coal jetties of the gas works and generating stations which they feed, waiting for the ebb tide to start off again to the Tyne or South Wales; or you may only hear their gruff answer to a tug's higher toot-toot, 'I am turning to port', in the middle of the night. Somehow these patient drudges of the stream are always at hand."—Hamilton Spectator.

2—New attempts to keep Hitler from dominating Yugoslavia (with which Germany reached a new commercial agreement yesterday), Poland, Rumania and Bulgaria by co-operating politically and economically with those countries.

3—New political and economical efforts in Czechoslovakia to try to keep what is left of that country from forming an alliance with Germany.

Home office officials considered it essential to press air raid protection activity now while the fear of last week's war scare still is fresh.

Take Lesson From Czechs

Both opposition and government members of parliament pointed out that the small continental nations could not fail to take a lesson from the fate of Czechoslovakia, forced to relinquish territory to Germany and Poland, and perhaps, Hungary.

An attempt was deemed possible also to regain the confidence of Russia by renewed British activity in trying to get foreign fighters out of Spain.

The visit of Lord Perth, British Ambassador to Rome, to Italian Foreign Minister Count Ciano was believed to foreshadow some important development in Italy's attitude toward the Spanish Civil War.

Vote on Wednesday

An indication of the Prime Minister's confidence of Parliament's support was seen in a government motion signed by Mr. Chamberlain, Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, and the Minister of the Colonies, Malcolm MacDonald. It will be voted on Wednesday when debate on Mr. Chamberlain's peace moves ends. It seeks a vote of support, declaring "that this house approves the policy of His Majesty's government by which war was averted in the recent crisis and supports their efforts to securing lasting peace."

Prime Minister Eamon De Valera of Eire called on Mr. Chamberlain on his way to Dublin from Geneva and gave the Prime Minister an account of the League of Nations session. In return, he got a first-hand story of the Munich agreement.

The two statesmen also reviewed the Anglo-Eire agreement.

Poet Laureate John Masefield gives credit to President Roosevelt for helping to save peace. In a letter to the Times today, Mr. Masefield said:

"Three things gave us our present peace: First, the heroic self-sacrifice of a proud and noble little nation; then the effort of our Prime Minister; and then, in large measure, the power of President Roosevelt's telegrams. Let this country never forget his magnificent, wise, timely and perhaps decisive intervention at an instant when peace seemed impossible."

Lloyd George to Speak

David Lloyd George was expected to speak in today's House of Commons debate, but it was understood Winston Churchill had postponed his speech until tomorrow, final day of the three-day debate.

The Government received from Premier Daladier of France a reply to Mr. Chamberlain's message of October 2, which reaffirmed the united front of Great Britain and France.

Daladier assured Mr. Chamberlain that Anglo-French co-operation was "not exclusive of any other understanding". Observers saw in this a hint that France as well as Great Britain might make independent settlements with the dictators.

It was Mr. Chamberlain's joint statement with Chancellor Hitler of Sept. 30 that led to this exchange of messages.

Wenzel Jaksch, leader of German Social Democrats (Anti-Nazis) in Czechoslovakia, arrived in London to discuss with Labor members of Parliament arrangements for helping German Social Democrats who are leaving their homes in Sudetenland zones that Germany is occupying.

HUNGARY PRESSES

Mass meetings in various parts of Hungary demanded immediate occupation of Czechoslovak territory inhabited by 800,000 Hungarians.

The government handed Czechoslovakia a new note last night asking negotiations at once and requesting guarantees that the discussions would be conducted in "the right atmosphere" to assure a quick solution.

Some newspapers declared Czechoslovak Legionnaires plundered and burned numerous Magyar-inhabited villages in southern Czechoslovakia. (The reports lacked confirmation.)

Dispatches from Bratislava said eight Hungarian-speaking recruits were shot there for insubordination.

No Indications of Move.

The travellers said they saw no indication that the Czechoslovak army intended to leave these so-called purely Hungarian districts, as the Hungarian government demanded, "unconditionally and immediately".

Reports from the Hungarian side of the Danube said Czechoslovak troops had reinforced barbed wire lines along the border and that additional war equipment was being brought up. Concrete walls were reported being built as protection against tanks on highways connecting Czechoslovakia and Hungary.

Premier Beld Imredi and other cabinet members assured the nation that Hungarian minorities would "soon be free from the Czech yoke".

Rich Mines, Forests.

A foreign office map showing locations of Magyars in Slovak territory in 1910 indicated some 8,000 square miles were populated then by Magyars. Other Hungarian statistics show about 4,000 square miles as peopled now by purely Hungarian minorities in 740 communities, beginning southeast of Bratislava and extending to the eastern corner of Czechoslovakia. The region is primarily agricultural but includes rich mines and forests.

EIGHT LIVES LOST

Shipping was endangered along all coasts. Telephone services were interrupted and roads blocked by trees. Pembroke recorded a gust of 93 miles per hour while the gale averaged 70 miles an hour in many districts.

The Margat lifeboat stood by the four-masted schooner Westward all night when the schooner was driven onto the sands. Later a tug took the Westward—the only windjammer holding a passenger-carrying licence—in tow.

South England Hard Hit.

The gale attained a velocity of more than 60 mile per hour around London. Southern England was the hardest hit. Channel service was disrupted for the Folkestone-Boulogne line.

The three killed in South London bus accident were Charles Baker, 60, O. Nutter, 60, and an unidentified man of about 55 years. The most seriously injured were William James Stone, 52, William Miller, 29, and Albert Scenling, 33, all of South Norwood.

Heavy rains began to fall yesterday in Glamorganshire, causing the Rhondda River to overflow its banks. Tregaford, in Wales, was flooded. Several women and children were reported marooned in their homes. Practically all communications in the Rhondda Valley were disrupted.

Other telephone lines to northwest England and to Dublin were down. Last night Bury St. Edmunds in Suffolk was in complete darkness for an hour when high tension lines were blown down.

Airlines cancelled all flights.

30 Families Homeless.

Two persons were drowned and 30 families rendered homeless when the river boundary wall at Trehafod, Pontypridd, collapsed. The breach in the wall released a torrent of water which in a few minutes reached a depth of five and six feet and forced residents into the upper storeys of their homes. The marooned families ultimately were rescued by rowboats.

Reports from the west coast of England described the gale as the worst since 1927. Nearly a mile of illuminated tableaux were wrecked on the north shore cliffs at Blackpool. More than 2,000 telephone lines were blown down in the area, roads were blocked by up-rooted trees, houses were unroofed, and other havoc was wrought to the extent of thousands of pounds.

Twenty cargo vessels were held up at the entrance to the River Mersey while passenger vessels between Ireland and the Isle of Man steamed for the nearest shelter.

DALADIER GIVEN

the Chamber of Deputies this afternoon.

One cabinet member said the Premier wanted decree powers to last until December 1. Daladier came into office April 10 with decree powers which expired July 31. Demand for full powers has been the traditional way for French governments to face financial difficulties.

The critical situation and the possibility of Daladier's demand almost overshadowed the stormy debate which the Premier faced in the Chamber of Deputies on his foreign policy, which gave France peace at the price of German expansion in Central Europe.

The most pressing problem facing the country was financial troubles caused by the tremendous expenses of mobilization and the precipitous flight of frightened capital from France.

Cost of mobilization and the hasty re-stocking of war supplies has been estimated at 10,000,000,000 to 15,000,000,000 francs about $269,700,000 to $404,550,000).

That drain, which more than exhausted the government's legal borrowing limits from the banks of France, was reflected in the fall of the franc yesterday to 178.98 to the British pound.

Rule by Decree

At the time of the last devaluation, the Premier assured the country the currency would not be allowed to drop below 179.00. Efforts of the Exchange Control Fund managed to halt the drop two centimes from the maximum on the official Paris Exchange but in London it went to 179.06.

There was little doubt Daladier would ask parliament for full power to rule by decree if he decided his parliamentary majority could be held in line.

Thirteen Opposed

Thirteen deputies, most of whom are bitterly opposed to the government, demanded the right to question the government, thereby disrupting Daladier's plans for a demonstration of the "Nation's solidarity".

In the face of formal interpolation demands—each of which carries the right to make an hour-long speech—the government revamped its program and was reported to have decided to demand a vote of confidence which it seemed certain to get, although the majority may be far from the unanimous approval Daladier sought.

500 CZECH TROOPS

Germany's first task if working out ways to diminish unemployment and put the Sudetenland industries—mining, porcelain, shoes, munitions—to work. The Reich did the same thing in the Saar Valley in 1935 and the annexation of Austria last spring.

One prospect is some sort of German-Czechoslovak trade affiliation. German trade experts express a desire to start soon financial negotiations with Czechoslovakia, particularly on the conversion of Czechoslovak money in Sudetenland into German currency.

The International Commission named by the Munich conferees is speeding preparations for plebiscites in disputed districts to establish definitely Czechoslovakia's new border lines.

Army headquarters here announced troops still were busy clearing away Czechoslovak mines, so that entry into the Sudeten area at will could not yet be permitted to all.

(An advance unit of German Black Guards (SS) surrounded more than 500 Czechoslovak soldiers at Falkenau yesterday. The Czechoslovaks were held for three hours, then permitted to depart without their motor equipment and arms. Czechoslovaks indicated they would protest to the International Commission.)

Press Analyses Explanation Given By Mr. Chamberlain

By Guy Rhoades
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 4—(CP Cable) — Great Britain's Press today analyzed Prime Minister Chamberlain's House of Commons explanation of his moves at Munich for "Peace in Our Time" and the opposition attacks upon it.

The Daily Mail (Independent) which editorially ignored Anthony Eden's expressed misgivings, declared Alfred Duff Cooper's reasons for resigning as First Lord of the Admiralty were heard in "critical silence".

It proclaimed the Prime Minister's assertion that disarmament by this country would never again be unilateral as "an urgent injunction to the nation to complete its defence schemes with the utmost speed."

The Mail said the speech had been broadcast from German radio stations.

"The dilemma of Socialists and Liberals was strikingly apparent in the speeches of Mr. (Clement) Attlee and Sir Archibald Sinclair (respectively Labor and Liberal leaders)", the paper continued.

"Both criticized the settlement as laying up trouble for the future, but neither explained what alternatives socialism or liberalism would have pursued.

"The people of Britain do not need enlightment on that score. The only alternative the opposition would have secured from the events of last week would have been an instantaneous plunge into a world war."

Daily Herald

The Daily Herald (Labor) which also ignored Mr. Eden, reminded Mr. Chamberlain of his words in last week's broadcast when he said: "I must confess I found Herr Hitler's attitude unreasonable."

The newspaper declared: "Mr. Chamberlain's memory must surely be short if he now is so ready to accept Herr Hitler as the apostle of reason and good will."

It called attention to Mr. Chamberlain's expression of belief "that sincerity and good will still exist" and said "we hope he is right but it is a slender thread upon which to hang foreign policy."

The Herald urged a world conference for settlement of all problems containing the danger of war, stressing that Russia should be invited. If the moment for such a conference were allowed to pass, it said, "we may lose the one opportunity which exists of freeing ourselves once and for all from the shadow of war."

Daily Express

The Daily Express, Independent and Isolationist, disapproved the loan of £10,000,000 which Mr. Chamberlain announced would be made to Czechoslovakia, declaring if it were made it would be in effect a "confession to wrong".

"We have done no wrong," the paper went on. "But even if we had this money would not wipe it out". It urged the money be spent in Britain to give work to the unemployed.

The Express noted there was anxiety in the Union of South Africa lest Southwest Africa, former German colony, should be lined up next for "redemption" by Chancellor Hitler.

It said such anxiety was natural "But let the South Africans back up their anxiety with arms—weapons of defence in plenty. And then if a day of conflict comes, those arms can take their place in our battle front."

Daily Telegraph

The Daily Telegraph (Conservative) took the view that the Munich agreement afforded a "respite" during which Britain must equip itself to ward off another such "humiliation as was imposed on Czechoslovakia

"In professing his confidence in the sincerity and goodwill behind the declaration which he and Herr Hitler had signed," the editorial said, "Mr. Chamberlain insisted, that it would not be safe for this country, because of this agreement, to relax her efforts for rearmament.

However much cause for misgiving and discontent there may be in recent events, they have afforded one assurance—that the significance of the moral forces which in the last few days gathered themselves to resist the march towards war is not one to be overlooked.

"Meanwhile it is never to be forgotten in this country, as Mr. Eden pointed out, that if war has been averted from us, a great injustice has at the same time been suffered by a small and friendly people, and there must be a sense of humiliation that we should have had to urge on that nation such proposals as were sanctioned at Munich.

"The conclusion is that such a humiliation must not be allowed to become unavoidable again, and democracy therefore must show itself capable of the necessary effort to meet any future challenge. . . ."

News Chronicle

The News-Chronicle (Liberal) called attention to speeches by Clement Attlee, Labor, and Sir Archibald Sinclair, Liberal, who had stated the present peace was only an armistice.

"But there is no need to turn to the speeches of the opposition leaders to show that this is the real result of the Munich talks," the paper said. "It is to be found in the speech of the Prime Minister himself at that point where he warned the country against supposing that we could relax our rearmament efforts.

"What a commentary on his claim to have brought back 'peace with honor'. For it is a poor peace indeed that requires to be supported by still more armament".

The newspaper supported Mr. Duff Cooper's stand that the only way to talk to dictators was with forceful language which was the only kind they understood.

"Mr. Duff Cooper was not the only member of the Cabinet who disapproved of the Government's handling of the crisis," it added, "but he was the only one who had the courage of his conviction to carry his opposition to the point of resignation."

The Times (Independent) concluded from yesterday's House of Commons proceeding that "the Government has small reason to fear the verdict upon his debate, either from parliament or from the country."

The newspaper declared the Munich agreement cannot be attacked "save by those who think animosity is the only virtue, and reject even an attempt to find a bridge between two peoples living under widely differing systems of government. Between the two countries there must either be cooperation or conflict, and conflict—and co-operation too—must involve all Europe."

COLLEGE STREET SCHOOL, TRENTON, WINS THE MEET

School Garners 72 Points Against Total of 57 For Dufferin St.

PACKED WITH THRILLS

Relay Race Won By College Street By Wide Margin

Special to The Ontario Intelligencer

Trenton, Oct. 4—Another chapter in the time-worn book of the age-old Dufferin-vs.-College Street public school rivalry in Trenton was written at Bayshore Park Saturday afternoon as more than a thousand young Canadians cheered and howled as athletic events were run off to determine for another year the holder of the Robert Weddell trophy offered for annual competition between the two schools.

With perfect autumn weather favouring the affair, the day was ideal and dozens of parents and friends lined the sides of the park as the youthful competitors strained muscles and nerves in their anxiety to help along the good cause.

This annual competition is based on the results of events held on the field day plus a few extra seasonal activities such as the annual hockey game in winter, the bicycle race, the boys' and girls' softball games, and the like.

This year's field day competition saw College Street school leading by a substantial number of points as the day ended, but by a margin considerably reduced over that of last year. Compilation of points gave College Street a total of 72 including those gained in the bicycle race, while Dufferin were a bare fifteen points behind them with 57. On this basis the outcome of softball and hockey games is very important, and Dufferin are far from being out of the running.

The afternoon's sports were packed with thrills. In the inter-school boys' and girls' tug-of-war both teams gained one pull before the issue was decided. Curiously enough it was the team facing the sun that lost each pull.

In the boys' relay race Dufferin got away to a nice lead as the first runner made his lap only to have the second member of the team fall as he grasped the baton. As a result College Street runners took over an insurmountable lead and won the event with twenty yards to spare.

The girls' relay was similar as almost identically the same thing occurred; but College Street generously volunteered to run the race over again, and in the repeat event Dufferin won handily.

Loudspeakers along the stands kept the crowd informed of points and of events, and school yells were much in evidence.

Included in the list of officials in charge of the day were the following: Judges: Rev. F. A. Smith, Rev. Chas. Dougan, Rev. J. U. Robins, Rev. G. D. Campbell, Capt. Thomson; official recorders; Misses Nelson, Porter, Ste. Croix, and Fowler; announcers, Reg. Montgomery, J. E. McKibbon; starter of events, Ross Burtt and Jesse Baker; trustees of cup: W. B. McClung, O. G. Alyea; sports committee: R. E. Whiley, chairman, and W. D. Whyte, H. S. Campbell, V. P. Carswell, F. W. Sherbert, Reg. Armstrong, secretary.

Among the events and winners of events were the following: (D denotes Dufferin pupil and C denotes College Street). Fast bicycle race, Gerald Farrar D, Harold Moon C, Charles Allison D; Tug of war, College Street; Boys' relay race, College Street; Girls' relay race, Dufferin; 40 yard dash for boys' 6 and 7; James Kirk C, Billy Jones D, J. Other events will be staged as the season allows for them with softball games being played at Bayshore Park on Wednesday, October 5th at 2.30 p.m. and with Ross Burtt, Jesse Baker, and Martin Kennedy as umpires. Basketball will be played at Dufferin school grounds on Friday, Oct. 14th, at 4.15 p.m. with Mrs. Shaw McEwen as referee.

Madoc

Madoc—In honour of Miss Margaret Nickle whose marriage takes place shortly, Mrs. R. C. Cummings and Miss Nora Nayler entertained at a supper and shower at the former's home. The table was tastefully decorated with autumn flowers.

Following the supper Miss Nickle was presented with many lovely cups and saucers. These were brought in to the drawing room on a suitably decorated dinner wagon. Miss Nickle thanked the guests very charmingly for the gifts she had received.

Miss Pratt of Moose Jaw, Sask., visited Madoc last week. Mrs. Pratt was formerly Miss Stella McConnell and a former resident of Madoc. This is her first visit to Madoc in thirty two years.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Hart and little daughter Catharine, visited Mr. and Mrs. Anglin over the week end.

Mrs. J. Forester of Tweed is visiting friends in Madoc.

Mrs. Osborne of Toronto is visiting Mrs. Alex Moon, Madoc township.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Devolin of North Bay visited at the home of his father Mr. Robert Devolin, Madoc Township during the week.

HOLLOWAY ST. CHURCH HOLDS ANNUAL S. SCHOOL RALLY

The annual Sunday School rally of Holloway Street United Church was featured by the attendance of 110 pupils and parents and held in the Church Sunday School rooms on Sunday.

Contributing to the fine musical program were selections by the junior choir under the direction of Mr. Anglin and a solo by Miss Phyllis May. The guest speaker of the afternoon was Mr. George Dixon, who spoke on "Jesus' leadership in service."

The history of the Bible was graphically given by four pupils, Evelyn Anderson, Rosa Green,

Officials attributed our to the fact the westbou... speed did not slacken quickly ... to avoid a crash. It had slowed, however, to four miles an hour and only the ponderous weight of its 70-car train caused it to forge into the standing train.

Mayor Bone to Seek Re-election for 1939 Mayorality-Office

Confident that he has made good his pre-election pledge to electors of Belleville that he would reduce taxes this year, and that he requires at least one more year in office to put into effect other reforms which will be of direct benefit to taxpayers of Belleville, Mayor Jamieson Bone this morning announced his intention of again offering himself for re-election for the year 1939.

"Whether I will have any opposition or not, I intend to again offer myself. My work has not been finished yet, and I need at least one more term to clear up much which lies ahead during the coming year," Mayor Bone definitely committed himself.

"I stand on my record of the past year. I believe that I have carried out what I promised to do on the eve of my last election. I have brought some relief to taxpayers of Belleville, and if given another term, I believe that much more good of this nature can be accomplished."

His decision to offer himself for a second term was influenced by the request of many electors that he do so, stated the Mayor.

MARRIAGE NOTICE

THOMSON—SANDERCOCK — On June 8, 1938, Evelyn Phyllis Sandercock and Hugh Paton Thomson, were united in marriage by Rev. H. B. Johnston at Sidney United Church parsonage.

The condition of Mr. James Varley, who is a patient in Christie Street Hospital, Toronto, is somewhat improved.

Mrs. W. Dafoe, Regina, has been the guest of Mrs. Margaret Green, James Street.

Mr. W. E. Sculthorpe and family of Rochester, N.Y., were the guests of his brother, Mr. O. T. Sculthorpe, 426 Bleecker Ave., over the week-end.

Mrs. E. R. Logie left today for London to attend the Dominion annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Church of England.

Mrs. H. R. Cory and Mrs. W. J. Spicer of Trenton, Mrs. D. Ruttan, Mrs. H. R. Ruttan and Mrs. George Hicks of Picton, will represent this district at the annual meeting of the Ontario W.C.T.U. being held in Hamilton this week.

The regular meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held last evening in the Academy with the President, Mrs A. B. Collins in the chair Rt. Rev. J. F. Nicolson, V.G., addressed the members, stressing the national aspect of League work.

Dr. and Mrs. A. W. Brown, who have been residents of Cornwall, Ont., for the past seventeen years, celebrated the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage on Sept. 30, when about thirty of their friends took them completely by surprise and gathered at their home 219 Augustus Street to congratulate them. A suitable address was read and a large Sheffield tray was presented and a beautiful bouquet of flowers. Dr. and Mrs. Brown received many other beautiful gifts of silverware. Mrs. A. W. Brown, before her marriage was Stella Luffman, daughter of Mr. W. H. and Mrs. Luffman, 213 Dundas Street, Belleville and Dr. Brown is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Brown, formerly of 30 Forin Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Moore, 160 George Street, have returned from a visit to Mr. Moore's son, Dr. Maurice R. Moore, B.A., M.D., C.M., Norwich, Connecticut. They were accompanied home by Dr. Moore and his wife, who after a brief visit in Belleville, journeyed to Fergus, the former home of Mrs. (Dr.) Moore, where they are visiting relatives before returning to their home in Norwich. Dr. Moore is a graduate of Queen's University, and has been located in Connecticut for the past five years where he is Pathologist for the Connecticut State Hospital, Norwich Hospital and New London Hospital. Shortly after Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Moore reached Connecticut the disastrous hurricane which recently swept the Atlantic coast and caused so much damage and loss of life, began. Giant trees were uprooted, especially the famous elms of Connecticut, many of which [illegible] in the terrific [illegible] lifted and [illegible] summer [illegible]

Facial Pack Restful to Nerves

NAN WYNN
Is noted for her clear and lovely complexion

By HELEN FOLLETT

Have you had a disturbing day with the cook leaving, or the baby refusing to take his nap, or odious Aunt Milly writing you that she's coming for a long stay? Forget it all, turn your mind to beautifying tasks. They will boost your spirits, lift the drooping lip ends.

That's a good time to give yourself a face pack. When you have a brand-new complexion, life won't seem bitter.

Get out your can of almond meal —it should be in every beauty cabinet—and mix some with enough olive oil to form a paste the consistency of whipped cream. If a few scattered freckles are camping on your nose, add a teaspoonful of lemon juice.

Give your portrait a thorough scouring with warm water and soap, rinsing away the suds with warm water. Dry gently, spread on the pack with your fingers or a silver table knife. You'll look like something that has crawled out from under a stone, but don't you care.

Pick up your mystery story, let the mask remain on for three minutes. Wipe it away with moistened gauze, lave with witch hazel. A five minute massage with a heavy cream is a nice finishing touch.

To strengthen the long arch of the foot, walk on the toes. Throw all your friendly old slippers into the trash basket. Shoes that provide no support for the waist of the foot, or have lost their outlines are an abomination.

Another means of correcting foot troubles is to lift up on the toes, come slowly down on the heels. Do this 40 times night and morning. The foot is a marvelous mechanism, and it is dreadfully abused. Some women are on their feet too much, causing strain, others who never exercise find that tendons and muscles are impaired.

Be good to your footies and they'll be good to you.

St. Michael's Benevolent Society Elects Officers

At the annual meeting yesterday afternoon of the Benevolent Society of St. Michael's Church, held at the home of the President, Mrs. F. S. Anderson, John Street, reports were presented by the various officers, revealing a busy year in the splendid work of the organization.

Rt. Rev. J. F. Nicholson, V.G., who was present congratulated the officers and members on the success of the past year and gave an interesting talk on "Charity".

Officers elected yesterday were— [illegible] President—Mrs. L. P. [illegible] L. Foltz. [illegible]son. [illegible]

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

(Copyright, 1937, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

The Wedding Processional and Recessional

Today's "smart" wedding usually follows a certain conventional pattern in the formation of the processional and recessional. And these basic suggestions are adhered to whether the wedding is formal or informal, elaborate or simple, large or small, a church or house wedding.

This is the usual order of the processional: Ushers, walking together, two by two, the shortest leading.

Maid of honor or matron of honor walking alone.

Bride with her father. Bride walks at right of her father.

And here are the answers to some of the questions that may be in your mind;

First, in the well-planned wedding of today, the bridesmaids are not "paired off" with the ushers in either the processional or recessional.

There should be an even number of ushers—two, four, six, eight—and an even number of bridesmaids. But it is not necessary to have the same number of bridesmaids and usher; that is, you may have four bridesmaids and six ushers, or two bridemaids and eight ushers.

Usually there is only one "honor" attendant, the maid of honor, who walks alone. If the bride decides to have both a maid of honor and a matron of honor, or two maids of honor, they may be dressed alike and walk alone, the one closer to the bride in relationship or friendship (the actual witness) directly preceding the bride and her father.

If there is a flower girl, she walks between the chief honor attendant and the bride. If there are two flower girls, they walk together. If there are pages (seldom seen now) they walk after the bride, holding up her train.

Nowadays attendants of either the bride or the groom may be either married or unmarried. And if an attendant of the groom—his best man, for instance—is married, it is not necessary that the bride invite his wife to be one of her attendants. And, in the same way, it is not necessary for the groom to invite as one of his attendants the husband of the bride's matron of honor, or any other married attendant.

There should be even spaces (about six feet) between the pairs of ushers and an interval of eight feet before the entrance of the bridesmaids. Another interval of eight feet...... then comes the maid of honor. Eight feet behind her are the bride and her father, the bride on the right arm of her father.

Whether the ceremony is performed in church or at home, the procession is exactly the same. (In a house wedding there is no recessional.)

At the first note of the wedding march, the clergyman comes from the vestry and enters the chancel. In a house or hotel wedding, he enters by a door specified for convenience. In either case, he is followed by the bridegroom, and, a pace behind the bridegroom, and a pace to the right, the best man.

The Recessional

At a church wedding the recessional is the reverse of the processional. In the smart wedding there is only one couple—the bride and bridegroom. In the pageantry of the recessional, there is a dramatic value in having the highlight concentrated on only one couple.

This is the usual order of the recessional:

Bride and bridegroom, the bride on her husband's right arm.

Maid of honor or matron of honor, walking alone.

Bridesmaids, walking together, two by two.

Ushers, walking together, two by two.

If there are flower girls, they walk directly after the bride and the bridegroom.

It is not incorrect for the maid of honor to walk with the best man and it is not incorrect for the bridesmaids and ushers to walk together.... but in a really "smart" wedding this is not done.

As the recessional starts down the aisle, the best man usually goes to the vestry to perform the duties that have been assigned to him: to hand to the clergyman the fee that has been given to him by the bridegroom; to arrange for the transportation of the clergyman (or the clergyman and his wife, if he has one), to the reception, and, if other arrangements have not been made, to take the bridegroom's hat and coat to the car at the front of the church.

Small Home Wedding Luncheon

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

With regard to a wedding luncheon where the bride's mother lives in a small apartment and is a widow, is it quite good form for her to have a small reception for her daughter at a tea room, or would it be just as good, or better, to have a caterer at the groom's home? The groom's home is in a small town where they seem to demand exactness. Friends here in the city are interested and want it in good taste.

H.

It would not be in good taste for you to have the reception in the groom's home. This is the responsibility of the bride's family, and you and your mother would show the best taste if you plan this to take place in your own home, if this is at all possible (it can be as simple as you wish), or, if this isn't possible, in a private dining-room in a hotel or in a tea room.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners submitted by readers.)

Modern College Girl Looks Feminine Appealing But Knows Everything

(Copyright, 1938, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

There must have been hundreds of college girls at one of the style shows we recently attended, and while the show in itself was intensely interesting, (it would have to be, with Marjorie Hillis the speaker) we found it a good opportunity to study the girls themselves at close range.

They are different from the girls of a few years ago, not quite so blase, but feminine and well dressed. They really were lovely in their smart Fall colors and styles and there were only a few of the unusual types such as Miss Hillis described as "too exotic and glamorous for anyone who expected to be popular." She told them to avoid the kind of garb and glamor that stops traffic, and that sirens were definitely old-fashioned.

While young models strutted about in day and evening clothes of the last word in style, the clever Miss Hillis told them about types and just what kind of clothes certain types would select. She believes every girl who aspires to a certain type should first study herself, even write down all her own personal characteristics, then she will be better able to decide her own best type.

"You will never be so attractive in trying to look and act just like someone else, even though she may be a real glamor girl, as if you followed your own natural self," Miss Hillis said, "but when one decides to be a certain type, then the dress and everything else must conform with it."

There is always a temptation among the very young to adopt the slinky hard lines when the feminine soft ruffly styles are so much more appealing. The girls who affect the too "tweedy-tweeds" along with the mannish collars and severe hats are usually the ones who fail to get the bids to the smart dances and interesting week-end parties.

"They seem to look too educated and serious, but don't think for a moment any girl can be dumb and popular nowadays. She must know everything but try not to look as if she did," warns the smart Marjorie.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

(Copyright, 1938, King Features Features, Inc.)

THE SLIM AND TRIM will go for that smart reefer of black Persian lamb. It has a collar extending into long, squared revers at the front and self-covered buttons, four down each side.

THE RIGHT WORD for those huge velvet berets is difficult to achieve, Romantic, picturesque and becoming certainly tell something of the story. A beauty is an enormous profile beret of russet colored velvet with an ostrich plume of the same shade low at the side.

GATHERING OF THE CLANS is now on as Scottish plaids become increasingly popular in the mode. Many of the nicest plaid woolens have trig bodices, pleated skirts and fitted jackets of velveteen.

NEW DETAILS mark the new fur coats. A beauty of a mink coat has a standing collar which extends into tuxedo revers. The wide sleeves have tucked detail to the elbow.

Don't Belittle Interests of A Child

Co-operate With Him In Any Matters He Thinks Important

By LISA GRENELLE

HARRY HAD been difficult all summer—difficult, disagreeable and discontented. But no one but Aunt Maimie connected it with the post-office and Mother's refusal in the early summer to allow Harry to go for the evening mail.

Mother, quite sensibly, had refused because there was no evening mail. Nothing ever came in the evening mail. Anyway, wasn't once a day enough to be deluged with bills and such? Mother could gladly wait for her mail.

Still, Harry had persisted in trying to make himself useful by going for the evening mail. "After all, Mother," he said, "there might be something. You never can tell. Other people get letters by the evening mail—other families—all my friends go."

Whereupon Aunt Maimie understood, but not Mother.

Aunt Maimie could bear it no longer. "Want to do something for me, Harry?" she said. "I'm expecting an important letter by the evening mail—"

Harry's face lit up. "Sure," he said, "sure—I'll get it." And off he went a full half hour ahead of time.

Of course, no letter for Aunt Maimie had arrived. But that, as you may have gathered, was not the point at all.

Had Own Motive

The point was that next day Harry was very busy. He had so many dates that he hardly had time in between for his meals and almost failed to be back in time to go for the evening mail. He went, however, saying there might be a letter for Aunt Maimie.

Here is the reason he fussed: All social arrangement were made and planned, in Harry's set, at the post-office, waiting for the evening mail. If you weren't there, it was just too bad; you got left out.

Why is it that in so many younger sets you can't telephone or be telephoned to—why you can't drop by and just ask a pal whether he'd care to go fishing or have a game of tennis? I don't know. I have asked and received only a shocked, "Oh, you couldn't do that!" In other words, I gather it isn't done.

But let us not scoff too readily. For, we, too, from a detached and unprejudiced eye, have strange and not very sensible customs upon which our social success rests.

So if Jimmie and Janie suddenly express a desire to go to the drug store for you or get into a dither if they can't go to the club at a certain hour, don't be alarmed or impatient or be tempted to ridicule —and don't argue, but co-operate, for it is important, though it may not seem so to you.

Tweed Consolidated School Closed Due To Scarlet Fever

Tweed, Oct. 4.—(Special)—Tweed Consolidated School was ordered closed, by the village Medical Officer of Health, Dr. M. G. Dales, today following the death of ten-year-old Ross Kleinsteuber, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Kleinsteuber of Lodgeroom. Young Kleinsteuber was stricken with scarlet fever last Friday and died yesterday, it was announced here by the village Medical Officer following the order to close the school.

Mr. S. H. Connor, principal of the School, stated today that unless the contagion spreads, the Medical Officer of Health, would allow the school to be opened one week hence. A sister of the deceased youth is showing mild symptoms of the disease, but otherwise there are no reports of other cases throughout this district.

The deceased child was ten years of age and considered one of the brightest students in the school being in Grade Four. The death of the lad was keenly felt by all residents of Lodgeroom, where he resided with his parents.

The Stars Say—

For Wednesday, October 5.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

AN INTERESTING DAY, but one in which personal indulgence in pleasure or social engagements may lure from the more sordid or commonplace activities, is read from the ruling planetary directions. Friendship, comradeship or more sentimental or romantic ties may be paramount and incite to extravagance.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a pleasant and rather merry year, in which social, romantic or domestic matters may be paramount. Indulgence, show and bids for the limelight may create financial stringency or embarrassments.

A child born on this day may have very high ambitions for prestige, and personal popularity, bidding high for friendship, social or conspicuous standing rather than commonplace objectives.

LEADS "INVADERS"

FIREMEN'S BALL IN ARMOURIES COLORFUL EVENT

Magnificent Sum Raised By Department For Needy In City

MANY PRIZES GIVEN

In a brilliant colorful setting enhanced by the red, white and blue of bunting, with festoons of blue, green and white decorations forming a canopy, that reflected the soft lights of gay Japanese lanterns, upwards of 1,000 people enjoyed the hospitality of Chief William Lynch, Deputy Chief Gerald Vance and members of the Belleville Fire Department, at the annual Firemen's Ball held in the armouries last night.

It was a gala occasion; one that not only brought out to the full the splendid ability of Belleville's firefighters as hosts, but also the splendid response of the general public to a cause, that annually brings Christmas cheer to hundreds of families and children, who otherwise would not be blessed with the gifts emblematic of that festive season.

There was not a dull moment. Firemen resplendent in the blue and brass of their calling saw to that. From the time the gong announced the commencement of play at the many tables of euchre and bridge until the members of Tommy Mason's orchestra played the National Anthem in the early hours of the morning, there was gaiety. Indicative of the organizing ability of the committee in charge, was the easy sequence with which the various events were run off. It was a standout party, and everyone enjoyed themselves.

Plenty of Variety

There was variety aplenty. Balloon dances, and prizes given for them. Novelty dances, vaudeville outstanding in which was the brilliant voice of young Jackie Marsh, Belleville's Bobby Breen, and other events.

At midnight, a delectable lunch was served by members of the department, assisted by the ladies auxiliary.

The ball was officially opened by Mayor Jamieson Bone, shortly after eight-thirty o'clock. Five hundred people ready to inaugurate the cards end of the ball stood silent as His Worship paid tribute to a gallant band of citizens, who although dressed in the blue and brass the fire department stood ready to serve at a moment's notice.

"I compliment Chairman Laurie Lewis, and Fire Chief William Lynch on the high state of efficiency of the Belleville Fire Department," the mayor said in his opening remarks. "It is a grand thing to know that a civic department is interested in other people than themselves.

Tribute Paid to Brigade

Chairman of Fire Committee Alderman Laurie Lewis, paid a sterling tribute to the Fire Department. "Thank God for the Fire Department," he said, "whose personnel is obliged to society.

"They, are meeting their obligations to such a society by conducting such affairs as these. Their problems, besides looking after people like you and me and self-imposed ones at that are looking after crippled and underpriveleged children, and families at Christmas time, which otherwise would not know what Christmas was all about. Again I say, "Thank God for the Fire Department."

To the gay rhythms of Tommy Mason's orchestra dancing was indulged in until the early morning hours.

In a brief address Chief Lynch, voiced his appreciation of the splendid response of the general public. "We have taken in a magnificent sum, one that will bring cheer to a large number of families and children," he said, "and I would like to express the appreciation of myself and the members of my department for the fine turnout."

HOLLOWAY ST. CHURCH HOLDS ANNUAL S. SCHOOL RALLY

The annual Sunday School rally of Holloway Street United Church was featured by the attendance of 110 pupils and parents and held in the Church Sunday School rooms on Sunday.

Contributing to the fine musical program were selections by the junior choir under the direction of Mr. Anglin and a solo by Miss Phyllis May. The guest speaker of the afternoon was Mr. George Dixon, who spoke on "Jesus' leadership in service."

The history of the Bible was graphically given by four pupils, Evelyn Anderson, Rosa Green, Norma Sexsmith and Allan Green. Allan Lennox led the day's singing while the meeting closed with a few remarks from Rev. R. E. Newman, pastor of the church.

THREE CARS BURN AFTER COLLISION

Moving Freight Piles Into Rear of Fruit Train At Stoney Creek

Hamilton, Oct. 4 (CP)—Crew of a giant Canadian National Railway locomotive escaped unscathed today when the westbound Toronto-Fort Erie freight train it was hauling crashed into the rear end of a standing fruit train on the main line at Stoney Creek and became the centre of the blaze that quickly spread through the tangle of splintered wood.

Five cars of the fruit train were wrecked, the caboose and two cars loaded with grapes being destroyed by fire. Two other loaded refrigerator cars were overturned on the south tracks. Traffic over the subdivision was blocked for four hours, replacement of several tracks being necessary after the wreckage was removed.

Four Escape Injury.

Four men who were riding in box cars on the westbound freight escaped injury.

A third freight train that was standing on the south track, awaiting clearance to use a passing track, missed being involved in the wreck by inches. Its crew immediately sped to Winona, switched over to the north track and returned, hauling the heavy locomotive from the tangle of burning cars. The solid iron units at the front end of the mogul were white hot and scores of ties were ignited as the engine was moved clear of the fire.

Officials attributed the accident to the fact the westbound freight's speed did not slacken quickly enough to avoid a crash. It had slowed, however, to four miles an hour and only the ponderous weight of its 70-car train caused it to forge into the standing train.

Mayor Bone to Seek Re-election for 1939 Mayorality-Office

Confident that he has made good his pre-election pledge to electors of Belleville that he would reduce taxes this year, and that he requires at least one more year in office to put into effect other reforms which will be of direct benefit to taxpayers of Belleville, Mayor Jamieson Bone this morning announced his intention of again offering himself for re-election for the year 1939.

"Whether I will have any opposition or not, I intend to again offer myself. My work has not been finished yet, and I need at least one more term to clear up much which lies ahead during the coming year," Mayor Bone definitely committed himself.

"I stand on my record of the past year. I believe that I have carried out what I promised to do on the eve of my last election. I have brought some relief to taxpayers of Belleville, and if given another term, I believe that much more good of this nature can be accomplished."

His decision to offer himself for a second term was influenced by the request of many electors that he do so, stated the Mayor.

Bill Lee and Lefty Gomez Likely Starting Pitchers in World Series

Yankees and Cubs Prepare For World Series by Holding Practices at Wrigley Field

Cubs Given Tumultuous Welcome On Arrival From St. Louis

LITTLE BETTING

Bill Lee And Vernon Gomez Will Likely Be Starting Hurlers

YANKEES .. ..
(By Gayle Talbot, Associated Press Sports Writer).

Chicago, Oct. 4 (AP)—New York Yankees, fresh off the train, join the Cubs in a final workout at Wrigley Field today in preparation for tomorrow's opening game of the 1938 World Series, which is certain to be witnessed by a capacity throng of 44,000.

The Cubs, still picking ticker tape out of their hair from the rousing welcome home given them yesterday, chose to do their limbering-up before noon and then turn the park over to the visiting firemen from the American League.

Town Quite Excited

The town is pretty much excited about the big event which has dropped so suddenly and dramatically into its lap. Hotels already are crammed and tickets for the first two games here are understood to be getting scarce. There isn't much betting. The locals think their club, on the crest of a great winning streak, has a good chance to jolt the formidable Yanks, but they aren't letting their enthusiasm run away with their financial judgment. Unofficial odds hereabouts favor the Yanks by about 3 to 1.

Unless he gets a powerful hunch to do otherwise Hartnett is certain to throw his starry young right-hander, General Bill Lee, against the Yankees' Lefty Gomez, when they take the field at 1.30 p.m' (2.30 p.m. E.S.T.). Lee pitched in two games for the Cubs when they lost the 1935 World Series to Detroit four games to two. He started one and was the relief hurler in the other, but neither was credited with a victory nor charged with a defeat'

Lee is Standout

Chicago's chances seem to hinge on the possibility that Lee, a 22-game winner this year, can stop the Manhattan murderers twice, and maybe three times. He has speed, a sharp curve and stamina. Yank adherents, however, point to the [illegible] pitchers ever manage to fool DiMaggio, Dickey, Gehrig and the others twice running. They might do it once, but the next time they find that the Yanks are laying for them.

The Yankees carry into the series a club batting average of .274 against the Cubs' mark of .269' Also, and vastly more important, they nudge the ball for home runs, triples and doubles, while the Cubs specialize in singles. The Cubs will get some runs, but they've got to hope for a dazzling performance by their mound staff. I h are fine fielding clubs, and the Yanks have the best throwing outfield in the business.

TIGERS AND CUBS BEING REBUILT

Neither Team Can Hope To Beat Argos or Rough Riders

(By Sydney Gruson, Canadian Press Staff Writer).

Toronto, Oct. 4 (CP)—Husky, fleet-footed youngsters, whose names for the most part are strange to senior football fans, will carry on for Hamilton Tigers and Montreal Cubs in the . Interprovincial Rugby Football Union this season. Nothing in their pre-season work indicates either club will upset the favored Toronto Argonauts and Ottawa Rough Riders.

Both Tigers and Cubs are being rebuilt under new coaches with Jerry Brock, a former Cornell University centre at the Tiger helm and Johnny Macdonald graduating from the senior Quebec Rugby Football Union to lead the newly-named Cubs.

Many Tigers Retire

The Tiger Stalwarts who roared loudest on the Big Four scene during the past five years have retired. There is no Brian Timmis on this year's club, no such outstanding backfielders as Frank Turville or Hawley (Huck) Welch or no outsides like Seymour Wilson and Jimmy Simpson, the tackling tartars who were supreme a long time. Simpson broke his jaw in practice and will not play again.

Most of the stars who performed for Montreal Indians in the Big Four last season have joined Montreal Nationals of the senior Ontario Union. So far Macdonald has not found replacements to fill the shoes of Johnny Ferraro, Tommy Burns, George Pigeon, Len Hutton and Ernie Hempey. Juniors and intermediates will predominate on both Tiger and Cub lineups.

FRANK GENOVESE K.O'D. IN 13TH

Sammy Luftspring Takes Canadian Welterweight Crown By Win

Toronto, Oct. 4 (CP)—Sockin' Sammy Luftspring, no longer the seemingly timid back-Pedaller of six months ago, is ruler of Canada's welters by virtue of a cool, methodical attack that beat rugged Frankie Genovese into submission in 13 rounds.

The pride of Toronto's Jewry took three rounds to get the measure of Genovese before 10,000 surprised ring fans last night, then went to work with both hands to cut the Italian down. He did that at 2.55 of the 13th round when referee Herschel Osborne decided five trips to the canvas in one round was enough for anybody.

Luftspring, weighing 143 to Genovese's 146 1-2, stripped Frank of the Canadian welterweight crown with smashing lefts and rights to the head and body that floored his opponent for four counts of nine and one of two seconds' duration. Luftspring showed that months of battling in foreign rings had turned him into a smooth ring workman.

It was Luftspring's third victory over the Toronto Italian who took the welter title from Vancouver's Gordon Wallace last winter.

AMERICAN LOOP HOLDS THE EDGE

Over Ten Million Paid Way To See Big League Teams Perform

New York, Oct. 4 (AP)—Add together that exciting National League pennant race the, Yankees' slow start in the American League, the unusual interest aroused by such individual feats as Johnny Vander Meer's two no-hit pitching performances and Hank Greenberg's threat to break the home run record and you come to the fact that Major League baseball attracted more fans during the 1938 season than ever before.

An Associated Press survey today revealed that the seasons paid attendance for the two big leagues was 10,287,891. The two champion clubs, the Yankees and Cubs, both went over the 1,000,000 mark in home-game attendance and the two leagues proved about equal in drawing power, the American holding the edge 5,221,455 to 5,042,436.

The figures, in some cases, are only approximate, for several clubs are reluctant to disclose official attendance. At any rate, the total of more than 10,000,000 cash customers is at least as high as that of 1930, when the previous all-time high mark was reached. The attendance that year was given in "round numbers' as 10,000,000. Last year the total was 9,447,497.

Besides the new record total a new single game record was set at the Yankee stadium, May 30, when 83,633 fans turned out. This eclipsed the previous stadium high of 66,689, made in the 1936 World Series.

Detroit Tigers showed the greatest drop, from 1,181,000 to 893,000.

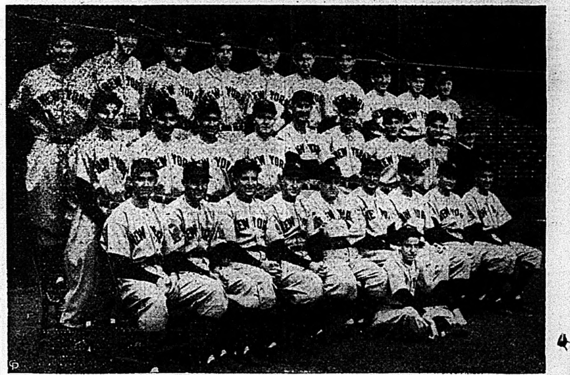
FIVE PORTIONS OF NEW YORK YANKEE DYNAMITE

New York Yankees, as they move into the world series in an effort to make it three in a row, are often called the team without a weak spot in the batting order, with every man in the line-up packing a punch. Here are the top five sluggers in the champions' array, each one of whom bagged out 20 or more home runs during the year, the first time in history five men on one team ever accomplished the feat. LEFT, Tom Henrich, up-and-coming outfielder, who had 22 circuit blows and RIGHT, Bill Dickey, No. I clutch-hitter and all-star catcher, who had 27. In the CENTRE from TOP to BOTTOM, are Joe DiMaggio, the team's leading batter and home run hitter; Lou Gehrig, iron-man first baseman, and Joe Gordon, sensational rookie second baseman. Der Mag put 32 balls out of the park, Columbia Lou 29, and Joe the Flash, 25.



BASEBALL'S ALL-CONQUERING NEW YORK YANKEES

Having swept aside the seven other American League teams in an invincible manner for the third straight year, New York Yankees are out to make it three world series victories in a row and establish a new record. Here is the official group picture of Col. Rupert's powerful array. FACTS ABOUT FOOTBALL

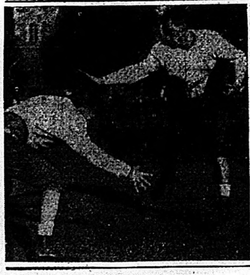
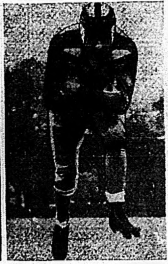
Body Low, Head and Eyes Up, When Going Through the Line

By Lew Hayman



SIDE-STEPPI NG A TACKLER



PLUNGING

Without wasting any time we'll talk about some of the tricks of running with the ball.

Plunging

In today's picture showing a plunger in action, he is about to hit into the line. Note how his arms and body are well over and ahead of the ball. His steps are short and choppy and he keeps his feet wide apart to get the most power, and drive into his effort. He is in a crouching position, but HEAD AND EYES ARE UP. The ball-carrier has to see where he's going and he can't if he keeps his head down and plunges blindly into the line.

Plunging backs must run with their body low, increasing their speed with every step. When met by opponents take short, digging steps; always keeping the feet well apart. Fight for that extra yard or inch. Once you get by the line of scrimmage, straighten your body, change directions, and race for the open field, using a high knee action in running.

Side-Stepping

Side-stepping is a dodge used mostly when running in the open field. The idea is to get the tackler out of position by means of a decoy movement. Incidentally, in referring to ball-carriers when I say the "inside leg" I mean the one nearest the tackler, and the "outside leg", of course, means the one farthest away from him.

In executing the side-step, you lead the tackler with the inside leg. As you lead with it, put your weight on its toes, lean forward with your body and keep the knees well bent. Just as the tackler commits himself, that is, prepares to tackle you, spring sideways, allowing the decoy leg to become limp and at the same time apply your straight arm. If your straight arm is to be of any use, you must keep the arm extended and the elbow locked when contact is made with your opponent.

Pivoting

Pivoting is used mostly by runners on plays close to the line of scrimmage, generally as the secondary defence closes in. It is a dangerous dodge and should be particularly discouraged in the open field.

The ball-carrier heads directly at the tackler, plants his outside foot in front of him, at the same time applying a straight arm with the outside hand. The pivot commences by swinging the inside leg around and extending the straight arm to force the tackler away. It also serves the purpose of aiding the force you get into your pivot. AT NO TIME DOES THE RUNNER LEAVE HIS FEET. Instead he uses a high knee action with short, choppy steps.

Should the tackler get through your straight arm, throw your hip towards him as you pivot. Always keep the body low and lean towards the new direction you will take when the pivot is completed, thus taking advantage of every bit of momentum.

Change of Pace

The secret of success in using the change of pace lies in the art of running at ALMOST TOP SPEED, and yet being under sufficient muscular control to put on an extra burst of speed just as you reach the tackler.

The runner often acts as if he is slowing down a bit, and this makes the tackler relax. Then with a quick burst of speed the ball-carrier can outdistance him before he gets set again. This manoeuvre is generally used when the tackler is moving from the side to meet the runner. The idea is to get a flying start as against practically a standing start for the tackler.

The glaring fault of most ball-carriers is that they attempt to dodge. TOO FAR IN FRONT OF THE TACKLER. You can't deceive the tackler if he can see plainly which way you intend to go. Most runners tend to run at an angle to the tackler. whereas they SHOULD ATTEMPT TO RUN STRAIGHT AT HIM, unless they are exceptionally fast runners.

ATHLETICS AWAIT CANADIAN FINALS

St. Catharines Dispose of Cornwall Indians In Two Straight

St. Catharines, Ont., Oct. 4 (CP)—Once a mighty power in Canadian lacrosse, St. Catharines stood on the heights again today as its Athletics awaited the Canadian senior finals with New Westminster Adanacs.

The As-stepped into the finals here last night with a 25-8 victory over Cornwall seniors before 4,000 fans, many of whom remembered the city's last Ontario champions of 27 years ago. The Athletics overcame Cornwall in two straight games winning the opener of the eastern finals Friday 17-11.

At the same time New Westminster earned the right to oppose St. Catharines by defeating Medicine Hat 25-8 in the Alberta City.

The Athletics will line up against the Adanacs in Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens Friday night in the first of a best of five series to determine the Dominion titlist.

Bob Feller, youthful fireballer with Cleveland Indians, is cheered and chaired following his team's doubleheader with Detroit Tigers, to wind up the ball season. Bob finished in sensational style as he fanned 18 Tigers in the first game to set a new major league record. The previous mark of 17 was set by Dizzy Dean and equalled by Feller two years ago. The Cleveland ace also led the loop in strikeouts with an unofficial total of 240 for the season.

FACTS ABOUT FOOTBALL

Carrying the Ball

Keep Your Eyes on it, Relax When Receiving it, and Hang on With Both Hands When Tackled

The Cross-Step

By Lew Hayman

THE CROSS-STEP....most effective way to avoid tacklers.

Today we'll talk about the very basis of any attack, in fact one of the fundamentals of the game itself, carrying the ball, and from there we'll move on to one of the ways to avoid tacklers while carrying the ball, the cross-step.

First you must know how to carry the ball. You won't get very far if you haven't got that down pat to begin with. Fumbles are usually caused in two ways, (a) when being tackled or (b) when receiving the ball. When you are receiving the ball from the snap or a teammate on an extension play the commonest fault is failure to follow the ball with your eyes until it's in your hands. NEVER LOSE SIGHT OF THE BALL IN ITS FLIGHT.

Relax When Receiving

Don't fight the ball. By this I mean don't get tense and so unable to receive the ball in an easy manner. Relax, take the ball in your hands, giving slightly as contact is made, and then guide it to your body. When receiving, fingers should be spread and wrists slightly cocked. Fumbles are costly in any game. CONSTANT PRACTICE gives you the feel of the ball so fuss with one just as much as you possibly can.

Once you have the ball and are running in the open field the ball should be carried under the arm ALWAYS FROM THE MAN OR MEN ABOUT TO TACKLE YOU. One end of the ball is placed under the arm pit and the other in the palm of the hand, with the arm along the outside of the ball. When plunging, the ball is carried against the stomach, with the ends in the palms of the hands held snugly. WHEN TACKLED HAVE TWO HANDS ON THE BALL. You will probably use one for straight arming, but if that is not successful bring it over to help the other one hold the ball.

When You Have The Ball

Now about running with the ball. A ball-carrier's objective is to cross the opposing goal line and, while striving to attain that objective, to drive for yards, struggle for feet and fight for inches. Often defeat or victory hinge on mere inches. Never give up as long as you have freedom of leg action. Hard-running backs pay dividends. That extra effort might mean an extra yard and eventually that may mean a touchdown.

When running with the ball always scan the field, that is, with one quick look around you, size up the situation, taking hasty note of where your teammates and the opposing players are situated. Get the knack of judging distances accurately and then quickly decide on the course you are going to take In order to run the distance you intend to with any degree of success you must develop the ability to elude tacklers. This is done mostly by using a straight arm, changing direction and using the cross-step, side-step, pivot and change of pace while running.

The Cross-Step

To my mind the cross-step is by far the most effective of all manoeuvres used to elude tacklers in the open field. I say this for two reasons, 1, because it confuses the tackler as the ball-carrier commits himself only at the very last moment and then may go to either side; and 2, because the change of direction is made while the runner is in full stride without any loss of time.

In executing the cross-step head directly at the opponent, then when about a yard in front of him, lead with one leg as if you intended going in a certain direction. Then cross the other leg over, at the same time swinging the hips in the direction of the crossing leg. The ball, as in all cases, must be carried in the arm farthest from the tackler, so as to allow for a straight arm against the opponent.

In today's picture note the lead foot, seemingly ready to go straight ahead, the other foot swinging across in the cross-step, the application of the straight arm and the position of the ball in the arm away from the tackler. This step is taken at full speed, with high knee action, so that, in case the tackler does get through to grab you, the action of your legs may break his hold.

History did repeat itself in the National League this year. In 1932 Charlie Grimm was appointed manager of the Chicago Cubs in mid-season when the Bruins were floundering in the second division, but inspired by Grimm's management the Cubs staged a belated rally to win the senior loop pennant. Six years later Grimm was let out in latter July, the Cub's beloved and veteran catcher, Gabby Hartnett, replacing Grimm at the helm of the Chicago team, then in fourth place. Again under a new inspired management the Cubs rose to dizzy heights to win the National League in a photo finish, thus repeating the 1932 picture under Grimm. Of course the New York Yankees blasted the Cubs in the subsequent world's series of 1932—will history repeat itself in the 1938 world's series?

Gabby Hartnett came to the Cubs in 1922, donning the catcher's paraphernalia on opening day of that season to become one of the most colorful players in the National League. Hartnett holds three endurance records for catchers, no other backstop ever having caught as many National League games as he. In 1937 he completed his 12th season in which he caught 100 games or more, eight of which were in succession. Hartnett's best year with the willow was in 1937 when he hit a cool .354, while he has a lifetime batting record of slightly below the .300 mark. Strange as it may seem when Gabby was hired as manager of the Cubs his contract only called for the remainder of the 1938 playing season, but after the successful manner in which he guided the Chicago team to a league pennant no doubt he will be retained in that capacity in 1939, if he desires to continue.

The Yankees clinched their third straight pennant in St. Louis by losing a double-header to the Browns while the Red Sox were being rained out in Chicago this season. It was a somewhat dreary way to clinch a championship, yet the Yankees put on the greatest celebration in the history of the eight-year regime of Joe McCarthy. Marse Joe told the boys all rules were suspended. They sure suspended them. Ask George Selkirk, who had to go back to his old wrestling days, and discvered he was very rusty with the crotch and half-Nelson.

In a recent Canadian Press dispatch emanating from the headquarters, of the Montreal Canadiens it was announced that ten amateurs from Ontario would try out with the Flying Frenchmen this fall. Of those named Johnnie (Airport) Lalonde was mentioned, but we saw no reference made of Honey Tompkins name, despite announcements from Peterboro to the effect Tompkins was being given a trial by the Canadiens.

Convener Bill Fry, of the O.R.F.U. dared us to call the various provincial football winners this year, so here goes for a little prognostication. In the senior O.R.F.U. it should be the Sarnia Imperials all the way, with Cec Perdues Peterboro Orfuns trailing badly in the cellar. In the Big Four (Interprovincial) we like Toronto Argonauts while it looks like a sure win for the University of Toronto in the Intercollegiate realm. Don't say we did not warn you—Bill.

After the 1927 world's series which saw the Waner brothers, Paul and Lloyd, the heroes as the Pittsburg Pirates lost to the Yankees, the Buccaneer brothers went on a vaudeville tour. The Waners appeared on the stage tossing a ball around and generally fidgetting around for a small stipend of $2,600.00 per week. On the stage with them was a young man who was still trying to play "The Bee" on his violin, but found it more profitable to use his gift of gab. He was to get $250.00 a week for piloting the Waners through their act. That young man was none other than Jack Benny, of Jello fame today. The Waners are still playing baseball, but Benny has gone a long way since 1927.

The general topic of discussion today seems to hinge around the Cub's pitching staff of Clay Bryant, Big Bill Lee and the possibilities of Dizzy Dean pitching against the Yanks. "Can these top ranking pitchers of the National League stop the thundering Highlanders?" is the question being asked. If Dean's shoulder and arm holds out he will be a great asset to the Cubs' cause as "Diz" has learned the value of pitching with his head. But there are equally as good hurlers in the American loop, who found the Yanks too tough already.

Having been an ardent admirer of the respective American League winners ever since the Chicago 'Black Sox' of 1919, we must call the Yankees of 1938 to win this year's baseball classic in five games. McCarthy's men are perhaps the most potent bat-wielding nine of modern times.

A number of local baseball fans will take in the games of the series played at the Yankee Stadium in New York City. Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Yanover, 'Mike' Kelly, 'Dusty' Flager and Eddie Shapiro are a few who have coveted tickets.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz, Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, Oct. 4 (AP)—Dr. James Stotter, New York plastic surgeon, will fly to the coast to see what can be done about fixing up Maxie Rosenbloom's map so old slapsie can go for thoe lover's roles in the movies....Hank Greenberg, who came within three homers of being famous, has turned barnstormer and will give the Yanks and Cubs a little competition next Sunday when he appears with the Bay Parkway semi-pros.

Most New Yorkers look on the Cub victory as a personal triumph for Gabby Hartnett. Cholly Grimm forgot to go down to the clubhouse from the broadcasting booth to congratulate the Cubs the day they clinched the pennant, so yesterday when the Bruins split up the series swag they conveniently forgot to include Mr. Grimm — (He was down for a full share, too).

Al Schacht, who begins clowning in his 19th world series tomorrow, already has dipped into pro football and would not be adverse to entertaining the amateurs except they don't pay.

Jack Corbett, President of Syracuse Chiefs, is getting in a little early winter training at Lake George, N.Y.....Rumors persist Connie Mack will throw hard-hitting Bob Johnson on the market this winter, if anybody has the price, which will be plenty.

Young Spike Briggs is telling Detroiters the Tigers will not win the pennant in 1939, but will in 1940.

THEY PITCHED THE CUBS INTO WORLD SERIES

It takes nine men to make a baseball team and more than that to make a team that will stand up over a season's play, but the spotlight centres on the players who go in, in the clutch and come out on top. When Chicago Cubs went into their three game series with Pittsburgh Pirates, 1 1-2 games out of first place in the National League, they threw Diz Dean, CENTRE, into the first game, and the man with the $185,000 arm came through with a 2-1 win. Old Charlie Root, LEFT, went in, in a relief role in the second clash and came out on top. The ace of the Cub staff, Bill Lee, RIGHT, put the money in the bank by taking the third game for a sweep of the series. Root also hurled the clincher against St. Louis Cardinals.

Three Tied But Toronto Star Had Best Score On Home Nine

(By Ross Munro, Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Ottawa, Oct. 4 (CP)—A trim Highland Lass with zooming drives and uncanny approaches, Jessie Anderson of Perth, Scotland, shared the spotlight today along with a few established Canadian women golfers as the open tournament entered the first round of match play'

Pacing the field with a one-under par 37 for the first nine of the 18-hole qualifying round over the Royal Ottawa Golf Club course yesterday, Miss Anderson faltered slightly on the way in when she forfeited two strokes for a lost ball but wound up with a 79.

This tied her with Ada Mackenzie of Toronto and Mrs. W. G. Fraser of Ottawa for medalist honors. The Toronto star finally was named medalist for the best score on the home nine. The field of 94 was trimmed to 32 in the qualifying match but there was no major upset.

Gabby Hartnett Will Be Manager Of Cubs Next Year

By CHARLES DUNKLEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Chicago, Oct. 4 (AP)—On the eve of the World Series there was one worry Charles Leo Hartnett, "Leo the Lion", didn't have to worry over a contract to manage the Cubs in 1939.

Philip K. Wrigley, owner of the Cubs, said today Gabby Hartnett would have been retained next year even if he hadn't led the team to the pennant.

Gabby says he will catch the opener tomorrow, even if they have to lug him to the plate in a wheel chair. The first and third fingers of his right hand, injured by foul tips last week, still are swollen and sore but that won't stop him. The third finger, when taped, will not hamper his throwing. The index finger is discolored and still swollen. For 13 years Hartnett snatched balls out of the air without a scratch, but within the space of a month he suffered a broken right thumb and two split fingers.

Aid for Cupid

By LUCY TSIVOGLOU

At the front and sides the walls of the Torrence building rose with never a break, other than the windows to a height of eleven stories. But at the rear, the rectangularity of the structure was altered by a large balustraded court above the first story, and, to give sufficient light to the offices at the inner corners of this court, at each end a V-shaped Jog had been cut, with a window on each side.

Thus, inside the building, if one went down the long corridor, entered and crossed room 216, one found oneself opposite the window of room 217, just around the corner.

On this particular June morning, Peggy Wyatt sat at her typewriter desk in room 216. The desk was directly before the window in the jog, and, glancing across, she saw the door of room 217 thrown open. She dropped her work, to watch events across the way.

First came a huge, loose-jointed man, of slovenly appearance, with cigar drooping from the corner of his mouth and a disreputable straw hat thrust far back on his head. Then came the moving men, carrying in divers office furnishings, which the obese gentleman directed them in placing. Their task completed, the men departed, and the masculine monstrosity esconced itself at a desk placed against the side wall, the swivel chair being just beside the window.

But after luncheon, behold, the occupant of the chair was gone! In his place sat a slim, perfectly-tailored, black-haired, dark-skinned person, with magnificent black eyes, which now smiled engagingly at her.

Peggy stared back haughtily, and her vis-a-vis laughed amusedly.

"Such nerve!" thought Peggy. "I suppose he thinks Im going to fall for his good looks! As if looks counted!"

She went to her employer's desk to attend to some bookkeeping. A moment later the phone rang. She removed the receiver.

"Good morning, Mr. Slater," she answered, with businesslike briskness, striving not to betray the joyous quivering, the voice brought her. "Mr. Lowel is out-of-town. Anything I can do?"

"I'm afraid not," he regretted, a little hesitantly. "I'll call tomorrow."

That evening when she left the office, she collided with him as he came down the hall. A little more, and she would have been in his arms.

He murmured polite apologies, started to say something, and was stopped by Peggy's indignant departure.

"Little spitfire!" he laughed to himself, after a moment of chagrin.

One afternoon Peggy had just finished oiling her machine and had replaced the can in the supply closet, when it happened. She was back near her desk when she saw something slinking along the baseboard toward her!

Vision and action were almost simultaneous. Peggy screamed, leaped on her chair, screamed again, and scrambled on her desk. More screams, and manifest panic. The next minute her neighbor was in room 216.

"What's the matter?" he inquired a litte breathlessly.

"A mouse!" exclaimed the horrified Peggy.

"I thought it was a thief or a fire," he answered, and began to laugh.

"Aren't you going to kill it?" she inquirer indignantly.

"Presently," he assured her; then his voice suddenly dropped to a low, almost caressing note, at which she started: "I've been waiting for three weeks for Bert Lowell to come back and introduce us. I'm Van Slater."

Peggy already knew it, and she was overcome with confusion. How disagreeable she had been.

"I'm glad to meet you at last, Mr. Slater," she asknowledged, bending down a little from her lofty perch to extend her hand. "Won't you please kill that mouse, so I can get down?"

"If I do, will you spend the evening with me?" he bargained, clinging to her hand.

"I had other plans," she fibbed. "Won't tomorrow evening do?"

"Make it this evening," he cajoled. "I want to tell you something."

"Tell me now," she suggested.

"You know it already. I've been in love with your voice for a year, and for three weeks I've been adoring your loveliness. Tell me," he pleaded, gazing up at her, "don't you love me just a little?"

"More than that," she confessed, bending down a little more, and he captured her other hand and drew her down to him, because standing on the desk, she was too far above him.

Strange to relate, in leaving her place of refuge, Peggy entirely forgot the mouse. But then, her feet weren't on the floor, anyway!

CHAPTER III

CHRISTINE MEETS FAY

It was Mrs. Carlyle, the dear old lady in number ten, who made it possible for Christine to visit Fay. She rang for Christine soon after dinner, explained that she was a very poor sleeper, and asked whether it would be possible for her to have a glass of hot milk brought to her room at ten o'clock every night.

As a rule, this was the sort of request which Christine hated, since it meant that she would never to be able to go to bed until after that glass of milk was carried up—and she would have to get up at five-thirty for number four wanted her morning tea at six. But she jumped at the excuse for being out of her own cabin at ten, an hour when there were few people about, and only two bedroom stewards "on watch" on the two passenger decks.

Mrs. Parr and Miss Crane began to get ready for bed at about nine, for it happened that none of their passengers wanted anything after that time.

"Aren't you finished yet, Miss Jordan?" Miss Crane asked, as Christine settled down on the settee with a book.

"I've got milk to take up at ten," Christine explained.

"Take it up at half-past nine, Jordan."

"She'd better take it up at the hour it's asked for," Mrs. Parr said, grudgingly. "It's Mr. Perrin's rule that the passenger is always right, and if there's a complaint about the milk being cold, Mr. Perrin will have something to say about it."

Christine simply rushed down the companion to the pantry at ten o'clock, got the milk previously ordered from the pantry-man, and hurried up to number four with it. Cator, and a steward whom she did not know, were on watch, and they were both at the bar, talking to the bar steward: there seemed to be no else about except for a few passengers, and of course passengers did not matter.

It was absurd, really, to feel so guilty as she walked along, the starboard alleyway, looking for Fay's room, but of all the unwritten laws which ruled the ship, that one which forbade poaching in another stewardess's section was perhaps the most stringent. Of course, if this had been the Brent Tor, Christine could have explained that Fay was a friend of hers—she need not even say she was her sister—but she knew already that on the Hay Tor the worst possible construction would be put upon anything that she did.

"Oh, Christine, I thought you'd forgotten all about me," Fay exclaimed as Christine opened the door.

"I couldn't get away before, Fay," Christine said, closing the door very carefully behind her, "and I can only stay for a few minutes now."

She sat down on Fay's bed—there was no settee in these single-berth rooms—and Fay snuggled up against her, more like a rather scared child than the very self-confident girl whom Christine had seen at home, only the night before.

"I've never felt so lonely in my life, Christine," Fay said. "They've put me at a table with a whole lot of awfully stuffy people, who looked down their noses at me all through dinner—and I don't think I shall ever get to know anybody on board."

"Oh, yes, you will," Christine assured her. "They all get friendly in a few days. There's always someone on board who starts organizing deck games and things on the very first day, and there'll be dancing on the promenade deck as soon as it's warm enough—you won't be lonely for long, Fay."

"And my clothes are all right," Fay said, cheering up a little. "Christine, I must show you the frock I bought as a sort of last minute inspiration this morning. I hadn't time to try it on, except in the shop, and I want you to tell me whether it ought to be shortened , just an inch or so."

"Hurry up, then."

"But you've only just come Christine," Fay protested, "and I'm sure you can't have anything else to do tonight."

"I share a cabin with two others, Fay, and they are probably counting the minutes till my return—I'm not supposed to wander round the ship at night, you know."

But Fay, rummaging through the wardrobe for the new frock, took no notice—she wanted Christine's company, and she didn't care in the least for the rules and regulations of the ship. Christine stayed for a good ten minutes longer, admiring the apple-green frock which suited Fay's fair beauty so exactly.

Cator came round the corner of the alley-way when she was on her way from Fay's room to her own. He gave her a rather shrewd glance, but though this was not the shortest way from the upper deck to the stewardesses' cabin, there was no real reason why she should not have come down the main companion and along the lower starboard alley-way, instead of down the narrow companion amidships. As a rule, the stewardesses did not use the main companion, but they sometimes did so at night. She said good-night to Cator, and hoped that her voice sounded natural.

Mrs. Parr and Miss Crane were already asleep, and Christine went to bed in the dark, making as little noise a ashe could.

She had no time to even think of Fay the next day, for the ship was pitching just enough to send all the bad sailors to bed. No one in Christine's section was really ill, but half-a-dozen of them stayed in bed for breakfast as a precaution, though they were able to eat quite substantial meals, which Christine had to carry up on trays from the pantry.

Under the Lash of the Bully

It was in the pantry that morning that Christine had her first encounter with Perrin since coming on board.

He was standing at the hot press and in all the rush and turmoil of the pantry at breakfast time he seemed to miss nothing. Christine heard him swearing at Grant because a tray-cloth was crooked, and at the second pantry man for burning a slice of toast on the electric toaster.

"Fish, please," Christine said to the chef, putting down the tray which she had ready for Mrs. Carlyle. The white-capped chef, standing beside Perrin, was serving portions of fish with a perfectly blank expression, as if he wanted to emphasize his complete lack of interest in anything which the Chief Steward might say to the staff—Christine made a mental note that the chef wasn't one of Perrin's toadies.

"Hey you—Miss Jordan," Perrin shouted suddenly. "Did they teach you on the Brent to take trays up without salt?"

"Mrs. Carlyle doesn't take salt," Christine said quietly.

"Put the salt on at once, and don't argue with me."

Her hands were shaking a little as she picked up the tray. Perrin's bullying tone took some getting used to—and Mrs. Carlyle had definitely told her not to bother to bring salt.

She hoped against hope that there would not be any inspection that morning, for she'd have to hurry to get finished before eleven, with five trays to carry up, and the baby in number four to look after while his mother was at breakfast. Of course there would be no inspection of the rooms in which passengers were still in bed, but they would have to be made reasonably tidy, and Christine had several other rooms as well.

"Is there going to be inspection to-day?" she asked Grant, as he joined her outside the door of eighteen.

"I'm afraid so—the Old Man hardly ever drops inspection, except in really bad weather."

"We'll never manage this room in time," Christine said desperately but at that moment Mrs. Smythe and Mrs. Collins strolled out into the alley-way, and Christine and Grant set to work.

They were both quick workers and in a very few minutes Christine had made the bottom bunk and Grant the top one, Grant had emptied the slops and swept the carpet, and Christine had opened the "clock" and polished the basin and soap dish. But the dressing table, covered with bottles and jars and coated with spilt powder, would really have taken half an hour to do properly, and Christine only had time to dust it hastily.

"Inspection started," Edwards called out to them, as he ran past the open door. "The Old Man came down from the bridge five minutes ago."

Christine shook out her apron and set her cap straight, and went to the end of the alley-way, near the main companion.

Almost as soon as she had taken her place, the Captain, followed closely by Perrin, came through the door from the smoke room, and started their inspection of the port side state-rooms. Number eighteen was the room nearest to the smoke room, and Christine's heart sank when they disappeared into that room, and stayed for what seemed to her a good five minutes.

Inspection on the Brent Tor had never been such a lengthy business as this; they lingered almost as long in two other rooms, and by time that they reached Christine she was feeling thoroughly strung and nervous.

"Good-morning, sir," she answered the Captain's muttered "Good-morning" to her—the only time that a stewardess ever spoke to the Captain, from beginning to end of the voyage, was when he passed her on inspection.

Perrin, his face like a thundercloud, paused before going down the main companion to begin inspection of the deck below.

"Miss Jordan," he said, "go back and do five, eighteen and four properly. I will have no slackness on this ship, and the sooner you learn it the better."

A Friendly Warning

She turned to Grant as soon as the inspection party was out of hearing, and he gave her a rueful grin.

"Perrin's on your track, I'm afraid," he said sympathetically. "He turned back the dressing table cover in eighteen, and of course some of the powder had drifted through on to the polished top—I told him that you hadn't had time to take the cover off."

"And four?—I half expected him to find something wrong in eighteen, but four was all right, I thought."

"Some of the kid's toys were on the setee—they were piled up quite tidily, but he said they ought to be put away."

"I'll never satisfy Perrin," she said wearily. "On a day like this, when he knows I signed for five passengers in bed—oh, Grant, does anyone ever manage to get through Perrin's inspections?"

"Not unless they're his pets, like Cator," he admitted. "He found little things wrong in every one of my rooms—but cheer up, we all get used to him in time."

During the days that followed, she grew ever more grateful to Grant for his steady friendliness, for it was quite clear that Perrin meant to find fault with her for every trifle, and it seemed to her that everyone on the ship was hostile to her—she got nothing but black looks and surly answers from Cator and Edwards, both of them obviously Perrin's "pets."

Working under such conditions was so difficult that she was dead beat before night, and though she managed to slip into Fay's room every night, on her way back from Mrs. Carlyle's, she stayed for only a few minutes. Fay was making friends on board now, but she was still glad to see Christine.

One evening, when she was carrying up the milk for Mrs. Carlyle, she met Grant in the alley-way; he was one of the two bedroom stewards "on watch" that night from nine to eleven, when the night watchman came on duty.

"Miss Jordan," he said, with a rather embarrassed air, "of course I know that there isn't any special reason why you go down the main companion at night, but I should not do it, if I were you. Someone—our friend Cator, I think—has been making a proper pother about it, making out that you're always wandering about Miss Crane's section, after she's in bed, in the hope that one of her passengers will pop out and ask you for something."

"I did meet Cator once," she admitted, thankful that at least no one knew that she had been into Fay's room, though it was bad enough to be suspected of poaching.

"And Allen, one of Cator's pal's, saw you a couple of nights later. I know it's all a silly tale, Miss Jordan, but silly tales run like wildfire over this ship, and Cator's making the pretence that if he doesn't watch out you'll be getting hold of some of his passengers."

Christine decided that she must give up going to Fay's room regularly every night, for she would certainly be caught doing it sooner or later. It wasn't as though Fay really needed her now, for she was no longer lonely, and for the last night or two had not been in the least anxious to keep Christine with her for more than a few minutes.

And the next morning they were in the Bay of Biscay, and some of the passengers who had begun to get their sea legs lost them again very quickly. Christine had eight passengers in bed.

Mrs. Smythe, in number eighteen was one of the first to go down, complaining of a splitting headache. Christine believed that the headache was genuine enough, she thought it unfair to blame the Bay for what was really the result of too many late nights and too much champagne—she knew from Grant that Doria Smythe, and a group of others, were in the cabin de luxe night after night, listening to Martin Royd's gramaphone records and drinking pretty steadily.

"I can't look at food," Doria Smythe moaned, when Christine took up the lunch which she had ordered. "I wish you'd ask the doctor to come up and look at me, stewardess—he may be able to give me something which will stop this awful headache."

It just happened that none of her passengers had yet felt ill enough to ask for the doctor, so that this was the first time that Christine was to come into personal contact with John Stanhope.

"One of my passengers is asking for you, Doctor," she told him formally, when he opened his cabin door to her. "Mrs. Smythe, in number eighteen."

"Mrs. Smythe—I've noticed her. Not exactly sea-sickness, I should imagine, stewardess?"

"Not exactly," she agreed, and because his eyes were twinkling, she smiled at him. "You would prefer me to come with you, I suppose, Doctor."

"I certainly would," he said emphatically. "Just wait one moment, while I slip down to the surgery for something."

Stewardess and Doctor

Although she was tired out after a long morning of hard work, and this was the time when she ought to have been resting, Christine's spirits rose as she waited for Dr. Stanhope. They had only spoken a few words, but no one on board, except Grant, had treated her with any kindness, and Dr. Stanhope's friendly tone was like a tonic to her.

"Lead me to number eighteen," he said, joining her again. "Have you many passengers laid up, stewardess?—but for goodness sake tell me your name, for I simply can't keep on calling you 'stewardess'. It doesn't sound human; somehow."

"Christine Jordan," she said. "And I have lots of passengers laid up, but there's nothing at all the matter with most of them—they've only got Bayitis."

"The Captain says that we may expect much worse weather than this off Cape Vincent. I'm afraid you'll have your hands full then, Miss Jordan.'

"It will be warm enough for dancing then, Doctor, and deck games will be in full swing—I'm not expecting much trouble with my passengers."

He laughed, but professional gravity settled down upon him as Christine opened the door of number eighteen.

Doria Smythe probably had a real headache, but she was just the type to keep on sending for the doctor if he was anything but coldly formal to her the first time.

Christine, standing just inside the door, could not help admiring the quiet efficiency with which Dr. Stanhope managed Doria Smythe. There was no hint of scorn in his manner, which was most scrupulously polite, but yet he made it clear that he knew just exactly why Doria Smythe had a splitting headache, and that he wasn't in the least sympathetic.

"Will you mix a teaspoonful of this with a little water for Mrs. Smythe, Miss Jordan," he said, handing a small phial to Christine. "Send for me again this evening if the headache is not better, Mrs. Smythe. But I think this will put it right."

He went out, and Christine moved across to the "clock" for a tumbler and water-bottle, and began to measure out the medicine. At that moment, Mrs. Collins came strolling into the state-room with a cigarette in her mouth, and flung herself down on the setee—like many women accustomed to native servants, she took no notice at all of Christine.

"Well—what's the doctor like? He looks attractive," she said casually.

"A perfect stick—and a bit of a prig, too, I should think," Doria Smythe told her.

"No good staying in bed in the hope of a little sympathy from him?" Mrs. Collins suggested, blowing a smoke-ring dexterously. "If you'll take my advice, Doria, you'll get out of here as quickly as you can, and keep an eye on Martin—the little Lind girl is making all the running with him just now, and you'll lose him if you're not careful."

"Lose him, to the little Lind girl—don't be silly, Iris. That child is hardly out of the shell, and Martin was never a baby snatcher—he never looks at a woman under thirty."

"He's looking at the Lind girl all right," Iris Collins said darkly. "And she may be only just out of her shell, but she's got a big pair of baby-blue eyes, and she knows how to use them. She and Martin were walking round the promenade deck together after lunch, and they seemed to be getting distinctly pally—you'd better get rid of that headache, my dear."

Christine handed Doria Smythe her medicine with a hand which was not quite steady. Fay and Martin Royde—she couldn't believe that Fay was really silly enough to get friendly with Royde, but it made her anxious even to hear them spoken of in the same breath.

She would be able to tell the truth for herself the next night. Dancing on the promenade deck was to begin the next night, and it was quite usual for the stewardess to go up for a short time to watch, standing in the alley-way and looking through the windows which opened on to the deck. Even Mrs. Parr and Miss Crane would probably go, for it was a good opportunity to learn one another's passengers by sight, so that the choice bits of gossip which were retailed in their cabin would have more savour.

It was Mrs. Parr herself who suggested going to watch the dancing when they heard the big gramaphone started up on the deck soon after dinner. She did not include Christine in the invitation, but at least she and Miss Crane could not object if Christine went with them.

Not many people were dancing, and so Martin Royde and Fay were all the more conspicious as they danced out of the darkness into the light, his black head flecked with grey at the temples, very close to Fay's halo of golden curls. Christine had never seen Fay look lovelier than she did that night, with her blue eyes shining and her cheeks softly flushed, and she winced when Fay's gay laughter rang out in answer to something which Martin Royde had whispered to her.

"Miss Lind, from my section," Miss Crane said to Mrs. Parr. "Silly little fool—like most of these modern girls, she thinks she knows everything, I suppose, but she's up against something if she's going to take up with that Royde."

"Has she got a mother with her?"

"No—travelling alone. Old Mrs. Bugle is at her table in the saloon, and tried to be nice to her, but the girl was cheeky and rude, and none of the older passengers are having anything to do with her now. Well, all I can say is that if she's asking for trouble, she's likely to get it."

Christine hardly heard what they said—she was watching Fay and Martin Royde, who went on dancing together even after a crowd of other people came out on deck.

Somehow she must see Fay and warn her.

CHAPTER IV.

Midnight Quarrel.

"I didn't expect to see you, at this time of night, Christine," Fay said, in a rather hostile tone, as Christine slipped into her room at midnight.

Fay, still fully dressed, had been standing in front of the dressing table, staring at herself in the mirror, when Christine came in, and Christine saw that her cheeks were flushed and her eyes very bright.

"I came down earlier, but you were not here," Christine explained, "so I waited until the others were asleep and then crept out of our cabin. There's no one on watch now except the night watchman—and I hope he's cleaning shoes somewhere."

"Any special reason for being so desperately anxious to see me tonight?" Fay asked, sitting down on the bed and kicking off her slippers. She was so elaborately casual that Christine knew that she had a bad conscience.

"I wanted to speak to you—about Martin Royde, Fay," Christine said bluntly. "Some of my passengers were talking about you yesterday, and they said you were getting friendly with him."

"The gossiping old peahens—why can't they mind their own business?" Fay muttered.

"But I saw you tonight, Fay, dancing with him."

"Well, there's no harm in dancing, is there?"

"There is—with Martin Royde, Fay. He's sailed on this ship before and the staff knows all about him—and I can tell you, Fay, that I couldn't bear to hear his name coupled with my sister's."

"He's the most attractive man that I ever met," Fay burst out, "and I know what I'm doing, thank you, Christine. Every woman on this ship is mad about him, and I won't have you interfering—coming along here to preach at me. You're so narrow-minded——"

"Fay—you've never been East before," Christine said grimly. "Do take my word for it that there are some people on board who aren't—very safe friends for you, and that Royde is one of them."

"I'm old enough to judge for myself," Fay said, her mouth set in an angry line. "You may be my elder sister—and by bad luck you happen to be on the same ship—but I won't have you meddling with my private affairs. You're as bad as that old Mrs. Bugle, who had the nerve to give me what she called a little motherly advice——"

"Which you took very badly. Do have a little sense, and don't make yourself unpopular, as well as getting yourself talked about with—with one of the unsteadiest people. By the time you get to Shanghai, you may wish that you hadn't."

"Will you mind your own business, Christine?" Fay burst out. "It's true that you've been East before, and I haven't—but you've been East as a stewardess, not a passenger. I can just imagine the way the staff talks about the passengers. They don't like to see other people having a good time when they have to work."

"Don't be silly——"

"Silly! It's you who are silly, Christine, if you think that I'm going to be scared by your hints, picked up from the stewards. Are you going to stay here all night, or will you clear out of this room and let me go to bed?"

"I must go to bed myself," Christine said, reluctant to leave Fay, but quite sure by this time that she could do no good by staying.

And she dare not stay any longer for Mrs. Parr or Miss Crane might wake up and miss her, and it would be difficult to explain her absence from their cabin in the middle of the night.

It was almost impossible for Christine to see Fay at all during the days which followed, for Fay was never in her own room until late at night, and it happened that Mrs. Parr had neuralgia and was sleeping badly. Christine saw Fay dancing with Martin Royde evening after evening, and she heard the comments made by both passengers and stewards, but she had warned Fay once, and she could do nothing more.

Christine and Grant were doing number eighteen together on the day that the ship was tied up at the wharf at Port Said. Since there was no inspection when the ship was in port, and both Mrs. Smythe and Mrs. Collins had been up fairly early, it gave Christine a chance to do that room really thoroughly for once.

"I suppose they'll come back laden with half the contents of the souvenir shop," Christine said, disentangling a long bead necklace which had tied itself around some of the pots and bottles on the dressing table, "and this room will be a greater muddle than ever."

"They will not," Grant told her with a grin. "They've gone ashore together, on their own, and they're not likely to spend much at any shop. If they'd gone with Royde it would have been a differnt matter—but Royde is otherwise engaged."

"With — Fay Lind," Christine said, under her breath.

"You're right, Miss Jordan—with that little fool, Fay Lind. I saw them going down the gangway as soon as the ship had tied up, an hour before Mrs. Smythe and Mrs. Collins went. Of course, they may be going to join forces later, but I don't think so—I think Royde has come to some arrangement with Mrs. Smythe——"

"What sort of an arrangement?" Christine interrupted, her busy hands suddenly pausing in their task.

"Well, you know that Royde and Mrs. Smythe are old friends, and that they were together a good deal at the beginning of the voyage. He's dropped her lately—but I happen to know that he's paying her chits, for drinks and cigarettes and so on. Seems to me that he's more or less bribing her to keep clear, while he amuses himself with the Lind girl—after all, if she liked to turn nasty, she could tell the Lind girl a mighty lot about him, couldn't she?"

"They make me sick, these people," Christine said, in a choked voice.

Don't Keep on Having Constipation!

If constipation's got you down—so you feel heavy, tired and dopey—it's time you did something about it. And something more than taking a physic! You should get at the cause of the trouble.

If you eat only the things most people do, the chances are that a very simple fact causes your constipation—you don't get enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean heavy food. It means a kind of food that isn't consumed in the body, but leaves a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a bowel movement.

If this is your trouble, eat crisp crunchy Kellogg's All-Bran for breakfast every day and drink plenty of water. All-Bran is not only rich in "bulk"—it also contains the natural intestinal tonic, vitamin B_1.

Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario. Sold by every grocer.

Shannonville

Shannonville—A large number from this community gathered at the Orange Hall on Thursday night to honor Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Little (nee Miss Frances Reid) who were recently married. During the evening dancing was enjoyed to the music of a Belleville orchestra. At the midnight hour the couple were seated at the front of the hall and Mrs. Bruce Reid then read a presentation address to which both Mr. and Mrs. Little gave suitable replies in which they thanked their friends for the many beautiful gifts received and also extended a cordial invitation to their friends to visit them at their home. The address is as follows:

Shannonville, Ont., Sept. 29, 1938

Dear Frances and Dinty:

You are both familiar with such gatherings as this as you have attended not a few, but this one is different, as you are our honored guests.

We are indeed glad to be able to share your great happiness with you as you are truly one of us, having both been born in this community.

You have both shared in the activities of the immediate community and we hope you will continue to do so together.

All your friends and school-mates are gathered to honor your new venture, our gifts are a token of our sincerity. While just now you both feel that you just need each other, which is just as it should be, and we are willing to stand back until you need us we want you to know we are willing to be your friends and neighbors and we hope to continue to share your happiness with you.

Please accept these gifts and use them in your home and may they grow more dear to you as time goes by and you realize the value of true friendship and neighbourliness.

Signed on behalf of the community, Mae Kent, Bertha Reid, Edward Kent, Jack Fitzgerald, Kenneth Juby.

Ploughing Match

The twenty-first annual ploughing match of the Tyendinaga Reserve Ploughing Society is being held at the farm of Norway Maracle on Tuesday. The match started at 10 a.m. in the morning and will last until 4 p.m. in the afternoon. During the past number of years the match has always attracted a good crowd and a large number of entries.

Dance

On Tuesday night the management of the Shannonville canners will be hosts to their employees and tomato growers at the Orange Hall where they have arranged to hold a dance for which music will be furnished by a good orchestra.

Open Winter

According to Jake Barnhart well-known resident of the village, Ontario will have an open winter and the reason he advances for his theory is that while inspecting his raspberry bushes last week he found ripe raspberries on the bushes which according to Mr. Barnhart is a sure indication of an open winter.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Submarine D-1"

Proclaimed as the greatest motion picture ever made with an under sea boat as its subject and locale, "Submarine D-1" has been booked as the feature attraction at the Capitol.

A melodrama co-starring Pat O'Brien and George Brent, and featuring Wayne ("Kid Galahad") Morris. In the making of it the United States Navy Department deserves as much credit as the movie folk, for it threw open to the Warners its submarine establishments at San Diego, Cocos Coco in the Panama Canal Zone, and Newport, R.I.

The most modern of submarines, officially called the D-1 and also bearing the title of Dolphin, was used in all diving and surface-running scenes. It was impossible of course, in the limited space aboard a real submarine, to find room for camera and light crews. So the movie-makers built at the studio a duplicate of the D-I, cut into ten different sections, and outside the ends of these sections the technicians were able to, operate their apparatus for closeup shots.

The story of the D-1 was written by Commander Frank Wead, U.S.N., who was the author of "Ceiling Zero" and other stage and screen hits. Technical advisors were present at all times during the making of the picture, and guaranteed its authenticity.

Pat O'Brien and Wayne Morris play a couple of young submarine crewmen who have developed two great inventions—a device to shoot men safely to the ocean's surface if a ship is sunk, and another device to raise the U-Boat itself.

In the story the D-1 is rammed and sunk during some war game maneuvers, and the boys' inventions get a chance to show their worth. They are successful in saving the sub's whole crew and its heroic commander.

AT THE McCARTHY

"This Marriage Business"

Sparkling with novelty and action R.K.O. Radio's "This Marriage Business" proves itself a charming comedy-romance, now being presented at the McCarthy Theatre.

With the ever-popular Victor Moore in his first solo starring role, and the husky Allan Lane sharing romantic honors with a lovely newcomer, Vicki Lester, the picture affords plenty of entertainment to screen patrons.

A sudden burst of fame comes to Moore, a kindly old county clerk when Lane, a New York newspaperman, discovers that none of the marriage licenses issued by Moore during twenty years has ever been followed with a divorce.

The ensuing publicity makes Moore famous as a practicing Cupid and brings a flood of the matrimonially inclined for one of his "Lucky Licenses." In the meantime, Allan Lane has succumbed to romance in the person of Moore's daughter, and at her suggestion he sets about putting Moore in the mayor's chair.

But this irritates the dominant political group and the campaign develops some exciting phases that make the film a thoroughly entertaining one.

Moore himself is at his best as the well-meaning official. Lane and Miss Lester are excellently cast. A noteworthy supporting personnel adds much to the offering, which also has Christy Cabanne's deft direction and the fine production values given by Producer Cliff Reid. "This Marriage Business" is really a fine screen treat and with the excellent programme of added short subjects that the McCarthy Theatre has to offer, the show is one that everyone should put on their must see list. You will be more than just going to see a show; you will be highly entertained for a very pleasing two hours, with a splendid variety of screen attractions including Fifi Dorsay, fiery French comedienne in a musical comedy presentation, "There Goes the Bride" that is gay and produced on a lavish scale that gives it plenty of comedy and some very excellent musical settings that top anything previously presented on the screen in featurette entertainment. The Mauch twins, Billy and Bobby, are also presented in a four star, technicolor treat, "Sons of the Plains" that gives these two young film favorites, a story crammed with adventure, action and thrills to please their many admirers to their heart's content. Also a smash novelty offering, "Saturday Night Swing Club" that present a night club floor show with plenty of music, songs and routine numbers that you will enjoy.

AT THE BELLE

"Three Loves Has Nancy"

One of the most unusual and infrequent pages from modern life is highlighted in "Three Loves Has Nancy" which stars Janet Gaynor and Robert Montgomery and Franchot Tone. It is dedicated to the comedy resulting from a "quadrangle" instead of the perennial triangle.

The picture, hilarious relation of the adventures encountered by a small-town girl who finds three men seeking her hand in marriage, is based on a succession of comedy situations knit together by a well-paced story.

Janet Gaynor, whose recent reascension to fame has hinged on a succession of glamorous roles, is again cast as an unsophisticated young lady who wear gorgeous gowns in an atmosphere of ultra-modern sophistication.

Montgomery, whose dramatic work in "Night Must Fall" and "Yellow Jack", proved his versatility, returns to the playboy roles which won him stardom as a flippant novelist whose romantic affairs are Broadway tattle.

Tone portrays a wealthy publisher who is the closest friend of Montgomery until the girl comes from a small town to cause a rift between them.

Supporting players were chosen for their ability to interpret the difficult comedy characters demanded by the story. The supporting cast is headed by Guy Kibbee, Claire Dodd and Reginald Owen.

Richard Thorpe, whose latest picture was "The Crowd Roars" and who has directed both Montgomery and Tone twice previously, directed "Three Loves Has Nancy".

Montgomery, as a novelist, becomes involved with an actress. Through the aid of Tone, his publisher, he is sent on a lecture tour of the South. There he meets Miss Gaynor, small-town girl, on her wedding day. When the bridegroom fails to arrive from New York she goes to find him and is on the same train with Montgomery. He casually tells her that if she gets in trouble in the big city to look him up. To his surprise and consternation she is waiting at his penthouse apartment when he arrives. Not knowing what to do with her he lets her cook for both himself and Tone who shares the apartment. Tone falls in love with her and Montgomery, not realizing that he also loves her, tries to break off the match. The ensuing complications provide the basis for what is said to be one of the funniest comedies of the season.

Don Ameche in "Gateway"

For his part in 20th Century-Fox's "Gateway", handsome Don Ameche has a special relish.

He gets the girl!

In his two previous pictures—"In Old Chicago", with Tyrone Power and Alice Faye, and "Alexander's Raytime Band," likewise with Power and Miss Faye—as far as Don was concerned, it was a case of "boy loves girl, boy loses girl."

But in "Gateway" dramatic story of the most dramatic spot in the world, Ellis Island—Don brushes aside all obstacles to win the hand and heart of flame-haired Arleen Whelan, 20th Century-Fox's sensational new star discovery.

"While it's nice," smiled Don, "to win the sympathy of the audience as a disappointed swain, it's nicer still, occasionally, to have the audience sharing in your happiness at the fadeout."

Gilbert Roland and Lyle Talbot are the two principal hurdles Don must surmount to win Arleen.

"Gateway" is the companion feature on the 9th Anniversary program, with Don and Arleen starred and Gregory Ratoff, Binnie Barnes, Gilbert Roland, Raymond Walburn and John Carradine featured.

Sonja Henie Departs

Sonja Henie's newest triumph, "My Lucky Star" in which she co-stars with Richard Greene, is one of the Movie Quiz $250,000 contest pictures. It may be seen at the Belle tonight for the last time.

Joan Davis, Cesar Romero and Buddy Ebsen are featured in the cast, which includes Arthur Treacher, George Barbier, Louise Hovick, Billy Gilbert, Patricia Wilder and Paul Hurst.

A special added attraction on the same program is Jimmy Fidler's Personality Parade, introducing scenes from photoplays of 1913, and favorite stars of the last 25 years, many of whom have taken their last bow, Milton Sills, Marie Dressler, Will Rogers, Jean Harlow, and others. "String Bean Jack" one of the best color cartoons seen at the Belle in weeks concludes an ideal program of screen entertainment.

TRAIN NAMES

Of the 711 named passenger trains in the United States, Canada, and Mexico 6 are Owls, 5 are Night Expresses, 3 are Midnight Specials, 1 is a Twilight Limited, and 1 is a Twilight Express. Apparently all that is lacking is a good old Toot Owl. The first train in the world to bear the name "limited" was the Pennsylvania Limited, which commenced as the New York and Chicago Limited in 1881 and was rechristened in 1891. It's still running between the two cities and has never missed a day's run—From the Commentator.

OUR FAVORITE evening dress of the week is a strapless model of purple velvet with silver lace forming a box-pleated wide ruffle at the neckline and at the wide hem. The silver lace is threaded through with purple velvet ribbon.

WALL ST. CLOSE

New York, Oct. 4 (AP)—Stocks worked at cross purposes in today's markets after five consecutive rallying sessions. The list slipped and recovered at frequent intervals and near the final hour, prices were no worse than moderately mixed.

Aircrafts, building materials and specialties inclined to edge upward from the start, but many leaders failed to make headway. Steels and motors, under water the greater part of the time, improved in the latter part of the proceedings. The pace was relatively slow throughout, transfers being at the rate of approximately 1,000,000 shares.

Difficulty in maintaining the forward stride was encountered by Youngstown sheet, Sears Roebuck, International Harvester, Deere, Kennecott, International Nickel, American Can, Union Carbide, Johns - Manville, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific and Standard Oil of N.J.

Storage Butter Holdings Show Large Increase

Toronto, Oct. 4—Values drifted lower for butter and churning cream on the local produce market yesterday.

Buyers displayed little interest on the butter market, and dealers reduced prices in an effort to keep fresh receipts clear. The stock position remains a depressing factor, with the three cities — Toronto, Montreal and Winnipeg—showing holdings as of Oct. 1 of 554,978 boxes of butter, compared with the year ago holdings of 451,351 boxes, up 96,627 boxes, or 5,411,112 pounds. Ontario creamery solids were generally quoted at 21c for No. 1 grades and 19 1-4c for 38 score.

Prices for churning cream receded to 20c for No. 1 grades.

Falling off in arrivals of top grades, coupled with good demand, brought about higher prices on the egg market. Exports of storage eggs to the United Kingdom last week were reported at 5,122 cases, which brings total shipments for the current season to date to 18,594 cases. Stocks of cold storage eggs on hand in the three cities as of Oct. 1 were 36,824 cases below a year ago at 129,960 cases. Ungraded shipments rose 1c per dozen on top grades to 32c for grade A-large and 31c for medium, and this advance was passed along to the retail section of the market. Graded eggs traded at 35c to 36c for grade A-large, 34c to 35c for medium, 29c to 30c for pullets, 26c for B's and 21c to 21 1-2c for C grades.

Montreal Butter Weakens

Montreal, Oct. 4 (CP)—The butter section showed signs of weakening on open produce markets here Monday, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported.

Creamery solids for 22c to 23 1-2c. Western butter delivered in Montreal, was offered at 21 3-4c. Receipts: 415 boxes.

Graded egg shipments in used free cases were offered at 36c to 37c a dozen for A-large, 34c to 35c for A-medium, 29c to 30c for A-pullets, 26c for B-large, and 21c for C. Receipts: 308 cases.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 4 (CP)—The Toronto Stock Market displayed its strongest note at the close today with the action centred in the medium-price golds. MacLeod-Cockshutt, on a run up to $3.95 for a 35-cent gain featured the late action and a few other issues, including Hard Rock, fell with the advance but early gains were not entirely erased. Industrial and mining indices were off slightly at the close and the western oils were a shade higher. Heavy trading in the last hour expanded the volume to around 800,000 shares.

McIntyre Gets High Values Across Big Widths at Depth

New orebody on 3,875 ft. level is being extended, latest official report being to the effect that it shows length of 425 feet width of 12 to 16 feet and value of $35.00 per ton. Drifting is now proceeding in a second lens of like nature. Due to the fact that this ore lies in previously unexplored ground, some time will elapse before it will be under development on 3,750 ft. horizon, one floor above.

One of the reasons why the market did not react very much after the first wave of buying is the fact that the list harbored a large number of "sold out" bulls, who are hoping that a reaction does occur to enable them to purchase their favorites. The technical position of the market is sound, and it is for this reason that a decline is not expected to carry very far.

With the tenseness of recent weeks disappearing, the security markets should gradually reach a normal trading basis, after which it will be easier to judge on the merits of individual stocks. The outlook for a number of companies warrants a special consideration on the part of investors, and in this connection may be mentioned Ford of Canada, International Nickel, Noranda, Hudson Bay, Hiram Walker, etc.

The high rate of gold production and the recent improvement in foreign copper prices indicate that earnings of Noranda Mines in 1938 may moderately exceed the 1937 profits of $4.14 a share, while dividend payments will at least equal the $3.25 a share distributed last year. Since earnings of Noranda Mines are likely to continue rising over a period of years, the stock has long-term appeal for the patient investor.

..CANADIAN CAR & FOUNDRY: Profits in the fiscal year ending Sept. 30 probably will be well in excess of the $4.01 a preference share earned in the 1936-37 period. The present backlog, including the unshipped portion of the Toronto street car order and aircraft business received in recent months, compares favorably with the more than $5,000,000 of orders on the books a year ago. Although Canadian railroad earnings are down sharply this year, the large wheat crop and improving business trend suggest the possibility of further equipment ordering early in 1939. The outlook for further development in the increasingly important airplane business gives both the preference and ordinary shares a good measure of speculative appeal.

Livestock

Toronto, Oct. 4—(CP)—Cattle trade was slow on a thin quality cattle supply with prices generally unchanged on the Toronto Livestock Market today.

Cattle holdover from Monday was 1,300 head. Calves, lambs and sheep held to previous price levels while no hog price was set by mid-session.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle 1,290; calves, 390; hogs 1,220; sheep and lambs 1,140.

Butcher steers and heifers sold mostly between $4.25 and $5.25, with a few tops at $5.50. One lot of choice weighty steers brought $6.50 with others downward to $4.75. Butcher cows ranged from $3 to $4.25 with a few at $4.50. Canners and cutters sold from $2 to $2.75.

Butcher bulls brought $2.75 to $4 and bologna bulls traded between $3.25 and $3.50. A few choice fed calves made $8.75 to $9.50. Medium fed calves ranged downward to $6. Stockers moved slowly at $3 to $4.

Choice veal calves were priced from [illegible]50 to $10 with some tops at $10.50. Common heavy calves sold as low as $5. Grassers sold between $4.50 and $4.75.

Previous close on off truck bacon hogs was $8.50.

Good ewe and wether lambs by rail made $7.75 to $7.85; a few reaching $8. Lambs by truck brought from $7.50 to $7.75. Bucks sold at $1 discount and culls were mostly $6. Sheep went from $2 to $4.50 cwt.

WORLD SERIES GAMES TO BE BROADCAST

In a Canadian Press dispatch received today it was announced that the world series baseball games, commencing Wednesday in Chicago, would be broadcast over National, Columbia and Mutual broadcasting net works. The broadcast of the games played at Chicago, commencing tomorrow, will start at 2.15 p.m. (Eastern Standard time), while those from New York will commence at 1.15 p.m., E. S. T.

Joe McCarthy, manager of the New York Yankees, today announced he would start pitcher "Red" Ruffing, while Skipper Gabby Hartnett, of the Cubs, will pin his hopes on Big Bill Lee, the leading National League moundsman for the current season.

TUESDAY MARKET

Despite the fact that typical autumn weather still prevails the city market today offered a slim display of produce.

Price tones remained fairly steady although tomatoes showed a slight uptrend in price with bushel lots being quoted at forty cents. Eggs were scarce with a few being offered at thirty-five cents per dozen.

Fall and winter apples predominated a light offering of fruit with MacIntosh Reds selling at fifty cents per hamperlot for windfalls. St. Lawrence tree-picked fruit were fairly plentiful, selling at one dollar per hamper-lot.

Clapps' Favorite pears were quoted today at one-fifty per bushel with Flemish Beauty's offered at the same price with smaller quantities selling at commensurate prices.

A few imported peaches were available with No 1's offered at forty-nine cents per six-quart basket.

Runciman Report Decided 2 Powers

By ROBERT PARKER
Associated Press Foreign Staff

Paris, Oct. 4 — (AP) — Premier Daladier let it be known today that France would seek the friendship of Germany and Italy and at the same time continue to increase her armed forces as a sure guarantee of peace.

Reading his declaration on the Czechoslovak crisis to the Chamber of Deputies the Premier said France wished to add to her "old and tried friendships" with Great Britain and Russia the "support of renewed or new friendships."

In a long address, the Premier upheld his action in the Czechoslovak crisis, declaring the report made in London by Viscount Runciman, Great Britain's unofficial mediator, had made plain it was impossible any longer to ask Sudeten Germans to live within the boundaries of Czechoslovakia.

He paid homage to President Roosevelt's peace messages during the crisis. The Chamber cheered when he spoke of "the great, generous and logical voice" of the American President.

PEANUTS GROWN HERE SUCCESSFULLY

Planted as an experiment in the sandy soil of his garden at 126 Dufferin avenue this spring, a fine crop of peanuts is this week being harvested by Don Evans, son of Constable William Evans. Though not considered a crop suitable for northern climes, the plants have shown prolific growth of such encouraging proportions that a larger scale planting will be undertaken next year, it is intimated.

CHURCH OBSERVES 82 ANNIVERSARY

St. Andrew's Church Stirling Observes 82nd. Anniversary

Stirling, Oct. 4—Large congregations filled the auditorium of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Stirling for both morning and evening worship on Sunday Oct. 2nd as the congregation marked the passing of the 82nd anniversary of the founding of the church. Flowers of every hue adorned the pulpit and the entire front of the church special musical numbers in an organ prelude and Anthem solos, and choruses by the choir added greatly to the inspirational messages delivered by Rev. Dr. Boudreau of Picton.

The church has been without a regular minister for some weeks and these very impressive services were planned entirely by the Kirk Session, the Board of Managers and the musical director under the guidance of Rev. W A Hunter of Madoc, interim Moderator for the pastoral charge during the time of vacancy The congregation were fortunate in securing the service of Dr. Boudreau of Picton as special speaker for the occasion and his timely messages of inspiration delivered in a firm and forceful fashion were both helpful and interesting to the worshippers who gathered from all parts of the district. In the evening St. Paul's United Church withheld their regular service that its members might join with the congregation of St. Andrew's on this special occasion.

The spirit of earnestness with which each member of the congregation rallied to the aid of those in charge of the preparation portrayed fervent desire for the promotion of God's work which characterized the lives of those who years ago had started the church and had made it possible for those of today to worship in a truly fine church building.

Fine Music

Added to the splendid messages delivered by the guest minister were musical contributions for which St. Andrew's Church has become famous in recent years. Under the capable leadership of Mrs. R. H. Williams, musical director a large choir presented two splendid anthems in faultless fashion, other special musical numbers during the services were solos by Arthur Duncan who sang both morning and evening and a mixed quartette composed of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Eggleton, Mrs. Chas. Fargey and Arthur Duncan.

REFORMED SYNOD IS MEETING HERE

The forty-third synod of the Reformed Church of England in Canada is meeting in Emmanuel Church today, Rev. Bishop Marshall being assisted by Rev. J. J. Kerslake of Ottawa, in the conduct of the meetings.

The synod opened last evening with communion service and addresses of welcome.

The synod, originally planned to meet in Toronto, changed its place of meeting to Belleville, owing to the illness of the Bishop sometime ago.

Committees were appointed today and will report this afternoon.

Quinte Skating And Tennis Club Conducts Draw

The Quinte Skating and Tennis Club concluded their current season of tennis over the week end with a drawing for prizes previously announced. The Quinte Skating and Tennis Club reported a successful season on the courts and an additional membership being in evidence over 1937.

To Mrs. Stock, Trent Road, went the first prize, a Univex movie camera and projector. All other winners in the contest were residents of this city and included Mrs. Jas. McAuley, Wm. Kyle, Mrs. E. R. Logie, Mrs. Thos. Colden, Mrs. E. Batchelor, Mr. E. S. James, Dr. G. G. Brearley, Mr. S. Short, Mrs. K. Cleland and Mr. George Noyes. The club is indebted to the local business men, who so generously assisted in the provision of the numerous valuable prizes.

TO MEET EARLIER

Kingston, Oct 4.—At the Saturday meting of the Kingston Cheese Board, upon motion of Mr. W. R. McCreary, buyer of this city, it was decided to hold the regular Saturday meeting at 3.15 p.m., instead of 3.30 p.m. for the balance of the present season.

Police Blotter

M. E. Ellis, 73 Dundas Street, was apprehended by Plainclothes Constable Fred Isard yesterday on a charge of forgery. Ellis was arraigned in special police court held before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., at the Court House. No plea was taken and the accused was permitted to bail The charges were preferred by J. D. Daniels, who police say was a former employer of Ellis. The amount allegedly involved is said to have been $15.00.

At the request of Inspector T. D. Ruston, superintendent of the local branch of the Children's Aid Society, an organized police raid was directed upon the home of Mrs. Mabel Van Norman, 303 1-2 Front Street, at midnight last night. As the result of the raid a charge of lending to the moral delinquency of children under section 215 of the Canadian Criminal Code, was preferred against the accused today. The woman was later released on bail to appear in a subsequent police court.

Local police were called to the office of the City Relief Department in the City Hall this morning. Investigation proved a recipient of relief was causing a slight disturbance. The person was ejected from the premises and told to remain away under the penalty of prosecution if the matter was repeated.

WAR NOT INEVITABLE

I look at the past I know we have all made mistakes. We have all gone wrong at one time or another.

"There is one observation at this moment on the lips of many people—'you have got to fight some day; fight now'.

"No greater fallacy was ever uttered. War is never inevitable in the distance.

Asserting that in war there always would be fearful casualties, Lord Baldwin asked:

"What right has any man to condemn to that terrible death hosts of civilians unless he knows that all that can be done has been done."

"The children of men of all nations have their part to play now in these fleeting hours that are before us. They have their part to play, and may rulers of all nations be guided with understanding and with knowledge."

Neutralization of Czechs.

Viscount Samuel, Liberal, declared Czechoslovakia must be completely neutralized and her status made analogous to that of Switzerland.

The Anglo-French guarantee for the new Czechoslovakia was a dangerous precedent from a constitutional viewpoint. Lord Samuel argued, because it was done without consulting parliament. But it was done under circumstances of extreme urgency and no important section of opinion really opposed the guarantee.

Strabolgi Attacks Nazis.

Lord Strabolgi said there should be a colonial settlement but warned "the spectre of war will not be removed by surrender to threats of blackmail, or by paying danegeld (tribute), whether in the form of colonies or anything else."

He contended the ranks of Labor were essential to the government and said "you will not get help in rearmament if you are going to take this country into a new alliance which, in effect, has enlarged the anti-comintern pact" (between Germany, Italy, and Japan).

Of Germany, the Labor peer said: "Jews in Vienna are being made to clean the lavatories of storm troopers; Prince von Starhemberg's mother is being made to sweep the streets in Vienna because she was a member of the Monarchist party.

"That is what Nazi domination means. That is to what you have handed over the unfortunate Czechs and Jews in the occupied Sudeten districts."

Hitler's Decision Taken Early.

By J. F. SANDERSON

London, Oct. 4 (CP)—Chancellor Hitler made his decision to invade Czechoslovakia as early as Sept. 14, Leslie Burgin, Minister of Transport, stated today in the House of Commons.

Defending the Munich settlement of the German-Czech crisis, which resulted in cession of Sudetenland to the Reich, Mr. Burgin declared there was 'no scrap of evidence' that Hitler would have backed down.

Earl Baldwin, Mr. Chamberlain's predecessor as prime minister, also endorsed the Munich accord while the opposition renewed its attack on the pact.

'Cowardly Drift Charged.'

As the second day of debate on Mr. Chamberlain's foreign policy began, the opposition in the Commons also resumed its attack on the Munich accord.

Herbert Morrison, Labor fr[illegible] bencher, claimed the prestige a[illegible] influence of Great Britain had bee[illegible] lowered in Europe and the world a[illegible] a result of the settlement with Germany.

Mr. Morrison described the government's policy as "a cowardly drift" which brought the country to the brink of war. Since 1931, he said, Britain had been "submitting to blackmail," had scuttled the moral authority of the League of Nations and turned its back on collective security.

'Section Agreeable to Fascism'

The former Labor government cabinet minister said a section of the British Conservative party is so agreeable to Fascism they are willing to subscribe to a "betrayal of their own country".

The debate will continue tomorrow when a government motion to approve the foreign policy will be introduced. Labor is expected to propose an amendment and debate may not finish until Thursday.

In the House of Lords, the Labor peer, Lord Strabolgi, contended an "honorable settlement" of the Czech-German quarrel could have been reached at the time of the Nuremberg Nazi Party conference if the British fleet had been mobilized.

Says Munich Worse Than Versailles

He declared "we imposed on these (Czech) people terms much harsher than the Treaty of Versailles without giving them a chance or any hope." Labor, he said, would not guarantee the Anglo-French guarantee of the new Czech frontiers "as it would only lead to more anguish."

Berlin, Oct. 5—(AP)—A Foreign office spokesman said today that the International Commission supervising cession of the Sudetenland to Germany was confronted by new difficulties in delimitation of the fifth zone of occupation and "the question of reparations for injustices inflicted by the Czechs on the Sudetens since 1918."

As the Commission resumed its discussions today the spokesman indicated progress might be difficult from this point on.

"Hitherto it was easy, as the four zones (to be occupied by the German Army before Oct. 8) were already fixed at Munich and only certain technical details remained," he said.

"The fifth zone will prove more difficult. Also there is the question of reparations for the injustices inflicted by the Czechs upon the Sudetens since 1918".

Previously an inspired source close to the foreign office indicated such reparations would be demanded of Czechoslovakia just as soon as the Sudetenland was completely in

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Water vapor distribution! This very important element of our atmosphere has its principal source in the large ocean surfaces, but lakes rivers, and all moist surfaces also supply a great deal. The farther from the source the drier the air. The wind is the great distributor of moisture-laden air, but where the wind is opposed by high mountain ranges the country to the leeward is usually dry. Water vapor decreases with elevation more rapidly than the density of the air. At a height where the air pressure is one-half that at the surface the water vapor is only 17 per cent as much. Travelers in dry countries speak of the "torturing thirst" more especially however when they exert themselves greatly.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 5 (CP)—An area of high pressure and quite cool weather covers the Western Provinces and northern districts of Ontario and Quebec while pressure is relatively low to the southwest of the Great Lakes and over the Grand Banks. Showers have occurred in some districts of Alberta and Saskatchewan, Ontario and in Nova Scotia while in Manitoba and Quebec the weather has been generally fair.

Lake Superior — Fresh northeast and east winds; partly cloudy and quite cool tonight and Thursday.

Manitoba—Moderate to fresh east and southeast winds; mostly cloudy and cool tonight and Thursday; probably light scattered showers.

Saskatchewan and Alberta—Mostly cloudy today and Thursday with light scattered showers; a little higher temperature.

NEWS ODDITIES AND BRIEFS

NOTES FOR DUNKERS

Boston, Oct. 5 (AP)—Doughnut dunkers need no longer hide their shame behind the sugar bowl, for now they have society's blessing—so long as they call their shots and use the right grip. To dunk is "all right at an informal house party or little snak after theatre." Mrs. Gertrude Kay, head of Amerson College Drama Department, told a class in social usages, but—it is never correct either unless you hold the doughnut you are dunking between your thumb and third finger of your right hand. All other forms are crude."

EXCITEMENT TOO MUCH

Tampa, Fla., Oct. 5 (AP)— The career of Frank A. Mallan, 69, known as "pop" to generations of students at the University of Tampa, where he was night watchman, ended amid blaring horns and shouting. Dressed in firemen's hat and gaudy blue pajamas, Pop was marching in the Freshmen's "beat Miami" parade. Without warning, he fell dead.

TWINS ALL AROUND

Idaho Falls, Idaho, Oct. 5 (AP)—Mrs. May Demott Millward waited outside the maternity ward room of her twin sister, Mrs. Edith Demott Jensen, for "the news." Waiting with her were twin sisters Yella and Valeta Gosselin and Lavon Berg, who has a twin brother. "The news"—twins for Mrs. Jensen.

13-YEAR-OLD GETS DEER

Rimouski, Que., Oct. 5 (CP)—Thirteen-year-old Yvon Beaupre says he was pretty scared about the whole thing, but he bagged a 225-pound deer on what was intended to be a rabbit-hunting expedition just the same.

Young Yvon said he came upon the deer suddenly, thought he should run away but decided against it and pumped several shots in the animal's direction. The deer dropped dead.

A GOOD EXCUSE

Omaha, Neb., Oct. 5 (AP)—John Votroubek was called for jury duty. "Your Honor," he said. "I have a ticket for the World Series game." District Judge Chas. Leslie excused him.

ALBINO CROW SEEN NEAR CATARAQUI

One of nature's oddities, an Albino crow, was seen near Cataraqui yesterday by H. M "Dolly" Gray, local Canadian National Railway employee. "We were proceeding westerly on the main line near "Waterloo Hill" when I suddenly saw a large flock of crows rise from a grain field. Out of the hundreds of birds to rise on wing, one was pure white," related Mr. Gray, who drew his fact to the attention of fellow-employees in the freight caboose.

Publisher to Produce Evidence Norse First White Men in N. A.

J. W. Curran of Sault Daily Star Collecting Data

CAME BY JAMES BAY

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Oct. 5—(CP)—New and important evidence that Norse adventurers were the first white men to set foot on North America will be made public soon, J. W. Curran, publisher of the Sault Daily Star, said today in an article in the Star.

He and two other navigators are prepared to report that three Norse relics were actually found in 1931 near Beardmore, in northwestern Ontario. They were produced in 1935 by James E. Dodd of Port Arthur, who sold them to the Royal Ontario Museum.

Mr. Curran said he investigated with little hope at first that the weapons could be proven to have been found in Ontario. He was assisted by Judge Alexander McComber, Senior Judge of the Thunder Bay district, and Dr. Geo. E. Eakins of Port Arthur.

The relics sold by Dodd, a railway conductor and amateur prospector, were proven to be genuine Norse weapons of the 11th century but their discovery in Ontario was disputed. Dodd said he dug them up while prospecting for gold.

Statement Made

The Sault publisher said:

"I accept Mr. Dodd as a truthful man, and so accept his story as true and exact. There is no question in my mind but that he found the Norse relics where he says he did.

"There are important facts, to be revealed in due time, which will heighten very greatly the interest in the episode and widen its significance."

Mr. Curran asserted the newly-gathered evidence might possibly prove that Norse sailors came to Ontario by James Bay before the year 1100, or 400 years before Columbus crossed the Atlantic, and reached Lake Nipigon by way of the Albany and Kenogami rivers.

Recently Mr. Curran supported a theory that so-called "white Indians" living on the west shore of James Bay, might be direct descendents of Norse sailors.

Czechs Hope To Get Fifty Million Dollar Loan From Britain

COAL SERIOUS LOSS

Loss of Industrial Areas Strikes Blow At Economic Structure

By ALVIN STEINKOPF
Associated Press Foreign Staff

Prague, Oct. 5—(AP)—A revamped Czechoslovak government started work today on economic readjustments to put the Republic, shrinking daily as foreign armies march in, on a stable basis.

Most pressing need was for the $50,000,000 loan promised by Prime Minister Chamberlain of Great Britain. This the dismembered country hoped to get soon, for the loss of industrial areas struck a violent blow at its economic structure.

Financial experts surveyed what probably would be left after the fulfillment of German, Polish and Hungarian claims to minority districts and, after plebiscites determine disposition of other regions. They expected a good share of the projected loan would be used for public works projects.

SENATE APPROVAL SEEMS ASSURED

Deputies Give Consent To Rule France By Decree Till Nov. 15

By TAYLOR HENRY
Associated Press Foreign Staff

Paris, Oct. 5 — (AP) — Premier Edouard Daladier early today won Chamber of Deputies consent to rule France by decree until Nov. 15 after a stormy night of political manoeuvring during which he was forced to make repeated concessions to avoid overthrow of his government.

The vote, 331 to 78 with 204 deputies refusing to vote, was notably different from the 535 to 75 approval with which the Chamber yesterday acclaimed Daladier as a savior of peace.

Daladier now has to push his Dictatorial Powers Bill through the Senate, which adjourned shortly after midnight. Lengthy wrangling kept the Chamber in session until dawn.

Senate approval of the Premier's demand for decree powers seemed assured when the finance committee of the Upper House passed the government bill with only three abstentions, including the former Premier Pierre Laval, and no opposing votes.

Appeals to Patriotism

Only by a strange combination of appeals to patriotism and shrewd political trading did Daladier keep Socialists from casting

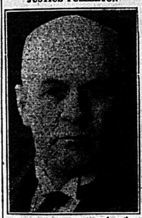
JUSTICE FULLERTON



Prominent in legal and railway spheres of the Dominion died in Winnipeg after lengthy illness.

C. P. FULLERTON DIES IN WINNIPEG

Former Chairman of C.N.R. Board Had Lengthy Illness

Winnipeg, Oct. 5 (CP)—Mr. Justice Charles Percy Fullerton, prominent in legal and railway spheres of the Dominion, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. A. C. McMillan, here today. The 68-year-old veteran of the bench had been ill since the beginning of June.

He was first stricken in Toronto and two months ago returned to Winnipeg to live with his daughter. His condition rapidly grew weaker and he died at six o'clock this morning.

He was a former member of the Manitoba Court of Appeal, former chairman of the Board of Railway Commissioners and head of the Board of Trustees which controlled the destinies of the Canadian National Railways from 1933 until the liberal government's appearance in 1935 when the Board of Directors was restored.

His death after a lengthy illness removed one of the Dominion's brilliant minds. Born in Amherst, N.S. July 18, 1870, son of William M. and Lucy Fullerton, he became lumberman, lawyer and railway chieftain.

Dalhousie Graduate.

Mr. Fullerton attended public and high school in Amherst and entered Dalhousie University in 1885 when only 15 but two years later he quit his studies because of eye trouble. For three years he worked as tally clerk in lumber camps, then returned to university.

He graduated in law in 1895. Articled in the offices at Halifax of C. S. Harrington, father of Hon. Gordon Harrington, former Nova Scotia premier, he became a partner of the

SOVIET-FRENCH RELATIONS COOL PAPER REPORTS

Isolation Price France Will Pay For Munich Is Claim

PACT RELEGATED

Moscow, Oct. 5 (AP)—A prediction of sharp revival of Communist international activity, especially in France, was made today by some foreign observers following a cooling of Soviet-French relations.

The semi-official newspaper Le Journal De Moscou, often the mirror of foreign office news, said emphatically that as a result of the four-power Munich agreement France had lost all her European allies but England and demanded: "Who can rely on England?"

"Isolation is the price France will pay for Munich, where she received 'not even a scrap of paper' but only an oral promise from Adolf Hitler," the paper asserted.

It added: "After the capitulation of Munich (where France, Italy, and Great Britain reached an accord Sept. 30 granting Chancellor Hitler Sudeten German areas of Czechoslovakia, a French ally), who will believe again the word of France? Who will remain her ally?

"Rumania or Yugoslavia (with Czechoslovakia, French allies in the Little Entente) will not hesitate any

YANKEES SCORE TWO IN SECOND TO LEAD CUBS

Stanley Hack Makes First Hit And Gehrig Scores First Run

By SID FEDER

Wrigley Field, Chicago, Oct. 5 (AP)—Cheered on by a near-capacity crowd of more than 40,000 New York Yankees and Chicago Cubs met today in the first game of the 1938 world series.

The weather was cool with the sky somewhat overcast, although the sun broke through intermittently. A brisk wind blew across the diamond, from the left field corner.

Both managers stood pat on their previously announced pitching selections and line-ups. Louisiana Bill Lee, 22-game winner and hero of Cubs' last-month drive to the National League pennant, started for Chicago. Big Charley (Red) Ruffing, also a right-hander, who paced the Yanks' pitching staff to the American League championship, hurled for New York.

Cubs Minus Galan.

Augie Galan's leg injury, suffered a week ago, forced Manager Hartnett to use the outfield with which the Cubs wound up the season. This shifter Frank Demaree from right to cover Galan's left field position and brought the weak-hitting Phil Cavaretta into right field.

The crowd stood as the band played the Star Spangled Banner, and the game got under way.

Starting line-ups:

New York (A)—Crosetti ss, Rolfe 3b, Henrich rf, DiMaggio cf, Gehrig 1b, Dickey c, Selkirk lf, Gordon 2b, Ruffing p.

Chicago (N)—Hack 3b, Herman 2b, Demaree lf, Cavaretta rf, Reynolds cf, Hartnett c, Collins 1b, Jurgeas ss, Lee p.

Umpires — Moran (NL) at the plate; Kolls (AL) at first; Sears (NL) at second; Hubbard (AL) at third.

Following is the play by play detail of the game:

First Inning.

YANKEES — Crosetti worked the count to three and two and then was called out on strikes. He protested to Umpire Moran but it did no good. Rolfe sent a bounder off first base and Collins threw to Lee to put him out, after slipping in the infield. Henrich was called out on strikes. 0 runs, 0 hits, 0 errors, 0 left.

CUBS—Hack fouled off several pitches and then singled sharply to left centre for the first hit of the game. Hack was out stealing, Dickey to Crosetti. Dickey's throw caught the Cub third baseman three feet off the bag. Crosetti threw out Herman. Demaree fanned, swinging at a high pitch. 0 runs, 1 hit, 0 errors, 0 left.

Equipment and Weapons Carried By Czech Troops

Carlsbad, Sudetenland, Oct. 5 (AP)—Czechoslovak troops are taking with them all movable weapons and military equipment when they evacuate their fortifications in Sudetenland.

This apparently is being done with the approval of Major Strong, a British officer who preceded German troops as liaison officer and arranged details of the Czechoslovak evacuation.

Neither Major Strong nor the German army, so far as can be learned, has offered any objections to the stripping of the forts.

Murder Charge Follows Death Of Young Child

Ottawa, Oct. 5 (CP)—Charged with the murder of a 10-month-old boy, Mrs. M. D. Mulligan, 27, of Ottawa, was remanded for a week when she appeared in Police Court today. Court officials said she will not be given a preliminary hearing until after an inquest into the child's death on October 18th. She told police the child was her adopted son.

Mrs. Mulligan was arrested at Norway Bay, Que., 30 miles northwest of Ottawa, yesterday and brought to Ottawa last night. Detectives sought her after the body of the baby was left at a hospital Sunday night. The woman who brought it disappeared and authorities were not able to locate her at the address she gave when doctors at the hospital found the child had been dead for some hours.

Hospital doctors said the child had suffered a fractured skull. The result of a post mortem examination will be given the inquest jury.

WOULD OMIT 'OBEY AND SERVE'

Archdeacon Suggested Short Evensong In Anglican Church

Toronto, Oct. 5 (CP)—Widespread "commonsense" changes in Church of England practice, including omission of the "obey and serve" from the marriage ceremony and abbreviation of the Sunday services, are suggested by Ven. C. Swanson of Calgary.

The suggested changes are in a brief presented at Calgary by Dr. Swanson and published this week in the Canadian Churchman, Church of England organ.

Dr. Swanson would make the marriage promises of both man and woman identical and besides omitting the "obey and serve" and providing for two rings when desired, he feels the "I thee endow" should be changed to "with thee I share."

Begin With Adoration.

Dr. Swanson suggests omitting the present general confessions and absolution at the morning service, and "beginning the service with a note of adoration". He observes here "the English are a heavy eating and drinking race, which reflects in a certain national stodginess of which morning prayer is possibly an example."

For the evening service, he suggests similar abbreviation, "also some form of compline as a complete substitute."

Jailer's Daughter in Prison Because She Helped Convict

Allowed Youth And His Companion Their Freedom

FATHER HUMILIATED

Lexington, N.C., Oct. 5—(AP)—Lula Belle Kimel, 22, a jailer's daughter, was behind the bars today because she took pity on a youth charged with a capital offence and, according to a confession which Sheriff Raymond Bowers said she made, allowed the youth and a fellow prisoner their freedom.

James Godwin, 19, of High Point, and Bill Wilson, 21, of Hickory, escaped Monday from the Davidson County jail. Several hours after their get-away, police began receiving reports of highway robbery and holdups. One man, Donald Moss of High Point, was shot fatally as he stepped from his car. Police Sergeant W. B. Rodge of High Point, said the crimes were attributed to Godwin and Wilson.

Wrote Letter to Sheriff

Godwin was being held on a charge of first degree burglary in the forcible entering of his aged grandfather's house two months ago. The old man, too, was badly beaten the night of the robbery. Wilson was charged with a holdup.

Jailer T. C. Kimel locked up Lula Belle yesterday and wrote a letter to Sheriff Bowers asking that he be relieved of his duties pending an inquiry.

"I am humiliated and grieved beyond control and have locked my own daughter in jail in order that justice may find its course," Kimel wrote his superior.

Bowers quoted Lula Belle as saying that she released Godwin "after he had gotten religion and promised to go straight" and because she did not want to see him "go to the gas chamber".

Bowers quoted the young woman as saying that Godwin released Wilson and that they left the jail together.

Kimel and his wife were absent at the time.

Britain Has No Desire To Shut Out Russians From Peace Settlement

Simon Uges Russia To Join Powers In Guaranteeing New Borders

LABOR AMMENDMENT

Active Support Demanded By Labor of Collective Security Methods

By J. F. SANDERSON

London, Oct. 5 (CP)—Sir John Simon told the House of Commons today that Great Britain had no desire to shut Soviet Russia out of "any future settlement of Europe".

The Chancellof of the Exchequer, speaking in the third day of debate on the Munich settlement of the Czechoslovak-German problem, urged that Russia should join other powers in guaranteeing the new boundaries of Czechoslovakia.

He proposed a motion that parliament approve "the policy of His Majesty's government by which war was averted in the recent crisis and support efforts to reach a lasting peace."

Labor Amendment.

Arthur Greenwood promptly introduced a Labor Party amendment which read:

"That this House, while profoundly relieved that war has been averted for the time being, cannot approve a policy which has led to the sacrifice of Czechoslovakia under threat of armed force, and to the humiliation of our country and its exposure to grave dangers; and realizing the intense desire of all peoples for lasting peace, demands an active support of methods of collective security through the League of Nations and immediate initiative by his Majesty's government of proposals for summoning a world conference to consider the removal of economic and political grievances which imperil peace."

Other Nations Not Shut Out.

The Chancellor of the Exchequer, a member of the "inner cabinet" which advised with Prime Minister Chamberlain during the Sudeten German crisis, affirmed the Prime Minister's desire for a lasting understanding between democracies and dictatorships. He denied Mr. Chamberlain sought a four-power pact among Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy which would disregard other states and "impose its will on Europe".

Chance of Averting War.

Sir John asked the members of the Commons to place themselves in the Prime Minister's position at Munich and decide whether they would have rejected the terms of the settlement and "destroyed the last chance of averting war".

The terms were certainly harsh and drastic, and open to all sorts of challenges and criticisms, but Sir John contended they were infinitely better than the one and only alternative. He asked how many members of the House would, if they could, undo what had been done at the four-power meeting. How many, he wanted to know, would have rejected the settlement "and fling the world into a cauldron of immediate

Benes' Decision Has Not Been Unexpected By Europe

HIS FOREIGN POLICY

Has Been Second President of Republic Since Its Creation

Prague, Oct. 5 (AP)—The resignation of President Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia was officially announced today.

The resignation of the Chief of State, who had held his little republic together as long as possible under the pressure of tremendous events, was not unexpected although it had been denied several times recently that he intended to step down.

Benes became President of Czechoslovakia in December, 1935, succeeding the founder of the republic, the late Thomas Masaryk.

Failure of Foreign Policy.

The Munich agreement of the four big powers, compelling Czechoslovakia to cede the Sudetenland to Germany, represented a complete failure of the foreign policy with which Benes had been closely associated since the founding of the state twenty years ago.

The pressure of Great Britain and France to compel Benes and his government to accept submission to the terms of Germany proved a tremendous blow to his hopes.

Informed persons felt that Benes' departure from office—and possibly from the country—might remove the current acute situation and make collaboration with Germany possible.

Benes had been the target for bitter attacks by Hitler and other German leaders and for a scathing campaign of denunciation in the German press.

Syrovy Acting President.

It was understood General Jan Syrovy, the soldier-premier, would be acting president until an election could be arranged to choose Benes' successor.

The election will be conducted by the National Assembly, composed of the Chamber of Deputies and the Senate sitting together.

Benes prepared to broadcast his farewell address to the world tonight.

Some sources said Benes' resignation followed renewed German pressure based on Hitler's personal antagonism to the Czechoslovak President.

It was reliably reported that Hitler had indicated he would be more generous in his negotiations with the new Czech state if a President more acceptable to Germany were named.

FIVE CANDIDATES MENTIONED FOR CON. CONVENTION

A survey made this week indicates that no less than five candidates for the Conservative riding of Hastings - Peterborough will be contestants in the nomination for representative which will be held in Marmora on November 12th.

The only aspirant from the Peterborough end of the riding is believed to be T. P. Lancaster of Havelock, former member of the legislature, and other candidates mentioned are Dr. Lumb of Bancroft; Reeve Thompson of Rawdon; George White, Madoc barrister and former Conservative member for the riding. Dr. A. T. Embury who, although now a resident of Ottawa, is reported once more seeking the right to carry the Conservative banner in Hastings - Peterborough.

FELICITATIONS SENT

Felicitations on his recent silver jubilee, and congratulations on the high honor conferred on him through being created a Roman Count by His Holiness, Pope Pius, were forwarded to His Grace, Archbishop M. J. O'Brien, head of the Kingston Diocese of the Roman Catholic Church, in a resolution passed at a regional conference of officers of District No. 2, Knights of Columbus held in the quarters of Brockville Council, No. 1049. The resolution was moved by Past State Deputy, A. B. Collins, K.C., of this city, and seconded by J. J. Tierney, Grand Knight of Brockville council. Fifty-two representatives of the various councils were in attendance at the meeting. Past State Deputy A. B. Collins, was one of the guest speakers at the gathering.

PICTON FAIR HAS PROFIT OF $500

With five hundred dollars on the credit side of the ledger, the Picton Fair was a financial success, according to a financial report released by officials yesterday. The balance, which will be used to finance next year's exhibition, is the first credit the fair has shown in years, officials added.

HOOKS PIKE IN SIDE

Hooked in its side and putting up a lively battle before it was finally landed, a twelve pound pike gave Leslie Martin 214 Church Street a few anxious moments while fishing in South Bay yesterday.

The big fish apparently missed the bait with its mouth as hooks of the plug were firmly embedded in its side.

11-POUND PUFF BALL DISPLAYED

Puff balls have shown exceedingly prolific growth in this district during the past week or so and specimens of record size have been harvested. Bid for the season's largest is, entered by Harold McLean, local youth who is displaying a solid growth picked in Tucker's woods yesterday with a weight of slightly over eleven pounds.

INDIAN SPEARHEAD FOUND AT S. BAY

Add Prince Edward County Indian relics; a stone spearhead found on the shore near South Bay by Leslie Ennis, resident of the district. The head was in perfect state of preservation, and bore plainly the marks of crude chipping tools with which it was carved out of the flint rock.

HUNTER SHOOTS DUCKS THAT HE HAD BANDED

The hunter chuckled to himself as he saw a small flock of ducks fly toward him near his blind in West Lake yesterday. He chuckled louder as he saw three of them fall before the shots of his gun.

But the smile disappeared when he retrieved the bag. For on the legs of the birds were the bands he himself had placed there last Spring.

TURKEY DINNERS MAY BE EXPENSIVE FOR THANKSGIVING

Turkeys may cost between thirty and thirty-five cent per pound for Thanksgiving dinners, according to Sam Elliott, Tyendinaga farmer who was in the city today soliciting orders for his flock.

And to potential customers Sam proudly displayed snapshots of his gobblers and hens taken at various stages of growth. He prohesied a price of between thirty and thirty-five cents per pound.

FOGGY NIGHTS

A combination of warm earth and cold air during the past several days has resulted in a consistent condition of fog late evenings and early mornings in the district forcing motorists to proceed with caution on roads and highways. Late last evening the fog blanket covered sections of the Bay Bridge road with an almost opaque mist through which headlights of cars penetrated but feebly. Traffic was brought to a crawl and drivers of cars were forced to feel their way past other machines.

MOIRA LODGE TO VISIT KINGSTON

Members of the local Moira Lodge A.F. and A.M. will pay a fraternal visit to Kingston on Thursday evening where they will be guests of members of Ancient St. John Lodge, No. 3, second oldest Masonic Lodge in Ontario. An ambitious program of entertainment has been prepared for the visiting members.

SUPT. VISITS MOIRA CHAPTER

After reviewing the early history of the Grand Chapter of Royal Arch Masons in Ontario, Rt. Ex. Comp. J. C. Cooper, Picton and Grand Superintendent of the Prince Edward District, R.A.M., lauded the important part old Moira Chapter of Belleville played in those early days, during his official visit and annual inspection at Moira Chapter No. 7, R.A.M. at the Belleville Masonic Temple last evening.

Royal Arch Masons from many parts of Eastern Ontario were present to officially welcome the representative of the Grand Z upon his official visit. "The name Moira is outstanding in Masonry's early days and dates back prior to 1778, when the city of Belleville was first surveyed. A Masonic Lodge was insituted around here when Belleville was known as Meyers Creek and since the very earliest days of Masonry in Canada, the name Moira has stood out as a pioneer in the Craft, Moira Chapter having sent several Grand Principals to Grand Chapter, including our own Col. Ponton," revealed Rt. Ex. Comp. Cooper after the inspection of Moira Chapter.

Ex. Comp. H. S. McElrath introduced the speaker, while Ex. Comp. Carl Crosby proposed the toast to the visitors, which brought forth several prolific responses. Ex. Comp. Wm. Coulby occupied the chairman's seat during the banquet hour. The entertainment of the evening was supplied by Gulliver's "Mountaineers".

GIVEN SENTENCE FORINCENDIARISM

Arnold Keller of Bruceton, Ont., appeared before Magistrate Wm. McGregor of Pembroke, on Friday, September 30th, and pleaded guilty to the charge of causing incendiary fires in the Township of Raglan during the year 1936 and in the Township of Lyndoch during the year 1938. Arnold Keller was sentenced to one year determinate and six months indeterminate in the reformatory.

Investigation was conducted by Chief Ranger H. M. Legris and Provincial Police Constable Wm. Johnston.

Police Blotter

A transient who gave police authorities two aliases after being arrested for trespassing on Canadian Natonal Railway property last night today told Chief Kidd his proper name was Alfred H. Schaffer, no particular address.

When apprehended by C.N.R. Constable Jerome, while in an alleged intoxicated condition last night, the man stated his name was John Murphy. Later at the police station he informed Sergeant Arthur Booth, night sergeant, that his name was Harry Fraser. Today he added another name to the list, but was remanded in custody until Friday's police court, however. A portion of a bottle of rubbing alcohol was found on the man's person, police related.

Peterborough police reported the theft of a 1929 model Ford coach last night. The vehicle bore Ontario licence plates number 603-R-3. While making their report the Peterborough police stated they held a warrant for the arrest of Brenson Cox, 22-year-old Peterborough youth, charging him with the theft of the motor car and also of stealing $50.00, in cash.

Eleven transients were afforded sleeping quarters at the police station last night.

PAN FISH ARE BITING

Rod and line angling along the docks and piers south of the city has not as yet been ended by the cooler weather of the past several days, and good catches of perch, sunfish and a few mudcats are still reported. Fishing off the government dock early last evening, Barlow Hearns, local resident, managed to land a total of fifteen small fish within an hour. Perch predominated.

After holding their annual track and field meet during the spring semester for a number of years, the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School returned to the conventional autumn climes to vie for school athletic honors and laurels over track and field today when the second annual field day of the year was opened at the Exhibition Park this morning. There will be no track and field meet next spring, Collegiate officials announced when it became known that the school athletic competitions would be held in the autumn for the year 1939 and succeeding years.

Cool weather and threatening rains failed to check the day's activities, although no records were reported shattered, with the possible exception of Bill Pigden's time of ten minutes and ten seconds in the intermediate half mile event, this time being exceptionally fast for the intermediate class. One of the largest fields of entries to compete in many years was received by Miss Allison and Mr. Laughlin respective physical directors at the Belleville Collegiate and under whose jurisdiction the annual track and field day meet is being conducted.

This afternoon the entire personnel of the school accompanied by the Belleville Collegiate school band will grace the grandstand to witness the major events while the faculty will also be present.

The results of the events completed this morning were as follows:

Senior Boys'

100 Yards: Perry Everett 10 1-4 seconds, Gordon Farquharson, Jas. Watson.

FISHERMEN REPORT COMMERCIAL FISHING UNPROFITABLE SO FAR

Fishermen of the district who have moved their nets from the lake to sections of the Bay of Quinte during the past few days are bringing the first of their small catches of whitefish and mudcats into city wholesale houses. First shipments are being sent to United States this week by Black and Sons, dealers. Fishing, which has been consistently poor in the lakes this season, has reportedly been found little better in local waters, it is reported.

ONLY ONE CASE TO BE DECIDED

Judgment Reserved After All Evidence Is Adduced

Only one case was listed for trial at the annual Fall Sittings of the County Court, which opened before His Honor Judge Deroche, in Belleville yesterday. The action was one for damages as the result of a motor accident, which occurred on Highway No. 14 south of Stirling, last January. His Honor heard all the evidence adduced and reserved judgment.

The parties concerned were Berton Salisbury, Belleville, plaintiff and a Mr. Thompson, Stirling, as the defendant. The accident, during which two automobiles driven by the parties concerned were in collision at a point on the Oak Hills, resulted in property damage to the vehicles, no injuries of seriousness being reported by Provincial Constable D. Carruthers, who investigated the accident, he testified yesterday. Judgment will be delivered in the near future.

F. L. Ward, Picton barrister, appeared on behalf of the plaintiff, while Charles A. Payne, K.C. represented the defendant in the case.

Reports Given At Meeting of Women of Moose

Senior Regent York presided over the regular meeting of the Women of the Moose Belleville Chapter 435 in the Moose Auditorium last evening and a good attendance was noted.

Co-Worker Jessie Chapman gave a splendid report on the library committee having distributed a hundred magazines to many shut-ins of the city. Co-Worker Mrs. Saylor raised a nice sum of money for the Moose Haven Committee. The flowers that decorated the Hall were the donation of Senior Regent York. Co-Worker Chapman graciously accepted the position of Alumnae Chairman. All committees for the year are now working.

OBITUARY

SETO CHEW

Seto Chew, a native of China, died suddenly in this city on Tuesday, Oct. 4th. He was 64 years of age and had resided in Belleville for about twenty years, being employed in various places as a chef. He leaves a widow and family in China.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

JOHN BARRETT

John Barrett passed away at the family residence, 101 College Street on Tuesday, Oct. 4th. He had been in failing health for some time.

The late Mr. Barrett was born in Thurlow Township, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. William Barrett. All his life was passed in this district. For some years he was engaged as a car repairer with the Canadian National Railways. In religion he was a member of St. Michael's Church and well respected.

Surviving him are his widow, who prior to her marriage was Miss Mary Freeman; five sisters, Mrs. William Speace, Crystal Beach, Ont., Sister Francisca, Loretto Abbey, Toronto; Mrs. Michael Daly, Tyendinaga Township; Mrs. John Boyle, Belleville, and Miss Nora Barrett, San Francisco, California.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

German hands."

Map Is Attached

To the Munich accord was attached a map showing the first four zones ceded by Czechoslovakia for speedy occupation by the German army. Occupation of the first three has been completed or is under way. Occupation of the fourth is to begin tomorrow, to be finished Friday. Then, the accord said:—

"The remaining territory of preponderantly German character will be ascertained by the aforesaid international commission forthwith and be occupied by German troops by the 10th of October".

From Nazis in a position to know this correspondent gains the impression that Chancellor Hitler will prove just as insistent and intransigent in his demand for handing over all that he claims as belonging to the fifth zone—not yet defined —as he was for the principle of annexation and the unconditional surrender of the first four zones.

(A map published by the Berlin Press indicated that the territory claimed as belonging to the fifth zone—for occupation by October 10 — or subject to plebiscite would be approximately twice as large as that transferred unconditionally in the four zones. Plebiscites are to be held not later than November 30.)

Meet at Foreign Office

The British, French and Italian ambassadors, members of the international commission, went to the Foreign office this afternoon to meet with the Chairman, Baron Ernst von Weiszaecker, secretary of State in the German Foreign office.

The three Ambassadors, Sir Nevile Henderson, Andre Francois-Poncet, and Bernardo Attolico, walked along the Wilhelmstrasse together to the Foreign office, unrecognized by pedestrians.

The Czechoslovak Minister to Berlin also is a member of the Commission, but he was not mentioned as attending this meeting.)

Political observers felt sure that Hitler's demands for reparations also would be insistent. If these observers are correct in their assumptions, the ambassadors of Great Britain, France and Italy will be placed in an awkward position.

They are charged with the task of "negotiating", meaning participating in a give-and-take process, but in reality they are likely to be faced with German demands and asked merely to underwrite them.

Claim in Interest of Peace

An inspired source close to the Foreign office said Germany would claim reparations not only on the grounds of justice but also in the interest of peace.

This sources pointed out that it was essential that conditions be created for an amicable relationship between Germany and Czechoslovakia. Both nations, it was argued, desire to live as good neighbours to the other.

But a semi-official commentator asserted this goal could not be reached if "Czechizations" in the Sudeten areas undertaken since 1918—when the Czechoslovak Republic was born—are overlooked.

It was indicated that Germany would not consider the Sudeten question solved unless reparations were paid.

Amount Not Stated

There was no indication immediately of the amount of reparations to be claimed or on what basis or how they are to be paid.

Observers recalled that point six of the eight-point program proclaimed by Konrad Henlein, the Sudeten Fuehrer, at Carlsbad April 24 called for "removal of injustices inflicted since 1918 and reparations for the damages thereby caused".

During the four-power conference at Munich last week, a German government spokesman said "that is a question for later discussion", when asked whether reparations for damages allegedly suffered by the Sudetens had figured in the conference.

Hoard's had a very successful United Church anniversary on Sept. 25th. Rev. McLauchlin of Havelock being the guest speaker and preached two earnest profitable sermons. The choir of some twenty voices rendered two very fine anthems. Mssrs. M. and H. Hutcheon of Burnbrae Presbyterian Church generously contributed a pelasing number "One Sweetly Solemn Thought" in the morning and Miss F. Weatherell, Burnbrae, Elsie and Doris Rannie sang very sweetly "Take my life and let it be" as an evening number. Good attendance at both services and the offering was very gratifying.

On the Thursday night following a fowl supper was served to a large crowd and owing to the committee of which Miss Mildred Heagle, Dietician, was convener, all were served by eight o'clock. A good program followed. Dr. C. S. Reddick, the Pastor, acted as chairman in his usual engaging manner. Miss Irene Tucker and Mr. Chappelle of Bethel contributed several numbers, encores included; Miss Ruth Pallisier of Campbellford gave a reading which captured the audience. Mr. John Coggins of Mount Pleasant sang a character song which brought an encore. Mr. Bill Jones, Stirling, gave two guitar and harmonica numbers. Miss Doris Rannie's pupils (Masson's School) rendered two choruses in two parts. Revs. McMullen and W. J. Scott were unable to be there owing to unforeseen circumstances.

With the proceeds of the evening and the Sunday offering we understand the objective was raised.

LOOKING BACK FROM 6939 A. D.

More than a thousand solid objects have been placed in a metal capsule and lowered into a fifty-foot hole on the World's Fair Grounds at New York to give a condensed record of the present day to dwellers upon earth five thousand years hence. What that future will be like no one can tell in this most critical age in the written records of men. Handed down to the year 6939 are more than ten million words of record and 1,000 pictures of today, compressed into 1,100 feet of microfilm, encased in a seven foot torpedo-shaped copper alloy tube. Also enclosed and buried are more than 100 items, representing a comprehensive cross-section of life as it is lived today. There are such items as a woman's hat, a man's pipe, a swing song, a symphony of Sibelius the great Finnish composer and surrealist paintings. The microfilm consists of an essay on civilization in 1938.

It is said that the men who will look into this record five thousand years from today will know more of today than any one man living on this globe in 1938, so complete is the record.

The 1,100 foot encyclopedic film contains such things as books on science, a mail order catalogue (to tell something of business methods today), dictionaries, magazines by the scores, articles from the Encyclopedic Britannica, cartoons, paintings, music and hundreds of carefully selected fragments of pictorial and printed knowledge.

The futurions will be able to consult for facts about us, newspapers, magazines, fashion books, dictionaries of slang as well as of correct English, the Lord's prayer in 300 tongues; the fable of the northwind and the sun in twenty languages.

Everything in the capsule is selected for the story it will tell of contemporary life in the present age. It rests in a fifty foot shaft and will be seen through a periscope at the World's Fair next year.

What will man be like five thousand years from now. It is thought the sequence of development will be natural as in the past. As to political forms, or dress, no one would dare make a guess prediction. Mr. A. W. Robertson, chairman of the Board of the General Electric Manufacturing Company speculates on the nature of affairs in those far-off days. He looks for a healthier and better race, sturdier than the sturdiest, more beautiful than the most beautiful of today, a race with a new conception of work and with the main idea to conceive and create something. He said, people today will hope that the threat of perpetual war will long since have been eliminated before the five thousand years are "up".

All our history comes from largely the last twenty-five hundred years, which includes the teachings of the Bible. Yet museums today have records dating back nearly five thousand years before Christ, but the knowledge of the daily life and of the stirring events of those days is largely hidden from us. The next five thousand years should create developments more rapid than those which have swept the world in the past five or seven or ten thousand years, however vast these changes have been.

Today people look with deepest interest on a minute record of the daily life of the people of ancient Rome, such as a child's playthings, which have escaped destruction, thanks to the dry climate of Egypt where they were found. If the ancients had had some such way of leaving a handy record for us, who knows what differences might have been caused in the history of civilization. Yet the manner in which much of the literature and knowledge of the past has been saved to us is a marvel which cannot fail to excite our wonder.

IN THE NEWS

General news has returned to its place in the newspapers and in the conversation of the people. The intense absorption in the unusual turn of international events of the three weeks preceding this week found a natural demand in men and women for everything that could be told on the momentous subject and the newspapers endeavored to satisfy that demand and succeeded. But when the assurance returned that all would be well, there was an immediate slackening of the tension, for people do not desire to think always of one subject, however many its ramjfications. They seek relaxation in the usual type of newspaper reading.

Newspapers satisfy that demand for a change of food on the part of the readers. News of international events will always be featured in the newspapers, but the threat of war was an unusual thing and being unusual it naturally created tension. But with the slackening of that grip of one thought, there is the desire to read in the news everything of human experience that is told in events which occur from day to day. The human interest is paramount at all times, even as it was in the days of crisis when people thought deeply of peace as fleeing, and meditated upon the possibilities of international strife, which will endanger all they have and are and love and cherish.

Stories of the weather, stories of the tens of thousands of incidents here, there and everywhere are again on the diet of readers.

There is a variety about general news which pleases and eases the mind. There may be a day when there seems to be nothing but a record of calamities, then there is the day largely free of news of that type. The infinite variety of the combinations of incidents in the lives of people makes newspaper reading entertaining as well as educational. The newspaper is a record of the passing scene of humanity, whether of the section one knows in one's home town of the section one knwos people whom one does not know personally but in whom one takes an interest.

HURRICANES ARE EXPECTED IN SOUTHERN CLIMES, but they seldom extend north of Maryland. In September, however, a hurricane swept out of the South, raged fiercely along the whole Atlantic shore line to New York, whipped Long Island Sound to a lather, then continued through Connecticut, Rhode Island, Maine, Massachusetts, New England States, hitherto considered immune to tropical storms. Connecticut, (called the Nutmeg State, because it is alleged that a thriving industry was once conducted there in the manufacture of wooden nutmegs) was hard hit, resulting in property damage amounting to millions of dollars besides loss of life. Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Moore, 160 George Street, on a visit to their son, Dr. Maurice Moore, of Norwich, Conn., arrived there just in time to experience the hurricane and passed through a most terrifying time. Some of the highlights of the hurricane as witnessed by Mr. and Mrs. Moore, included the service rendered by the local newspaper, the Norwich Bulletin, which despite power shortage and flood conditions carried on in a manner similar to the Ontario Intelligencer in the last destructive spring madness of the Moira. Houses were destroyed and business places damaged so that it was necessary to tear them down. Martial law was declared, curfew kept all citizens, old and young, indoors after eight o'clock at night; business areas were closed to the public and on one permitted to enter but policemen and the military. The City of New London was placed in charge of its City Manager who organized the citizens and took charge of relief measures. In Norwich the city was closed to visitors on Sunday. One of the revelations of the emergency was that relief recipients were not anxious to do any work—they were willing to take cash, food, and clothing, but had rather lost their zest for hard work. With no telephones, no electric power or electric lights, water supply infected, food scarce and all customary services seriously interfered with Connecticut folks passed through a serious time. After the hurricane the flood waters descended upon the communities, dams bursting everywhere with the superabundance of water deposited by the hurricane, and what damage the hurricane overlooked the flood waters took ample toll. Thirteen school buildings in Norwich were damaged, necessitating extensive repairs, which gives an idea of the extent of the disaster. In one hospital the storm interfered with ten maternity cases, including one Caesarian operation. No lights, no power, no heat, in the operating room, but someone discovered a gas motor for producing flood lights and the operations went on as usual and ten babies were brought into the world during the night while the flood waters steadily rose and tugged at the foundations of the building. Curfew called everybody from the streets at eight o'clock. Liquor sale was prohibited after 6 p. m. as an emergency precautionary measure. Theatres were dark, power and lights off and the city a pciture of the abomination of desolation. However, everything has to end and after the first few days the people began to get some humor out of it, as in our own flood of recent memory. But it was hard to laugh off the property damage estimated at thirty million dollars and the loss of life amounting to about 500 in the New England States.

DOLLY, AGED FORTY-ONE, said to be the oldest horse in North America, is dead in Wingham. Which moves the Toronto Globe to remark that the life of a horse is longer than that of his successor, the motor car — one model lasts for a generation. Thus says the Sage of Motor Car Alley but when a motor car is not running it is not eating.

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

OCT. 5TH, 1918

The local G. T. R. baseball team will go to Kingston on Saturday to play a match with the Y. I. C. B. A. team of that place. Morden and Meagher will be the battery for the local team.

Mr. A. Scott, wife and two children have left for Huntsville where they will spend a vacation.

And advance of fifty cents per ton on coal has been authorized by the Department of the Dominion Fuel Commissioner, and Mr. T. F. Wills, the local fuel commissioner, was notified to this effect today. This advance will make the price $12.00 per ton for anthracite coal in Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Robb have returned to Montreal after spending a few days here with friends.

30 YEARS AGO

OCT. 5TH, 1908

Mr. R. H. Sanderson of Toronto is spending a few days here with friends.

Messrs Ernest and Newton Alford of Montreal, and Robert Alford of Toronto, are home on a short visit.

Mr. Thomas Ramsay, College Street, brought to this office this morning some ripe raspberries which were picked in his garden this morning.

Mr. Bertram H. Atkins has been transferred from Toronto to the Belleville branch of the Dominion Bank.

Mr. George Powell of Orillia has arrived in town and has taken up residence at the Driving Park. He will have charge of the track and with his well-known ability he should make a success of the work.

A pane of glass was broken last evening in the south door of Mr. A. McCrodan's grocery store, corner of Victoria Avenue and Front Street. The damage was evidently caused by boys throwing stones, as a stone was found inside the store near the broken glass.

40 YEARS AGO

OCT. 5TH, 1898

The members of the Belleville Road Club will have a run to Trenton this evening.

A small blaze in a pile of rubbsh in the yard back of Blood's Fair was extinguished by the police.

Mr. Don Henderson of Chicago, an old Belleville boy, is spending a few days in town renewing acquaintances.

Mr. W. W. Power is home from New York on a short visit.

The Rev. Robert Wallace spent yesterday in Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Butterfield have left for New York City where they will spend a short vacation.

Mr. P. Brown of Dayton, Ohio, is visiting his mother in this city.

Mr. George Johnston of Buffalo, N.Y., formerly of Belleville, is renewing acquaintances in the city.

50 YEARS AGO

OCT. 5TH, 1888

The Madoc train brought a large number of passengers to the city this morning.

As a lady was driving a horse attacher to a dog cart last evening down Hotel Street, the rear spring broke and she was thrown to the ground. Fortunately she was not injured.

The Smith Manufacturing Company of this city received a large order for tinware today from Toronto. The goods they manufacture is of superior quality and the workmanship is excellent.

Mr. H. Jones, gardener for Col. Brown, exhibited at this office today two Flemish Beauty pears, one weighed 15 ounces and the other 14 3-4 ounces.

Messrs. John N. Pringle and Henry Pretty had good sport shooting yesterday. Their bag was made up of 18 ducks, chiefly black ducks and teal.

DELIRIOUS IDEA

Says a United States newspaper; "The latest invention announced from London is an automobile that, in addition to the normal method of progress, can move sideways—more, it can revolve like a top. This is going to make parking a much simpler matter; having acquired the knight's move, the motorist should suffer a stalemate. From that point of view the invention ought to prove a boon. But it is to be hoped that it will be used with discretion, and not allowed to increase the possibilities of eccentric conduct on the road. It would be unfortunate if sidlers and spinners were added to speeders on the list of difficulties encountered there."

There is that objection. The inventor should have held up until the Big Apple craze was well off the map. The prospect of moving a car in any direction except vertically may well prove irresistible to drivers who are thinking in terms of peckin' and so forth. Imagine also one of these large trucks doing a lateral glide, a couple of teetotum twirls and scattering its load by centrifugal force, or a bus sweeping sideways along the highway so as to give all its passengers turn and turn about a chance of front seats. The whole idea is nightmarish to the sane and the sober.—St. John Times-Globe.

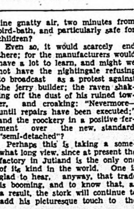
STORK DILEMNA

It appears that the storks in Denmark are growing lazy. They will not build their own nests, and unless these are provided for them, they take umbrage, and fly south. The Danish farmer, however, likes to have a stork on his roof, and so a small factory has been started in Jutland to manufacture nests.

This is a most hospitable gesture, but it may have unlooked-for repercussions. There is the possibility that the cuckoo has influenced the stork should be taken to heart by stork should be taktn to heart by other birds? Will the swallow boycott all summer resorts in Europe that cannot offer him roomy accommodation, free of charge, well secluded under ancient eaves, in fine gnatty air, two minutes from bird-bath, and particularly safe for children?

Even so, it would scarcely end there; for the manufacturers would have a lot to learn, and might we not have the nightingale refusing to broadcast as a protest against the jerry builder; the raven shaking off the dust of his ruined tower, and croaking: "Nevermore—until repairs have been executed;" and the roockery in a positive ferment over the new, standard, "semi-detached"?

Perhaps this is taking a somewhat long view, since at present the factory in Jutland is the only one of its kind in the world. One is glad to hear, anyway, that trade is booming, and to know that, as a result, the stork will continue to add his picturesque touch to the Danish farmhouse.—Christian Science Monitor.



LIFE THREATENED

A plot against the life of Fred Orpen, of Toronto, secretary-treasurer of the Metropolitan Racing association, was revealed by a strange man to Mr. Orpen's secretary. Police are searching for the man whose identity was revealed by a police picture picked out by the secretary.

NEW SERVICE

A new service has been introduced by the Southern Railway Company for the benefit of a limited section of its public. Passengers can now go to any of 30 specified booking offices on the company's system and ask to be provided with an umbrella as well as a cheap return ticket.

If you are a season-ticket holder the clerk takes particulars from your ticket, hands you an umbrella, and charges twopence for two days' use, and an extra penny for every additional day you keep it. If you are not a season-ticket holder you give your name and address and deposit half a crown.—Manchester Guardian.

That Body of Yours

Why Heart Disease is so Common

Nearly two million people in the United States suffer from heart disease and each year there are 300,000 deaths from it.

Twenty-five years ago the average span of life was fifty years; today it is sixty years. That is, ten years have been added to the lifespan in one generation.

Twenty-five years ago three babies in ten died at birth or during the first year; today about one in twenty dies. These lives are saved by care before and after birth and proper feeding. Twenty-five years ago also, thousands of children died from the infectious diseases.

What happens to all these children whose lives are spared in infancy. Many of them grow up to reach manhood and womanhood, some of them strong and some of them weak. But because there are that many more adults living, naturally there are going to be many more cases of heart disease which come on during and after middle life.

"Studies have shown that the increase in deaths from heart disease results from the increased span or duration of life among the population from the fall in death rate of infants and children and from the fall in infectious diseases. Deaths from smallpox, diphtheria, scarlet fever and tuberculosis have decreased. The increase in heart disease therefore is more apparent than real and should not be a cause of alarm."

I am quoting Arthur M. Master in Hygeia.

What about the real or actual cases of heart disease? Do these patients all drop dead suddenly?

Many patients with active heart disease—getting out of breath easily, swelling of the feet, attacks of angina pectoris (vise-like pain in the chest) live for many years, often fifteen or twenty, after the first symptoms of heart disease appear.

One of the signs that heart patients can be helped to live a long time is in the great increase in the number of heart specialists. By careful examination of the heart's reaction to exercise, by testing rhythm, regularity and strength of heart beats by the electrocardiograph, and the use of the fluoroscope (Xray) which shows position, size and action of the heart, the heart specialist is able to lay out a plan of life—rest, light exercise, small meals—by means of which the patient's life is "comfortably prolonged".

SOVIET-FRENCH

longer to swing over to the side of German Fascism."

Not Stated Specifically

The Journal did not state specifically that Moscow intended to cancel the French-Soviet Pact of May, 1935, but asked: "What is it worth now that France has torn up its treaty of alliance with Czechoslovakia?"

The French Soviet treaty provided for assistance in case of attack on either party by a third power. It was regarded widely as France's answer to the threat of German rearmament under Hitler, but because of the acutely anti-Soviet policy of the Nazi regime, the Pact also became an obstacle to French-German rapprochement.

With the pact seemingly relegated to the scrap heap, the question was, "What will Moscow do?" Opinions among qualified foreign observers were not unanimous, but some believed one result would be an intensification of Communist activity.

Intensification of Activity

Le Journal said further:

"International public opinion now says, what is the value of France's word—the value of her pledges to the U.S.S.R., and of the French-Soviet Pact?

"What now is the value of the latter Pact since France has just torn up her treaty with Czechoslovakia—a treaty which bound her much more strongly?

"On whom can France rely now? Her sole ally in Europe now is Britain—this same Britain which went behind France's back and signed the Naval Agreement with Germany (in 1936) and which today comes to terms with Hitler—again behind France's back.

"XXX that isolation was precisely Hitler's aim."

INVENTIVE GENIUS

I see by the papers that some one has just invented and had patented a head rest for the use of those languid souls who like to get into the bathtub for their reading.

Thus the American inventive genius fills another log-felt want. True, it is a minor want. But let some other inventor come forward with floating ash trays, waterproof matches, and, perhaps, a floating book rest equipped with a compensating device to keep it from being rocked too violently by the waves, and the bathtub reader will have nothing to yearn for.

Nevertheless, to the confirmed householder, there is something vaguely irritating about this invention. After all, there aren't many bathtub readers; and it is possible to argue that they deserve whatever inconvenience they put themselves to.

Why don't the inventors apply their alents to problems of a more nearly universal, and less easily evaded, character? The home, as a machine for living, is still a very faulty mechanism. It does not work smoothly in all its parts. Carpet sweepers and vacuum cleaners have put certain operations on an efficient, mass-production basis. But there are other operations which the inventors have entirely overlooked. Any householder could list a dozen.

The one which springs first to my mind is the problem of the ordinary household sieve or strainer. The sieve is an implement of basic importance. No kitchen is without one. Its uses are manifold. And every time it is used it has to be washed. And every time someone tries to clean an ordinary household sieve, that someone is pushed another step toward the madhouse. Is there any task more baffling, More maddening, than that of trying to clean a sieve? I think not.

So, while applauding the ingenuity which has brought fourth the head rest for bathtub readers, nevertheless I hold back the greater part of my enthusiasm for the person who invents a self-cleaning kitchen sieve.—John O'Ren in Baltimore Sun.

CHECKERS SURVIVE

Maine's Three-Quarter Century Club recently had its annual meeting in Augusta. A Portland paper showed a picture of a man of 78 and a man of 87 studying a checker board on the table between them. Can chess players keep their game at 87? Checkers is preserver of life, a developer of thought. It requires meditative silence and is probably best played in the absence of kibitzers. Old as the Odyssey, old perhaps as Egypt, it became a great American game when America was in its youth; and Americans can still hold their own against the English and even the Scots in all its subtleties. "Draughts", misguided creatures across the sea call it, but that's all one.

Think of the old American checker-boards, often home-constructed and rudely painted; a little board and on its other side perhaps that now forgotten game of Fox and Geese. Checkers was played by the banks of the Wabash. It went across the continent in wagons pulled by oxen. It was the constant delight of the old country store. The board was dimly lit by candle or kerosene. The talk was hushed. "Let's see, as the blind man said," was the ritual observation of a player. The game was symbolic. Those jumps, that sudden crowning of an ordinary "man" who reached the king row, were but a reflection of the opportunities of the horse-and-buggy age.

Yet it must be admitted that sometimes there were bursts of anger. Men and board would be thrown away violently. In the worst cases the board might be applied violently but perhaps homeopathically to a twitting opponent's head. These were the spots on the sun. Your checkers player is almost always philosophically and easy to get along with.—New York Times.

AIMING THE SHIP

One item in the Queen Mary's new record will seem to many landsmen even more impressive than the actual time and speed. This is the precision with which a ship will cross nearly 3,000 miles of ocean. Between Bishop's Rock, England, and our own Ambrose Lightship the Queen Mary made her record run on a course of 2,907 miles. Between the same two points the Normandie made her now defunct record on a course of 2,906 miles.

A deviation of one mile in nearly 3,000 miles is something that almost staggers the imagination. It is a sharpshooter hitting a foot and a half from the centre of the target at a mile. Among our intruments of precision it is plain that man is no mean precision instrument himself. It is only a pity that he does not always use his gift for steering ships across the Atlantic and similar useful purposes.—New York Times.

SMALL TOWN

Roger Babson, statistician and publicist, hit the headlines recently by advising university graduates not to get married hastily but to get a job in a small town and to put their savings into a small farm. The Financial Post commenting agrees that the small town has always been a good place to live. "Today, any disadvantages it may have had as to distance and isolation have disappeared. Traditional qualities of friendliness. Freedom and fresh air have been enhanced by most of the amenities of 'city' life."

Those of us living in small towns and sometimes looking longingly toward the glitter of the big city should realize that after all the real romance of living is where your friends are neighbors and your neighbors all friends. Only the small towns give that.—Swift Current Sun.

TREND OF NORTH

Where are the brave, the rough, the woolly old days of the mining camps? Do you know that even in Val d'Or they are actually playing tennis? Yes, the other day Val d'Or defeated the O'Brien Mine at tennis! The players wore the regular tennis costume, and instead of shooting up the town after their defeat, the O'Brien Mine fellows just went peacefully home again—after the odd drink or two, perhaps. —Timmins Advance.

SHE SAID "NO"

While reconnoitering in Westmoreland County, Virginia, General Washington's officers came upon a team of fine, sleek horses being driven to the plow by an elderly Negro.

"Hello, good fellow," one of the officers called out, "we must have those horses. They're just what we've beenlooking for."

Without paying any heed, the venerable man turned and began to plow another furrow. When he returned, the officer again demanded the horses, but all the plowman would say was, "Better see Missus! Better see Missus!"

The officers repaired to a neat farmhouse near by and knocked upon the door, where they were greeted by an elderly woman of grave but kindly charm. They repeated their demand.

"Upon whose orders are you acting?" demanded the lady.

"Upon the orders of our chief," they replied.

"Your chief?" the householder exclaimed. "Who is your chief, pray?"

"General George Washington, Commander of the Revolutionary Army," one of the officers replied grandly.

"You go back," replied the lady with a smile, "and tell General George Washington for me that his mother says he cannot have her horses."—Christian Science Monitor.

PRESENTATION

An enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Welsh, Moira, Friday evening, Sept. 30, when a large number of friends and neighbors gathered to honour the newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Welsh (nee Edna Ketcheson). Rev. Tristram, acting as chairman, called on Miss Betty Foster to read an address and the presentation of a beautiful couch, an occasional chair, pair of flannelette blankets, and some ivory and red graniteware was made. Following the address both Mr. and Mrs. Welsh thanked their friends for the beautiful gifts, and invited them to visit them when they were settled in their home, after which lunch was served and a social time spent. The following is the address:

Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Welsh,
Dear Edna and Nelson:

It gives us immense pleasure to be here with you tonight to give you our congratulations on your recent marriage. We also congratulate ourselves, Edna, that you have come into our neighborhood and we hope that your life amongst us may be long and happy.

Nelson, we are glad to see you settling down here in your own home, for it would not seem fitting for every Welsh to leave Moira. Your jolly, yet helpful ways, have won you many true friends in this district.

We wish you both the very best that God can bestow in your life together and hope that you may long be spared to be useful members of your community. We ask you to accept these presents which carry with them the best wishes of the whole community in your new life.

Signed on behalf of Moira friends, Angus Mumby, Ross Ketcheson, W. H. Emerson, Frank Spence, Don Holbert.

JUNGLE ENGINEERING

One of the century's greatest feats of engineering will be completed in a year's time when a 1,000 feet long bridge will span the Zambesi River.

The bridge is being built by Messrs. Dorman Long at Middlesbrough and section by section it is constructed at their works there, then dismantled and taken by boat and train to Africa. After a journey of many weeks, the girders and coils of wire will be dragged through what is now 200 miles of jungle.

At the moment, while the furnaces are preparing steel for the bridge, girders already lie alongside the Zambesi, and electric drills are burrowing their way through the rock on both sides of the river. They are chipping tunnels 40 feet down in the grond to hold the cables.—Industrial Britain.

PRESIDENTIAL GUARD

Canadians at Kingston and Ivy Lea got an eye-opener as they saw a flock of secret service men poking behind curtains, crawling under platforms, scouting around the Presidential train and car. Very likely that is standard procedure, and desirable in view of certain occurrences from time to time on the other side of the line. It must have been just a little amusing to the Prime Minister of Canada, who has no bodyguard. In this country, when we do not like our rulers, we remedy the situation with ballots, not bullets.—Woodstock Sentinel Review.

EDITOR'S ADVICE

We don't want to preach, but perhaps a word to the living from the editor's viewpoint may not be amiss. It is this—so live that when you pass on the newspaper won't be afraid to tell the truth about you, and do something worth while so that it won't be necessary to fill up the space by telling who sent flowers to your funeral.—Fergus News Record.

Little Benny's Note Book

We were eating breakfist and ma said to pop, Willyum, you simply must try this jam.

Well, if I must I must, but I dont know of anything I can decline with greater alacrity, pop said.

And he put some on a piece of toast and ate it, saying, Okay, I've done my duty and believe me it was its own reward, what the dooce is in that stuff?

It's a combination of pineapple and grape and it's something very special and we've simply got to finish it up, because that little jar cost me 40 cents, ma said, and pop said I cant think of a better reason my deer. One time when I was a young fellow I had a little case of influenza, and I prized it highly, because I knew just where I got it. I got it at a football game and the tickets cost me 10 dollers, so believe me I hung on to that influenza, I must of had it at least 3 weeks, he said.

Now Willyum you dont need to eat the jam if you dont want to, I assure you, because your loss will be others gain, ma said, and pop said, Pineapple and grape, yee gods, I remember the first cigar I ever smoked, it was on my 19th birthday and I was celebrating. That cigar was made of equal parts of gas and rope, but it had cost me 10 cents so believe me I smoked it down to the last inch although my eyes were glazed and my stummick was here there and everywhere, he said.

I am going to leave this table if you insist on spoiling my appetite for the sake of your own peculiar idea of humor, ma said, and pop said, How little you understand me, my deer, give me a little more of that jam, will you?

I most certainly will not, ma said.

Me and my cousin Artie were walking along just walking along and we started to go passed a fruit store with all kinds of fruit outside in baskets, Artie saying, G, look at those swell looking peaches, if I had to be some kind of a fruit tree I'd rather be a peach tree, what kind would you?

Id rather be a watermelon patch, I said, and Artie said, Well good nite that's no kind of a tree at all, and I said, Who said it was, do I have to be a tree if I dont feel like it?

O go ahead and be whatever you want, this is a free country, Artie said. I wonder how much those peaches are, he said, and said, Let's find out.

Wich just then the man came out of the store and Artie said, How much are those peaches, mister?

3 cents apiece, 3 for ten things are always cheeper holesale, the man said, and I said to Artie, G, if we had 10 cents we could get 3 of them holesale and that would be a peach and a half apiece.

G, that's rite, but hay, what the dooce, 3 times 3 is only 9, Artie said, and I said, G, that's rite. And I said to the man, Hay, mister, 10 cents is more than 3 times 3, and he said, Well so it is. All rite, you can have 3 for 9 cents, he said.

Well G wizzickers, that's what 3 times 3 makes anyways, Artie said, and the man said, I believe you're rite. Well, let's say 8 cents, he said, and I said, But G, mister, we've only just got a cent between us.

Say. I thought it was me that was doing the kidding around here, but now I aint so sure, the man said. Here, give me the cent and take this peach and scram, he said.

Wich we did feeling exter lucky till we took a better look at the peach.

My sister Gladdis and Harvey came over to play bridge after supper and ma and Gladdis started to talk about diffrent things such as people in the movies always getting divorced from each other and Gladdis said, Did you happen to feast your eyes on Duna Dupree's divorce action against Hinkly Bell? That was a wow with a capital Wow. It seems he threw a 3 thousand doller set of Widginware china at her, from cereal saucers to demmy tass cups, and though he wasn't in any condition to aim straight, the entire set of dishes was shattered, 45 pieces in all, Gladdis said, and ma said, Widginware, can you imagine it? And yet that isn't a patch on the accusations Lorraine Dartly has been making in her suit against Claude Staples. She claims that one night, as the climax of a series of so called practical jokes, he held her head under water in their swimming pool for 5 minutes to prove to their guests that she really is more of a fish than a woman, ma said.

I understand our good friends Mr. and Mrs. Hews got into a brawl the other evening and he smeared butter all over her face in a public resterant, pop said, and ma said, Willyum Potts such a thing to make up about the Hewses.

It reminds me of a young couple Gladdis and I knew, by the name of George and Jessie Jeevers, Harvey said. It seems he got good and mad at her for delibritly mixing sand with the pepper, so he set fire to her hair while she was asleep, he said, and Gladdis said, Now listen Harvey, statements like that are apt to be repeated, and you'd be in a nice fix trying to explain.

Well, there's no fun dishing out scandle unless you know the people, Harvey said, and pop said, That's the way I feel. Is this suppose to be an evening of bridge? Let's go, he said.

Wich they did.

DRUG MANUFACTURER PLEADS GUILTY

Greenville, Tenn., Oct. 5 (AP)—Samuel Evans Massengill was fined $16,800 yesterday after he pleaded guilty to charges growing out of 70 deaths blamed on an elixir or sulfanilamide.

District Attorney James Frazier said the principal charge against the accused was "adulteration and misbranding" of an elixir or sulfanilamide manufactured and distributed by the Massengill Manufacturing Co.

GETS BUCK WITH CANE

Waterboro, S.C., Oct. 5 (AP)—Rob R. Middlebrooks of Asheboro went fox hunting and bagged a deer with a walking cane. The buck, frightened by the fox hounds, darted from the woods, ran into a fence, and was hurled back, dazed. All Middlebrooks had to do was swing lustily with a hickory cane.

BREAKS ARM WHILE CLIMBING AFTER A FISH

Greencastle, Pa., Oct. 5 (AP)—Merle Shindle, 30, broke his wrist in a fall while catching a fish—in a tree. Angling in a nearby creek, he felt a bite and tugged on his line with such force that it caught in the tree, the fish dangling. He climbed after his catch. A limb broke.

New Cabinet Named

The Czechoslovak government resigned at 9 p.m. yesterday and President Edouard Benes named a new cabinet, retaining Premier Jan Syrovy. Frantisek Chvalkovsky, Minister to Rome, succeeded Kamil Krofta as Foreign Affairs Minister.

Three Slovaks were named—General Vladimir Caidos, Minister of Communications; Imrich Karvas, Commerce; and Vladimir Sajnor, Justice.

The new government was considered a Moderate-Rightist grouping.

Minister Without Portfolio Cermak, a Slovak, provoked the Cabinet turn-over when he resigned, declaring government proposals regarding Slovak autonomy were inadequate.

Must Pay Cost

One of the main problems was paying the cost of mobilization begun before last week's four-power agreement to dismember Czechoslovakia.

Public works, like highways, railways and new administration buildings along the new frontiers were expected to absorb many refugees from the Sudeten districts ceded to Germany.

Economic experts who attempted to form a picture of the future Czechoslovakia assumed that territories with 51 per cent or more of non - Czechoslovak population would be lost in plebiscites.

On this basis they calculated the Republic would retain about 49 per cent of its industrial plant and about 64 per cent of the workers previously engaged throughout the country.

Coal a Serious Loss

Coal presented a serious loss but the extent of the reduction was not estimated because many mines lie along the Polish border and in land ceded or subject to negotiation.

An estimated 61 per cent of metal industries and 79 per cent of metal workers will be retained; 51 per cent of the textile plants, 47 per cent of workers; 71 per cent of leather plants, 74 per cent of workers; 74 per cent of stone industries, 65 per cent of workers; 63 per cent of paper factories, 65 per cent of workers.

Newsprint plant and porcelain factories were counted total losses. The fate of the important chemical industry depended on the final disposition of territory south of Aussig.

Eight hundred Prague women started working as streetcar conductors in answer to an appeal for aid after their husbands were mobilized. They will remain at the posts until the men return to civil life.

League of Nations Severely Criticized By Lord Rothermere

By Guy Rhoades
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Oct. 5—(CP Cable)—Lord Rothermere's Daily Mail (Independent) today declared it was certain the British people never again would put "a shred of trust" in the League of Nations. "They will instead rearm."

The newspaper declared:

"As everybody now realizes too well, the political moon fakers and busybodies of Geneva manufactured rebuff after rebuff and humiliation after humiliation for Great Britain.

"The League largely helped dig the pit from which Mr. Chamberlain's realism rescued humanity last week. . . . .

"The country may be sure that Mr. Chamberlain who was one of the first statesmen to say bluntly that the League had become a gross futility will never attempt to build his peace on this rotten structure."

Daily Herald

The Daily Herald (Labor) demanded to know why the government was not ready to co-operate with Soviet Russia in the preservation of peace. It asked: "Does it set an ideological difference above peace?"

If that were the case, it said, "Let us have the courage to say so and accept the verdict of public opinion."

The newspaper declared Labor was willing to co-operate with Fascist powers provided they genuinely wish to secure peace and added: "Peace cannot be secured by private bargains. It can be secured by the co-operation of all nations."

The Daily Express (Independent) called for a general election, stating:

"A transformation has taken place in Europe and a new position has been created there. Mr. Chamberlain must take the responsibility for bringing about that change; indeed the responsibility is his alone."

If Mr. Chamberlain were to continue his policy, he must know if he had the support of the country, the paper argued. That could be learned through an election alone.

News-Chronicle

The News-Chronicle (Liberal) declared it had suspicions that a new "deal" with Italy was bound to arise and reminded the government of Mr. Chamberlain's promise of Feb. 21 when he told the House of Commons he regarded "a settlement of the Spanish question as an essential feature of any agreement at which we might arrive."

The Daily Telegraph (Conservative) had some criticism for Earl Baldwin's address in the House of Lords, saying he did not attempt to go deeply into the questions at issue, "and he took the liberty of begging some of them. . . ."

"However, he was strongly in favor of bringing up our defences to the highest level, with the least delay", the paper added, "and he would even 'mobilize industry'—a prescription which he forebore, unfortunately, to define."

The Times

The Times (Independent) answered critics who claimed war will come anyway, and that Britain was weakened by last week's events, by saying:

"It would be more just to say that it has been strengthened by concentration and by ceasing to rely upon that which proved untenable. The policy of encirclement of Germany, long since discredited, has finally broken down with abandonment of a frontier that no longer merited the description of 'strategic'.

"On the other hand, while the chief potential cause of war in Europe has been removed, the nation at home has experienced such an awakening of the meaning of war, if it does come, as it has not known, and has certainly needed, since 1918."

ANOTHER FIRE IN KENNY HOME

Fourth Time House Has Caught Fire Since Stork Derby Closed

Toronto, Oct. 5—(CP)—Another fire broke out at the home of the Matthew Kennys last night, an outbreak enlivened by Mrs. Kenny's frantic search of the smoking debris for a missing baby.

'Midst the excitement it never was satisfactorily explained which baby was missing, though it was learned from the neighbors the child was out with Pa Kenny. Of the Kenny's large brood, several are young enough to be classed as babies.

The fire was the fourth at the Kenny home within a year and the second in a month at the family's present residence, Bathurst Street. As an aftermath, an immediate move on the part of the news-making Kennys appeared necessary. Only two rooms of the house remain intact and these are flooded with water.

Hurried Into House

Mrs. Kenny, a vociferous contender in the famous Toronto Stork Derby, came running up the street shortly after the fire had been extinguished. Pushing her way through the crowd and blinking in the face of photographers' flash bulbs, she hurried into the house, screaming:

"My baby! My Baby Where's my baby?"

The stocky little woman who settled her claims to the $500,000 derby prize for $12,500 several months ago ran from room to room of the charred residence seeking her child. Occasionally she ceased her inquiries to ask policemen and spectators who had set her house afire.

No one was at home when a neighbor of the Kennys discovered the fire which swept the kitchen, up the front staircase and into a bedroom before it was put out. Fire Marshal W. J. Scott and Prof. L. Joslyn Rogers, Provincial analyst, and Fire Chief George Sinclair were quickly on the scene to open an investigation.

The Stars Say—

For Thursday October 6.
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A DAY OF RATHER "mixed influences" in astrological parlance, is read from a peculiar chain of planetary aspects. These are of changeable and variable nature, and may incite a variety of experiences and events, fluctuating from adverse to fortuitous. There are signs of important contracts or business transactions, which should be both lucrative and generous. At the same time there is danger of expansion, extravagance and a tendency to "plunge". There also may be some enmity and jealousy. With care there should be much success and progress.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a successful and progressive year, although there may be fluctuations, the usual ups and downs, to cope with, mainly by shrewd conservation of funds and wise expenditures. These may cause enmity and jealousy, resulting in eventful loss or shrinkage in assets.

A child born on this day may be enterprising, progressive and ambitious. It may have generous impulses and much kindliness, despite which it may incite enmities and jealousies.

EX-JAIL INMATE GETS JOB ON STAFF OF PRISON

McAlester, Okla., Oct. 5 (AP)—Three days ago Dr. W. R. Armstrong completed his five-year auto theft term at the State penitentiary. Today he was aback at the prison—as a staff member receiving $175 monthly. His work as an inmate instructor at the Stringtown sub-prison school brought favorable attention. So prison officials named him director of academic course at the prison school and resident physician.

Personals

Mrs. Arthur Rogers, who has been seriously ill at her home, 15 Dunbar Street, is slightly improved.

Miss Richardson left for her home in Prescott today. She was accompanied by Misses Norma and Cora Clarke.

Miss Carrie Stortz of Picton, was the week-end guest of Mrs. J. R. Mulligan, Charles Street.

Sister Mary Romana. House of Providence, Kingston, was the guest of her brother, Mr. J. R. Mulligan, Charles Street.

Mr. Fred Voisin left today for Durham to attend the funeral of his brother, Harvey Voisin, who was accidentally killed at Waterford on Monday.

Mrs. (Dr.) H. C. Leisemer of Calgary, is visiting her sister, Mrs. H. E. Shetler and Mr. Shetler.

Mr. John Benson of Ivanhoe, who was a patient recently at Belleville General Hospital is convalescing at the home of his daughter, Mrs. W. Kilpatrick, 150 E. Moira Street.

About forty friends and relatives met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Colden, 40 Hillcrest Ave. last evening to commemorate the fifty-fourth anniversary of their marriage. The evening was spent in dancing and cards until an early hour.

Under the auspices of the Home-Making Committee of the Women of the Moose, Belleville, Chapter 435, a social evening was enjoyed by the members following the regular meeting of the Chapter. Euchre and Rummy were enjoyed the prize winner for euchre being Mrs. M. Brown, the honours for Rummy going to Mrs. J. Chapman. Dainty refreshments were served at the conclusion of the game by the members of the Society.

The Parish Guild of Christ Church enjoyed a very interesting program at their regular October meeting yesterday. Miss Florence Fitzgerald gave a thoughtful address on "Peace". Routine business was discussed and monthly reports were presented. Mrs. E. J. Follwell spoke on her recent trip to England, Scotland and France, vividly describing life and conditions in these countries and her talk was greatly appreciated. Mrs. E. R. Hinchey and Mrs. Earl Fry were tea hostesses.

The closing tea at the Bay of Quinte Country Club was held this afternoon. The hostesses were Mrs. G. A. Freeman, Mrs. Frank Hinchey, Mrs. Grier Roberts, Miss Victoria Scott and Miss Joyce Porritt.

Mrs. E. H. Walters was tea hostess at the Belleville Golf Club this afternoon.

Friends in Belleville of Mrs. J. Murphy, formerly Miss Mary Ann Flannery will regret to learn of her death at her late residence, 33 Cumberland Street, Toronto, on Tuesday.

Mr. Alfred Harrow, bailiff, who has been sick for the past two weeks is better and able to resume his duties.

Autumn flowers in vivid tones made a charming background for the tea held at the home of Miss Milburn, 216 Charles Street, yesterday under the auspices of the Women's Guild of St. Thomas' Church. Mrs. A. B. Payne, and Mrs. F. Potter, president of the Guild, received with the hostess and the guests were invited to the tea room by Mrs. J. Tilley. The tea table was most attractively arranged with asters and gaillardia. Mrs. A. E. McColl poured and the tea assistants were Mrs. Scripture, Miss Ethel Gorman, Miss Georgia Scott, Mrs. Codlin and Mrs. Leggatte. Mrs. Henn and Mrs. Bird were in charge of the home-cooking table, and Mrs. Wilkinson the plant and vegetable table. The number of apples in a hamper on which guesses were taken was correctly guessed by Mrs. Wilkinson as 101. Mrs. S. Gilmore was treasurer for the very successful function.

GET COMFORTING RELIEF FROM Runny HEAD COLD

DO THIS: Put some Vicks VapoRub up each nostril and sniff well back. You'll feel better right away. Next, melt a spoonful of VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water; then breathe in the steaming medicated vapors for several minutes. This loosens phlegm and further clears the air-passages. At bedtime, rub VapoRub on throat, chest, and back so that its long-continued double action can relieve the misery of the cold while you sleep. VapoRub acts direct through the skin like a poultice; at the same time its medicated vapors, breathed in direct, bring comfort to the irritated air-passages. Try it.

CARE OF HAIR, SCALP VITAL

By HELEN FOLLETT

COIFFURES WERE never so sauve or so beautiful. They are a joy; they lop off birthdays, impart the piquant touch. The time has come when the scrambled hair-do is close to a mortal sin.

Do you realize, my dear readers, that the delights of a beautifully-arranged crest are dependent upon care of the hair and scalp? Be grateful for the lovely wool nature gave you, show your appreciation by treating it graciously. Oncoming years are likely to thin it, dim the gloss. Take out an insurance against that chance.

Unless the hair is subjected to considerable dust, it need not be shampooed more often than twice a month. If shafts are dry, the shampoo can be given every three weeks. See that a bland, harmless soap is used; harsh ones will cause the shafts to break. Have the rinsing thorough. If there is a gray film on the comb afterward, soap scum remains; that means that your finger wave will go limp in no time.

Every night give your scalp a brisk friction. Spread out fingers and thumbs, lift the flesh away from the bones. There's no need of disturbing the undulation. The night before the shampoo brush your tresses 100 strokes and rub brilliantine into the scalp and on to the ends of the hair.

Keep to a balanced diet. Hair is dependent upon many food elements, as are all the cells of the body.

Have you suddenly discovered that slenderness is departing, that hips are getting heavy, belts must be let out? It won't do to disregard these signs; the middle-aged figure will be yours.

Every morning, every night, stand tall, pull in your tummy, yank up your chest, touch the floor with the finger tips without bending the knees. Do this 30 times, and no cheating.

GLORIA DICKSON....takes good care of her hair and scalp.

Do the torso twist. Lift your hands high in the air, palms facing forward. Swing arms to the right, then to the left and repeat. Pivot at the waistline. You may have twinges afterward which prove that you are working muscles that have become lazy and soft.

Organize All Of Child's Play?

It's Not Best Way To Encourage Initiative In Youth, Says Lisa

By LISA GRENELLE

"AND IT'S so particularly nice for the children on the island now," a woman said to me one day, "because they have organized games every afternoon.".

When I was a child there were no organized games, or organized play groups. When not in school, children were left to their own devices. In consequence, of course, we got into considerable mischief, and I imagine made, at times, considerable nuisance of ourselves. We also, when our imaginations gave out, endured long hours of boredom.

Nevertheless, I look back upon that time, as I think most of us do, not only as one of the happiest periods of my life, but as one of the most educational.

It's important to know how to handle freedom (of course, that may change in the next 50 years —but it is still important). A man who can handle his freedom is ready for life.

Takes Practice

But it takes practice—long practice, and it should be learned early. An adult who has had freedom thrust upon him for the first time in his mature years almost always makes an awful botch of it. In fact, I can't at the moment think of a solitary case to the contrary.

It takes practice and pressure to develop initiative. It takes nerve and courage to go out and find and make your own friends, your own occupation—your own life.

The rugged, independent, self-sufficient individuals that America was once proud to be made up of, were the descendants of the children who were left alone for long hours to amuse themselves, to get into trouble—and learn to keep out of it—and make what they could of their freedom and their opportunity.

No one likes to be bored. No one likes to be lonely, least of all the average child, who is naturally both active and gregarious. Fear of boredom or fear of loneliness is a strong incentive to go out and try your luck, do and dare—to develop initiative, courage, and that tact necessary to make and hold a friend, without help, without being brought and thrown together.

Have Much to Offer

But these organized games, these organized groups—do they also have much to offer?

Naturally, or they would never have come into existence. They keep the children out of mischief. They keep the children from under their parents's feet, keep them healthy, occupied. The best of them undoubtedly instill good sportmanship, which is fine, and co-operation, which is not only fine but practical and important.

There are some cases in which such organizations are a need and a godsend and a life-saver.

But when the child is normal and his life is normal, why not give him a chance to find himself by himself—on his own two feet, by the aid of his own mind? How can a child who is always under somebody's orders ever hope to develop any initiative? When he is never allowed to make any mistakes, how can he learn how to keep out of trouble?

GOOD MANNERS

The Wedding Reception

Whereas the atmosphere of the marriage ceremony is impressively mysterious, dignified, spiritually significant, the atmosphere of the reception is "social", keyed to a gay and lively pace.

First the bride and her family must decide what kind of reception they can afford. How many guests are to be invited? It may be an informal gathering of relatives and friends at the bride's home, with the serving of the simplest of refreshments. Or it may be catered, held in the ballroom of a hotel or assembly room or club.

Since the reception follows immediately after the marriage service, the hour of the reception, and the type of reception is determined by the hour of the ceremony. A morning or High Noon wedding is followed by a wedding breakfast. An afternoon or evening ceremony is followed by a reception.

At the reception whether formal or informal, the bride and bridegroom and the bride's attendants are a part of the receiving line. The best man and ushers never have places in the receiving line. As to the other members of the receiving line, there are no fixed rules. Customarily, however, and appropriately too, the bride's mother, the hostess of the occasion, stands first in the receiving line, to greet the guests. Often the father of the bride stands next to the bride's mother, or he may greet the guests after they have passed down the line, or he may mingle with them. Next is the bridegroom's father, then his mother, then the bridegroom. At the bridegroom's right is the bride, at whose right is the maid of honor. At her right are the bridesmaids.

As the guests arrive, they are greeted first by the bride's mother, and then they pass down the line, shaking hands with each member of the receiving line.

When all the guests have been received, the bride and bridegroom and their parents take their places at table.

Usually there is a bride's table, at which are seated the bride, the bridegroom and the members of the wedding party. The bride sits at the right of the bridegroom; the best man at the right of the bride; the maid of honor at the left of the bridegroom. The bridesmaids and ushers are seated alternately.

There are certain definite traditions to be observed in the seating arrangements at the parents' table. The bride's mother, the hostess, sits at the head of the table, and the bridegroom's father, who is the man guest of honor, sits in honor place at her right.

Opposite the bride's mother is the host, the bride's father. At his right is the bridegroom's mother, the woman guest of honor. At the left of the bride's mother is the clergyman, and his wife, if present, sits at the left of the bride's father. At this table too will be seated close relatives of both families, especially intimate friends of the bride's parents, distinguished guests.

At a very small wedding, where only the immediate families are present, the plan is often to have only one table. In this case, the bride and bridegroom and their attendants sit at one end of the table, and the parents and relatives, and perhaps intimate friends sit at the other end. It is important that the same traditions as outlined above be observed.

The bride's cake is usually the centrepiece of the bridal table. The bride always cuts the first slice of this cake and shares it with the bridegroom.

Usually it is the best man who proposes a toast to the bride and bridegroom. The guests rise, raise their glasses, and drink the toast. The bride and bridegroom do not rise, nor do they raise their glasses for the toast. The bridegroom replies to the toast with thanks for his bride and himself. The groom usually merely expresses his thanks.

If there is dancing, the bride and groom dance the first dance together. And, as desired, the wedding presents may or may not be shown.

As the bride leaves the reception to change to her traveling clothes, she gaily throws her bouquet among her bridesmaids.

Then comes the merry dash through the aisle of relatives and friends, amid a shower of good wishes and colorful rose petals..

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

Life Not Over at Thirty-Four

Dear Miss Fairfax:

What shall I do with the remnant of life left me? I'm 34 years of age, and ever since I can remember, I waited and helped take care of my dear mother, who was an invalid. And now that she has passed away, I feel lost. The only thing I know how to do is nurse and keep house, but I've never had any hospital training. And am too old to be admitted as a probationer. I feel like a

Lost Soul

You haven't told me anything about your financial circumstances but if you can afford it, have a change of scene for a while at least and get over your morbid idea that life is over at 34. It's really just beginning. Then take some special kind of training, which will help you to get a good interesting job.

It is not unlikely, when you go into the world, that you may meet your fate in the right man.

Shall She Walk Him Past a Jeweler's Window?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

Being deeply in love with a young man who has steadily courted me for about a year. I am very ill at ease because I am not so sure of his affection for me or his intentions.

Is it my turn or, rather, I should say, is it proper for me to take the initiative and suggest something like walking him past a jewelry store and openly choosing what ring I should like to have for an engagement?

Watchful Waiter

Unless the young men is as shy as a forest faun, the jeweler's window treatment would seem fatal to me. Before subjecting your boy friend to so crucial a test, you've got to be sure he's in love with you, and that he is too shy to pop the question. You're uncertain about these things. A wiser policy, it seems to me, would be to wait until he declares his intentions.

Doesn't Take Anyone Seriously

I'm a young man 20 years of age and have fallen in love with a girl who is six years older than I am. We see a good deal of each other, because we're both employed in the same building. I've taken her out several times in the past month. She doesn't object to my kissing her, and has been very kind to me.

When I began to date her, she was going with an out-of-town young man. He comes to see her week-ends, and I can't help feeling terribly jealous. The out-of-towner doesn't know she sees me. If he finds out he may break with her, and she doesn't want that. She has been married, but broke up with her husband after a year. She doesn't want to take anyone seriously at the present time.

Hopeful

This young lady, who has been married and separated from her husband strikes me as having enough experience to manage a group of admirers. Sometimes a friendship like this is very valuable to a boy, but I hope you will not take her any more seriously than she takes you.

The regular monthly meeting of the Women's Christian Association was held in the Board Room of the hospital, October 4th with the President, Mrs. V. Blakslee in the chair. Mrs. G. H. French was appointed lady on duty at the Home for the Aged for the month of October. The September donations to Belleville Home for the Aged were as follows—Mrs. Price, green beans and green tomatoes; Baptist Church B.Y.P.U., bread, milk, coffee and butter; St. Julian Chapter I.O.D.E. tobacco and oranges twice; Mrs. W. C. Mikel, magazines.

The services for September were taken by Rev. A. G. Sinclair each week.

Circulation Must Be Normal

PEGGY WALL
Has normal circulation and keeps it that way

By HELEN FOLLETT

NORMAL circulation of the blood streams has a vitalizing effect upon the delicate coloring of the complexion, health of the fingernails and the well being of the hair. Little Lazybones, whose exercises consist of lifting an eyebrow or putting a bonbon in her mouth, should remember that.

The heart is a pump, the arteries are elastic tubes through which nourishment is taken to every cell of the body. Exercise sends blood streams skipping.

Deep breathing also accelerates the blood streams because it air-washes the lungs. Those self-indulgent young ladies who haven't sufficient energy to pursue sports should make deep breathing a habit. Stand before an open window, hands down at the sides. Inhale deeply, lift hands high exhale slowly, lower the hands and repeat. It's fine for the complexion, helpful in bust development.

Now that hats have crowns that are flat as pancakes, crowns like stove pipes, crown that are neither high nor low, there can be no worry about coiffure difficulties. Do your locks any way you please; you'll find a hat to fit the arrangement.

Choosing a hat is a whole day's job. If you get one that doesn't make you look silly, you're in luck. But maybe you want to look silly. Some girls do.

While going through this ordeal, regard the effect upon your nose. That is the test. What the wrong hat can do to even a nice nose is too terrible to tell. Good judgment, good taste and a triple mirror will guide you.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

This is the year to invest in a good fur-trimmed cloth coat, for these models were never smarter. A delightful model is of brownish taupe woollen with Persian lamb dyed to match. The fur forms a collar and appliqued revers and then continues down on either side of a strip of the material in two widening panels.

White shoulders will be whiter by virtue of the strapless evening frocks, for this fashion draws attention to neck and shoulders. A picture frock is of black velvet, the skirt with featherbone hooping to hold it out. The strapless neckline has a wide bow of cerise velvet ribbon and the wide skirt has bands and bows of the cerise.

First call this autumn is for colorful tweeds. A grand suit has a top coat and jacket of plum colored tweed cross-barred in light blue. The skirt and the binding in the short jacket are of monotone plum colored tweed.

PURPLE EMERGES as the autumn color, and while some lighter tones are seen, it is the deep purple that seems to be most popular. It combines beautifully with the lighter tones, such as lilac or lavender, and with gray. This charming suit is of deep purple woolen combined with lavender velvet. A pointed plastron of the velvet, with tiny self-covered buttons, forms the front closing. A draped gilet of velvet shows at the neck above the high revers of the woolen. The back of the jacket is bloused from a seam that defines the waistline. The bloused line is gaining in popularity. A smart touch is offered by the gloves of lavender velvet.

MELROSE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The regular meeting of the Melrose W. I. was held on the 29th of Sept. at the home of Mrs. E. Pascoe with an attendance of thirty-seven. The usual opening exercises were followed by the presentation of a number of business items, first of which was the appointment of a delegate to attend the coming area convention. Mrs. Jno. Blatherwick, with Miss Lily Weese as alternate, is to represent Melrose Branch.

A training school for Girls' project work is to be held in Stirling. It was moved by Mrs. R. Macfarlane, seconded by Mrs. G. McLaren that Mrs. Young act as local leader and attend this school. This motion carried and another followed by which Miss Lily Weese is to be her assistant and attend the school. Some discussion followed the reading of the recipe book and it was left over for each member to try to obtain an advertisement for insertion in it before the next meeting.

A communication re a national magazine for institute was read by the secretary. Fourteen members present were in favor of it at a cost of 25 cents per year.

The following program was carried out by the committee in charge. Community singing, "Long long ago", readings by Mrs. W. McMechan and Mrs. Lorne Weese, after which the topic paper, "Changes in the Status of Women in the past twenty-five years" was given by Mrs. A. English. The roll-call, "A law for which I am thankful" was well responded to, after which current events chiefly war news, was given by Mrs. G. Walker.

The collection taken amounted to 3.30 and three paid membership fees The National Anthem was sung and a social time was spent while refreshments were served.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Oct. 5 (AP) Resuming the advance after a brief breathing spell in the preceding session, the stock market moved forward on a broad front today in extension of the "peace" rise which began a week ago.

Gains ranging to around three points boosted many shares to new high marks for the year. Near the final hour prices were about at the tops for the day, with a steady inflow of buying orders bolstering the advance.

The trading pace more than doubled overnight. Transactions ran at the rate of about 2,000,000 shares for the full session.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 5 (CP)—The Toronto Stock Market steamed up today and registered a wide advance after opening with an uncertain tone and in sluggish action. All indices were up at noon and the gains was extended in the third hour, some of the senior metals and industrials posted gains of 2 to 4 points. Volume crowded the million share mark.

Outlook For Uchi Gold Appears Very Bright

The current issue of The Mining Analyst contains a complete analysis of Uchi Gold Mines Limited. In an estimate of future earnings it says that "assuming that the grade of ore treated averages $8.50 gold per ton, that an extraction of 95 per cent is obtained and that the official estimate of $4.00 operating costs is realized, The Mining Analyst computes operating profit on the ore now in sight at $2,600,000 or slightly better than $1.00 per share. At a rate of 500 tons daily, operating profit of $720,000 should be gained annually or double the amount required to meet bond issue obligations."

Considerable optimism prevails as to the possibilities of mine growth. Since the date on which the ore sections shown in an accompanying table were computed, drift extensions south on the 300 and 450-ft. levels have shown the continuance of good ore. As surface drilling for a considerable distance to the south of present underground development has shown in- [illegible] reason to anticipate expansion of the ore zone in this direction. Other veins on the property possess real merit and should provide commercial ore bodies in time.

Diamond drilling to approximately 1,000 feet of depth has revealed a strong geological structure with no condition apparent which would terminate ore deposition. Accordingly, there are prospects for both horizontal and vertical growth.

Babson is Optimistic

"With the passing of the war crisis, the upward trend of recovery will gain new impetus The outlook for business and the security markets is distinctly optimistic," states the current Babson's Report.

YANKEES SCORE

Second Inning.

YANKEES—Hack took DiMaggio's grounder near third base and threw him out. Gehrig walked on four pitches. Dickey slashed a single to right field and when Cavaretta tried to catch Gehrig with a throw to third Dickey went to second, Gehrig making third easily. Herman fumbled Selkirk's easy bounder, Gehrig scoring. Dickey going to third and the batter reaching first safely on the error. It was scored as a run batted in for Selkirk since only one man was out at the time. Gordon's hard roller went through Hack and into left field for a single scoring Dickey and sending Selkirk to second. Ruffing grounded to Jurgess who threw to Herman forcing Gordon, and Herman's throw to Collins retired Ruffing for a double play. 2 runs, 2 hits, 1 error, 1 left.

CUBS—Gehrig took Cavaretta's grounder back of first base and stepped on the bag to retire him. Gordon went back on the grass to take Reynolds' high fly. Hartnett fouled to Dickey off the first base line. 0 runs, 0 hits, 0 errors, 0 left.

Livestock

Montreal, Oct. 5.—(CP)—Bacon hogs and hogs off trucks were about 25 cents easier during early dealings on Montreal Livestock Markets, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported today. Calves, sheep and lambs were unchanged but there were not enough cattle offered to establish a market.

Receipts — Calves 58; sheep and lambs 100; Hogs 277.

Calves—Medium veals $7.50 to $9; drinkers $5 to $6.50; grassers $3.75 to $4.25.

Sheep and lambs—Good ewes and wethers $7.75; culls $5.75; sheep $3

Hogs—Bacons fed and watered $9; hogs off trucks $9.25; selects drew $1 per hog premium, with the usual cuts on off grades. Sows $7.50; hogs on rail grade brought $12.35 cold weight.

Toronto, Oct. 5 (CP)— Cattle trade was dull on the Toronto Livestock market today with only a few hundred head sold by early afternoon. Prices on the few scales were about steady. Left over from Tuesday were 1,000 head. Calves were slow with prices generally 50 cents to $1 lower for the week. Sheep and lambs were steady while no hog price set by mid-season.

Receipts reported by the Dominion. Livestock Branch were: Cattle 660; calves 390; hogs 1,230; sheep and lambs 730.

Weighty steers sold from $5.50 to $6.50 and one load of choice heavies brought $6.75. A few butcher cattle made $4 to $5.25. Butcher cows ranged from $2 to $4.25. Some bulls sold between $3.25 and 4. Common to medium stockers traded from $4 to $4.60.

Choice veal calves were $8.50 to $9, a few tops reaching $9.50. Common heavy calves ranged down to $4. Previous close on off truck bacon hogs was $8.50.

Good ewe and wether lambs went at $7.75 to $7.85 with one load at $8. Truck lambs were generally $7.75. Other grades were priced from $6 to $7. Sheep moved from $2 to $4.50 cwt.

Ask Your DEALERS

The local merchant is the connecting link between producer and consumer.

His contact with the buying public is direct, intimate and personal. He knows his customers, their likes and dislikes; why they buy one product and refuse another; why one brand sells more rapidly than others.

It may be assumed, therefore, the retail merchant knows the best way to produce immediate sales in his locality, and it is significant that his basic advertising medium is the local daily newspaper.

In the first four months of this year the Canadian daily newspapers carried more than 40,000,000 lines of retail advertising—striking evidence of nationwide confidence in the value of the daily newspapers in Canada, as productive advertising media.

FRANCIS JOHN IS CHAMPION OF PLOUGHMEN

Defeats Pick of Tyendinaga Reserve; Scores 82 Out of Hundred

Shannonville, Oct. 5 (Special)—Francis John popular resident of the Tyendinaga Reserve was acclaimed champion plougher of the Tyendinaga Reserve here on Tuesday afternoon when he defeated the pick of the Indian Reserve ploughmen although by a very slim margin getting 82 points out of a possible 100. Twenty-one expert ploughmen started off at ten o'clock in the morning and not until six o'clock at night did the last ploughman finish his last furlough.

Of the twenty-one entries five were entered in the tractor class and of course were not in competition against the other ploughmen. Spectators gathered not only from the reserve, but the surrounding vicinity to watch this very interesting contest and some remained every minute throughout the day buying their dinner on the ground. Only one girl was entered in the match and that was Miss Helen Maracle who was entered in the tractor class and who finished fifth in her division, and also received well-merited praise from the judge.

Junior Champion

The youngest contestant was Master Gerald Brant 16-years-old who won first prize in the boys' division. All in all it proved to be a very interesting and educational match not only to the spectators but to the contestants who were able to match their skill with the pick of the district and perhaps learn something that would prove invaluable in their farm work. After the contest was over and immediately before announcing the names of the winners the judge congratulated the contestants on the skill which they had shown and added that the work was so well done it was extremely difficult to pick out the winners. He also said that he noticed that very few contestants used skimmers and coulters on their ploughs and advised them to use these in the future as they would give much better results. Mr. Francis John and Mr. William John who finished first and second in Class I will represent the reserve at the International Ploughing match and will have all expenses paid.

The results of yesterday's match are as follows:

Class 1—Francis John, William John, Norway Maracle, Thomas Brant.

Class 2—Jack Brant, Hilton Leween, Arthur Maracle.

Class 3—Louis John, Kenneth Brant, Stewart Hill, Clayton John.

Class 4—Hugh Burns, Delbert Harvey, Ralph Aylesworth.

Tractors—Clifford Maracle, Herman Claus, Thomas Maracle, Lennox Hill, Helen Maracle.

Boys' class—Gerald Brant, Howard Lewis.

CLOSER ENTITY SAYS HEPBURN

Toronto, Oct. 5 (CP)—Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario believes the world crisis that swept nations to the brink of war will leave in its wake a bond of closer economic unity between Canada and the United States.

The fiery Hepburn, internationally known leader of Ontario's Liberal Government, told delegates to the American Transit Association Convention last night European war preparations would reduce exports from North America because countries of Europe sought to become self-sustaining.

He said the international gathering he was addressing was an indictment against "goings-on" in other parts of the world. "Our problems are purely economic and we can thank Heaven we are not in the position of Europe," the farmer-premier said.

Canada and the United States would be brought together more closely in an era that must come if the entire economic structure was not to crumble, he said.

Must Settle Debts

Warning something must be done to settle the problem of debts, the Premier said the war-time Governments of 1914-18 should have taxed war profiteers. If nothing were done, he said, taxes eventually would pay only the interest on debts.

He warned, too, the unemployment situation would have to be remedied in the economic reconstruction period.

"We are in era of paternalism," the Premier continued. "We have spent $200,000,000 on relief and if things keep up we will have half the population working to keep the other half."

During his address, Premier Hepburn turned briefly to conditions in the United States and he said the farmers had stood by there watching their corn burn without realizing they were to be taxed for "this monumental policy of folly."

REPORT GIVEN TO KIWANIANS

District Convention At Kingston Heartily Enjoyed

A comprehensive and interesting report of the district convention recently held in Kingston was given to the Kiwanis members at their weekly luncheon at the Queens Hotel on Tuesday by Harold Seldon and Ernie Finkle, delegates from the local club. In addition, a new member, Carman Guest, manager of Metropolitan Stores, was introduced to the members by past District Governor, P. C. MacLaurin and presented with his button by George Griffin, secretary of the club. Albert Boynton presided at the luncheon with Wilfred Laporte as sergeant at arms.

P. C. MacLaurin was booster of the day and he made an earnest appeal for support of sport in this city, especially the rugby team. The speaker stated that health education was one of the three compulsory subjects of the Collegiate Institute curriculum and how could a boy better carry out that education than by being proficient on the football field or on the baseball diamond. He asked that the members if not being able to give their personal support to give their moral support to a fine game. The winners of the boost were Wilfred Laporte and Harold Seldon with the first named as booster for next week. The president asked for donations from the Kiwanis Queens for the hope chest that is to be drawn for at the Carnival and those giving to get in touch with Mrs. Albert Boynton, chairman of the committee or any of her sub captains.

Harold Seldon and Ernie Finkle in a most capable way presented the report of the convention stating that it was an inspiration to attend and suggesting that in succeeding years, new members be sent so they can receive the benefit of the inspiration. The speakers stated that the schedule was closely followed and that the report of the various chairmen of achievement in respective clubs was the most interesting phase. "It is a wonderful thing to know how many children are each year being taken care of by Kiwanis Clubs throughout Ontario and the Maritimes" he said and "if the public were fully aware of the fact they would surely realize that Kiwanis is doing a worthwhile job." The boat trip and other incidentals attendant to the convention including the Grand Ball were vividly described by the two members. The thanks of the club was expressed by the president.

TRENTON YOUTH GIVEN LONG TERM

Floyd Woods Sentenced To Reformatory For Two Years

London, Ont., Oct. 5 (CP)—Floyd Woods, 22-year-old Trenton man who last week pleaded guilty to charges of car theft, drunk driving, leaving the scene of an accident and theft of $10 was today sentenced to two years less one day in the Guelph reformatory.

Woods appeared in the county court for sentence by Magistrate C. W. Hawkshaw.

Crown Attorney Newton said the youth was convicted in Belleville in June of this year on charges of drunk driving and taking a car without consent of the owner. He was allowed to go on two years suspended sentence at that time.

SOME HUNTER LOST A GOOD DUCK DINNER

Attracted by a gathering of gulls which massed in circling flight over the spot, Wilfred Benson, local duck hunter, and companion, rowed their duck boat to a point in a marsh on the south shore of Massasaga Point late yesterday afternoon, where they discovered almost concealed in the reeds, four wild ducks their feet securely tied together with a piece of cord. The birds had been freshly killed, and speculation is aroused over the almost hidden find.

Produce Markets Steady

Toronto, Oct. 5—Further advances were recorded in eggs during yesterday's session of the local produce market while butter eased slightly.

Extremely light receipts of top grades caused another rise in prices on these grades on the egg market. Active trading readily absorbed offerings. Ungraded eggs changed hands at 33c for grade A-large and 32c for medium, with undergrades maintaining former levels. Graded shipments cleared at 36c for grade A-large, 35c for medium, 30c for pullets, 26c for B's, and 21c to 21 1-2c for C grades. The retail section of the market moved higher accordingly.

Improved demand effected a cleanup in current supplies at the easier prices on the butter market. Trading was generally in small lots, as traders purchased cautiously. Western make was reported sold in fair volume at 21 1-2c. Report from overseas shows stocks of all butters in Great Britain as of Sept. 10 at 31,109 tons, compared with 20,903 tons on the corresponding date of 1937. Production in Australia is said to be increasing fairly rapidly, but on the other hand the New Zealand output is falling steadily, and the decline over the next few months may reach 20 per cent. Ontario creamery solids sold yesterday in the range of 20 3-4c to 21c for No. 1 grades, and 20c to 20 1-4c for 38 score. Prints moved at 22 1-2c to 23 1-4c for top grades, and 21 3-4c to 22 1-2c for 38 score.

Cheese Resists Montreal Uptrend

Montreal, Oct. 5 (CP)—Offerings on open produce markets showed a general upward trend in prices Tuesday, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported.

Eggs and butter closed firmer.

Creamery butter prints to retail dealers sold for 23c to 23 1-2c, and creamery solids for 22 1-2c to 23c. Western butter delivered in Montreal was offered at 21 1-2c to 21 3-4c. Receipts: 2,575 boxes.

Graded egg shipments in used free cases were offered at 37c to 38c a dozen for A-large, 36c for A-medium, 30c for A-pullets, 26c for B-large, and 21c for C. Receipts: 1,173 cases.

BRITAIN HAS

war?"

"I reject," Sir John said, "the doctrine of the inevitability of war and the theory of the effectiveness of bluff."

Co-operation For Peace.

The British government, he continued, would work with any or all states towards strengthening peace. He hoped Russia would join in a four-power guarantee of Czech territory, declaring:

"It is most important that she should do so. The government (British) had no intention whatever of trying to exclude Russia from any future settlement of Europe."

Sir John took the occasion to answer Anthony Eden directly on his urging that there be no four-power pact for a general European settlement.

"He (Eden) inquired whether the development of the Munich meeting would be the formation of a four-power pact," Sir John said.

"If that question is whether we are willing to enter into friendly discussions in conjunction with France, Italy and Germany, I say most emphatically we do not rule out that consultation at all.'

After paying tribute to the admirable attitude with which the Czechoslovaks faced their destiny, Sir John said they had to make "dreadful choice".

The Choice.

"But," he went on, "it was a choice between ceding a portion of territory—which we and France advised—and exposing their state of unlimited invasion and possible destruction.

London, Oct. 5 (CP) — Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, resumed debate on the Munich agreement in the House of Commons today, declaring "only history can decide" whether Prime Minister Chamberlain's efforts were a prelude to better times or worse.

Sir John introduced a motion "that this House approves the policy of his Majesty's Government by which war was averted in the recent crisis and supports their efforts to secure a lasting peace."

Vote Expected Thursday.

The House is not expected to vote on the motion until tomorrow. The opposition will move an amendment.

Sir John said French approval of the Munich agreement was reflected in the "very great majority vote of approval" which Premier Daladier received in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday.

"Only history can decide hereafter whether the things done at Munich were a prelude to better times or whether prognostications of increasing evil will prove to be justified," he said.

"No one can pronounce on that now but the government are bound to ask for approval of the course they have taken."

Silence On Reports.

London, Oct. 5 (CP) — Reports were caught in parliamentary lobbies today that Oliver Stanley, president of the Board of Trade, seriously considered resigning his cabinet post over the Munich settlement of the Czech-German crisis but finally decided to remain in the government.

"A Londoner's diary", the Evening Standard's gossip column, predicted there would be no further cabinet resignations, adding: "Last night, after there had been a great deal of coming and going behind the scenes, Mr. Stanley finally resigned himself to non-restriction."

The customary silence prevailed in official quarters concerning the reports.

Thieves Steal Doctor's Kit And Abandon It

Found abandoned in a vacant lot off Albion St., a doctor's medical and surgery kit, the property of Dr. R. S. Gibson of this city, was returned to its owner by police today. The kit was found in the long grass by Jack Lazenby, 12-year-old youth residing at 95 Station Street.

According to reports revealed by police today, Dr. Gibson answered a call to a Foster Ave., address late last night. During his call at the home some person entered his parked automobile and stole his surgery kit, valued at $100.00. The matter was reported to the police then.

When young Lazenby returned the kit he was liberally rewarded by Dr. Gibson for his honesty. Who stole the kit still remains a mystery, but police are of the opinion that the robbers were in search of dope and failing to find such in the surgery kit, abandoned it.

Chicago Cubs Go Into Series Against Wonder Yanks With Hopes of Upsetting Dope

Have Unbounded Faith General Lee Will Come Through

CAPACITY CROWD

Yanks Believe They Will Win Series In Four Straight

(By Gayle Talbot, Associated Press Sports Writer).

Chicago, Oct. 5 (AP)—Unaccustomed as they are to winning a World Series, Chicago Cubs go into their battle against the wonder Yankees today with bounding hopes and a strong hunch that they are going to upset the apple cart.

There is nothing very sensible about their dream. The Yankees look just as tough as they ever did, and you can't imagine how lethal they look when Red Ruffing is pitching and swinging his bludgeon in ninth position. That particular line-up gives the Yankees nine hitters who can, and do, break up ball games.

But that is how the Cubs feel about it. They know that the posted odds are 12 to 5 against their chances, and that the consensus of experts is that the Yankees will cop their third straight world championship in five games, winding up the series in New York next Monday.

Yet the Cubs go into today's tussle thinking they are going to win. They have an abounding confidence in the pitching of General Bill Lee, who faces Ruffing in the first game and they think they are a "team of destiny," of something. At that, there is something mystical about the fact that General Lee, a big fellow from the Banjo belt, is taking anothe whack at the Yankees.

Capacity Crowd Expected

A capacity crowd of about 44,000 was assured for today's game and that of tomorrow. Wrigley Field, one of the prettiest emporiums in baseball, with its red brick wall circling the outfield, was a sellout last night. Speculators were demanding up to $75 for a set of single seats to the three games that will be played here if the series goes six games, and the more hardy bleacher fans were in line at noon yesterday.

The Yankees, cocky as ever, think they will knock over the Cubs in four straight games. They are, if anything, a trifle too confident. They clinched the American League pennant some three weeks before the campaign ended, and they haven't played good ball since. They didn't look very good in their practice yesterday.

Lee Must Come Through

Everybody is agreed the Cubs are sunk without a ripple if Lee fails them today. Lee has won 22 games this year. He has pitched nine shutouts, more than have been pitched by any other two elbowers in the big leagues.

Lee is a fast-ball pitcher with a sharp curve that he keeps low and outside. That is supposed to be the only effective pitching against the sluggers of the Yankee batting order.

Gabby Hartnett catcher-manager of the Cubs, is determined to play in the series, though he is suffering with a couple of damaged fingers on his right hand. His bat is an important factor in the Cubs' attack.

The announced lineups for the opener were:

Chicago: Hack, 3b; Herman, 2b; Demaree, lf; Cavarretta, rf; Reynolds, cf; Hartnett, c; Collins, 1b; Jurges, ss; Lee, p.

Yankees: Crosetti, ss; Rolfe, 3b; Henrich, rf; DiMaggio, cf; Gehrig, 1b; Dickey, c; Selkirk, lf; Gordon, 2b; Ruffing, p.

Charley Grimm Ex-Manager of Cubs Passes Up Series

Chicago, Oct. 5 (AP)—Charley Grimm, deposed as manager of Chicago Cubs late in July, is passing up the 1938 world series opener.

The former Cub leader, now a radio sports announcer, said on his arrival from St. Louis yesterday he didn't plan to watch the Cubs and Yankees.

"I just can't enjoy any game where I don't have anything to do," he said.

Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis barred Grimm from broadcasting the series on the ground he might be partial to his former mates.

Grimm declared he was "not sore" because the Cubs failed to vote him a share of the series spoils.

"Frankly," he said, "I never expected to be cut in. I don't believe an ex-manager is entitled to any dough."

There were rumors that the Cubs excluded Grimm because he did not go to their dressing room Saturday to congratulate them on winning the pennant.

"I figure that an ex-manager's place was anywhere but in the clubhouse," commented Grimm.

PHILLIES SECURE MAY IN DRAFT

New Manager, Doc Prothro, Obtained Best Third Sacker In Minors

Chicago, Oct. 5 (AP)—The "new deal" that Philadelphia's futile Phillies hope to swing under their new manager, Dr. James T. (Doc.) Prothro, was off to a fine start today with the acquisition of Merril May, Newark third baseman and generally regarded as the "prize" of the big league draft meeting.

May has been one of the standouts of the "wonder team" of Newark Bears that has mowed down the rest of the International League for the past two seasons.

Altogether, 17 players were drafted from the minors by 10 of the 16 big league clubs. Only the pennant winners—the Cubs and New York Yankees—the Boston Bees, New York Giants, Cincinnati Reds, and Cleveland Indians "passed" on every deal at the meeting.

Two well-liked veterans of the big leagues were brought back when Washington Senators selected gallant Charley Gelbert, ex-St. Louis Cardinal infielder, from Toledo, and Philadelphia Athletics picked Roy (Tarzan) Parmelee, former New York Giants, Chicago Cubs and St. Louis Cardinals pitcher, from Minneapolis.

Joe Gantenbein, Toronto third-sacker, went to the Athletics while Detroit Tigers took James Lynn, Columbus pitcher.

McGILL REDMEN READY TO MEET MUSTANGS SATY.

Montreal Team Expect Larger Crowds To See Them Perform

WESTERN CRIPPLED

Wally Hilton, Belleville Boy, Out of Game With Charley Horse

A decade ago McGill Redmen won their last Intercollegiate football championship, and during the intervening lean years attendance figures at time for college games in Montreal were nothing to brag about. But this looks like an "up beat" year for the Redmen, who have demonstrated all sorts of power in winning two pre-season exhibition games.

And to show that football fans in Montreal are solidly behind the Redmen, more than 8500 persons turned out last night at Molson stadium for a grid rally featured by a torch-light parade and the burning of effigies representing the other entries in the college loop — Queen's University of Toronto and University of Western Ontario.

Of course, the majority were old grads and present students but the turnout indicated that a similar crowd, or more, could be expected when the Redmen open the college schedule here Saturday against Western Mustangs.

Three Regulars Out

While the Redmen reported in nearly tip-top shape for the battle, it was possible that Mustangs would be without three of their regulars for the game. Wally Hilton is hobbling around with a charley horse, while Osborne Cox is suffering from a leg infection and Claude Moore, fleet half-back, has an injured right leg.

At present the only McGill regular who might be kept out of action is giant Murray Telford. The big middle suffered a bruised leg but the club physician said last night that Telford might be ready by Saturday.

Isbister Ready For Duty

Toronto Argonauts, National champions, may have Bob Isbister for their opening Big Four game against Hamilton Tigers in Toronto Saturday. Isbister reported for drill last night after recuperating for some time from a knee operation.

Coach Jerry Brock of the Tigers is concentrating on open field tackling and better defensive work along the line. Three of his Bengals Tommy Harrison, Tommy Bonk and Red Hart, are recovering from injuries suffered when the team lost last Saturday to Sarnia. They are expected to be ready for Saturday.

Sports Roundup

Nea St U, O Q. 5 (AP)—Attention St. Louis Browns: Hundreds of fans in southern Illinois are signing petitions asking that you give old Babe Ruth a whirl at managing the team next season....And All-American timber: Sid Luckman, Columbia, and Captain Pete Powell, Navy end....The latter guy can't seem to miss a pass and he's tough meat on the defence, too....Helen Jacobs, the tennis star, is house hunting in historic Virginia, but hasn't been able to find just what she wants yet....Tony Lazzeri, who knows every Yankee like a book, won't do the Cubs any harm on that bench today, believe you us.

Lou Nova, the coast heavyweight who upset Gunnar Barlund as well as every critic in town, will be brought back as soon as possible... Already he has agreed to fight Tommy Farr, Max Baer or Bob Pastor Dec. 16 and may be eased in before that....This is going away week for the Southwest Conference ....Mileage of its six football teams will total around 6,000 miles .... Tony Galento, booked in Philly Nov. 14, begir, training in two more weeks.

It's really an Oregon team at the U. of Oregon this year....Nine of the 11 starters are natives....You can say for us that Mr. Whizzer White was all they said he was.... Mike Jacobs leaves for California Saturday to look over prospects for a spring shot for Joe Louis....Pity poor Col. Jake Ruppert with all his millions, his brewery and his Fifth Avenue building....He has one ball club going into the world series today and two more fighting it out for the "Little World Series" .... As for the Cunnel, he's laid up with the gout and won't see a game.

Youngest manager in the National semi-pro tournament at Wichita this year was Bill Hayes, 20, who piloted the Barrington (N.H.) Orioles....Bill brought his team to the tournament wearing black uniforms, but that's not the yarn....Bill is the scion of a wealthy New England family and one of these days will be a millionaire in his own right....Guess what his ambition is—club owner?....No, a major league umpire.

John Wickham finally has reported for practice at the University of Tulsa....John is a husky 230-pounder from Findlay Ohio who stands six feet four in his sox .... And believe us he has been standing in 'em....He showed up on time, all right, but couldn't get into action until they made special shoes for him—size 14 1-2....(Oh, grandman, what great big dogs you got) ....Tarzan Taylor, line coach at Marquette, drove 240 miles to scout a team....But the rain was so bad when he got there he had to stay in his car and listen to proceedings via radio....And he was just outside the stadium, at that.

GOLF FACTS By Alex Morrison

Short Approaches

Many players are in the habit of using a No. 8 or No. 9 iron when pitching to the green. Where I have tried to change the club for some players I have been told that the reason for using the more lofted clubs is to follow the example set by the pros.

It is true that most of the tournament pros do use a No. 8 or No. 9 when sending the ball to the green and they are very successful with this shot but the average player has yet to show well with these clubs. And there is a good reason for this difficulty. The pro, in using a No. 8 iron for a short pitch invariably closes the face enough to send the ball in a flight about equal to that of a No. 6 or 7 iron. In closing the face he hits down on the ball in much the same manner as the old time squeeze shot.

This downward hitting and striking the ball before the turf with a closed face does keep the ball low and at the same time gives it a back-spin which helps to control it on the green. However, this kind of a blow is next to impossible for the average player. Hence the advice to use a club with less loft and strike the ball in a normal way. In the long run you'll be much ahead in the matter of strokes. Your ball will be just as near the pin when it finally stops.

JESSIE ANDERSON RULING FAVORITE

Sixteen Women Golfers Left In Race For Canadian Open

Ottawa, Oct. 5 (CP)—Sixteen golfers remained in the race today for the Canadian Women's Open Championship with Jessie Anderson of Perth, Scotland, still classed as ruling favorite closely pursued by several veterans and some newcomers of dubious competitive strength.

By tonight the field will be cut to eight following the 18-hole second round match. Mrs. John Rogers of Winnipeg, the defending champion, was eliminated in the first round yesterday by Toronto's Mrs. F. J. Mulqueen and the title is now open.

Miss Anderson continued her triumphant march though the tournament by shooting superb golf in the first round and smothering Dorothy Staniforth of Montebello, Que., 6 and 5. Throughout the international match and in the qualifying round the Highland girl slapped out some of the lowest drives and went right for the pin with nearly every approach. Her showing has been the most impressive of any competitor.

In the second round Miss Anderson plays Mrs. A. J. Wright of Montreal.

Attention was centred on the match between Winnifred Evans of Vancouver and 17-year-old Marg Esson of Rosetown, Sask., who astounded the championship flight with a 6 and 4 first round victory over the British Curtis Cup ace, Nan Baird.

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

Whenever baseball fans congregate to discuss a world's series — someone is bound to remind the audience of the 1914 world's series 'miracle,' when the Boston Nationals swept the then believed invincible Philadelphia Athletics before them in four straight. In the cellar position of the senior circuit on July 4th of that year, the Boston Braves, headed by George Stallings, struck "baseball pay dirt" and in a miracle finish won the National League and continued to win baseball's major classic. In mid-August of this year the Chicago Cubs were just outside the second division in the National loop, but staged a hectic last fortnight rally to win their league honors and the right to meet the New York Yankees in the world's series, which opens today. Gabby Hartnett's charges are pointing to the accomplishments of the 1914 Braves. "We are the hottest team in baseball today. We're in a winning stride, while the Yanks have been marking time. Watch our smoke," was the prediction of Tex Carleton, veteran Cub hurler yesterday.

Joe McCarthy's world's champion New York Yankees are out to establish two new baseball records — first the winning of three world's series in succession, while secondly Lefty Gomez will try to keep his unbroken column of world series victories intact. Contrary to pre-series beliefs; when it was suggested that Gomez would be given his third consecutive opening series game, Manager Joe McCarthy announced this morning that Charlie "Red" Ruffing would oppose Bill Lee, Chicago's Louisianian right-hander. Hartnett is switching his outfield around somewhat in order to cope with the Yankees' pitching.

When Phil Wrigley hired Tony Lazzeri he completed negotiations with "Poosh 'em up Tony" with but one thought in mind—the day the Cubs would meet the Yankees in a world's series. That day has arrived and Wrigley feels Lazzeri will be of great assistance to the Cubs, as Lazzeri was a powerful cog in the Yankee machine of previous years and should doubtless know the weakness of every New York batter—if there is such a thing as weakness in their hitting power. Other American League clubs have failed to find a weakness in the Yankees' powerhouse.

As Chicago is on Central Standard Time—all world series games played in the Windy City will go on the air at 2.15 p.m. Eastern Standard Time, while the games player in New York will be broadcast commencing at 1.15 p.m. E.S.T., according to a statement issued by Judge Landis yesterday.

If the interest in last night's rugby football scrimmage, between Albert College and the local Panthers, is any criterion of the interest to follow throughout the football season, Coach Archie Duffield and his cohorts have little to worry about relative to crowds. There were more spectators at the Collegiate campus last night than attended any baseball game last summer or the average league softball tilt. Those who came to scoff, however, remained to cheer the efforts of the youthful and untried panthers. Early in the scrimmage Pete Beach's energetic Alberts humbled the Panthers somewhat, but once the Panthers' co-ordination clicked they looked like a much better squad but there is still room for two or three huskies along the line, however. We understand Leo Flagler has at last yielded to the urge and will lineup with the locals before they pry off the O.R.F.U. lid here on Thanksgiving Day versus Bob Elliott's sturdy Kingston Garrison squad.

There is little opportunity to prognosticate in the Lake Shore football loop, as only the Cobourg "Galloping Ghosts" have come out in the pen with pre-season exhibition games. No doubt Bob Elliott's Kingston charges have had the benefit of several exhibition scrimmages versus R.M.C. or Queen's seconds, but no press accounts of such games have been released from the Limestone City whereby we could figure the possible relative strength of the squads, but on paper it would seem as though the "Galloping Ghosts" are to be most seriously considered. What concerns Coaches Duffield and Schrieder is exactly how badly Harry McCreary was injured in his recent accident, as "Hot dog" is being greatly counted on by the Panthers. Coach Duffield is anxious to secure the services of two Albert College linemen and will know the final answer in this matter today.

Unlike the Cubs, who shunned Charlie Grimm recently the Detroit Tigers voted Mickey Cochrane a full share in their cut of the world series melon, proving at least that Mike was appreciated by his former teammates, despite what Hank Greenberg openly stated to the contrary.

Peterboro and the Stratford "Nationals" open the senior O.B.A. finals at Peterboro on Saturday with the return game slated for the 'railroad centre' on Thanksgiving Day. Fortified with four good flingers, Manager Eddie Murphy of the Petes is better off than Skipper Gabby Hartnett in that department.

TENDERS

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned and marked "Tender for Repairs to Concrete, Lock 10, Trent Canal" will be received up to 12 o'clock noon, Eastern Standard Time, Friday, October 14, 1938, for Repairing Concrete Walls of Lock 10, on the Trent Canal, near Campbellford, Ontario.

Plans, specifications, labour conditions and form of contract to be entered into may be seen on and after the date of this notice at the office of the General Superintendent of Canals, West Block, Ottawa, or at the office of the Superintending Engineer, Trent Canal, Peterboro, Ontario.

Plans, specifications, labour conditions, form of contract and tender form may be obtained from the said General Superintendent of Canals or Superintending Engineer upon payment of the sum of $10.00. To bona fide tenderers this amount will be returned upon the return of the plans and specifications in good condition.

An accepted bank cheque on a chartered bank of Canada for the sum of $2,800.00, made payable to the order of the Department of Transport, must accompany each tender. Bonds of the Dominion of Canada and, or Canadian National Railways Bonds, guaranteed by the Dominion of Canada, will be accepted in lieu of or in conjunction with such accepted cheque. In any case the sum deposited will be forfeited if the party tendering declines to enter into a contract for the work in form generally as exhibited ("Contract form, Construction") at the rate stated in its tender.

Cheques and, or bonds accompanying tenders will be returned to the respective parties whose tenders are not accepted.

The Cheque and, or bonds of the successful tenderer will be held as security for the fulfilment of his contract for this work.

The lowest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted.

G. W. YATES,
Secretary.
Department of Transport,
Ottawa, October 4, 1938.

firm where he remained until 1900 when he moved to Sydney, Cape Breton. He practised at Sydney for six years and at 32 became mayor, the youngest in the town's history. He entered office on a "clean up" ticket, fulfilled his promise and returned two years later to private practice.

In 1906 Mr. Fullerton journeyed to Winnipeg to join the legal firm of Sir James Aikins which held him for eleven years. He ran for public office once in the west, losing out in the 1910 provincial election in Springfield riding to D. A. Ross, Liberal.

On Supreme Court Bench.

Mr. Fullerton was appointed to the Manitoba Court of Appeal Bench in July, 1917. He resigned in August, 1931, when Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, then prime minister, made him chairman of the Board of Railway Commissioners, a position which earned him the title of "czar of all the railways".

In December, 1933, Mr. Bennett chose the stern and strict railway commissioner to head the newly organized Board of Trustees of the C.N.R. which replaced the Board of Directors. Mr. Fullerton's task was to co-operate with the Canadian Pacific Railway in eliminating duplication of services.

When the Liberal party returned to power in 1935 the Trustees Board was succeeded by the Board of Directors, and Mr. Fullerton entered private law practice once more, this time in Toronto.

He is survived by his widow, formerly Miss Sadie Ferguson, whom he married in Sydney in 1903, one son and three daughters.

SENATE APPROVAL

their 157 votes against him.

He was forced to cut the term of the decree powers from Dec. 31 to the accepted Nov. 15, to promise the Chamber publicly that he would respect Peoples' Front social reforms, and agree to call parliament into session about Nov. 16, so the Cabinet would have no chance of passing next year's budget by decree.

One report in Chamber corridors was that the former Socialist Premier Leon Blum got Daladier to agree to take some Socialists into his predominantly Radical-Socialist cabinet, to permit the more Leftist party to keep close watch on use of the decree powers.

People's Front Party Broken

Despite the Socialists' decision not to vote against Daladier, the session marked the death of the People's Front—the coalition first formed under Blum in 1936 and including Socialists, Communists and Radical Socialists.

The Communists voted against the government for the first time on Daladier's foreign policy, the peace achieved at Munich. They emphasized the break by voting against the full powers.

Some political sources reported Socialist dissatisfaction with the government was based as much on foreign affairs as on the decree powers. These powers permit Daladier and his ministers to take any necessary measures on finances and economics. The Premier in the past has interpreted this to mean anything affecting the life of the country.

Regulate Relations

The announcement that France would at once regularize her diplomatic relations with Italy, by sending an ambassador to Rome accredited to the King as Emperor of Ethiopia, was followed by the announcement the city of Paris had invited the Crown Prince and Princess of Italy to be present when King Leopold of Belgium unveils a monument to his father Nov. 12.

Italy's Crown Princess, Marie Jose, is Leopold's sister.

Pat O'Brien, Wayne Morris and Doris Weston co-starred in "Submarine D-1" now playing at the Capitol Theatre.

Mildred Sets the Stage

By ANNABEL ALLEN

If George Wilson could have seen Mildred choosing fresh linen for his homecoming it would have astonished him.

George was one of those round-faced, sandy-haired, easy-going husbands who begin every third sentence with "come up to the house." His opposite in every way, Mildred, with her dark hair and high coloring, was cordial, but with reserve.

He had been on a trip. That meant one Sunday free from the ever-present Marshals. For many weeks before that the Marshals had, one way or another, managed to spend Saturday and Sunday at the Wilsons'.

George said he was glad they felt free to come.

"That's the word, free," murmured Mildred under her breath.

"George, before you go," she had said, "we really need some new things—sheets, towels and things like that. Why not leave me some money, and I will get them while you are away?"

"Yeh." George turned the page of the trade paper he was looking over and read on.

"Marshal is taking Mabel on his trip this week," began George later, having finished reading his paper.

"Yeh!", returned Mildred. He didn't notice, nor did he see the gleam in her eye.

Just the opportunity she had been waiting for.

Thus it was that she was choosing only the torn sheets, the pulled, stringy bath towels, the curtains that looked as if a breath would melt them, tablecloths whose usefulness had long since ended.

Mildred fixed the slits in the oldest sheets on George's side of the bed. The towels with the largest holes, the most beraggled-looking face cloths found themselves on his rack The most worn part of the tablecloth was at his place.

The stage was set.

Back and forth she walked many times to look out of the window.

Just as she was busy spreading out a particularly holey dish towel on the rack in the kitchen, the bell trilled sharply and George's key jingled in the lock.

"I'm home, Mil," announced George, slamming down bag, umbrella, magazine and brief case.

"As if anyone wouldn't know it," giving the noisy offender a welcome that showed beyond a doubt how glad she was to see him. "Why not close the door, or have those hotel people spoiled you?" Laughingly she gave the door a push. Something was in the way, maybe a present he had brought home and left it there for her to find.

A familiar giggle and in stepped the "present"—the Marshals.

"Surprise! Surprise! Met 'em on the way up from the station. Their machine passed my taxi. Put something over on you that time!"

"I'm starved. When do we eat?" he began, cheerfully.

"Just a couple of minutes, Father Bear, "returned Mildred, trying hard to act naturally.

George began the meal with a flourish of his napkin. It was in shreds. "Too obvious," thought Mildred, not glancing up.

Then followed the deluge. One by one the defects began to loom up until a final "swish" followed by "Gosh, I've split the sheet, Mil," brought the evening to an end.

After breakfast Sunday morning the men were sitting silent, reading as usual when Mabel Marshal announced that they were leaving early. Mildred intimated that there was no hurry. Mabel, however, avoided her gaze and they left.

The house seemed very still after the Marshals had gone, the stillness that bespeaks racing thoughts and a slight restraint.

"Queer they should go off so early and suddenly," ventured George, puzzled.

"Not so queer," returned Mildred seriously. "They thought you were no longer prosperous, and they love prosperity, that's all."

"Everything did seem kind of ragged. What happened, anyway?"

Being human, she told him.

George listened for a few minutes, then he laughed until the tears rolled down his smooth, round face.

"Good joke," he gasped when he could speak again "You're some little arranger, you are."

In a dramatic manner he pulled his bulky black wallet from his pocket.

"Here. woman," he said, waving his arms about, "take my roll and buy yourself a couple of face cloths." Then somewhat seriously, he added, "No more lessons, now. Once is enough."

Mildred made a dive for the wallet, at the same time snatching up the Sunday paper to see what was advertised in the way of linen.

With a grin George pulled a new trade journal from his pocket and settled down in the big arm chair.

"Gilbert has a sale."

"Yeh?" The paper rustled as a page was turned.

Lady for Shanghai

—By—

Kaye Fox

"Why worry, Miss Jordan?" Grant said lightly. "If you're going to start getting worked up over the things the passengers do, you'd better retire from this profession before you have a nervous breakdown. I don't care what they do—so long as they don't slip off without tipping me at the end of the voyage."

"I don't care as a rule, but sometimes——"

"Sometimes you feel like a human being, not like a stewardess. And sometimes I don't feel like a steward, and I long to tell some of 'em just what I think of 'em—but we'll both get over it as we grow older, Miss Jordan. It's the first twenty years that are the worst."

Christine ears Something

He went out laughing, and Christine heard him start whistling as he strolled down the alley-way to the cabin de luxe; there was a pleasant feeling of leisure on the top deck that day, since Port Said was their first port, outward bound so that this was the first day with no inspection. Christine herself had been rejoicing in the thought that Perrin was too busy in his own office to interfere with the bedroom staff that morning, but Grant's information had set her worrying about Fay again.

Of course she had been worrying about Fay before, but she had somehow hoped that Doria Smythe would make a violent scene with Fay, before Martin Royde's influence over the girl became too great.

But if Doria Smythe's silence had been bought, there was no one to check the dangerous friendship between Fay and Royde. Fay was by this time thoroughly unpopular with all the older women.

Late that evening, after the ship had left Port Said, Grant came to tell Christine that Mrs. Smythe wanted her. She went up to number eighteen at once, and found Doria there alone.

"I've grazed my elbow, stewardess," Doria said. "I knocked it against the car door when I was getting out, and though Mrs. Collins bandaged it for me, after a fashion, she hasn't made much of a job of it. I'd like you to do it again."

"I'll fetch a fresh bandage," Christine suggested, looking at the rather nasty graze on Doria's elbow.

Christine went back to her own cabin to fetch the things she wanted, and when she returned to number eighteen, Martin Royde was sitting on the settee, talking to Doria. She hesitated at the door, wondering whether to go in, but Doria signed to her to go on with her bandaging, and Royde ignored her completely.

"I haven't said anything to the little girl about that dance club idea—I thought that had better come from you," he said, "but I'm sure she'll jump at it."

"And—you're still keen on the idea yourself?" Doria asked, in a rather strained voice.

"Of course I am, my dear girl—haven't I promised to back you? If you can provide them with some attractive little partners like Fay Lind——"

Christine, glancing up at Doria's face, caught the expression of sheer hatred in her eyes, but Royde was fidgetting with a bracelet which he had picked up off the dressing table, and was not looking at Doria.

"Well, I must leave you now, my
"With Fay Lind, of course?"
dear, for I've got an engagement."

But Royde left without replying.

Doria Smythe made an impatient movement which jerked the bandage out of Christine's hand, so that she had to start bandaging the elbow again. Christine had to force herself to concentrate on that mechanical task, and to hide her own feelings; she must not let Doria guess how deeply she had been affected by that conversation about Fay. She had almost finished when Iris Collins came into the room and began repairing her make-up in front of the mirror.

"Has Martin been in?" she asked. "I met him on the deck just now, and he wanted to know where you were."

"He has been in," Doria said, in a tone of suppressed fury. "Chiefly I think, to remind me that we've made a bargain and that he expects me to stick to it. Upon my word, Iris, it was all I could do not to tell him just what I think of that baby-faced Lind girl."

"You'll be a fool if you do. Your prospects aren't too rosy just now, and if Martin doesn't finance this club for you, I don't know who will. Martin's your one hope——"

"Don't I know it, Iris. And apart from that, I need Fay Lind myself, for it isn't going to be too easy in these days to find dance partners for the club, and the girl's attractive enough, and a good dancer. I'm holding my tongue, for my own sake—but Fay Lind won't get any sympathy from me when she loses her job at the beauty salon and depends on the club for her living. That's when I'm going to get my own back."

"You think she will lose her job?"

"I'm certain of it," Doria said vindictively. "Apart from anything else, her head is pretty well turned already, thanks to Martin, and if she's going to spend her evenings at the club, she isn't going to be much use in the day time. If they can get another girl out from England it'll be finish for Miss Fay Lind, contract or no contract."

"I've Stopped Being Sentimental."

Iris Collins put down her lipstick, and stared at Doria as if she were seeing her for the first time.

"I don't know that I blame you, Doria," she said, "for I've done some queer things in my time, and I'm not in a position to throw stones. But—Fay Lind is only a kid Doria."

"I was only a kid myself, when I married Dennis — and began growing up mighty fast. And since then—I've stopped being sentimental, Iris."

"I think that bandage will stay in place now, Mrs. Smythe," Christine said, in a low voice, moving away from Doria. She was longing to get out of the room before her self control gave way, for she knew that she couldn't stand very much more of this talk about Fay. Even as it was, her hands had been shaking so much that it had been difficult to finish bandaging Doria's arm, but Doria had been too absorbed to notice the stewardess.

Doria muttered a word of thanks and Christine slipped out of the room, but before she reached the head of the companion she met Grant, who had just come up the companion three steps at a time.

"I was looking for you," he exclaimed. "Those two old cats in your cabin said they didn't know where you were, so I was going to start a room to room search for you."

"What's the matter now?" she asked rather wearily.

"Miss Robins in number five—the girl who shares her room rang just now and she says Miss Robins has a temperature and is talking all sorts of nonsense. Sounds like sunstroke to me."

"She went ashore today, and I know it's the first time she's been East."

"Well, you go and have a look at her, Miss Jordan, and I'll be about in case you want me to fetch the doctor. I'm on watch until eleven—I'd only just come on watch when the bell rang."

Christine hurried along to number five with Grant close behind her, and found a very scared girl standing in the doorway waiting for her.

"Phyllis Robins complained of having a headache before dinner," she said to Christine, "and she went to lie down immediately after dinner—she hardly ate anything. I thought she'd rather be left alone, that's why I didn't come along before to see how she was."

After one glance at the girl who was lying in the lower bunk, muttering in delirium, Christine sent Grant for Dr. Stanhope. It was not at all unusual for one or two of her passengers to have a touch of sunstroke when first the ship was in a hot climate, but Christine could see that this was more than a touch, and that the sooner the doctor was in charge the better.

Within a very few minutes, Grant was back again with Dr. Stanhope, who gave Christine a brief, friendly nod before stooping over the patient to make his examination.

"Sunstroke—as I expect you already know, Miss Jordan," he said quietly, as he straightened himself. "I think it will be simplest to move Miss Robins at once to the hospital, as she will have to be watched all night—and it is not easy to cope with a delirious patient in a lower bunk. Will you tell Grant to find the man who is on watch with him, and to fetch a stretcher?"

Christine gave the order to Grant, who was waiting in the alley-way, and then went up to the little two-roomed hospital on the boat deck to make up the bed. At that hour most of the passengers were either dancing on the promenade deck or were in the lounge or smoke-room, so that the two stewards carrying the sick girl on a stretcher attracted very little attention. Probably, few passengers even realized that the small building at the after end of the boat was the ship's hospital.

"I don't think that it is going to be a serious case, Miss Jordan," John Stanhope said, when he and Christine had put the moaning girl to bed, and Grant had been despatched to the pantry for ice. "The chances are that she'll be all right in a day or two, if she is kept quiet, but I am afraid it is going to mean extra work for you."

"It's all part of the job," Christine said.

"She probably has friends on board who will sit with her in the daytime. As for to-night, if you will stay until mid-night, Miss Jordan, I will take over then. I have a patient in the seamen's quarters who has to have an injection at half past eleven, and I'll snatch a little sleep before then. You need do nothing for Miss Robins—it is simply a question of having someone at hand, in case she starts climbing out of bed. She seems quiet enough now."

Does YOUR System Make Excess Acid?

Acid Indigestion, Colds, Headaches, Bilious Attacks, Constipation
OFTEN START THIS WAY

Some people are what are known as acid-makers. They can't help it—and often they don't know it. The results of an excess of acid may seem just like ordinary stomach trouble — but they can't be put right by ordinary stomach remedies! Excess acid may be the reason why you wake up flat, sour, bleary-eyed, bilious — and the reason why fierce purgatives only leave you in the grip of a weakening habit and the same old symptoms.

But there's one thing that acid can't face. That's the neutralizing power of Vange Salts, the alkaline remedy with the natural mineral spa action. A teaspoonful in warm water surges through your system just like the medicinal spring water far away in England where Vange Salts come from. Excess acid is neutralized quickly, painlessly. Your blood is purified of poisons. Your sore stomach walls are soothed. And that mass of hard, poisonous waste matter lying in your intestines is softened gently, naturally, and passed out of your body. Then do you feel good! It's marvellous! But the most marvellous thing is that Vange Salts are only 60 cents a tin! At your druggist now—but if you're wise, on your bathroom shelf tonight!

West Lake

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Hyatt and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Crawford spent a pleasant week among friends in New Jersey.

The Ladies' Aid meeting for September was held at the church on Tuesday p.m. A chicken dinner was planned for Oct. 19th. A dainty lunch was served.

Ralph Rutter was seriously hurt in the ball game at the fair grounds in Picton on the last day of the Fair (Thursday). West Lake and Cloverdale teams were playing and in making a home run Ralph was pitched headlong when he collided with the catcher's knee. Dr. Allison was called and he was taken to Prince Edward County Hospital where he will be confined for a week or ten days. A concussion of the brain was at first feared, and that one eye would be blinded but friends are glad to know that he is getting along fine and can still smile under his bandages.

Mr. and Mrs. Dan Maitland and family attended Madoc Fair this week.

Rev. Blanchard gave an exceptionally fine sermon on Sunday afternoon, preaching from the text "Be still and know that I am God". There was a goodly number out for the sacramental service. Next Sunday will be Thanksgiving service and the topic will be "Thanksgiving and the Christian."

Mrs. Percy Collier, East Lake Road, was a guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Huycke on Sunday and attended afternoon service.

Tweed

Tweed—Madoc High School defeated Tweed High School by a score of 18 to 5 in a rugby match played at the Fair Grounds on Friday afternoon. The visitors were too experienced for the locals and presented a heavier line. Stewart, Madoc half, kicked a field goal for three points in the first quarter. Munor made the score 8 to 0 on a touch down following an end run which the visitors failed to convert.

McAvoy broke away in the second half and reached Tweed's five yard line before he was pulled down. Two bucks put him over for a touchdown. The visitors scored their final touchdown via the aerial route when Thompson took Munro's forward pass at Tweed's thirty yard line and counted a major score.

The home team, while outscored, was not outplayed by an appreciable margin. Wager counted the local's only score following Bailey's spectacular run of fifty yards. He was tackled at the visitors' three-yard line. Two bucks put Wager over for a touchdown. G. Morrison, G. Luffman, D. Porritt, A. Courneyea and Doug Connor also player smart games for the locals.

Madoc—Snap, Kincaid; Insides, McBain, Bassett; Middles, Hawthorne, McAvoy; Outsides, Moon, Naylor; Flying Wing, Thompson; Quarter-back, Munro, Stewart; Halfback, Harris; Full back, Keller; Subs, White, Foster.

Tweed—Snap, G. Morrison; Insides, Shannon, C. Elliott; Middles, B. Elliott, D. Connor; Outsides, Bailey, Porrit; Flying Wing, Courneyea; Quarter back, Wager, Luffman; Halfback, McCaw; Full back, Price; Subs, Logie, Cassidy, Moffatt.

Umpire-in-chief, Rev . W. G. Hope Syane; Field judge, D. Whytock, Madoc; Linesman, C. Wallbridge, Madoc.

Mrs. Earl Graham left on Friday from Montreal on the Letitia for a visit of some length to her former home in Edinburgh, Scotland.

Mr. Herbert Returned to McMaster University, Hamilton, this week. He had spent the summer on one of the lake boats.

Theatres

AT THE McCARTHY

"Street Scene"

"Street Scene," pictured from the famous Pulitzer Prize play by Elmer Rice will be presented by Samuel Goldwyn at the McCarthy Theatre, starting tomorrow. In directing the story, King Vidor makes of "Street Scene" his most ambitious effort since "The Big Parade."

Sylvia Sidney, in whose ears are still ringing the nation-wide acclaim that greeted her appearance in "An American Tragedy" has the romantic lead in the production. William Collier, Jr. plays opposite her. Estelle Taylor follows her brilliant performance in "Cimarron" with the exacting and difficult role of Mrs. Maurrant,—which, to many of the play's multitude of friends who believe "Street Scene" is to be as much a story of mother love as Goldwyn's earlier "Stella Dellas" is the most important of all.

Elmer Rice himself adapted his stage play to the screen for Mr. Goldwyn. It ran for 600 performances in New York, and played for two years through the principal cities of the United States. Mr. Rice directed the New York, Chicago, London and Los Angeles stage productions. A published version of the play has appeared in five languages.

Not so much with the street, but more so with the people whose lives radiate from its rusty brownstone houses, is the play concerned. A girl who knows her mother is unfaithful, an insensitive, cruel, father, a cynical old Jewish socialist trying to read a purpose into life, young love trying to rise above the squalor and misery, a lonesome woman, hungry for some one to talk to, an Italian couple, longing for the baby they can't have, the improvident poor,—these are the strings that King Vidor weaves together as the play relentlessly moves toward the smashing climax.

For the first time in screen history, in "Street Scenes" a picture is shot in its entirety within the confines of a single set. Following the stage outline, the entire action takes place on the street, mostly on the steps of the one house. The camera doesn't enter the house and there are no close-ups. King Vidor and Samuel Goldwyn meant "Street Scenes" to be a departure from the ordinary.

At the same time, the camera is "a roving eye," constantly on the alert, always in movement. For that purpose, King Vidor built a huge derrick device, similar to that of a fire hose tower, which with the help of a hydraulic crane and pneumatic wheels, takes the camera from one window to another, from a basement to a roof-top, in and out, with inhuman ease and speed. At its peak, King Vidor and his camerman sat through the shooting of the picture.

Most of the original stage cast were brought to Hollywood for the picture, Beulah Bondi, David Landau, Russel Hopton, Anna Kostant and Greta Granstedt are among the featured players. Every detail of a tenement block in New York's west sixties was created with the most complete authenticity, the houses, the occupants, the passers by, street noises, traffic, even to the nearby elevated, where an actual train was built to create the noises that are among the undertones of the picture. Capt. Richard Day and Willie Pogany supervised the elaborate production details under the supervision of King Vidor and Mr. Goldwyn for th's United Artists Picture.

In addition to "Street Scenes" the program presentation at the McCarthy Theatre will include the two reel comedy "Three Dumb Clucks" with the screen's three best comedians, the Three Stooges Larry, Moe and Curly that comes rated as their fastest and funniest riot of fun yet. "Fishing Thrills" a real timely sport subject and chapter No. 6 of the thrilling chapter play, "The Great Adventures of Wild Bill Hickock," will be presented at each performance.

"This Marriage Business"

Victor Moore featured with Allan Lane and Vicki Lester in the romantic leads will be presented in "This Marriage Business" at the McCarthy theatre plus an excellent program of short extras.

AT THE BELLE

"Three Loves Has Nancy"

Smartly dialogued, brimming with laughter, and offering finished and believable characterizations by such stellar performers as Janet Gaynor, Robert Montgomery and Franchot Tone, "Three Loves Has Nancy," is on the Belle screen as one of the most refreshing and original romantic comedies seen here in some time.

The story is that of a flippant novelist who gets into difficulties with a broadway actress. In an endeavor to escape the overtures of the too eager admirer, he persuades his publisher to send him on a lecture tour of the South. Here he meets Nancy, a small-town girl. Casually he invites her to seek his help should she ever get into trouble in New York, he forgets all about her, only to find her waiting at the penthouse apartment he shares with his friend, the publisher, upon his return. The ensuing complications provide some of the fastest and merriest comedy seen this season.

Janet Gaynor is excellent as the small-town girl who puts her trust in the non-too-reliable hands of her newly - found metropolitan friends. Montgomery plays the debonair novelist to the hilt, and Tone is ideally cast as the somewhat bibulous publisher.

Don Ameche in "Gateway"

A throbbing drama of world-famed Ellis Island is "Gateway," the 20th Century-Fox starring vehicle for Don Ameche and Arleen Whelan.

"Gateway" which is the added feature attraction on the Belle Theatre 9th Anniversary Week program, is tense with violent emotions and keyed-up suspense; bright with the lightness of hearts buoyed up with hope, and colorful with its people from all lands.

Of its timeliness there is no question.

Don and Arleen are thrilling with the strong, young romance of two who feared they had met too late. Their support is a cast of actors and actresses worthy of such a stirring story in the most dramatic place in the world.

Don is a homecoming newspaper correspondent. Arleen is a young lass in the second cabin, who is to meet her fiance in America. Her beauty has attracted not only the newspaperman but a gangster (Gilbert Roland) and a politically-minded mayor (Raymond Walburn). A famous divorcee (Binnie Barnes) has aided the romance between Don and Arleen.

Gregory Ratoff, John Carradine, Maurice Moscovich, Harry Carey, Marjorie Gateson, Lyle Talbot and many others provide a story which directly influences the romance between Don and Arleen.

What appears at times to be inevitable destiny, is touched here and there with brilliant touches of humor and sheer thrill.

Happily all the new arrivals in this land find it the refuge they seek—and with what magnificent performances!

Czechoslovakia Film

A timely and unusually special extra attraction will be presented at the Belle tonight, when the March of Time presents the story of Czechoslovakia prelude to conquest. The editors of Time bring you the whole dramatic story behind the headlines.

Performances start daily at 2.30; 7.00. The last complete show at 8.30 p.m.

FLEES FASCISTS

Arturo Toscanini, internationally famous orchestra leader, is reported to have fled from Italy after authorities had revoked his passport. Toscanini is reported to be in disgrace with Fascist authorities for criticizing the Fascist regime.

Ontario's First Train

Back in 1853, the first steam-driven train in Ontario ran from Toronto to Aurora. The Ontario, Simcoe and Huron Railway marked the beginning of the end of the stage-coach—until then the popular means of travel.

Six years before this memorable event, the Canada Life issued its first policy to a resident of Ontario. It was then, and continued to be for almost twenty years, the only Canadian life insurance company.

With the same enterprise so apparent in pioneer days, the Canada Life continues to safeguard the future of its policyholders and their dependents. Each week, an average of approximately five hundred thousand dollars is distributed to those it serves.

Why the Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Frosts! The first killing frosts very definitely put an end to all growth for the season. By the end of the present month these will have visited the entire country except the states bordering on the Gulf of Mexico and parts of Arizona and California. The actual time that the first killing frost comes to any place may be several days ahead of the average date, thus killing all flowers and late vegetables; but on the other hand killing frost may be delayed several days, or even two weeks. The average length of the growing season is calculated as from the last date of killing frost in the spring to the first in autumn.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 6 (CP)—An extensive area of high pressure, centred over Northern Ontario, covers the eastern portion of Canada and the central states and pressure is also high over the lower Mackenzie valley and British Columbia. The barometer is relatively low over Saskatchewan and the southwest states and off the Atlantic coast. The weather is cool throughout the Dominion and showers have occurred in nearly all provinces.

Lake Superior—Moderate east to southeast winds; fair and cool. Friday, fresh southeast winds; partly cloudy and a little warmer.

Manitoba—Fresh southeast winds; mostly cloudy today and part of Friday with showers in many districts; cooler Friday night.

Saskatchewan—Cloudy with scattered showers; cooler tonight. Friday, fair and cool.

Alberta—Fair and cool tonight and Friday; probably frost.

DEMANDS RAISED OVER TERRITORY, CZECHS CLAIM

Complaint Is Aired Before League of Nations Today

FIFTH ZONE PROBLEMS

League Is Told Statistics Used By Germans Are 1910 Figures

Geneva, Oct. 6 (AP)—The Czechoslovak delegation to the League of Nations announced today that the German members of the International Sudetenland Commission at Berlin had drawn up new demands for the cession of territory beyond that contemplated by the accord of Munich.

A communique issued by the delegation said that the Germans were demanding that industrial and communications centres with a total Czech population of 815,000 either be occupied immediately by German troops or made subject to plebiscite.

(In Berlin yesterday the International Commission, bowing to German demands, decided to hand over to Germany a fifth ceded zone, to be occupied by Oct. 10, which took in half as much territory as all the first four zones of occupation.

Pure Czech Cities.

(The Munich accord left delimitation of the fifth zone to the International Commission, leaving to it to decide what were areas of "predominantly German population.")

The Czechoslovak communique said that included in territory which Germany demands for immediate occupation are cities and towns in which the population is ethically "purely Czech".

It asserted the German members of the commission demanded that

MARK BENES FOR THE PEACE PRIZE

H. G. Wells And Former Premier Leon Blum Make Suggestion

London, Oct. 6 (AP)—H .G. Wells suggested in a letter to the Times today that former President Benes of Czechoslovakia be given the Nobel Peace Prize.

"Amid the tumult of rejoicing into which our recent war panic has dissolved," the historian and author wrote, "I think every intelligent man and woman will turn with gratitude to Dr. Benes, to whose moderation and wisdom our respite is so manifestly due.

Could there be a worthier recipient of the next Nobel peace prize than he?"

Paris, Oct. 6 (CP-Havas)—Former Premier Leon Blum today proposed Eduard Benes, who resigned yesterday as President of Czechoslovakia, for the Nobel peace prize.

Writing in Le Populaire, Socialist organ, Blum said: "Comrades of Sweden! You know what is expected from you here. Let the Nobel peace prize this year go to Benes and to no other. You can pay tribute to what still remains in the world that is pure and noble and you can bring him consolation."

Textbooks by 114 Jewish Authors Banned in Schools

Rome, Oct. 6 (AP)—Textbooks by 114 Jewish authors were banned in Italian schools today as decisions of the Fascist Grand Council were awaited on anti-Jewish measures.

The proscribed writers were listed in a circular issued by the Ministry of Education.

Also on the program of a Grand Council meeting tonight under Premier Mussolini's direction were final approval of a new legislative chamber and discussion of the general political situation growing out of the four-power Munich Conference on the partition of Czechoslovakia Sept. 30.

Since then the announcement that France would send an ambassador to Rome and recognize the Ethiopian empire has provided a new Fascist triumph to be evaluated. Notwithstanding this gesture, informed Fascists expected the policy of the Rome-Berlin axis would be affirmed.

(France has had no ambassador here since 1936 because of Mussolini's insistence any appointee must be accredited to Vittorio Emanuele as King and Emperor of Ethiopia.)

The Council was expected to adopt measures expelling Jews from all administrative posts of the state and limiting their participation in "the full life of the nation" to their ratio of the population—about one Jew to 1,000 others.

A recent census, subject to rechecking, was said yesterday to have disclosed that there are about 75,000 Jews in Italy. Under the new Fascist antisemitic program, those who have entered Italy since 1919 have been ordered to leave by March 12, 1939.

INSPECTION TOUR MADE BY HITLER

In Second Zone Recently Occupied By Czech Soldiers

Loebau, Sudetenland, Oct. 6 (AP)—Chancellor Hitler made his third entry into Sudetenland today—this time into the second zone on a tour of inspection.

Military occupation of this district was completed yesterday under the direction of Colonel-General Fedor von Bock.

The Fuehrer crossed the border into the Rumburg area between Opach and Fugau at 10 a.m. in the midst of ovations from the populace. He was accompanied by General von Bock, Konrad Henlein, Sudeten leader, and Henrich Himmler, Chief of Secret Police.

Loyalists to Fight Until Country Free of Invasion

Determined To Avoid The Fate of Czechoslovakia Says President

FOOD IS SCARCE

Barcelona, Oct. 6 AP)—Julio Alvarez Del Vayo, Spanish Government Foreign Minister declared today that Government Spain was determined to avoid the fate of Czechoslovakia and to fight until the country is "free from foreign invasion".

In an address prepared for international broadcast Alvarez Del Vayo asserted:

"The terrible and monstrous experience of what has taken place in Europe within the last few days has increased the Spanish people's resolution not to permit Spain to be sacrificed to the policy of capitulation."

This policy of capitulation, he said, "menaces the existence of small nations and places European democracies in ever increasing danger of disappearing."

Division Is Broached.

(Spanish Government spokesmen in Paris said a plan to divide Spain into two nations, one a democracy and the other a dictatorship, had been broached to the government and rejected.

(The plan, which they indicated was brought up at the four-power Munich accord which decided on partition of Czechoslovakia, was said to have been a part of international discussions aimed at ending the Spanish war as part of a general European settlement.)

Alvarez Del Vayo said any permanent European peace must not be "obtained for some at the expense of the rest — not a peace which one day gives all small countries to satisfy the insatiable appetite of aggressor states."

The Foreign Minister stated that "we are about to enter an extremely hard winter" and that "without generous aid from abroad thousands of women and children" will go hungry.

DEAN GOING GREAT

Famous Dizzy Uses Nothing But Slow Curve And Change of Pace

By SID FEDER

Wrigley Field, Chicago, Oct. 6 (AP)—Dizzy Dean, crippled but willing, went to the mound today in a desperate try to put Chicago Cubs back into the world series against the rampant Yankees as some 40,000 shivering spectators, sensing a dramatic battle, watched. Opposed to the great star of other days was Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, out to become the first player in the big classic's history to win six straight series games without defeat.

Like yesterday, when the wind whistled and the Yankees opened with a brilliant offensive and defensive display to beat the Cubs, 3-1, it was a blustery, chilly day. Fur coats made their first appearance of the season.

Gomez Favorite.

Gomez was heavily favored. The brisk wind, whipping across Lake Michigan toward home plate, enabling Lefty to hook his fast one across with more speed than ever. The Senor appeared in great shape as he warmed up, whereas Diz seemed restless and uneasy.

The Yankees except for Gomez in the box, stood pat on their lineup but the Cubs made an outfield shift which found Frank Demaree in his old right field spot, Joe Marty in centre and batting cleanup and Carl Reynolds shifting from centre to left.

Starting batting order:

New York (A)—Crosetti ss, Rolfe 3b, Henrich rf, DiMaggio cf, Gehrig 1b, Dickey c, Selkirk lf, Gordon 2b, Gomez p.

Chicago (N)—Hack 3b, Herman 2b, Demaree rf, Marty cf, Reynolds lf, Hartnett c, Collins 1b, Jurgess ss, Dean p.

Umpires—Kolls (AL) plate, Sears (NL) first, Hubbard (AL) second, Moran (NL) third.

Following is the play by play detail of today's game:

First Inning.

YANKEES—Crosetti sent a long fly to Reynolds who took the ball with his back almost against the left field wall. Dean made a nice stop on Rolfe's bunt and threw to Collins to retire him in a close play. Jurgess went back on the grass to take Henrich's fly. 0 runs, 0 hits, 0 errors, 0 left.

CUBS — The crowd cheered as Hack, first man up, came to bat for the Cubs. Hack dropped a single in left and another loud cheer went up. Herman struck out, swinging at a sharp-breaking curve. Demaree singled between first and second base into right field sending Hack to third. When Rolfe fumbled Henrich's throwin Demaree went to second but Hack held third. It was an error for Rolfe. DiMaggio backed up against the wall in left centre to take Marty's fly, Hack scoring after the catch. Demaree went to third on the throw-in. Reynolds struck out on a low inside pitch. 1 run, 2 hits, 1 error, 1 left.

CLINIC HELD AT TWEED SCHOOL

Provincial Health Dep't Sends Doctor To Assist In Work

Tweed, (Special)— Dr. Hardman of the Provincial Department of Health was in Tweed on Wednesday afternoon and with Dr. M. G. Dales, local Medical Officer of Health, held a clinic at the Council Chambers. A large number of children, pupils of Miss Grace Moran's and Miss Mabel Gunning's tain if they are immune to scarlet were given a skin test to ascertain if they are immune from scarlet fever. Those who react unfavourably to the test will be inoculated. These precautionary measures are being taken because of a local case of scarlet fever which proved fatal. The school has been ordered closed by the M.O.H. and will remain closed until Tuesday at least.

Daladier Seeks To Put France On Sound Basis

By TAYLOR HENRY
(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

Paris, Oct. 6 (AP)—Premier Daladier today sought a program by which he could put France's economic and financial life in a sound basis for the struggle to regain France's lost position as a leading European power.

No one in France is mincing words about the seriousness of the situation caused by basic economic defects, international political dissension and diplomatic mistakes.

Only two questions were being asked: What is to be done? Is Daladier the man to do it?

The time limit imposed by Parliament yesterday when it empowered the Premier to rule by decree until Nov. 15 is recognized as a serious handicap in itself. It is a handicap, however, which Daladier allowed to be forced on him by Socialists rather than take the chance of shifting majority from left to right.

Limitations Imposed

Other limitations, self-imposed by the same fear, were promises not to tamper with principles of the popular front Social Reform laws, resort to inflation, or impose exchange control.

The only known step in Daladier's program was revaluation of the Goverment's gold stock held by the Bank of France as security for the currency it issues in the name of the Government. Financial observers considered that but a temporary expedient which would be worthless unless it were backed up by measures that would raise the general prosperity level by "putting France back to work."

Two solutions were considered by most experts to be open, and both of them were full of danger.

FIVE KILLED AS CAR STRIKES TREE

Believe Driver Apparently Lost Control of Vehicle

Papeer, Mich., Oct. 6 (AP)—Five persons were killed early today when their automobile struck a tree beside a highway, overturned and caught fire. The accident occurred six miles west of Lapeer. A sixth person was injured.

The dead: Roy Caskey, 37, of Flint, the driver, Mrs. Ray Goodell, 38, of Elba, Orietta Goodell, 17, daughter of Mrs. Ray Goodell, Louis J. Kitchenmaster, 26, Lapeer, Roy Peters, 21, Lapeer.

Sheriff George Carrigan said the driver apparently lost control of the war while taking a curve at high speed.

PARKDALE ELECTS WM. J. STEWART

Given Majority of 5,000 Over Three Other Candidates

Toronto, Oct. 6 (CP)—The Ontario Legislature will be at full strength, each of the ninety constituencies represented for the first time in months, when the third session of the 20th assembly opens early next year. The perty standing will be the same as that decided in the general election one year ago today.

Toronto - Parkdale traditionally Conservative, yesterday elected William J. Stewart, four times Mayor of Toronto and long identified with municipal politics, in a by-election necessitated by the death last July of Fred McBrien. The Conservative nominee was returned with a majority of more than 5,000 votes over three other candidates.

LIBERAL MEMBER IN ENGLAND WITH MAJOR J. HAHN

Hugh Plaxton, Toronto, Mentioned By Deputy Minister of Defence

TRACES STEPS

Testifies Hahn Held Up In Obtaining Information

Ottawa, Oct. 6 (CP)—Hugh Plaxton, Liberal member of Parliament for Toronto-Trinity was in England with Major James E. Hahn, in October, 1936, when the Toronto manufacturer sought information looking to the manufacture of the Bren gun in Canada, Major General L. R. LaFleche, Deputy Minister of National Defence, stated at the Bren gun inquiry today.

Tracing steps leading up to the contract under which the John Inglis Company of Toronto, headed by Major Hahn, is to make 7,000 Bren light machine guns for the Canadian Government, General LaFleche told of communications which passed between London and Ottawa in November, 1936, after Major Hahn reached England with an introduction to Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner.

Received Cable.

Early in November, he said, he received a cable from Mr. Plaxton saying Hahn was held up in obtaining information from the War Office because advices from Ottawa had not reached the High Commissioner. The witness had taken the matter up with the External Affairs Department.

A message was also sent to Canada House asking that Hahn cable his impressions of the possibility of making guns in Canada and a message from Hahn was received on November 23, 1936. It said the gun could be produced in Canada, at a factory cost of approximately $350 based on a run of 50 per week, on single shift operation. The War Office was interested and there was a possibility of their financial cooperation, Major Hahn said.

FIRE DESTROYS SET OF CURTAINS

Believed to have originated from matches in the hands of playing children, fire destroyed a set of curtains and a roller blind at the home of J. E. Jackson, 281 Ann Street shortly after nine o'clock this morning.

An alarm sent fire squads to the scene, who quickly extinguished the blaze before it got out of control.

According to Fire Department officials, children were playing in the room, when matches lying on the window sill, accidentally ignited and set fire to the curtains.

Says Peace Policy Saved Czechs From Extinction Prevented Armageddon

'No Disarming Until We Induce Others To Disarm'—Chamberlain

ARMS DIPLOMACY

British Prime Minister Declares Defences Will Be Strengthened

By J. F. SANDERSON

London, Oct. 6 (CP)—The House of Commons today endorsed Prime Minister Chamberlain's peace deal with Chancellor Hitler at the end of a three-day debate. The government was sustained on the main motion of confidence, 366 to 144, after a labor amendment had been defeated, 369 to 150.

Mr. Chamberlain declared his conviction that the Munich agreement had averted war.

"I am equally sure I was right," he added. "I think the government deserve the approval of this House.

The government's peace policy, he claimed, saved "Czechoslovakia from destruction and Europe from Armageddon."

Opposes General Election.

The Prime Minister came out definitely against a general election at this time.

"A feeling of relief has been voiced conspicuously throughout the country and I would not allow myself to capitalize on a feeling of that sort to gain a temporary party advantage," he said.

Only two events would have necessitated an election, on a new issue needing a mandate from the people, or if Mr. Chamberlain lost the support of his followers. Neither condition, he said, had arisen and "I have no reason to suppose either will arise."

Aim To Remove Causes of War.

This is what Mr. Chamberlain says must be done to gain lasting peace: "In my view we should seek, by all the means in our power, to avoid was by analyzing its possible causes by trying to remove them by discussion in a spirit of collaboration and good will. I believe no program of that sort would be rejected by the people of this country, even if it involves discussion, man to man, with dictators."

Mr. Chamberlain rejected the Labor Party's suggestion of an immediate world conference to draft lasting peace proposals, in his view it would be better to have no conference than a conference which probably would fail—"you must have reasonable prospects that you will be successful."

Perhaps a conference could be called advantageously at some later date, the prime minister said, "but it is no use calling a world conference at which the totalitarian states will be represented until you know they will attend and until you know

Steps are Taken to Quell Disorders in Holy Land

Don't Believe Arms Alone Can Solve The Problem

MANDATED TERRITORY

London, Oct 6.—(AP)— Great Britain took steps today to quell Arab disorders in Palestine.

Colonial Secretary Malcolm Macdonald told the House of Commons four battalions and two cavalry regiments were being rushed to the Holy Land where the British Government admitted there was "a serious deterioration in the general situation".

Sir Harold MacMichael, High Commissioner for Palestine, flew to London today to report fully on conditions.

British troops and aviators killed an estimated 60 Arabs in punitive engagements near Mount Tabor and near Safed yesterday. The expeditions set out after Arab bands attacked Tiberias Monday and killed nineteen Jews. Arab-Jewish racial strife since July 5 has caused hundreds of casualties.

While the immediate consideration in the mandated territory is the restoration of order it was recognized at the Colonial Office that arms alone could not solve the problem.

Opposed to Scheme

The present policy of the British Government is based on the partition of Palestine into Jewish, Arab and British-Corridor sections, despite opposition of both Jews and Arabs to this scheme.

The Royal Commission on partition, headed since Feb. 28, 1938 by Sir John Woodhead, has not yet made its report to the government and some qualified sources believed that body might yet convince the Colonial Office that partition is impracticable.

In any event, the government is urgently examining the views of Jewish and Arab authorities in London and in Palestine. Officials have been conferring with the Iraq minister of foreign affairs, Seyyid Taufiq es Suwaidi, who is in London at the request of the government.

Govern by Assembly

It was understood Suwaidi advocated changing Palestine from a mandated territory to an independent state allied to Great Britain by Treaty.

Under that scheme, Palestine would be governed by an assembly. All Palestine resident would have political and civil rights regardless of race or creed. All Jewish and Arab towns would have local autonomy in educational and municipal affairs. The plan would forbid any future Jewish immigration.

CHURCHILL ARRAYS FORCES AGAINST MR. CHAMBERLAIN

Predicts Britain Would Rue Day Munich Agreement Signed

CHURCHILLIAN PHRASES

By J. F. SANDERSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Oct. 6 — (CP Cable)—Drawing on all the bitterness and force of his oratorical ability, Winston Churchill yesterday swept into the leadership of parliamentary forces arrayed against Prime Minister Chamberlain's bargain with Chancellor Hitler as incorporated in the Munich agreement.

The former Liberal, and present-day Conservative rebel took the floor a few minutes after Sir John Simon, Chancellor of the Exchequer, had asked members to place themselves in Mr. Chamberlain's position at Munich and decide whether they would have rejected the terms of the Czech-German settlement and "destroyed the last chance of averting war."

These two veteran members highlighted the third day's debate on the government's action in the Czechoslovak-German crisis. Sir John Simon was the lawyer, driving home his points in clear and logical order. Where the Chancellor of the Exchequer used rapier thrusts, Mr. Churchill employed the technique of the broadsword, clothing his thoughts in precise and fiery English.

GERMANY GIVEN PERMISSION TO OCCUPY 5TH ZONE

New Area Is Approximately 5,000 Square Miles In Extent

Berlin, Oct. 6—(AP)—The International Sudetenland Commission handed Chancellor Hitler a choice new section of Czechoslovakia today, half as large as the Munich four-power conference gave him outright.

It marked out a "fifth zone" which Hitler's armies could take over without formality and German troops march into the fourth.

With the fifth zone defined, there had fallen to Hitler approximately 6,000 square miles of rich land. Of this, about two-thirds had been assigned to him by the Munich conference without debate and the remaining third was recognized as German by the International Commission.

In addition, Hitler has a good chance of augmenting the German Reich still further after plebiscites which the Munich conference agreed must be conducted by the end of November.

The Commission marked out the new area for occupation by German forces by Monday, Oct. 10, by its decision last night.

PLENTY OF PARTRIDGE NOTED AT MILLBRIDGE

Partridge lovers and hunters are anxiously awaiting the day when official regulations will permit them to stalk their favorite game.

There will be no scarcity of the birds, according to Wilfred Smith, Clifford Pickle and a party of Wellington hunters who yesterday scouted possibilities for partridge in North Hastings.

"We went a few miles north of Millbridge," Smith said, "and found plenty of the birds. We could have got seventy without moving in one particular place, had the season been open."

FOUR PUMPKINS WEIGH 575 POUNDS

One of the outstanding exhibits at Madoc Fair yesterday, and one that, according to officials, crashed all previous records, was a display of four pumpkins that aggregated five hundred and seventy-five pounds. One of the largest of the exhibit was a giant that tipped the scales at one hundred and fifty pounds, grown by Miller Carl, Stirling farmer.

A mammoth squash, weighing one hundred and three pounds, provided an additional touch to the display.

COLDER WEATHER NEEDED FOR GOOD WILD DUCK HUNTING

While local residents have been enjoying the sunny weather of the past week, duck hunters of the city and district have not been so enthusiastic over the Fall mildness and clear skies. Wild duck bags have been small so far, it is pointed out, and the fine weather which has extended far north has resulted in the ducks which annually constitute the bulk of the shooting, staying later than usual in their summer feeding grounds.

"Ducks have been scarce as yet, and we need the rough weather to bring them down," stated Maurice Callaghan, veteran observer. "They are getting a few, but not as many as they would if the weather was a little rougher."

PICKS STRAWBERRIES

A record for harvesting the season's latest strawberries in this district is believed held by Mrs. N. Gaffield of Warkworth. This week a pint of the berries as large and as red as those picked in summer, were taken from her berry patch.

PASTURE STILL GOOD

Pastures in this section are still in unusually good shape, and milk production is well above the average, it is reported by dairymen. In Tyendinaga Township, in spite of light frosts recently, grass retains its verdure and is providing good feed, it was stated by Wilbert Holden, a visitor to the city today. The present year is one season when the matter of feed has become just a minor problem to the majority of livestock owners. Plenty of fodder will be on hand for the winter.

WHITE LEGHORN HEN TAKES RIDE ON CAR

Clucking in dismal protest over its predicament, a large white Leghorn hen holding with feeble grip to the smooth top of a swaying car, rode into the city last evening and was parked directly under the glare of a Front Street lamp.

The owner, unconscious of the bird which had apparently been roosting on top of the machine in the garage and accompanied him to town when the car was taken out, parked the automobile, locked it and left, oblivious of the excitement he was leaving behind.

A crowd collected, small boys and men. More pedestrians halted, and car and bird became a centre of attraction. Annoyed by the confusion, the bird squawked, spread its wings and flopped to the street, thence under the car from where it cackled loudly. More daring than others, a small boy finally hustled the hen to the open. A man grabbed and caught it. Scooping it under his arm, he fled in a confusion of squawks and feathers. Business again returned to normal on Front Street.

NEW LICENCE PLATES HAVE WHITE NUMBERS ON BLACK BACKGROUND

Though not available for issue until January, this coming year's new licence number markers for cars and trucks will be painted in a pleasing combination of white numerals on a black back ground, according to advice received at the local office of issuer. The new plates will also be surmounted by a crown on a black background. Earlier plans to make the new plates luminous by a glass-spray process will not be carried out by the department due to the danger of dust collecting more readily on the plates, it was stated.

Collegiate News

The annual B.C.I & V.S. track and field meet took place on the traditional battleground at the Agricultural Park, locally known as the Fair Grounds. During the morning, while the large majority of the fellow students laboured more or less happily at class work, heats were run off. George Hunter presided (?) at the pistol to the accompaniment of numerous catcalls, resulting in false alarms. The squealer for the morning was Bucky Fry.

The results of the few finals completed in the morning have already been published in yesterday's edition. Noteworthy, however, was the achievement of Bill Pigden, who broke the record by running the half mile in two minutes and ten seconds, not ten minutes and ten seconds as reported.

In the afternoon, the lowering clouds, which had threatened rain all morning, drizzled drearily on the happy crowd of spectators and contestants, the former released from school and wearing their most suitable apparel, the latter clad in brief and colorful attire. Stuart McBride's red shorts outshone them all. Don Goodwin took over the megaphone from Bucky Fry, and entertained us by his loud bellows, which came to an end abruptly at one time when someone inserted a baseball into the business end.

Another notable attraction was the suddenly acquired facial adornment of such tender youths as Richard Doxee, Charlie Tripp, Bill Bush and Jim Graham (the perpetrator of the crime). We noticed that one high umper wore a rabbit's foot on her belt, with, we are sorry to say, no successful results.

One impromptu item was the band race, when members of the band forsook their comfortable (?) seats where they had provided rousing music at intervals all afternoon, leaving their instruments, they seized fellow members and raced piggy-back for 22 yards, with Mr. MacLaurin cheering them on. Ken Graham, laden with George Hunter, half-tumbling off, reached the tape first. The grand finale saw them all piled in a heap. Winners of other events are announced elsewhere in this paper.

Two championships at least are decided although some events had to be postponed on account of the fickleness of the elements. Marjorie Hitchon is senior girls' champion and Perry Everett senior boys' champion. In the dugouts beneath the grandstand Margaret Miles and Bob Hunter chief officials of the course, tabulated results while surrounded by able advisers.

At the close, the well-sprinkled contestants trouped to the dugouts where Miss Sweeney and Miss Billings graciously presented ribbons to the victors. By four o'clock the grounds were almost completely deserted; in spite of the rain, we felt, as we drifted homeward, that the day had been a grand success.

Belleville Boys To Compete in Montreal, Quebec

Four Belleville lads, Robert and George Wilson, Canadian "Soap Box Derby" winners of 1938 and 1937 respectively, Barney Wright and Ernest Young, will compete in the Quebec "Soap Box Derby" to be held at Montreal on Saturday and sponsored by the Montreal Kinsmen Club.

The quartette of local racers will leave Belleville by rail tomorrow and appear on a special radio broadcast from that city, in the interest of the Quebec "Soap Box Derby", on Friday night. A special race for the Belleville drivers, who are considered the best in Canada, will introduce "Soap Box Derby" racing in Montreal, according to information revealed by C. B. Colling, President of the Belleville Kinsmen Club, who with other members of the local service club, will accompany the Belleville drivers to Montreal.

George Wilson won the Canadian "Soap Box Derby" championship in 1937, while his brother, Robert, kept these honors in the family by winning the same honors this year. The Wilson boys represented Canada at the International "Soap Box Derby" held in Akron Ohio, after winning their Canadian championships.

In the Toronto race Ernest Young won all the honors this year, with Barney Wright winning the senior class. The four local drivers received a special invitation from the Montreal Kinsmen Club to appear in the Quebec metropolis in an invitation race, which is to introduce "Soap Box Derby" racing in that city.

T. E. McMahon And Ray Milligan Presented With Gifts

On Saturday last the Lipson-McMahon Company completed operations and was the occasion of a happy gathering of staff and employees when Mr. T. E. McMahon and Mr. Ray Milligan were each presented with a beautiful gift and address as follows:

Dear Mr. McMahon and Ray:

On this, the last day of the canning season, we have gathered together for a few minutes to express our appreciation. We have spent many pleasant and profitable hours with you, and although your patience must have been tried, you have always been very patient with us, always pleasant and friendly to your employees.

We felt that we could not let the season close without a slight token of our appreciation. We ask you to accept these gifts as a slight remembrance of our season together. Nobody ever did add up the value of a smile. We know now how much a pound is worth and how much a mile. We know the distance to the sun, the size and weight of earth; but no one here can tell us just how much a smile is worth. Signed on behalf of the employees, Verna Thomas.

Thursday Market

Advent of cooler weather with a possibility of frost sent seasonal vegetable prices on a slight uptrend at the city market today, where a slim offering of produce was on display.

Tomatoes advanced to forty-five and fifty cents per bushel, an increase of five cents over Saturday quotations, while sweet corn noted a slight increase selling at fifteen cents per dozen ears.

Eggs remained firm at week-end quotations, with "A" selects selling at thirty-five cents per dozen. Some ungraded stocks were quoted at thirty-two cents per dozen. Only a few chickens were available today with yearling birds offered at from seventy-five cents each.

MacIntosh Reds, St. Laurence and other Autumn apples, with "windfalls" predominating were plentiful, selling at from fifty cents per hamper-lots. A few Tolman Sweets were offered, six-quart baskets selling at thirty cents each.

Blue and white grapes headed a light fruit display, prices being 30 and 35c per basket. Plums were offered at 35c per six-quart lot with gages priced at sixty cents per basket. Canteloupe and watermelon in lesser quantities than usual, were priced at from five cents each.

Mudcats were offered at two pounds for twenty-five cents with a small offering of pike selling at ten cents per pound.

Douglas Bankier is Awarded Fellowship at Rice Institute

Four-Year Award Made To Belleville Student Will Act As Fellow At University And Study Towards Ph. D. Degree

Mr. Douglas Bankier, M.A., (Queen's Univ.), of this city has been awarded a fellowship for four years at Rice Institute, Houston, Texas. He is now on his way to the institution where he will lecture and also study towards the degree of Doctor of Philosophy.

Mr. Bankier, a son of Mr. and Mrs. James D. Bankier, Albert Street, Belleville, is a graduate of the city public school and collegiate institute, where he was one of the most brilliant students. His course at Queen's University has been marked throughout with high honours. Last year he graduated as bachelor of arts. This year he received the degree of master of arts. His course was in mathematics.

Rice Institute is one of the leading institutions of higher education and has an endowment of about fourteen million dollars. Houston is one of the principal cotton ports of America, and is one of the most progressive cities in the south of the United States.

ROAD SUPERINTENDENT OCCUPIES NEW OFFICE

Newly-decorated office, formerly occupied by P.S. Inspector H. J. Clarke, in the County Buildings is now being used by Road-Superintendent W. H. Langiois, of Hastings County.

With the assistance of a stenographer, Mr Langiois is now directing his official activities from his own office.

TOURIST CAMP TO CLOSE NEXT MONDAY

With a registration for the summer season of several thousand visitors, the majority of whom availed themselves of the table and camp privileges for the holding of small picnics and family reunions, the city tourist camp will officially close on Monday next, it is announced by Alderman McLean Haig, chairman of tourist and publicity in city council.

Loud in their praise of the facilities afforded, visitors who have stopped at the camp this season have been quick to acknowledge by letter and post card the courtesy tendered them while guests of the city. Many of the communications have come from remote points across the border and are on departmental file.

FLOWERS UNDAMAGED BY FROST AS YET

Plants and flowers in beds and gardens of city homes have either shown remarkable vigor and hardiness this fall, or the frosts which have resulted in formations of ice on ponds of the district lately have not been as sharp within the city limits, it was observed by a local nature lover this morning. Roses and other flowers are still forming attractive centre pieces for the office of the observer and are as yet unsubdued in either color of brilliance by the cold weather. "I have not noticed such beautiful blooms so late in the season before," it was stated.

APPLICATIONS FOR CITY ASSESSOR TO BE OPENED TONIGHT

Recommendations for the appointment of a city assessor for which applications have been advertised are expected to be heard by members of city council at the regular committee meeting held this evening, following the opening and studying of the applications. Council then is expected to ratify the appointment at the regular council meeting which will be held next Tuesday evening, postponed from Monday the regular evening owing to the Thanksgiving Day holiday.

This evening also the matter of the No 1 Firehall addition which has been under discussion and advisement for some time past is also expected to be revived with the visit of a representative of the Fire Underwriter's department from Toronto who will be available for special advice on the matter.

CHURCHILL ARRAYS

Mr. Churchill predicted Great Britain would rue the day the Munich agreement was signed by Mr. Chamberlain, Chancellor Hitler Premier Mussolini and Premier Daladier. It was "a total, unmitigated defeat," would lean to German domination in Europe, would result in the small nations distrusting French and British friendship—and might mean the destruction of the democracies themselves.

Here are some typical Churchillian sentences:—

"The utmost the Prime Minister was able to gain for Czechoslovakia has been that the German Dictator, instead of snatching his victuals from the table, has been content to have them served to him course by course.

"Britain should have declared a long time beforehand she would join with others to protect Czechoslovakia against unprovoked aggression. The government refused to give a guarantee when it would have saved the situation, yet they have it too late and for the future renewed it when they had not the slightest power to make it good.

Must Consider Character

"You have to consider the character of the Nazi movement and the rule which it applies. A power which burns Christian ethics, which cheers its onward progress by barbarous paganism and vaunts a spirit of aggression and conquest, which derives strength and pleasure from perverted persecution and uses threats of murderous force—that power cannot ever be the trusted friend of British democracy.

"The people should know there has been gross neglect in our defences and that we suffered defeat without war, the consequences of which will travel far with us along the road. The people should know we have passed an awful milestone; that the whole equilibrium of Europe has been changed."

Mr. Churchill urged concentration on the rearmament program in an effort to retrieve Britain's prestige, defensively and diplomatically. Industry should be mobilized immediately. There must be supremacy in the air.

Only Alternative War

Sir John Simon declared the only possible alternative to the terms of the Munich agreement was war.

"How many among us are there," the Chancellor asked, "who if they could would undo what was done, who would reject the settlement the Prime Minister put his hand to Friday, and instead—for it was the only alternative—plunge the world into immediate war?"

Sir John rejected as the "creed of despair" the proposition that war with the totalitarian states was inevitable. He also rejected the "theory of the effectiveness of bluff."

He proposed the government's motion that parliament approve "the policy of His Majesty's government by which war was averted in the recent crisis and support efforts to reach a lasting peace."

Motion Introduced

Arthur Greenwood, Labor frontbencher, promptly introduced the opposition amendment which read: "That this house, while profoundly relieved that war has been averted for the time being, cannot approve a policy which has led to the sacrifice of Czechoslovakia under threat of armed force, and to the humiliation of our country and its exposure to grave dangers; and realizing the intense desire of all peoples for lasting peace, demands an active support of methods of collective security through the League of Nations and immediate initiative by His Majesty's Government of proposals for summoning a world conference to consider the removal of economic and political grievances which imperil peace".

Richard Acland (Liberal) who returned yesterday from Czechoslovakia told the House "I saw in Prague a young Czech woman with the mark of a swastika branded on her chest with a red hot iron, and a doctor who was with me told me he had treated that morning an eight months old baby with the sign of the swastika the size of a shilling branded on its face".

"Those are the devils to whom you have handed over these decent, innocent people, he shouted across at the government benches.

Claims Diplomacy at New Low

Mr. Acland also claimed British diplomacy sank to a new low level when the British ambassador in Poland was "told to go to hell. It was said in Polish but that was what was meant."

Sir Stafford Cripps from his place on the Labor benches taunted the government for adopting a policy of 'the dove of peace sharpening its claws'. To him 'we now have been reduced to relying not on what is right and just but upon the word of Herr Hitler which is not likely to fill Jews, Social Democrats, Catholics, Trade Unionists, Cooperators or any decent man or woman with any degree of confidence or hope for the future."

Harold Nicolson, National Labor member who has been a severe critic of the government, branded the Munich Settlement as "one of the most disastrous things that has occurred in our history. By that capitulation we allowed Herr Hitler to make it perfectly clear to the whole world that the dominant power in Europe today is not Britain but Germany."

He predicted that within a few months Germany would have trade in Central and Eastern Europe in a stranglehold, including the Rumanian oil fields.

He was followed by A. R. Wise, Conservative, who asked if the difference between the Anglo-French proposals and the Munich agreement was worth 1,000,000 British lives.

Greenwood Moves Amendment

Arthur Greenwood in moving the Labor amendment declared the only constructive proposal Mr. Chamberlain had made was feverish intensification of rearmament.

"Such an outlook was bleak and grim," he said.

Referring to Chancellor Hitler's declaration he had no further territorial demands in Europe, Mr. Greenwood asked "whether there was any guarantee that the words of one who has repeatedly broken solemn promises in the past will be kept sacred in the future."

Richard Butler, Foreign Under-Secretary, combatted the argument that the small European states were opposed to the Munich terms. He quoted Prime Minister Spaak of Belgium, President Motta of Switzerland and the British Minister to Rumania in support of his contention that the small nations welcomed the peace terms and were grateful to the Prime Minister "for his indefatigable determination to achieve a peace settlement".

Smaller Nations Appreciative

"Does that sound as if there is no appreciation from the smaller nations?" Mr. Butler asked. "We know what scenes have occurred in the French Chamber and tomorrow we will show the world with no uncertain voice that we shall adopt a similar decision (confidence in the government.) We know what a satisfactory effect has been produted on public opinion of the United States."

Just before the House adjourned until today, Geoffrey Mander, Liberal, asked the government for an explanation of reports the foreign office had brought pressure to bear on the film industry to cut newsreels because they presented "a picture of Czechoslovakia quite different from what the government wished the people of this country to believe."

Mr. Mander demanded he receive an answer today.

Theatres

AT THE BELLE

"Three Loves Has Nancy"

An ultra-modern story of a "quadrangle" supplants the age-old tale of the triangle in a new, bright and breezy comedy.

It is "Three Loves Has Nancy" dedicated to hilarity and moving at so fast a pace that the audience has scarcely time to draw a full breath between laughs. Opening at the Belle Theatre, it brought continuous waves of hilarity from an audience which seemingly found in it an answer to their entertainment prayers.

Janet Gaynor, Robert Montgomery and Franchot Tone offer a brilliant array of talent in the principal roles. Miss Gaynor in the best part she has had since the memorable "Seventh Heaven" and "A Star is Born", gives a persuasive and sympathetic portrayal of a small-town girl who is given an insight into the sophistications of New York by Montgomery and Tone her rivals in love. Montgomery has a made-to-order assignment as the flippant novelist and Tone handles the part of the publisher with polish and suavity.

The carefully chosen supporting cast includes Guy Kibbee as a bewildered and helpless father, Claire Dodd as a designing actress and Reginald Owen as a light-fingered and very funny butler.

Don Ameche "Gateway"

"Gateway", the romantic and thrilling 20th Century-Fox film hit which co-stars Don Ameche and Arleen Whalen is the actionful associate hit. With most of its stirring scenes laid in the world's most dramatic spot, Ellis Island, the picture includes in its featured cast Gregory Ratoff, Binnie Barnes, Gilbert Roland, Raymond Walburn and John Carradine.

Czechoslovakia Film

A timely and unusual special extra attraction is the March of Time story of Czechoslovakia prelude to conquest. The editors of Time bring you the whole dramatic story behind the headlines.

Sunday Midnight Show

"Room Service," sensational Broadway comedy hit which ran nearly a year and a half, comes to the screen of the Belle Theatre Sunday midnight, as an uproarious vehicle for the Marx Brothers.

Adapted to the screen by Morrie Ryskind, scenarist of "Stage Door", the hilarious comedy revolves around the frolicking efforts of a fly-by-night theatrical producer endeavouring to remain with his entire troupe in a New York hotel as a payless tenant while scouting for an "angel" to finance his show. The cast includes Lucille Ball, Ann Miller, Frank Albertson and six members of the original stage cast.

A great surrounding show is also announced for presentation.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Street Scene"

It was merely an accident of birth that made the great city of New York the locale of "Street Scene", current attraction at the McCarthy Theatre. Had the author of this prize drama, Elmer Rice, been born and drawn his characters from the life of any other city, large or small, his characters would have been the same flesh and blood.

For "Street Scene" is the story of the conflict and emotions, the fleeting joys and longer heart-aches of human characters in an environment in every city.

"A cross-section of New York Life" it was called when it was presented as a stage play. In bringing it to the larger panorama of the screen with King Vidor directing and Sylvia Sidney, William Collier, Jr. and Estelle Taylor in the leading roles, Samuel Goldwyn is presenting it as a cross-section of the entire world.

New York may have taller buildings, more money, noises and crowds than other cities, but, says Mr. Goldwyn the producer, the lives of its people are inherently the same.

A boy and girl in love feel the same hope and despair in any other city. Joy and hate, the anxieties of their parents, the tongues of gossip and scandal, all the emotions of humanity are alike.

A Dramatic Panorama

"Street Scene" is a dramatic panorama of any street, in any city in the world. It speaks the language of the heart, and knows no difference in race, color or creed. The Pulitzer prize, bestowed on Elmer Rice's play as the best stage drama of its year, specifically provides that the award shall be for the best drama written by an American author and based on the American scene.

Anyone who sees the picture will recognize the roles of Rose Maurrant and Max Kaplan, portrayed respectively by Sylvia Sidney and William Collier, Jr., as the boy and the girl down the street.

Beulah Bondi as Mrs. Jones is the neighborhood gossip, who has all the scandal of the street at the tip of her tongue, and relishes every morsel of it.

David Landau, as Mr. Maurrant, is an American father—not the ideal American father, of course—but a type who is all too common as a product of poverty. He is a symbol, rather than an individual, a symbol of the tragedy which results from narrowness and intolerance.

A Pitiless Story

Estelle Taylor as Mrs. Maurrant, is another symbol of the darker side of life—a woman driven to despair through lack of affection. A devoted mother, the years of fruitless yearning for tenderness and warmth, drive her to rebellion. And Elmer Rice, the dramatist, has had the courage to raise the question as to whether she was not as much sinned against as sinning, whether she was not a victim of the gossipmongers even while her conduct was providing them with the food for their gossip.

Elmer Rice, the playwright, has told a pitiless story, but has used infinite pity is the telling. And so moved by its truth and poignancy was Samuel Goldwyn that, in bringing it to the screen, he permitted King Vidor to film it in the same bold spirit with which it was presented on the speaking stage.

All the ringing, smashing speeches which Elmer Rice put into the mouth of the stage players have been retained. Where originally all the action took place before the doorway of a single house, Goldwyn has confined the action to a single street. So that "Street Scene", the United Artists' release, in its screen version, remains what its author intended it to be, a stirring indictment of the hypocrisy and false standards of life in any city in the world.

"The Three Stooges"

In addition to "Street Scene" the McCarthy Theatre screen offers the Three Stooges in their latest 20 minute laugh riot, "Three Dumb Clucks" also "Fishing Thrills" a splendid sport subject and another thrilling chapter in the serial shown each week, "The Great Adventures of Wild Bill Hickok." We urge you not to miss the above; it's entertainment you will never forget.

Little Benny's Note Book

This afternoon I went downtown with ma on account of me needing a new pair of shoes already, and all of a sudden I saw something rolling on account of somebody proberly having kicked it, looking like a diamond and I quick ran and picked it up, saying, G, ma, it looks like a diamond, do you suppose it really is?

I suppose it's really not, ma said. The age of miracles is passed and people dont find diamonds in the street any more, she said, and I said Do you mean they used to find them, ma?

Yes, when nighthood was in flour, ma said, and I said, Well then dont you think this is any good of any kind, ma?

O yes, it's proberly a very pretty little piece of glass, if anybody's intristed, ma said.

Proberly meaning nobody was, and I said, Well then I'll throw it away so far it will disappeer in the distance and nobody will ever be fooled by it again.

And I threw a fearse throw, and the next minute ma looked at her hand, saying O my goodness what made me sispect such a thing. O my goodness it's true, the diamond fell out of my diamond ring and you've delibritly gone and thrown it away forever.

No I didn't ma, I just fooled you. I kept it in my hand all the time, I said.

And I showed it to her to prove it, and she quick took it saying, O what a blessed relief. O what a gassly shock. Your father has been warning me to have that setting examined. O if he ever found out, although I make it a point never to ask you to keep anything from your father, she said, and I said, You dont have to ask me, is there any reward, ma?

Wich there was, being a ice cream soda and all the pennies in her bag, being 7

The Extra Cost is Small

If you have party-line telephone service, you may sometimes find the line busy when you wish to telephone. Why not change to an individual line and have telephone service always available when you want it? The difference in cost is small—only 50¢. more a month—less than 2c. per day. The added convenience and satisfaction more than justify the small extra outlay.

Emergencies don't wait for the other party on your line to finish talking—they demand instant action! You can get it when you have a telephone line all your own.

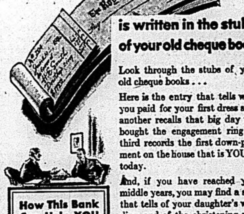
Your Autobiography



The Royal Bank of Canada

is written in the stubs of your old cheque book

Look through the stubs of your old cheque books . . .

Here is the entry that tells what you paid for your first dress suit; another recalls that big day you bought the engagement ring; a third records the first down-payment on the house that is YOURS today.

And, if you have reached your middle years, you may find a stub that tells of your daughter's wedding, and of the christening mug you gave your first grandchild . . .

Those cheques you issued in days long past were no mere slips of paper. They were symbols . . . of food, clothing, and shelter . . . education and growth. Into them were written homely, intimate events of your own personal history.

How This Bank Can Help YOU

Your bank is more than the trusted custodian of your funds. It is an institution where you may discuss in confidence all problems relating to your business and personal finances. Our local managers welcome your visits and the opportunity of serving you.

POLAND'S CHECKERED HISTORY

Poland which has come into the light through the recent events in Europe, has had a very checkered history. A branch of the Slav race, the Polani are first heard of in history between the rivers Oder and Vistula. While Polish historians claim to go back to the fourth century, the general opinion is that the history of the Poles up to the ninth century is adulterated with fables which make it hardly trustworthy. Poland first took rank in Europe as a great political power, when her king Micislas I (992-1025) became a convert to Christianity.

He divided his kingdom among his four sons but one of them Boleslas, called the Breat reunited the portions and extended his kingdom beyond the Oder, the Carpathians and the Dniester, and fought a successful war with Emperor Henry Second of Germany, conquering Cracovia, Moravia, Lusatia and Misnia. A period of anarchy followed, and his son Casimir came to the throne. The latter and his son Boleslas II contributed little to Poland's welfare, the latter murdering with his own hands the Bishop of Cracow with the result that Poland was placed under a papal interdict. Boleslas II committed suicide in 1081. A great monarch arose with Boleslas III who annexed Pomerania, defeated the Prussians, then pagan, and defended Silesia against the German emperors. After a period of internal dissension, Casimir II reunited the severad portions with the exception of Silesia. In 1241 the Mongols swept over Poland, defeating Poland at the battle of Wahlstatt.

From this time Poland began to decline, districts were ceded to the Margraves of Brendenburg and many districts began to be colonized by Germans. Jews, persecuted in Western Europe took refuge in Poland. Wladislas reunited the country and with the Grand Duke of Lithuania fought the Teutonic Knights. His son Casimir III increased the power and prosperity of Poland. On his death his nephew the King of Hungary at the wish of Casimir became ruler on the extinction of the Piast dynasty. The Grand Duke of Lithuania succeeded and the two countries united. Under the two Sigismunds the population of Poland and Lithuania doubled. Their rule ended, the warrior class made the monarchy elective and chose Henry of Valois of France, as ruler. He on becoming king of France was succeeded as king of Poland by Stephen Battory, who defeated the Russians. Then came a period when the Polish armies conquered Swedish and Muscovite armies, and the Turks. This was followed by attacks by Swedes, Russians, and Brandenburgers, Transylvanians and Cossacks who overran Poland. Czariecki, one of the Poland's generals expelled the enemies from Poland, but in the subsequent treaties Poland suffered many losses of territory to Russian, Sweden and Brandenburg. Among the losses was the Ukraine to Russia.

Poland began to depend upon Russia in the time of Augustus of Saxony who became its ruler. After his death, St. Petersburg and Berlin presented to Poland Stanislas as king, this insult leading Poland to war against Russia. Frederick the Great of Prussia gained consent of Austria and Russia to the partition of Poland in 1772. A second partition followed in 1793 and a general Polish rising took place. The Prussians were driven back to their country and the Russians were twice defeated. Austria stepped in and the third partition followed after the sack of Praga and the capture of Warsaw in 1795.

Polish generals fought for Napoleon. Russian Poland after this fall became a monarchy under the emperor. The Poles were given in 1830 a constitution which lasted to 1864. In 1869 Poland became Russian territory and the name was erased from the map of Europe.

After the Great War Poland was established as a republic, about one half the size of the Poland in its mightiest days. Poland had a population of 31,950,000 in 1932 and an area of 149,274 square miles.

"BEAUTIFUL JOE"

Those who have read the story of "Beautiful Joe" and love "just plain dogs" as well as thoroughbreds, will commend the action of the Meaford Women's Institute which plans to mark the burial-place of the dog with a stone. There have been monuments and plaques to great historical events and the bringing to the reader public the story of a dog by Miss Marshall Saunders of Toronto was an event. Without her the story of this animal would never have become famous.

Best of all the story of this dog that lived at Meaford will through the Institute provide a fountain where all dusty weary dogs will be sure of a refreshing drink. Nearby will be the stone which marks "Beautiful Joe's" final rest.

This dog was one of those animals which find a kind owner. This mongrel lived out his span of life. In his puppy days his ears had been clipped and to everyone he was just ordinary. But he found love and care so abundant that his name will live for generations, because his kind mistress, in order to cover up his misfortune and the tragedy of his appearance, named him "Beautiful Joe".

The story has been a great factor in inculcating in the young and in others a kindly spirit towards animals.

If you have gentle words and looks, my friends,
To spare for me—If you have tears to shed
That I have suffered—keep them not, I pray,
Until I hear not, see not, being dead.

If you have flowers to give—fair lily buds,
Pink roses, daisies (meadow stars that be Mine own dear namesakes), let them bloom and make
The air while I still breathe it, sweet for me.

For loving looks, though fraught with tenderness,
And kindly tears, though they fall thick and fast,
And words of praise, alas! can naught avail
To lift the shadows from a life that's past.

And rarest blossoms, what can they suffice
Offered to one who can no longer gaze
Upon their beauty? Flowers in coffins laid
Impart no sweetness to departed days.

SHORTAGE OF TEACHERS IN ALBERTA is reported, the worst in the province's history. In twenty-five or thirty cases schools have been unable to open this fall because salaries offered are too low. This is in Alberta where the germ of poverty was supposed to have been captured and killed by one Aberhart whom the people put in the Seats of the Mighty upon his promise to pay each citizen the sum of twenty-five dollars monthly, in script, which was to be legal tender for groceries. Making the script legal tender by law was too much for the government of Mr. Aberhart and the payment has had to be deferred indefinitely, while explanations have been continued indefinitely, but getting rather threadbare, as Aberhart realizes that his would-be laws are not the laws of the land and his dream of power and ability to scatter sunshine and scads indiscriminately was only a nightmare. Aberhart should concentrate his executive ability upon trying to supply teachers for the youth of his province at suitable salaries—paid in cash, not script.

MINNIE, AGED THIRTY-THREE, is out to beat the record of Dolly, the Wingham horse, which died recently at 41. Minnie belongs to William Clark, cattle buyer and meat merchant of College Hill, Belleville, and Minnie was retired some years ago after a long and full life with a splendid record of service, having drawn Mr. Clark many miles over the roads of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties, besides other counties in which Mr. Clark used to do business. Minnie now lives the life of Reilly, roaming the back pasture all summer, drinking deep drafts from the creek when thirsty, sleeping under the big tree in the heat of the day and dreaming of the long ago, of moonlight nights, of shady lanes, of gay and youthful laughter, of one-armed driving, of whispering and happiness, of love's old sweet song,—for it is said that Minnie assisted materially in more than one successful courtship. May Minnie be blessed with many more years filled with happiness and health and may advancing age deal gently with her.

Genial old clergyman to Patrick: "Now, Pat, what have ye in that jug?"

Pat: "Sure, yer riverence, I have two pints of beer—wan fur me brother an' wan fur meself."

"But, Pat, ye signed the pledge last week to keep from the drink? Now I can't interfere with your brother's pint, but you must throw yours away."

Pat: "Sure, an' I can't be doing that. My pint is at the bottom of the jug."

CAUSE FOR JOY

Sandy was all smiles when he returned home.

"What's the news, mon?" asked his wife, puzzled.

"Wonderful, lassie," said the Scot, "I've just heard that next week they're going to put the local paper up to two pennies."

"Oh, mon, have ye gone crazy?" asked his wife. "Why, there's nothing to rejoice about in that."

"Oh, yes, there is, Jennie," Sandy went on. "Ye ken that when I used to go to the free library to look through it I used to save a penny—now I shall save two pennies."

TRIGGERNOMETRY

At a target practice of a company of Cadets the captain swaggered up to the latest recruit and proceeded to give some instructions about his gun.

"See here, my man, this is a rifle. Here is the barrel, there's the stock. You slip the cartridge in there. Now you put the weapon to your shoulder. These little things on the barrel are the sights. When you have taken accurate aim, pull this little thing, which is the trigger. Now remember what I have told you. Smarten up and look like a soldier. By the way, what is your business? A clerk, I suppose?"

"No sir," was the reply. "I'm a gunsmith."

"My man," she said to a porter, "Where do I get the train for Bundoran?"

"Your train is on platform No. 7," she was informed.;

"Why do you say 'my man' when you know I belong to my wife?"

Bluewater International Bridge Another Link of Canada and U. S. Will Be Dedicated on Saturday

Governor Murphy of Michigan And Premier Hepburn of Ontario Will Officiate At Ceremony—Celebration Staged At Port Huron And Sarnia—100,000 Persons Expected To Attend—Program Details

Port Huron, Michigan, Oct. 6—Goodwill and Peace, long exemplified by the United States and Canada in their relations with each other, will reign supreme Friday and Saturday of this week when Governor Farnk Murphy of Michigan, Prime Minister Mitchell F. Hepburn, of Ontario, and other officials of the two countries gather here and in Point Edward and Sarnia, Ontario, to dedicate and open the new International Blue Water Bridge across Saint Clair River.

This great span, 150 feet above the river and an important link in the most dierct and easily accessible route between the Middle West and Eastern Canada and Northeastern States, was built by Michigan and Ontario, through their highway departments and the state bridge commission of Michigan. The 8,120 foot span cost $3,250,000. Work on it was started June 24, 1937 and was completed this week.

Michigan, aided by federal funds, built the American approach and plaza, while Ontario, with the assistance of Dominion monies constructed the Canadian approach and plaza. The bridge commission of which V. B. Steinbaugh is chairman, built the main span from proceeds of a bond issue and coordinated and suprevised the activities of all agencies involved.

A great international celebration will be staged in Port Huron and Sarnia, Friday and Saturday. At least 100,000 persons are expected to attend. The celebration will open Friday morning when American and Canadian Kiwanis clubs dedicate a peace plaque at the American end of the bridge. At noon, Friday, newspaper, radio and newsreel representatives will attend a luncheon in Hotel Harrington after which they will preview the international span.

Miss Judy Dunford, chosen from beauty queens of 50 Michigan cities as queen of the celebration, will be crowned "Miss Blue Water" by Governor Murphy at a Coronation Ball, social highlight of the celebration, Friday night.

9 a.m. Saturday four-man relay teams of University of Detroit and University of Western Ontario, London, Ontario, will race between Sarnia and Port Huron, carrying goodwill greetings between the two nations.

At 9:30 a.m. members of all religious creeds from both sides of th border will unite in services and peace prayer son the American plaza of the bridge. WJR, Detroit, will broadcast the services.

An international parade will be staged at 10 a.m. in Port Huron and shortly before noon Governor Murphy and other American Officials will drive to Sarnia, where they will meet Permier Hepburn and his party. The officials will return to the center of the span, cutting a ribbon and proceeding to the American Plaza where the dedication rites will be held.

Ross W. Gray, K.C., Sarnia, chief liberal whip in the Canadian parliament; Prentiss M. Brown, United States Senator from Michigan; Mr. Steinbaugh, Louis A. Weil, publisher of the Port Huron Times Herald and American chairman of the celebration; Reeve David Ross, Point Edward, Canadian chairman and others will take part.

The program will be broadcast over the Columbia Broadcasting System and Canadian Broadcasting Corporation networks and WWJ Detroit beween 12.30 and 1 p.m.

Saturday afternoon will be devoted to a huge boat parade and band concert. Fireworks and a Port Huron Sarnia Football game Saturday night will close the program.

The brige will open on regular 24 hour schedules at 6 a.m. Monday, October 10.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton M.D.

Home Treatment for Rheumatic Heart Disease

Even in the early days the treatment of tuberculosis was rest, fresh air, good food. At first fresh air and good food were believed to be the highest factors in the cure. It is now known that rest, giving the lung a chance to heal by rest (rest in bed) is the most important part of the treatment.

When the patient is cured and leaves the institution he has learned how to rest. In addition most institutions give home advice in printed form for the patient to follow. The one point emphasized is rest at certain definite hours when possible. Thus the patient is enabled to live almost as full a life as if he had never had an active tuberculosis.

Another disease, old as history, is now being fought everywhere; this is rheumatism with the many cases of heart disease which it causes.

Drs. H. L. Bacal and R. R. Struthers in the Canadian Medical Association Journal tell of the organization of a rheumatism service at the Children's Memorial Hospital, Montreal. "It is interesting that nearly all the systems of the body may be involved in rheumatism. The respiratory (breathing) system is represented by tonsillitis, pneumonia, and pleurisy; the joint system by arthritis; the nervous system by St. Vitus dance (chorea); the skin by fibrous lumps and redness; the heart and bloodvessels by heart disease, nose bleed and purple spots on skin. There are also eye, stomach, and intestinal symptoms due to rheumatism."

Rheumatic heart disease is the most frequent and severe complication of rheumatism. It is estimated that from 50 to 60 per cent. of the rheumatic patients finally develop some form of heart disease. As with tuberculosis, rest is the big factor in the treatment of these heart cases. After the all round treatment given during the stay in hospital, the following instructions regarding rest at home are given the patient's parents on leaving the rheumatic pavilion.

1—Your child has been up one hour in the morning and one hour in the afternoon. Increase half an hour daily until up all day.

2—Insist on a rest in bed for 2 hours every afternoon.

3—Bed at night never later than eight o'clock.

4—Guard against fatigue at all times.

5—Keep in bed during periods of colds, fever, or other illness, even if slight.

NOW MAYBE WE CAN GET DOWN TO THE SERIOUS THINGS OF LIFE

Bonarlaw

Bonarlaw—A large number of friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. John Bell met in the club rooms of St. Mark's Church on Thursday evening of last week and "showered" this newly married couple with many beautiful and useful gifts.

Canon W. G. Swayne acted as chairman in his usual capable and cheery manner and made the address of presentation to which both Mr. and Mrs. Bell responded, thanking the guests assembled for their tokens of esteem and inviting them to visit them in their new home.

They were given three hearty cheers and all sang "For they are jolly good fellows."

Then all joined in games, community singing etc. A tasty lunch was served by the ladies and splendid social evening was enjoyed by all.

Mr. Bell, a graduate of Toronto University, is Mining Engineer with the Consolidated Mine and Smelting Co., at Cordova, and before her marriage Mrs. Bell was Miss Joyce Chester of Toronto. They will reside in Marmora.

At a recent meeting of the Executive Committee of Centre Hastings County R. E. C., the dates were set for the Township Sunday School Conventions as follows: Oct. 12th, Madoc and Elzevir; Oct. 19th, Stirling, Rawdon and Marmora; Oct. 20th, Huntingdon Tp.; Oct. 21, Tweed and Hungerford R.E.C. On Tuesday of this week the Executive of Stirling Rawdon and Marmora R. E. C. met at Springbrook and arranged the program for their convention which will be at Salem Church afternoon and evening sessions.

Mrs. Florence Bateman returned on Monday of this week from a visit to Los Angeles, California.

Mr. Roy Barr of Mountain Grove has returned home owing to reduction of staff by C. P. Ry.

Mr. Isaac Brown, C. N. Rys. sectionman, suffered a painful accident on Saturday last. As he attempted to climb into a car to assist unloading, his foot slipped and was badly squeezed in the coupling. His doctor has advised staying off the foot for several days.

A large number from this vicintiy attended the funeral of the late Mr. George Frost at Frankford on Sunday last.

TAKE THE LEAD OUT OF YOUR LEGS

Get Oxygen in Your Blood and You'll Get the Pep that Sends You Bounding Up the Stairs.

People who smother to death die because oxygen has been completely cut off from them. Just as surely you are slowly smothering if your blood lacks red corpuscles. Red corpuscles are your oxygen-carriers. They carry the oxygen you breathe in to every part of your system. Without enough oxygen-carrying corpuscles, your kidneys, liver, stomach and bowels slow down. Your skin gets pale, flabby, often pimply. Your nerves may become jittery—you tire quickly—feel depressed.

What you need is Dr. Williams Pink Pills. These tiny pills help you make more and better red corpuscles and thus increase the oxygen-carrying power of your blood. Get Dr. Williams Pink Pills today at your druggist and see for yourself how quickly this time-proven blood-builder will help give you back your pep. Copr. 1938, G.T. Fulford Co., Ltd.

Personals

Mrs. Roy Tracey and Miss Genevieve left yesterday to spend a week with Mrs. Tracey's sister, Mrs. Harry Alford, Roslin.

Miss Margaret McKinnon, 136 Victoria Avenue, returned home Tuesday after spending the summer abroad.

Stewart Aman B.Sc., and family, left on Sunday for Kingston, where Mr. Aman has accepted a position as demonstrating instructor in the Electrical Engineering Department at Queen's University.

Miss Mary Lee entertained at a delightfully arranged miscellaneous shower in honor of Miss Katherine Belair, bride-to-be of this week. The guests prepared an interesting bride's book during the evening. A dainty lunch was served before the party came to a close.

Weddings

GIBSON—REAVIE

At Christ Church yesterday morning at eleven-thirty a pretty wedding took place when Olive Anne, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Reavie of Trenton, became the bride of Mr. Clifford James Gibson, son of Mrs. Gibson and the late Alfred Gibson. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Arthur Smith of Trenton.

Marigolds were used in the decoration of the altar and at the chancel steps. The bride who was given in marriage by her father, wore a hunter's green gown of romaine crepe, with matching hat and accessories and a shoulder bouquet of Johanna Hill roses and lilies-of-the-valley.

Mrs. George Aselstine was matron of honor and wore navy, with shoulder bouquet of Token roses and bouvardia.

Mr. Mac Bonter was groomsman.

Wedding music was played by Mr. George Maybee.

Following the ceremony the wedding party was entertained at a buffet luncheon at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. T. C. McMullen, 14 Parker Street. Mrs. McMullen received her guests wearing a navy blue gown with corsage of Talisman roses. She was assisted by Mrs. Reavie, who wore black sheer with corsage of red roses, and Mrs. Gibson, who was attired in black satin with corsage of white roses.

Later the bride and groom left on a motor trip for Buffalo, the bride travelling in a green ensemble with accessories of the same shade. Upon their return they will reside in this city.

PARKDALE ELECTS

Voting Is Light.

Voting in the fifth provincial by-election of the year was light. With five of the 190 polls still to report, it was estimated only about 30 per cent of Parkdale's 35,000 eligible voters exercised their franchise. Inclement weather and lack of an official Liberal candidate were believed to have affected the vote.

Final figures for the night were: Stewart, Conservative, $8,758; Russell Harvey, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, 3,449; Robert Harding, Independent Liberal, 268; George Thomson, Socialist-Labor, 87.

As in the four previous by-elections, yesterday's voting left the riding's party representation unchanged. Liberals were returned in Brantford, Lambton East and Hamilton Centre. In a by-election to have been held yesterday in Waterloo South to approve Hon. H. O. Hipel's appointment as Labor Minister, the former Speaker of the Legislature was re-elected by acclamation.

Sixty-five Liberals.

The legislative standing now is: Liberals, 65; Conservatives, 23; Independent, 1; United Farmers of Ontario, 1; total, 90.

Mr. Stewart, 49-year-old president of a Toronto undertaking establishment, was elected to a seat W. H. Price, former Conservative Attorney-General, held for twenty-five years. Mr. Price did not run in last October's general election and Mr. McBrien was elected with a plurality of 127 over his closest opponent, Aubrey Bond, Liberal candidate.

Mr. Bond was nominated as official candidate in the by-election but withdrew when Premier Hepburn requested Mr. Stewart be given an acclamation. In a statement after the results were known last night, Mr. Stewart said he was grateful to the premier "for endeavoring to get me an acclamation."

Thanksgiving Dinner

This Planned Menu With Recipes Saves Time

By KATHARINE BAKER

The average mother and housewife is quite busy enough under ordinary circumstances but the work seems to double over a holiday such as Thanksgiving. It's a grand week-end for homecomings and visits, but often leaves the hostess little time for anything but cooking meals. The best way to avoid some of this extra work all at once, is to be prepared beforehand. Have your cupboards well stocked with a variety of easily served foods and your Thanksgiving Dinner all planned. Here is a menu for that meal which is simple, easy to prepare and yet appropriate, whether just the family is present or you are entertaining specially invited guests.

Makes linoleum sparkle.

No rubbing!

Just apply and let dry.

Sensational New "No-Scrub" Soap—

NEW HIGH-TEST OXYDOL

Washes Clothes UP TO 15% WHITER

New High-Test OXYDOL contains a revolutionary new ingredient that makes it give up to TWICE THE SUDS even in hard water . . . safe as ever for washable colors, fabrics and hands

GIVES WHITER WASHES THAN EVER—When the old OXYDOL was first introduced, women believed that the last word in laundry soap had been found. But now comes a remarkable new ingredient that makes new High-Test OXYDOL as much as 15% whiter washing than less modern soaps.

NOW comes a sensational new advance in soap-making to prove again that "the wonders of science never cease." An amazing new ingredient that makes High-Test OXYDOL far whiter washing, in tub or washing machine. Yet an ingredient that keeps it safe as ever for washable colors—safe for washable fabrics and hands!

Tested against old-fashioned bar and package soaps in hard water, new High-Test Oxydol does these remarkable things:—

(1) Washes white clothes up to 15% whiter, as shown by scientific Tintometer records. (2) Gives up to TWICE as much suds—suds that stand up two to three times longer.

Colors Stay Surprisingly Fresh

New High-Test Oxydol is amazingly safe for washable colored things. In laboratory tests, sheer cotton prints washed as many as 175 times in new High-Test Oxydol suds showed no perceptible sign of fading—came surprisingly fresh!

In tub washing—High-Test Oxydol soaks dirt loose in as little as 10 minutes. No scrubbing, no boiling, as with less modern soaps. Washed this way, clothes last 2 to 3 times longer from the standpoint of washday wear and tear compared with old-fashioned methods.

In washing machines—new High-Test Oxydol soaks dirt loose while the washer is running—gives you DOUBLE-ACTION wash. No need to waste time scrubbing "extra dirty" spots to get clothes really clean. Saves work—saves trouble—saves time.

It Goes Farther, Too

Because of greater washing power, each cup of High-Test Oxydol goes up to one-fourth again as far—does up to 25% more work—than the same amount of old-fashioned soaps. So it's extremely economical, too.

You'll find High-Test OXYDOL at all dealers in the familiar orange and blue bull's-eye package: (No change in the box—the difference is in the soap.) Get a package today. Procter & Gamble.

MADE IN CANADA

COLORS STAY SO GAY AND FRESH.

The two sketches above illustrate High-Test OXYDOL'S amazing safety for washable colored things. At the left is a drawing showing how a brand-new cotton print appeared before washing. At the right, sketch of same print after being washed 175 times in new High-Test Oxydol suds—yet showing no perceptible sign of fading! What could be a more striking demonstration of OXYDOL'S safety for washable colors—for fabrics and hands?

CLOTHES LAST MUCH LONGER, TOO.

OXYDOL soaks dirt loose in as little as 10 minutes. Thus ends the washboard scrubbing that shortens the life of clothes.

Picture at left shows a new sheet (highly magnified) scrubbed 84 times with old-style soap. Note fraying in weave, due to hard rubbing and scrubbing . . . On the right, another new sheet washed 84 times the scrubless OXYDOL way. Note difference in "washday wear and tear."

GOOD MANNERS

The Home Wedding

Many brides prefer to be married in their homes, and whether 'home' is a large house or a cottage, or a large or small apartment, the home may be made a charming setting for the wedding. Loving hearts and loving hands can plan a simple and beautiful background that will give the wedding an intimate charm and great dignity.

In a house wedding it is wisest to keep all details simple. The 'home' setting should as much as possible, be retained. But if the home is small, and the number of guests rather large, some of the heavier pieces of furniture may have to be removed. However, several chairs should be left in position so that any older guests may sit, if they wish.

For the ceremony-place choose the most effective and adaptable place in the living-room; before a mantel or between two windows. This may be made a perfect background with flowering plants, short tree branches, trailing vines, greenery and flowers alone. On the ends of this improvised altar it is effective to have two tall details of decoration, tall floor candlesticks containing cathedral candles, simple tall stands with ivy or smilax, or tall vases of white flowers.

Sometimes an aisle is formed by white satin ribbons or flower-decorated posts through which the bridal party walks. And, if the service requires it, there is a prayer bench, covered with one white satin cushion or two small ones.

The music at a home wedding, if there is any, must be perfectly played or sung. The wedding march may be sung or a beautiful phonograph record or organ music may be used.

Because of the limitations of space at a house wedding, the bride usually has fewer attendants than at a church wedding of a similar nature and usually there are no ushers.

The bride's mother stands at the door of the room in which the ceremony is to be performed, receiving the guests as they arrive. The guests stand wherever they find places At the left of the ceremony-place are the relatives and friends of the bride; on the right, the relatives and friends of the groom. As the ceremony is about to begin, the bride's mother takes the place set aside for her at the left of the altar.

At the first notes of the wedding march, or at some other signal, the clergyman enters the room and takes his place at the improvised altar, facing the guests. Then the groom and best man enter, taking their places at the right. Through another door, if this can be arranged, come the bridesmaids (if any), walking in pairs. Next, the maid of honor, walking alone. Last, the bride, on her father's right arm. (If there is only one entrance to the room, the clergyman, followed by the bridegroom and his best man, enters first, and a few moments after, the bridal procession.)

When the bride and her father reach the ceremony-place, the groom steps forward to meet the bride.: the bride stands at his left, and the bride's father steps back a step or two to the bride's left, where he waits until the place in the ceremony in which he gives the bride in marriage. The maid of honor stands at the bride's left, to help with her flowers during the ring part of the ceremony. The best man stands at the right of the groom, to give him the ring at the proper time.

After the benediction is pronounced, the groom kisses the bride, the clergyman offers his "best wishes" to the bride and his "congratulations" to the groom. Then the bride and groom turn to receive the greetings of their relatives and friends. In a house wedding there is no recessional.

The wedding repast is usually served in the dining room (there may or may not be a bride's table in another room), and the menu may be as simple or elaborate as is desired.

NO DRESS is ever so exciting, so delightful, as the first dress that presages the autumn season. This year's numbers aer really nice and wearable. There's plenty of color, and if the dress is black it must have glitter. A useful frock is of black crepe with bishop sleeves that are set onto the shoulders with cartridge pleats. It is fastened down the bodice with rhinestone frogs. A charming model is of purple-plum crepe, the wide girdle trimmed with narrow gold kid band and bows. The same treatment is at the open neckline. Folds and tucks from the shoulders down are unpressed in front below the knee-line.

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage

What Makes a Successful Marriage? "How Poor Are They That Have Not Patience!"

You're going to be married. There is soon to come a frilly, flouncy wedding, lots of gayety and laughter, a few secret tears and a speeding away in Jack's car for a week or two of ecstatic double solitude. Then you're to be happy ever after.

Dear children, there's no reason why you shouldn't be entering a Paradise that will last a lifetime. But do let me whisper gently the reminder that this dream can be fulfilled only at the cost of some thought and effort —which you should be more than willing to give.

For your wish, of course, isn't merely to have each other for good; you want your marriage to be a success; you want friends and onlookers to be able to say:

"Now there's a happy pair Ever notice how smoothly they get on together? Absolutely nothing ever fusses them. Some marriage, that is!"

Well, think for a moment of your own home life, your childhood and girlhood. Perhaps there were a good many of you. Six children, maybe. You lived in the country and didn't have many conveniences and Father worked harder than he should in order to earn none too much money. As for Mother, as you remember it, with meals to get and the house to keep clean and clothes to make and croupy children to attend, she seemed to be on duty pretty much every hour of the day and night.

But it was a happy household, wasn't it, for all that? No quarreling, no discontent, no fits of temper?

If so, it was because somebody at the head of things had good sense and self-control. Patience, in short.

Fathers, bless them, have plenty of chance to exhibit patience, and, doubtless, they don't ever get sufficiently praised for it. But it's mother who's always on the job. So, if a household is serene and happy, year in and year out, it's safe to say that it's mother who has accomplished it. Perhaps that's the reason we've come to think of patience as a woman's virtue.

Don't imagine for a moment that the exercise of patience can be put off until three or four babies have arrived. A tender understanding and harmony between the parents, which is, of course, the foundation of family happiness, should be developed from the very first day of marriage.

Jack may be the most lovable boy in the world and yet have certain trying personal habits. He may whistle out of tune or have no time-sense or he may not conform to the code of the perfect housekeeper, so far as cigarette ashes are concerned. What line are you going to take when you notice these things? Are you going to risk your happiness by scolding him? Or are you going to remember that it's his home as well as yours and that it's your job to be patient?

Don't think you're a martyr, either. Can you yourself qualify for perfection? Are you sure the bathroom is never messed up with too much lipstick and rouge? Or that Jack is really satisfied by those tasteless little dabs of dessert that you sometimes hastily stir up at the last minute before dinner? However much you love each other, each of you has little faults which may be trouble-centres later on if they're allowed to cause irritation at the beginning.

As for the commonplace ills that in some degree beset every family —sickness, loss of jobs, disappointment of one kind and another—is there anything except patience that will steer you past these menaces to your happiness?

If so, I don't know what it is.

Charming Carcassonne Worth Visiting During French Tour

By TEMPLE MANNING

TO MANY travelers, France is merely Paris with perhaps a visit to one of the channel resorts or the big week at Deauville. But those who love France know her in her many woods—the fabulous chateaux of the Loire; the sweet faith and beauty of Brittany and its people; the shrines at Lourdes and Lisieux, and the romantic land between the Garonne at Toulouse and the Mediterranean. It's a romantic and lovely land, and worth the time and attention of any traveler, if only for the opportunity of seeing for oneself the wonder that is Carcassonne.

Charming Prelude

Wandering through the streets of Toulouse is a good prelude to the experience that is Carcassonne. Its interesting, narrow streets are lined with marvelous old mansions, while the ancient churches are equally fascinating. Then comes a ride through fertile country to Carcassonne, in reality two towns, one on each bank of the Aude. The lower town, founded in the eighth century, is on the left bank, while on the other bank, capping a stretch of high, rolling ground, is the "Cite", one of the monumental marvels of Europe and the most extraordinary medieval town in existence. The two rings of ramparts that encircle the city have 48 towers, four lesser towers and five "barbicans, or outer fortifications.

One can stroll for hours along the ramparts of this amazing fortification, and it doesn't take a whole lot of imagination to conjure up knights in armor and fair ladies. The whole thing is so perfectly preserved, so amazing, that whoever has seen it can never forget it. Within the walls are some beautiful old houses and the church of Saint Nazaire.

Narbonne, not so far away, is a contrast to old Carcassonne. It is a famous wine-making centre, bright and bustling. There is a 13th century cathedral and a bishop's palace that is both palace and fortress, as was the case in those days when every man's hand was lifted in combat. Below Narbonne is Perpignan, with its marvelous cathedral, its palaces and houses. From Perpignan down the coast is beautiful, bordering on the Mediterranean, with small fishing ports tucked in below flower-covered hills that slope to the sea. There are some lovely villas dotted along this coast, and some of the most distinguished people of France have their summer homes there. Collioure, Port Vendres, Banyuls, Cerebere, each and every resort or village is the goal of those seeking serenity and beauty.

Not the least of the delights of a tour down from the Garonne to the Mediterranean and the Pyrenees is the opportunity for tasting marvelous food, specialties of the various districts. The foods and the wines, especially the rose wine of Maraussan, the crawfish of Ariege and savory "cassoulet" of Castelnaudary, are unforgettable.

Tempting Recipes Like These Making Fish Dishes Popular

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

FISH IS growing in favor on the national menu. This summer restaurants and markets report that more fish were ordered and bought than in any previous year. This is one fish story that we can believe, and it is a good story, too. So, housewives, while friend husband is out at lake or brook or stream, how about casting your net at the local market and catching your share of fresh, fine fish?

What goes with fish? What do you want? Boiled potatoes, adrip with butter, are a "must" with some, while others swear by tartar or hollandaise sauce. Cole slaw lends a healthful, crunchy note.

Now we go into our recipe role, starting off with our pet formula for cole slaw. With three cups finely shredded cabbage, use three-quarters cup canned grapefruit segments, one-quarter cup minced green peper, one-half cup celery seed dressing. Combine cabbage, green pepper and grapefruit, drained of juice. Mix with dressing, toss and serve. To make the dressing, combine one-half cup sugar, one-quarter cup vinegar, one-eighth teaspoon salt, one-eighth teaspoon dry mustard and one teaspoon paprika. Add cup of oil slowly, beating constantly. Add teaspoon celery seeds or celery salt; blend well.

Fish and fruit platter has been elected for our pet Friday dish. For four servings we use four small pan fish, two tomatoes, cut in halves crosswise, melted butter, salt and four peeled, firm bananas. Arrange fish and tomatoes on broiler rack. Brush tomatoes with melted butter and sprinkle with salt. Place rack about five inches below broiler and broil in very hot oven. Broil for six to eight minutes or until brown. Turn fish and place bananas, brushed with melted butter and sprinkled with salt, on broiler rack. Continue broiling about eight minutes longer or until bananas are tender and brown.

Tuna Fish Dish

Canned tuna fish provides the base for a fish dish that is exotic and altogether delicious. Ingredients call for four tablespoons each butter and flour, three-quarters teaspoon salt, pepper, one-half teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, two cups milk, one cup ground Brazil nuts, two pimentos, one 13-ounce can of tuna fish and six whole Brazil nuts. Melt butter, stir in flour and seasonings and, when well blended, add milk gradually. Add ground nuts. Cut six strips of pimento for garnishing and cut remaining pimento into small pieces; add to white sauce. Add flaked tuna fish; pour mixture into baking dish; arrange pimento strips and whole Brazil nuts on top and bake in moderate oven at 350 F. for 15 minutes.

Hollandaise sauce has many recipes, and this one, as made by the splendid cooks of the Pennsylvania Dutch, is always liked. The recipe calls for one-half cup butter, one tablespoon lemon juice, two egg yolks, one-quarter teapsoon salt, dash pepper and one-third cup boiling water. Divide butter into three parts. Put one piece with lemon juice and egg yolks in top of double boiler. Cook over boiling water, stirring constantly with wire whisk. As the butter melts, add a second piece. As mixture starts to thicken, add third piece. Add the water and cook for minute. Should mixture curdle, add two tablespoons boiling water, drop by drop.

Whatever Queer Turn Drink Gives to a Person's Conversation and Behaviour, It Betrays Him into Revealing His True Nature

(Copyright, 1938 King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Dear Miss Chatfield:

A crowd of us have been having a long-drawn-out discussion as to whether or not a man (or woman for that matter) tells the truth when under he influence of alcohol. One of the men quoted a Latin sentence in support of his contention that alcohol brings out the facts: "In vino veritas." But we aren't agreed yet and we have decided to put the question to you for settlement. Please hurry.

CHICAGO.

ANSWER: That old Latin quotation, much used and much abused, never did mean that a drunken person necessarily tells the truth. What it means is that the truth about the man comes out when he's in his cups. When alcohol removes his inhibitions and puts his censors to sleep the real person that he is pops out. For instance, he may be cagey enough when sober to conceal his ill humor and his irritability; but give him too much to drink and he's a sore-headed bear. His real nature is asserting itself when his brain and his will are relaxed.

Some people do, no doubt, become talkative under alcohol and spill the beans, truth and all, which they wouldn't have done, sober. On the other hand, others become more and more secretive as they imbibe and won't talk as much as they do ordinarily. Some are quarrelsome and some are conciliatory. Some laugh and others cry. Some tell more than they know and others less. Whatever queer turn drink gives to a person's conversation and behaviour, it betrays him into revealing himself. In wine there is truth all right: truth about the person that has the overdose.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Dear Miss Chatfield:

Won't you please give us a short definition of love. We can't find one.

A BUNCH OF BOYS AND GIRLS.

ANSWER: There's a classic description of love which suits the oldsters to a T. It describes love as a being long-suffering, kind, trustful, truthful and forgiving. You don't want that one. There's a poet's description of love which won't suit you any better, if you know whatimean. But it's good.

"Love is of man's life a thing apart
'Tis woman's whole existence."

How will this do? Love is the best we have and the best we are going out to another.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Cold Meat Platter
Creamed Potatoes and Eggs
Green Beans, Buttered
Sliced Tomatoes and Cucumbers
Fruit Pudding Tea

FRUIT PUDDING—Four cups blueberries or huckleberries, sliced peaches, plums or sliced apples, two cups sugar or more; one-half cup water, one tablespoon butter, shortcake dough. Put fruit, sugar, water and butter in pudding pan about 12 inches square and cook slowly 10 minutes. Spread shortcake made from prepared flour (using recipe on package) over the fruit and bake in 400-degree oven until browned, about half a hour. Serve warm with cream, plain or whipped. This recipe will serve 12.

Creamed Potatoes and Eggs—Cook eight medium-sized potatoes in their skins, peel when cold and dice. Parboil four eggs, cool, shell and cut in dice. Make cream sauce of two tablespoons butter, melted; one tablespoon flour, mix smooth; then gradually add one pint milk, stirring and cooking until smooth and slightly thickened. Season to taste with salt and pepper, then add diced potatoes and eggs.

TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH

Written by DEAN HALLIDAY
For Central Press Canadian

MANY OF the herbs such as sage, thyme, sweet maorjam and parsley should be gathered now for winter use. Collect the branches before the flowers open on a dry sunny morning. Leaves which are beginning to wither, or show signs of mildew or leafspot should be discarded.

Gather the branches into a bunch, then dip the foliage quickly into boiling water as shown in the Garden-Graph. Shake the branches dry and hang them in the sun for half an hour. Next strip the leaves from the stems and spread them on trays of wire mesh indoors. Cover the trays with cheesecloth to keep off dust.

Stir the leaves each morning so the air can dry each section. After three or four days, or when the leaves are thoroughly dry, pack them into mason jars or any other air-tight container.

"Bringing Back" Beauty Of Hands and Arms

By JULIET SHELBY

(Copyright, 1938, Central Press Canadian)

It was fun to play in the sand, even if we did crack a nail or two in our efforts to catch the gritty ball. The pretty white hands were not improved by the dust and robust summer sports. There is no denying the fact that many of us look a "mess" at the end of the summer—but we had a grand time ....so who cares?

The truth is we do care, but there is always the comfort of knowing what to do and how to remove all the effects of the sun and wind and restore the skin to its natural loveliness. You must start your reconditioning at once, though. New Fall fashions and the little season festivities are here and they demand a new complexion as well as smooth, well-groomed hands.

Your hands and arms will be the issue for now, and those who find it convenient will go to a good salon for the work. There they will be ready with some nice treatments that will soon bring back the natural color and softness, but for the girls who want to do the work at home, here is a good method:

First, run a rather warm tub and you may add your bubble bath, bath oils or whatever your favorite may be, but have a cake of soap and brush, and while you sit there make a thick creamy lather in the most extravagant way. Scrub the arms and hands, especially the elbows. This friction will soften the dry tanned skin and even remove a great deal of the chiffon-like surface so you will notice a marked difference in the color after a few days. This scrubbing is followed by thorough rinsing, then a good massage with your tissue cream. arms with a paste or pack which may bemade of a tablespoonful of lemon juice and a tablespoonful of milk of magnesia. Double the amounts if necessary and leave on for ten minutes, then remove with clear water, followed with the massage as in the first routine.

Do this three times a week and at night leave on some of the cream with your night gloves. Cotton gloves are the best, as they are porous and will not be annoying. They should be large too.

Massage.

When you massage your hands, begin with the finger and use a rotating movement toward the hand. The thumb of the other hand will do the massaging.

How Human Body Fights Off Disease

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

YESTERDAY WE undertook a philosophic view of the human body's place in the universe. We pointed out the intricacy of its mechanism and the many dangers to which it is exposed.

Today I want to emphasize the ability the body has to adapt itself to dangers from without and within. Much as one might deprecate the way the body is put together in some ways—Helmholtz, the greatest scientist of all time, said that if an optical maker had sent him the human eye, he would have returned it as the most imperfect instrument he ever saw—we must admire this alert and uncanny ability on the part of the body to make the best of things.

The development of immunity to infectious diseases is probably the best example. With the enormous number of bacteria in the world and their rapid power of reproduction, and their tendency to invade the human body, they would destroy every vestige of human life on the planet if it were not for the natural defenses the body has against them. It can throw up a wall defensive against their onslaught in the form of a ring of white blood corpuscles, it can develop chemicals in the blood which will dissolve the bacteria completely, or render their activity innocuous. Certainly this function of the body is the one that preserves health the most.

Only Beginning

But this is only the beginning of the body's defense mechanisms. When you injure your finger or have rheumatism in your finger, you have pain. You may regard the pain as a disadvantage, as a symptom, even as the disease itself. But, as a matter of fact, it is a defensive mechanism which prevents your moving your finger, makes you protect it, so that it can have rest and heal.

Every once in a while a patient comes in great perturbation to the doctor and says his heart is enlarged. It may be perfectly true, but that is an adaptive reaction. The heart had more work to do for some reason and, like all muscles, when it has more work to do, it enlarges.

High blood pressure is another adaptive measure. People speak of high blood pressure as if it were a disease and as if it should be reduced. What happens is that the arteries and blood vessels have gotten stiff with age. It is easier to keep fluid circulating in a closed set of tubes if the tubes are elastic. The fluid can keep circulating in them at lower pressure. When they get stiff, you have to have a higher pressure to maintain the circulation at all. If you did not have high blood pressure, the organism would die.

These are only a few examples of the wonderful power of the body to adapt. We are inclined to think of fever and pain and enlarged heart and high blood pressure as enemies. They are really friends.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

J. S.: "I read an article which stated that if one cannot afford to have their teeth cleaned professionally, one should make a powder of pumice and bicarbonate of soda and clean the teeth with this mixture. The correct measurements were not given."

Answer: A good dentifrice for cleaning teeth is as follows: Powdered chalk, two ounces; powdered orris root, two ounces; pumice stone, one ounce; soda bicarbonate can be added if desired, in any quantity that is agreeable.

N.C.: "Kindly discuss the common occurrence of 'Water on the knee or elbow,' regarding its seriousness, cause and origin of the fluid. Is there any relation between the fluid and the circulation in the region of the injury?"

Anwer: Water on the knee or elbow is due to the inflammation of a bursa in that region. A bursa is a sac in the region of a joint which acts as a bumper to facilitate movements. The "water" is usually caused by an injury. It is not considered serious. The "water" come from the blood, but does not interfere with the circulation in that part.

Some Pond if it Holds Whale!

Goodnight Stories

By MAX TRELL

"YES, YOU may come along with us," Hanid said to the grasshopper.

"Only you can't do any hopping. Just remember that. If you hop you'll tip over the boat," Knarf warned it.

"I won't hop. I promise," the grasshopper said. "I don't want the boat to tip over. I want to go sailing with you around the world." So it sat down very quietly in the middle of the boat which, you will remember, was made of a little matchbox.

"In a little while," Knarf said as they shot swiftly between the two high banks, "we'll reach the ocean. Then we'll sail right across it."

At that moment the rain-river suddenly widened out and flowed into a huge spread of water. The matchbox boat sailed right out into it.

"It's the ocean!" cried Hanid and Knarf.

It's Wonderful

"Oh, how wonderful it is! How wonderful and terrible to see so much water!" the grasshopper said in a voice trembling with excitement.

Now you must know that it was not the ocean at all, but only the pond. But to Hanid and Knarf, who had made themselves as small as match sticks, and to the grasshopper, who was not much bigger than they, the pond seemed just as large as the ocean.

Then suddenly Knarf and Hanid shouted: "Look! Look! A whale!"

Sure enough, there it was, swimming right before them. It was green and it had a huge mouth and great, bulging eyes.

All at once Hanid cried: "It's turning! It's coming toward us! Jump!"

And before anyone could say another word the grasshopper jumped with Knarf and Hanid sitting on its back. They landed safely on the shore. When they turned around to look at the whale, they saw that it had jumped, too. For it wasn't a whale at all, but only a little green frog. They were sorry they had left the boat. But it was too late to get back in it now. And that was the end of the matchbox cruise in the river of rain that ran down the road to the pond.

Exit Dodo

By GERTIE KANGAS

Mrs. Herman Percival was the most popular woman in Ashville. She said so herself. She had the biggest house and the most expensive as well as the most exclusive furniture. Her flower garden was the rarest of its kind. And no other woman in town had two cars. Those who found themselves guests at her parties thought they had received the highest honor Ashville could give.

And of what did Mrs. Percival's household consist? There was James, the chauffeur, who had served Mrs. Van Dyke of New York city before entering the employ of the honorable Percivals. Then there was Marie, the maid, who had dressed Mme. Richaud's hair when she had come to visit America. And Liza, the cook, had served many a titled guest at "Nizviu," the popular summer resort.

Ah, but one important member of the great Percivals must not be neglected. That member was fluffy little Dodo, Mrs. Percival's poodle dog and constant companion. Dressed always in gaily colored collar bands, Dodo would look out at the world in the same manner that Mrs. Percival was wont to use on her inferiors. In short, Dodo's little turned-up nose was ample advertisement of his egoistic self.

Then, out of courtesy, one must not forget to mention Mr. Herman Percival, husband to Mrs. Percival. His wife's money had placed him in the estimable position of director of the Ashville National bank. He never said much when in public, but that didn't matter, as his wife was always there to continue or add whatever he had forgotten to say. At home, Mr. Percival came next to Dodo in importance.

Several of the leading women of the town were gathered at Mrs. Percival's for bridge, one Wednesday afternoon. The day being rather warm, they were settled comfortably on the lawn. Dodo, in all her dainty white fluffiness, was watching beside her mistress.

Suddenly Dodo's attention was attracted by a horse and buggy that was parked on the other side of the street. Far be it from dainty Dodo to be interested in an ordinary buggy. Oh, no, he was interested in the desperate-looking bull dog that was sitting so importantly on the front seat.

Dodo barked and Mrs. Percival patted him on the head soothingly. "There, there, Dodo. Don't bark, please. It interrupts the game so, dear."

Dodo was silenced for a few minutes and then he turned to the bulldog. What business had that ugly looking brute to hold his head so high and act as though he alone ruled the world? Very cautiously Dodo made his way from the side of his mistress toward the gate. Pausing there, he looked askance at the intruder across the street.

Now Fido was no brute, far from it. But this impertinent little thing near the gate—what did he think he was, anyway? He'd teach the wretch a lesson.

Fido jumped from the seat and rushed at Dodo. The latter all excited, dashed for his mistress, who stood up and confronted the bulldog haughtily.

"Go way, you dirty thing! Keep away from my Dodo."

Fido knew a lady when he saw one and would have bounded away at the command had he not seen the contemptuous smile lurking in Dodo's eyes. That was too much for any dog. Fido jumped at Dodo, in the arms of Mrs. Percival, and she was forced to let go. Dodo scampered across the lawn with Fido close at his heels.

Mrs. Percival called frantically for Dodo but to no avail. The dog had disappeared.

Herman Percival advertised high and low for Dodo offering rewards that sounded unreasonable for a mere dog. But all efforts were futile, and Mrs. Percival mourned the disappearance as a mother mourns a lost son.

Several weeks later another bridge party was being held on the Percival grounds. The same group of players were there but another white dog was sitting beside Mrs. Percival.

"There, Fluffy," she said tenderly and cooingly to the dog. "Sit still and watch Mumsie".

Fluffy looked meekly at her mistress and wagged her curly little tail in apparent understanding.

At the outer gate a bulldog was watching with interest. Beside him stood a small dog, once white and dainty, but now a dirty gray and unkempt. Dodo peered through the gate at the dog who had taken his place. How silly she looked with that pink ribbon. What a prude, and what a life she was leading!

Fido barked and Dodo answered immediately. The two dogs continued down the street, wagging their tails in perfect harmony and content.

Madoc Fair Breaks Record Of Attendance and Exhibits Despite Inclement Weather

Over 6,000 Entered Grounds To View 4,000 Exhibits

FINE HORSE RACING

Contests of All Kinds Provided Entertainment For Visitors

Overclouded threatening skies, that sent down intermittent rain drops accompanied by a cold, raw wind, that blew out of the northwest, failed to dampen the enthusiasm of six thousand residents of Hastings and surrounding counties yesterday as they milled and jostled in Madoc's pretty fairgrounds, where one of the most successful fairs in years drew to a culmination.

With an entry list of 3,930, approximately five hundred entries more than its best previous year, the fair broke, records in this respect as well as those of attendance figures. A jubilant directorate justifiably proud of their exhibition pointed with pride to the many excellent attractions provided. Appreciation of the large gathering was exemplified in the interest shown in all exhibits, especially those of the livestock and dairy and agricultural displays.

No Dull Moments

There was not a dull moment in spite of the inclemency of the weather. Barns, poultry sheds and exhibition buildings were crowded to the limit as the admiring populace expressed their admiration in no uncertain terms. The Midway rang with the cries of excited children and grownups. Tented shows and merry-go-rounds did a land-office business. Lovers of horse-racing had their appetites for this sport satiated as one of the best meets in years was paraded for their pleasure.

There was fun for everybody. Red-coated members of the Belleville Kilties Band dispensed the gay rhythms of Scotland for an appreciative audience that thronged around the bandstand. Two dainty misses from Oshawa, the Misses Vickers, charming tap-dancers and singers, drew well merited applause with an outstanding performance. Husky farmer lads vied with each other for supremacy with the crosscut saw. Cheers were given as steel teeth bit into a twelve inch hardwood log. Step-dancers to the tune of reel and clog, danced their way in a spirited competition.

The tunes of long ago rang out as old-time fiddlers, despite rain that affected strings to some extent, played the dances that their forebears loved. Fair hammer-wielders in a stirring exhibition won the acclaim of the large gathering as they pounded nails into wood.

A clown band, grotesque in painted make-up, kept the children and grownups in a state of merriment with their funny antics. Dancers and singers provided other entertainment in the seclusion of tents on the Midway. There were booths galore. Photographers took your picture while you waited. Baseball throws with chocolates as prizes provided an attraction. It was a typically fair-minded crowd that enjoyed every minute of the afternoon and climaxed a splendid exhibition by cramming the Masonic Hall at night where an outstanding vaudeville show was staged, thence to the Armouries where the latest dance rhythms attracted another large crowd.

Perhaps one of the outstanding attractions of the Fair, one that attracted a large gathering of rural residents was the "drawing" contest in which seven teams of splendid horses took part. So evenly were these fine specimens of Clydesdale, Percheron and other heavy-draft breeds, that the contest was not completed until darkness had fallen. Large boulders were piled on "stoneboats" men stood alongside to add extra weight. And as the horses strained and pulled their heavy loads, excited cheers rang out as the gallant animals moved the weight.

Live Stock Display

Exemplification of the fine breeds of horses, sheep, cattle and swine, raised by farmers and breeders of the district was noted in the livestock exhibits. Proud Holsteins, demure Jerseys, the haughty Ayrshire, blue-blooded bovine aristocrats all, not to mention the Shorthorn, Hereford and other beef breeds, contributed to a display that eclipsed all previous fairs from an entry standpoint, and calibre of the exhibits.

Clydesdale and Percheron, Hackney and pony in an equine exhibit that stood out with its variety and quality, was another contributing factor to the success of the fair. Prancing carriage horses, heavy-draft teams, their ponderous grace enhanced by the brilliancy of their trappings, paraded on the track before the admiring gaze of thousands. Sheep and swine, in many well-known breeds, rounded out a live stock display that lacked for nothing.

Poultry

Upwards of eight hundred and sixty members of the chicken, duck and turkey families, an entry list that exceeded by far any of previous years, made a colorful showing in the poultry building. Haughty gobblers, feathers preened in all their turkey glory, added a dignified touch to a scene that delighted the hearts of poultry lovers. Proud roosters, combs erect, stately hens, in all breeds and colors; geese, whose grey and white added a bright touch to the gay plumage of other birds, rounded out an exhibit that was in keeping with the excellence of other displays.

Dairy Display

The agricultural building was a riot of harvest color with its many specimens of farm, garden and dairy. Perhaps never before has the ability of cheesemakers of this district, reputed to be among the best in Canada, been brought out, as it was in the fine exhibit of this product of dairy farming. Thirty nine outstanding specimens of the cheesemakers' art were on display and drew many admiring comments with their quality and other requisites. Huge pumpkins, some of them weighing one hundred and fifty pounds, squash that tipped the scales at well over the one hundred pound mark, apples of all varieties, fruits of every description, colorful symbols of a bountiful harvest made this part of the fair an outstanding one.

Ladies Work

Indictative of the ability of the ladies of the district with needle, brush and cooking utensils, was the fine exhibit in another building. Here specimens of the culinary art, from the humble bun to the proud angel-cake proved an eye-pleasing sight. Ladies work, quilts, embroidery towels, designs of all descriptions; children's work, woodwork in which many useful articles were shown, a floral display of cut flowers and blooming plants that was colorful to the extreme, made this exhibit an extremely interesting one.

Horse-Racing

Fifteen spirited standard-bred horses gave one of the best exhibitions of speed seen in the historic Hastings County village fair in years, veteran horsemen stated. Every race was closely contested with the 2.25 class being productive of the best racing of the meet with extra heats being necessary before a winner could be decided. Six Heats were run off in this class with "May Worthy" a fine mare owned by McGillicen of Carleton Place, showing splendid form to annex the three final heats after three horses has been eliminated.

In the 2.15 class, "Molly Hal," owned by G. Caldwell of Williamsburg, showed a clean pair of heels to her field winning her event in three straight heats. "Ginger Direct" duplicated this feat in the 2.20 class, the A. Jones horse of Hastings, romping home a winner over "Infringer Grattan", who placed second.

The results:

2.15 Class

Molly Hal, G. Caldwell, Williamsburg, Ont.	1.1.1.

Mr. W. H. Brooks was in charge of the bandstand performance and contributed in no small way to the success of this part of the entertainment despite the fact that he was handicapped by inclement weather.

BRITAIN SEEKS CZECHS' RELEASE

Czechs Have Been Held In Germany As 'Hostages'

LONDON, Oct. 5—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons today Great Britain was seeking the release of "certain Czech officials in frontier districts" and Czech residents in Germany who had been imprisoned in Germany as "hostages".

Mr. Chamberlain said the government had received reports such officials and residents were held during the occupation of ceded territory. He said the government was unable to estimate the number involved but had instructed the British representative on the International commission supervising the cession "to press for the release of any hostages as soon as possible."

Improper Walking Ruins Lovely Lines of Figure

By HELEN FOLLETT

WALK IN beauty like the night. Observe the woman with the heavy tread; she is the boss of the family, and if she doesn't boss the neighbors, it is because they won't stand for it. See the pretty girl with the light step and erect figure; she has spirit, and happiness shines up her soul windows. Note the lady who trot-trots with short, mincing steps, swinging her hips; she's too much of a sissy. See the one who moves with a long, swinging stride; there you have a healthy, forward-thinking, forward-going girl who loves outdoor life and finds it zestful.

Improper walking technique thickens the ankles, ruins the lovely lines of a woman's back, impoverishes the musculature of legs and torso. To be a pretty walker, one must wear comfortable shoes, not clump along on spiked heels. The body must have free, graceful movement. That is possible only when it is held correctly, with chest lifted, "tummy" packed in flat and tight, backbone posed with a little nip in at the waistline.

When applying eye shadows, consider the color of your soul lamps, the color of your hair, and your frock. For instance:

A brown-eyed girl in a jade green dress will appear heavenly with bronze lid paint.

The blonde in a black robe enhances her golden loveliness by using shadows of green blue.

Metallic shadows are a bit theatrical, should be used only by the girl with raven black hair, gardenia complexion, expressive eyes.

Flat-chested darlings who long for normal curves may have their wish come true if they will do land swimming.

Sit in a straight back chair, feet placed solidly on the floor. Lift the body at the waistline by yanking up the backbone. Stretch the neck full length. Then do the breast stroke.

Place the hands in the middle of the chest, fingers pointing forward, elbows held high. Take a deep breath, sending the fingers forward slowly with muscular effort. Swing the hands out at the sides level with the shoulders, come back to starting point. Exhale through the lips and repeat.

Better get after you elbows and knees, lady. If you baked yourself on the beach during the silly season the chances are the body hinges need beautifying.

Scour well with soap suds and a heavy brush. Rub the surface of the skin with a cut lemon to give them whiteness, and follow with a vigorous massage with coconut oil. Palm elbows and knees, working into the flesh all the oil you can dispose of.

Sprinkle the creamed surface with borated talcum, say your prayers and go to bed.

School Bus

EXCEPT FOR crippled children and those otherwise handicapped, the public school bus is not a problem in large cities. But it is for children of the farm, village and small town.

The school bus has its hazards. Regulations for safety are not high in all states. Thousands of children must ride in dangerous, uncomfortable busses and with incompetent drivers, not carefully selected or supervised.

New Jersey has a system of school busses to be commended. The busses and bus drivers are of high order. You should see the array of handsome busses lined up outside a consolidated elementary school in that state, or at one of the high schools to which children are hauled from surrounding farms, villages, towns.

The bus driver in New Jersey must measure up to high standards which are uniform for the state. He is carefully selected and supervised by the county superintendent, who in turn has been appointed by the state commissioner of education. This superintendent has a personal, friendly relationship to the bus drivers, as to the teachers, and he wins the co-operation of these drivers. When a child violates the rules for his proper conduct in the bus, he is not allowed to ride in it the next day, the bus driver making the decision.

Some High School Problems

Thanks to the school bus, rural children may attend better high schools than if these schools were nearer home, and therefore much smaller. They can have laboratories, a library, and many electives and activities otherwise denied.

Yet at best the high school youth who travels by bus lacks many opportunities. The bus will not wait for him to engage in athletic events after school, or in various other after-school activities. He is not on equal footing with the local students in school recreations and social events. It often happens that local and bus children do not integrate well into a desirable school atmosphere. Nor is it easy for the teacher and principal to effect close contact with the homes of these remoter children. Such are problems which won't easily be solved.

Most school busses do not carry children within a mile of the school. However, in Upper Darby, Pa., a city of 75,000, all children, even within a block of the school, may ride. Are we all coming to this? Then what will happen to the moral fiber of our children?

Outlook for Business Appears Excellent

Industrial Commissioner States Ending of War Scare Will Aid Business

LOCAL PLANTS BUSY

Returning confidence among business men of the city and the rest of the country as the result of the recent peace moves in Europe and the ending of last week's war scare, will be reflected in better business conditions in Belleville this coming winter, in the opinion of Mr. J. O. Herity, local industrial commissioner.

Today a more confident note is apparent among local manufacturers and heads of other business in the city, it was pointed out. While no cessation of work was noted during the height of European alarms in Belleville belief that some of the confidence would be lost among customers and that orders might be affected through hesitancy was general, it was stated. With the recovery of conditions in Europe, factories in Belleville are expected to plan for even greater business within the near future.

"Belleville, fortunately, has been little affected, and at present holds up well among other smaller manufacturing centres. In at least one local plant employees have been given extra shifts to complete orders on hand. There seems to be a prevailing general optimism, and heads of businesses feel more confident. The outlook for work should be considerably better this coming winter," stated the industrial commissioner.

Progress of business in Belleville was cited through the example of one plant, the Mead Johnson Company of Canada, Ltd., which plant has found it necessary to create a large addition to care for the ever increasing orders. This week workmen are engaged in the latter stages of construction of the new plant addition which is estimated at $30,000 in cost. The addition will make the plant one of the most thoroughly modern and progressive in Canada.

DEMANDS RAISED

plebiscites be held in areas in which Germans represent only two-tenths to 6½ per cent of the population.

Claim Old Statistics Used.

"To support their thesis," the communique continued, "the Germans are using statistics established before the Great War by the Austro-Hungarian Empire". (The Commission agreed to accept population figures of Oct. 28, 1918—date of Czechoslovak foundation—but many observers said this actually means reverting to the census of 1910.)

The Czechs contend these figures did not take into account the real language of the people but only the language which Austrian law made official. Since officials of the Sudeten regions were German-speaking appointees the statistics show many regions having purely Czech populations to be German.

The communique said that when the system of statistics was changed Oct. 18, 1918, and each district was left to choose its own official language many elected to make Czech the official tongue.

"The demands of the German experts tend to compromise the Munich accord by refusing the Czech people the same rights of free disposition which the Germans demand in favor of the Sudeten Germans," the communique said.

Czechs To Demobilize.

Prague, Oct. 6 (AP)—Immediate demobilization of two army classes was announced today by the government of dismembered Czechoslovakia.

It also ordered progressive return to civilian life of the remainder of the men called to the colors to defend the state before it was decided to submit to the German terms under French and British pressure.

On internal problem, however, apparently was approaching a solution. A Slovak congress was said to have decided to organize an autonomous, federated state within the republic to attain equal status with Czechs.

General Jan Syrovy, Czechoslovakia's soldier-premier, yesterday indicated the government's willingness to arrange equal rank for its remaining elements.

How To Overcome Piles And Rectal Soreness

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is a physician's prescription and is highly recommended. It is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

EDEN AND COOPER ARE CRITICIZED BY HITLER

Berlin, Oct. 6 (CP-Havas)—Chancellor Hitler yesterday criticized former Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Alfred Duff Cooper, who resigned last Saturday as First Lord of the Admiralty in protest against the Munich accords, for their "pro-Czech bias" on the Sudeten question.

"If in England, a Duff Cooper or an Anthony Eden tell me that an injustice has been done to these Czechs, let them visit the Sudeten countries," he said. "I saw terrible misery there."

Large Puffballs

With weather conditions perfect for the growth of record crops, natural growths are also coming in for their share of attention.

Exceeding, it is said, the dimensions of any grown in this district in years, are the giant "puffballs" that are putting in an appearance in various parts of the district. Prominent among the large species discovered, is that found by Inspector of Public Schools H. J. Clarke, near his cottage at Oak Lake, yesterday, that measured fifty-four inches in circumference.

The weight of fungus could not be ascertained owing to the lack of scales, the inspector said.

Yet another record is believed to have been established for wild mushroom growth, by Inspector Clarke who discovered a fine specimen that measured ten and one-half inches in diameter, thirty-three inches in circumference and weighed one pound, eleven ounces.

An eleven pound, puffball was displayed on the city market today by a lady vendor. The measurements could not be ascertained as part of the "ball" had been disposed to customers.

The Stars Say—

For Friday, October 7

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

A RATHER lively, eventful and probably dramatic day is forecast from a long chair of interesting and intriguing planetary aspects. There are treacherous conditions to manoeuvre into sound channels and away from very dangerous disturbances. Strategy and shrewdness may be brought to bear on kindred methods of attack, a case of "dog eat dog" as it were. Personally there are splendid compensations, with much social or sentimental activity.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves confronted by a year of such subtle and perplexing conditions that their own intrigue, connivance and craftiness may be the only solution to menacing situations, plots or schemes. Drastic events are probable, with travel, change and disturbance. Shun recklessness and impetuousity, and seek compensations in social, domestic or romantic affiliations.

A child born on this day may have a rather dramatic way of doing things, being inclined to positive, drastic and audacious methods. It should have much determination, courage andw enthusiasm, seeking an adventurous career. Yet, it should be sociable, friendly, gentle and have much personal appeal.

Lady for Shanghai

—By—

Kaye Fox

"I could stay later than midnight, Dr. Stanhope," she offered.

"There's no need. It is important that she should not be left alone to-night, but she is not likely to want much attention from me tomorrow — I can sleep during the day. You are a great deal busier than I am, Miss Jordan, and it is too bad that you should have to lose even an hour's sleep, just because a silly girl probably went ashore in a hat which didn't protect the back of the neck.

She Must Act—Quickly

It was very quiet in the hospital after John Stanhope had settled the patient as comfortably as possible and gone away. Christine, who had done a heavy day's work, was so tired that it would have been very easy to drop off to sleep in the big armchair, even though she was so worried about her sister. She had been alone for half an hour, and it seemed very much longer, when Grant came quietly into the room with a small tray in his hands.

"I've brought you some coffee and sandwiches," he said. "I knew you wouldn't appreciate a whisky, so I cadged some coffee from the deck steward."

"That was very kind of you, Grant," she said gratefully.

"Don't you think that you could manage to call me Arthur, when we're alone?" he asked her, setting down the tray on the table. "I know it would cause a lot of talk if Cator or Edwards heard you doing it, but—we're neither of us exactly middle-aged, Christine, and we're very good friends aren't we?"

"Very good friends, Arthur," she said, with a smile, for it was true enough that she thought of Arthur Grant as a real friend, almost her only one on board.

"If we'd met on shore, we'd probably have lapsed into Christian names quite naturally after a couple of days," he said. "It's funny, isn't it, that we should have to make a mystery of a little thing like that? This is a queer, upside-down sort of a life, Christine, and that's a fact, with the staff having to be formal and conventional—"

"And the passengers just the other way."

"Talking of passengers," he said, leaning up against the doorpost, as if he meant to stay for some minutes, "Royde's got a party on in the cabin de luxe—only it's a very select party, just the Lind girl and no one else. She thinks, poor little beggar, that Mrs. Smythe and Mrs. Collins and a few others are coming along, but if they do come in for a bit, I'll bet they're going to do the disappearing trick soon afterwards."

"Surely she'll go when they do?" Christine said, hiding her anxiety, for even Grant must not guess how deeply interested she was in Fay.

"She won't realize just what is happening. Royde's got that gramophone or his on, and he's keeping the kid well supplied with cocktails. She's curled up in the big chair, half asleep really, listening to the music—if Mrs. Smythe and Mrs. Collinh come in for a quarter of an hour or so, the kid will be pretty well doped by the time they go. They're paying bridge in the smoke-room at present, but I've got orders to take a lot of drinks to the cabin de luxe before I go off watch."

"They're coming in—just in case she does begin to get uneasy and think she'd better go," Christine said slowly.

"That's the great idea — the smoke-room waiter heard Royde fixing it with Mrs. Smythe, at least, he heard Royde ask Mrs. Smythe to bring Mrs. Collins along for a drink when they'd finished bridge, and Mrs. Smythe laughed and said she supposed it was to be a quick one. I guessed the rest when I took some cocktails along to the cabin de luxe and saw the Lind girl there."

Christine knew that she'd got to act, and to act quickly, whatever the risk might be. Fay had been ashore for hours with Royde that day, and she must have come on board thrilled by her new experiences, already under the spell of the East which she had felt for the first time. And now, lulled by music, and by Royde's subtle flattery, she was alone with him.

She couldn't leave Arthur Grant in charge of her patient, for he was on watch and had already stayed too long talking to her. In her desperation, she could only think of asking one of her fellow stewardesses to come for a few minutes — surely it would seem natural enough that she should want to leave the hospital for a short time, since she had left her ordinary duties without warning.

"Arthur," she said casually, "when you go down, will you ask Mrs. Parr whether she can relieve me? I've forgotten—Mrs. Carlyle's hot milk, and one or two other things which I always do at night."

CHAPTER V

"You Want to Meet Some Man"

"Grant gave me your message," Mrs. Parr said, coming into the hospital ten minutes later. "Miss Crane and I were in bed, but I dressed and came straight up—to give you my answer myself."

"Thank you so much," Christine said. "You see—Dr. Stanhope had Miss Robins brought up here as soon as he saw her, and I haven't been able to get away since. Dr. Stanhope himself will be coming at midnight, but—but that'll be too late for Mrs. Carlyle's milk."

"Mrs. Carlyle's milk!" Mrs. Parr snorted. "Do you really think That I was deceived by a silly message like that?—do you think I don't know you, Miss Jordan? I wouldn't have imagined that even you would have the impudence to ask a decent woman to take charge here, while you—well, it's easy to guess why you want to get away, and it's nothing to do with milk, either."

"What do you mean," Christine faltered. It was quite impossible that Mrs. Parr should have guessed the real reason why she wanted to leave her patient, but the older woman looked so angry that it was obvious she knew that Christine had been trying to think up some excuse for going away.

"You want to meet some man, of course,' Mrs. Parr said scornfully. "Do you think we don't guess that you're carrying on an intrigue with someone, probably with that young Grant? From the very beginning of the voyage, you've been out of the cabin at night—I know you said you were taking Mrs. Carlyle's milk, and that's true, for I asked the pantryman, but twice you were away for more than half an hour, and once Miss Crane saw you sneaking out of the cabin at midnight — you thought she was asleep, no doubt. Miss Crane and I haven't been at sea for years without learning to put two and two together."

"You're completely mistaken, Mrs. Parr," Christine said quietly.

"Then what were you doing at midnight?—tell me that."

"I certainly wasn't meeting any man, Mrs. Parr. You and Miss Crane have got an entirely wrong idea about that."

"That remains to be seen, "for sooner or later you'll get caught," Mrs. Parr said vindictively. "Once Mr. Perrin catches you—and if you've got the cheek to send for me—and to send Grant for me, when the chances are that he's the one—you must think you can get away with anything."

"If you'll take the trouble to enquire, you'll probably find that Grant is already in bed in his cabin in the stewards' alley-way—he must have gone off watch by now," Christine said wearily.

"I'm not saying that it is Grant —or it may be Grant and half a dozen others. Miss Crane and I knew the sort you were the minute we set eyes on you, and we wouldn't be surprised at anything. Anyhow, whoever it was that you had arranged to meet tonight, you're not getting any help from me."

She stalked majestically out of the hospital, leaving Christine bewildered and badly worried. At any other time, Christine would have been horrified by this attack upon her, and by the knowledge that her fellow-stewardesses really believed that she was carrying on an intrigue. As it was, her one thought was that she was tied to the hospital, and that Fay was in the cabin de luxe with Royde, and that no one would come near the hospital until Dr. Stanhope relieved her at midnight perhaps later.

Christine crossed to the bed and looked down at the sick girl. Just at first, Miss Robins had moaned and tossed about, but now she seemed to be sleeping, and for the last half hour she had not uttered a sound. The doctor had said that she must not be left alone, for fear that in her delerium she might try to get out of bed, but evidently his remedies had taken effect even more quickly than he had expected.

If she had not been so desperately anxious, it would never have occurred to Christine to disobey the doctor's orders: she was as bound by them as if she had been a professional nurse. He had told her to stay until he relieved her, and it was not for her to question whether it was really necessary for her to stay or not.

But almost before she had realised what she was going to do, she was running along the deserted boat deck towards the companion. She had no plan in her mind. Her only idea was to go straight to the cabin de luxe, and to trust to the inspiration of the moment to save Fay.

As she hurried along the alley-way, she could hear the soft strains of the gramophone in the cabin de luxe. There was no one in the alley-way, but the lights were still on in the smoke-room and people were talking and laughing in there, Doria Smythe's strident laugh rising above the rest. Evidently they had not yet finished playing bridge.

Christine knocked at the door of the cabin de luxe, and after a moment's pause, Martin Royde's voice called to her impatiently to come in. She opened the door, and saw Fay sitting in the deep armchair, her eyes half closed, but at the sight of Christine, Fay suddenly looked alert and a little frightened. Martin Royde, who had been changing a record on the gramophone, turned his head and started at Christine.

"I'm sorry to interrupt you, Mr. Royde," Christine said, "but—your gramaphone is disturbing one of the passengers on the deck below. She asked me to remind you that it was getting late."

"The old fool, whoever she is is just imagining that she hears it," Martin Royde said angrily. "Could you hear it yourself stewardess, untill you came into the room?"

"Not very loudly—but I could hear it," she answered deeply relieved to notice that Royde was not surprised that such a message should be brought by a stewardess, at that hour of the night.

Her eyes met Fay's and she saw that Fay understood perfectly well why she had come, and that her coming had aroused the girl from her dangerous apathy. Fay was scared not quite sure that Christine was not going to make a scene, and to reveal their relationship—if Fay did not leave the cabin de luxe at once.

"It is getting late, Martin," Fay said, "and if the gramophone is disturbing another passenger, we can't very well go on playing it, can we? And—I don't think I'll wait any longer for the others Martin. I'm most terribly sleepy, and I think I'll go straight to bed."

"You'll wake up when Doria and Iris come," he said. "Don't spoil the party, Fay, by going off now, like a good little Cinderella when the clock strikes midnight—and it isn't even midnight. The night is yet young."

"I'm much too sleepy to enjoy a party tonight, Martin," Fay told him, pulling herself up out of the depths of the big chair.

Frustrating Mr. Royde

Martin Royde looked at Christine with an expression of suppressed annoyance, and she knew that he longed to order her out of the room so that he might persuade Fay not to leave him. He must have thought that she was extremely stupid not to go of her own accord, now that her message was delivered, but she didn't care what Martin Royde thought—she meant Fay to come with her.

"Wait for a few minutes, Fay", he said, "I'll go along to the smoke room and see whether they've nearly finished playing bridge. Stay here until Il come back."

He brushed past Christine and went quickly along the alley-way to the smoke-room. Of course, if he returned at once with Doria and Iris, it would be difficult for Fay to insist on leaving the party so soon, for Doria would simply laugh at the idea that she was too sleepy to enjoy the party.

"Come along at once, Fay," Christine said firmly, as soon as he was out of hearing.

"Why should I?" Fay asked suddenly growing rebellious. "The others are just coming. You can't have any objections to a party."

"Hurry up, Fay, before they come —unless you want me to tell them that my sister isn't going to stay for their sort of party. You're not staying: you've had too many cocktails already, apart from anything else."

"You wouldn't tell them— that I'm your sister?'

"I certainly would."

Fay, with a furious look at Christine, came out of the room, and Christine hurried her down the main companion to her own room on the deck below. She noticed that the girl was a little unsteady on her feet, though she looked wide awake enough now, for the shock of seeing Christine so unexpectedly had sobered her.

It wasn't at all likely that Martin Royde or Doria Smythe would be able to persuade her to go back to the party, once she was in her own room. Fay would not dare to defy Christine that night, and the others would believe either that she was genuinely sleepy or that some instinct had warned her that they meant mischief.

"I'll come back later if I can—I must talk to you, Fay." Christine said, as Fay went into her room, but Fay made no answer and slammed the door.

Christine fled up the main companion again, because it was the shortest way to the boat deck. She glanced at the clock as she passed it and saw that it was nearly a quarter to twelve—she had been away from the hospital for rather more than twenty minutes. It wasn't really likely that anything had gone wrong with her patient during that short time, but as she ran along the boat deck, silently in her rubber-soled shoes, she had a strong feeling that something had gone wrong.

When she opened the door of the hospital, she knew what that something was for John Stanhope was standing in the outer room of the hospital, waiting for her.

"I told you not to leave the patient Miss Jordan", he said frigidly.

"I—I was only away for a short time" Christined faltered, "and she was sleeping quietly when I left her."

"How long ago?"

"Just over twenty minutes. She—she didn't wake and get out of bed, Doctor?"

"She is still sleeping quietly, but that has nothing to do with it. You had my orders, Miss Jordan, and as you know perfectly well, when you are working under the orders of the ship's doctor you are in exactly the same position as a nurse in a hospital. Have you any explanation to give me.

She looked up at him, and she saw that the blue eyes which had always had a friendly smile for her were cold and hard. He was furiously angry with her, and rightly so.

"I have—no explanation to give you, Doctor," she said.

"You mean that you will not tell me why you have done such an amazing thing? You must have some reason for leaving the hospital for twenty minutes. Did one of your passengers send for you?—you had no right to go, even then, but it would at least be an excuse."

"I cannot tell you why I left the hospital Doctor," she said in a low voice.

He turned away from her with an impatient shrug and stood by the window, looking out into the darkness. He had thrown off his white cap and Christine saw his fair hair outlined against the deep blue background of the tropic sky, pierced with bright stars. And it was as though, in that moment when she had lost his friendship, lost his trust, she saw him with new eyes—as the man she loved. Until then she had not known that she loved him.

Rawdon

Rawdon—Mrs. Emma Summers is holidaying with Mr. and Mrs. Will Johnson, Salem.

Mr. and Mrs. John Holmes entertained on Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Frank Fitzgerald, Freeland and Howard and Mr. E. Clarke, Prince Edward, Mr. and Mrs. R. Bonnie, Madoc and Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Holmes and Joan, Eldorado.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Locke and family, Bowmanville, Mr. and Mrs. Allan Vincent, Oahawa, visited Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sharp on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Mack, Port Hope, visited Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Sine on Sunday.

W. M. S. Service

On Sunday afternoon the Woman's Missionary Society at Mount Pleasant held their autumn thankoffering service based on "The Honan Mission Jubilee." The war in China made it impossible to have a jubilee celebration in Honan itself but the war has not stopped the Christian work which had its beginnings there so many years ago.

The president, Mrs. Percy MacMullen, presided over the devotional service which opened with quiet music played by Mrs. Ross Hoard. Scripture hymns were sung and the bible lesson was read by Mrs. M. Rose. A letter by a missionary in Honan was read by Mrs. Arthur Phillips.

Mrs. Percy Hubble sang a "Prayer of Thanksgiving" and the choir rendered a selection.

The offering was gathered by Mrs. Cyrus Summers, Mrs. Kenneth Weaver and Mrs. Arthur Phillips and amounted to over thirty five dollars.

Rev. J. E. Beckel gave a fine missionary address and touched briefly on "Five Decades in Honan 1888-1938, as told by Rev. W. H. Grant in his recent booklet, a copy of which was sent to every auxiliary. He closed his discourse with "The psalm of sharing."

A large number form Mount Pleasant attended Carmel fowl supper last week and enjoyed a delicious feed of chicken.

Quarterly official board was held at the church last week with a good attendance. Several items of business were discussed and the finances were in splendid condition.

Mrs. Andrew Thompson and Mrs. Willis Irvin spent a few days with their mother, Mrs. Sarah McKeown who is indisposed.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Thrasher visited Mr. and Mrs. Milton Shaw, Ivanhoe, on Sunday.

Mrs. Emily Tyler of Rednersville is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Hubble.

Miss Neva Hagerman of Salem visited Misses Muriel and Doris Sine on Sunday.

Miss Betty Hoard visited Miss Phyliss David on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hagerman and Claire of Salem, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fair and Lorna, Mr. and Mrs. Leon MacMullen, Sidney, visited Mr. and Mrs. Ernest White on Sunday.

Rawdonains attended anniversary services at English line, Marsh Hill, Moira and St. Andrew's, Stirling, on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Weaver attended the Weaver-Myers nuptials in King Street United Church, Trenton, on Saturday.

Mrs. Emma Summers entertained on Friday Mrs. Jane Hoard, Mrs. Mary Hay and Mrs. Emily Tyler, and the ages of these four ladies totalled three hundred and thirty six years.

Ladies' Aid

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Morrison entertained Bethel Ladies Aid at their home for the September meeting with a good attendance.

The meeting was in charge of the president, Mrs. Harold Elliott and after the opening devotional Mrs. John Morrison read the bible lesson. Mrs. Welbourne read the secretary's report and several items of business was discussed and plans made for a Hallowe'en masquerade party. The program was prepared by Misses Muriel Welbourne and Vera Ketcheson. Rev. J. E. Beckel was master of ceremonies and several rounds of community singing was enjoyed. Miss Nellie Morrison gave a reading "Our Funny English." Mr. Frank Harding sang four selections accompanying himself on the guitar, among his numbers were "Mississippi Blues" and "When the Roses Bloom Again". Miss Alice Lake read an appropriate piece "Haven't got time". Rev. J. E. Beckel gave a brief address on Peace, a subject uppermost in the minds of everyone last Thursday. Miss Phyliss Beckel staged an object contest. A bevy of young people served lunch and the proceeds amounted to four dollars and fifty cents. All enjoyed a social half hour and before the evening closed Mr. and Mrs. Morrison were tendered a hearty vote of thanks for hospitality.

Knocked by Yankee Power, Stifled by Yankee Pitching, Chicago Cubs Lose 1st Game

Bill Lee Trounced 3-1 By Red Ruffing And Yankee Team

SPLENDID FIELDING

Bill Dickey Equals Record Getting Four For Four

(By Gayle Talbot, Associated Press Sports Writer).

Chicago, Oct. 6 (AP)—Knocked silly by Yankee power and stifled by Yankee pitching in the opening game of the World Series, Chicago Cubs place what little trust they have left today in the ailing right arm of the once-great Dizzy Dean.

If Dizzy, a World Series hero back in 1934, can summon for one more afternoon the wizardry that once belonged to him, there is a thin chance that the Cubs can beat this great Yankee machine and make a fight of the championship.

But it is not a proposition to bet on. Even the verbose Dizzy was shocked into comparative silence when Manager Gabby Hartnett told him last night that he would send him out there to silence the Yankee bats and square the series. For once, Dizzy who opposes Lefty Gomes today, wasn't making any predictions.

Dizzy got an impressive eye-full of the Yankees as they slugged 12 hits in taking the opener, 3-1.

Has Fighting Heart

Dean faces them today with a fighting heart still as big as a gallon jug, and there is something a little exciting about his being out there trying to hold down one of the most murderous collections of hitters in history with only his control and a fair curve ball.

What chance the Cubs had of beating the Yanks was tied up in Lee. Now it looks more or less hopeless, barring a collapse of the American leaguers, and that is difficult to imagine. In Lefty Gomes they have a pitcher for today's game, who has won five straight World Series starts, and for the third game on Saturday in Yankee stadium they have Monte Pearson, who was good enough to fling a no-hit, no-runner a short time back. However Dean fares today, the Cubs must call upon Clay Bryant, a speedy but nervous young right-hander in the third tussle.

Yanks a Little Better

The Yankees are enough to make a pitcher sick. If they aren't the best all-round ball club there ever was you couldn't prove it by the 43,642 chilled fans who watched them perform yesterday. It wasn't that Lee didn't pitch good ball, or that the Cubs didn't field brilliantly for the most part and go down swinging from their boot-straps. It was just that the Yankees were a little better in every department.

Rufus "Red" Ruffing was touched for nine hits, which is not exactly phenomenal pitching. Yet it seemed that every time the Cubs got a man on base and looked like they might do something, either Frankie Crosetti, the Yankee shortstop, or Joe Gordon, the champions' great rookie second-base-man, would come up with a dazzling stop and throw to spike the rally. Gordon, playing his first World Series game, hit a double and a single and made one stop off Rip Collins, that was sheer robbery.

National League partisans, second-guessing today, claimed that the failure of Phil Cavaretta, Cubs right fielder, to peg the ball in to second after Dickey hit the first of his four singles in the second inning, instead of making a futile attempt to head Lou Gehrig off at third, was the turning point of the game.

Probably Wrong Throw

If he had thrown out Dickey at second base, they point out, then two Yankees would have been retired and only Gehrig would have scored, when Bill Herman booted Selkirk's grounder and Gordon singled on the next two plays. However, that sounds like quibbling, for the Yankees counted again on Tommy Henrich's double and Dickey's single in the sixth, and that would have made the final score 2-1, anyway.

Stan Hack, leading hitter of the Chicago team, lived up to his record by collecting three singles, the second of which drove across Rip Collins with the lone run for the losers. Gabby Hartnett, playing with two painfully damaged fingers, supplied the home fans with their biggest thrill, when his drive into right field got past Henrich for a three-bagger.

About the only consolation the Cubs had was that they stopped Joe DiMaggio without a hit. Bucky Harris, manager of the Washington Nats, noted the fact and whistled: "Boy, I'll bet that made Joe sore. Watch what he does to them from here on."

Rookie Gordon Quite Flashy at Keystone Sack

(By Sid Feder, Associated Press Sports Writer).

Chicago, Oct. 6 (AP)—Joe Gordon is without doubt baseball's greatest walking advertisement for married life.

Whether or not his "taking the step," had anything to do with his work on the ball field isn't definitely known but there's no denying the fact that from the day he eloped with his campus sweetheart, he changed from just another disappointing rookie to the classiest second baseman to come down the pike since Charley Gehringer.

In case you haven't heard the statistical details, he's handling the keystone sack assignment for New York Yankees, baseball's No. 1 ball club. He's 24, up from the coast league by way of Newark, can hit in the accepted theory of the Yanks —which is that you can't field a home run—and can field anything and everything in his general direction.

When Gordon started out this season his fielding was acceptable, but every pitcher in the league fooled him on a high inside pitch. So Manager Joe McCarthy, who can't stand for such goings on, benched him.

For a while it looked like curtains for our hero. So one day, to while away the time, he eloped to Elkton, Md., with his campus sweetheart in his days at the University of Oregon. Some few days later the Yanks trailing 2-1 in a ball game, nominated Joe for a pinch-hitting job with a mate on first base in the ninth inning. The rival pitcher served up a high inside pitch and Gordon parked it among the paying customers in the left field stands.

They put him back in the lineup the next day and he's been there since.

Rain Fails to Halt B.C.I. Annual Track and Field Meet Some Events are Postponed

Marjorie Hitchon Wins All Events In Senior Group For Second Time

CONTINUES TODAY

Times of Various Events a Little High Due To Adverse Conditions

Inclement weather failed to dampen the aspirations of the athletic student body of the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School during their annual track and field meet held at the Fair Grounds yesterday although officials deemed it necessary to postpone several of the events, which might have endangered limb if competed in during the rain. The student body, faculty and Collegiate school band attended the afternoon events with the band supplying music throughout.

Only one school athletic championship was won outright when Miss Marjorie Hitchon won all events in the senior girls' class and in so doing won two senior school athletic championships in one year, Miss Hitchon having won the senior girls' track and field championship during a previous meet held last May. Three girls were found to be tied in the intermediate class, Misses Doreen McKenna, Audrey Nicholson and Gena Hicks all garnering eight points with one event yet to be decided. In the junior girls' group two events were left in abeyance, the results of which will affect the junior titlist, who could not be named yesterday.

Everett and Theobold Lead

With several events in the three boys' classes also being unfinished no school athletic champions were officially announced, although Perry Everett, last year's titlist, is conceded the senior championship, being well out in front of his opponents. In the intermediate class Bill Pugden and Wilfred Mills will continue their battle for this group title while Gordon Theobold is well out in front and leading in the junior ranks.

The events left in abeyance and to be completed at the Collegiate campus this afternoon included several relays, the junior girls' high jnump, all boys pole vaults and high jumps and the senior 440 yard dash. The various Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School athletic champions will be officially announced following the completion of the track and field meet today.

The meet was under the direction of Miss Allison and Mr. George Laughlin, respective physical directors at the Collegiate. Lieut. Ross Hunter was in charge of the school band.

The results of yesterday afternoon's events only:

New York, Oct. 6 (AP—Pie Traynor is reported at Chicago with a pocket full of plans to break up the Pirates—just wait—Bill Lee will get another fling at those Yanks along about Sunday....Pitt's No. 1 football team is said to be the strongest Doc Sutherland has assembled in his long tenure as head coach.

Win, lose or draw in the series, Gabby Hartnett believes Phil Wrigley is going to give him a three-year contract....DiMaggio altered his swing—that is, he resumed taking a full cut at the apple — and promptly went hitless against Lee's slants in the opener....Saddest guys around Chicago are the Pittsburgh baseball writers.

Old Connie Mack stole the show at the baseball draft meeting ..he picked five players and found himself four over the 40-player limit, Judge Landis asked him who he would give up...."You name 'em, Mr. Commissioner," cracked the tall tutor and it brought the house down....P.S. Judge Landis declined the honor.

Somebody handed George Selkirk of the Yanks a loaded cigarette during the trip to Chicago and George hasn't smoked since ....Old timers around New York gyms say Lou Nova is better than Gene Tunney was at a similar stage.

KANSAS CITY EVENS SERIES

Newark Bears Defeated In Fourth Game By 9-8

Kansas City, Oct. 6 (AP)—It will be a case of "let George do it" when Kansas City Blues seek to break a two-all deadlock by winning the fifth game of the Little World Series from Newark Bears tonight.

Husky George Washburn pitched to just one Newark batter last night, but was credited with the 9-8 Blue vicory which squared the series, and Manager Bill Meyer is going to let George try to make it two in a row tonight.

A paid crowd of 15,272 was treated to all varieties of baseball in the first game on the Blue lot last night, and when the firing had ceased a total of 28 hits, including nine doubles, one triple and one home run, had bounced from the bats of the two clubs; six errors had blotted the box score, and seven pitchers had passed in review.

For six innings it was an airtight ball game, with Kemp Wicker of the Blues and Atley Donald of Newark keeping everything pretty well under control.

Things began to happen in the seventh, and they never stopped until Joe Gallagher puffed his way over the plate for the winning run with two down in the last of the ninth.

Donald was through at the end of the sixth. Wicker lasted nearly eight, and to fill out the rest of the brackets Page, Strincevich and Stine worked for the Bears, with Stine the losing hurder and Makosky and Washburn saw duty for Kansas City.

FOOTBALL SEASON OPENS SATURDAY

College And Big Four Pry Lids Off Schedules

(By The Canadian Press)

The east's short football season, which makes it well nigh impossible for any team to start off on the wrong foot and still bob up champions, gets underway Saturday as the college and Big Four schedules open. The payoff usually is to a team which can win its first two games, but right now coaches are concentrating on the opening hurdle.

So far pre-season exhibition games have allowed little to choose among three teams in the college loop—McGill Redmen, University of Toronto and University of Western Ontario. The experts have given each of these a call for college honors, ignoring the defending champion Queen's outfit. In the Big Four its been Ottawa Rough Riders and the National champion Toronto Argonauts that the boys like.

The Redmen and Western Mustangs likely will be without their ace backfielder, Claure Moore, suffering a leg injury, and snapback Osborne Cox. On the other hand the Redmen will be at full strength.

Coach Warren Stevens prepping his Blues for their opener against Queen's at Kingston, Ont., said the team will be without halfback Dom Mumford and snapback Doug. Turner against the Tricolor team.

The Ontario Rugby Football Union schedule opens officially next Monday Thanksgiving Day, with Sarnia Imperials opposing Toronto Balmy Beach and Montreal Nationals meeting Peterborough Orfuns.

MARGARET ESSON REAL SURPRISE

Rosetown Girl Only 17 Years Old Is Real Sensation

(By Ross Munro, Canadian Press Staff Writer).

Ottawa, Oct. 6 (CP)—Seven women who have established themselves in the golfing world will tee off here today in the quarter final of the Canadian Women's open golf championship but the tournament spotlight was on the eighth — an unpredictable Prairie youngster who has provided two consecutive upsets.

In the first and second rounds the 17-year-old Rosetown, Sask., girl, Margaret (Puddin') Esson, eliminated experienced stars by huge margins to become the toast of the tournament and the greatest sensation of any open in recent years.

She took the turn yesterday three up over Winnifred Evans of Vancouver and finished the match on the 13th green, 7 and 5. The previous day she smothered Nan Baird of the British Curtis cup team 6 and 4.

For the quarter final she will find still competition in Mrs. J. B. Walker, a persistent player and another member of the British team.

This is only the second open in which Miss Esson has competed.

Next youngest player in the quarter final is 22-year-old Clarrie Tiernan of Dublin who meets the veteran Mrs. W. G. Fraser of Ottawa.

Two Toronto women meet in a third match with Mrs. E. H. Gooderham drawn against Mrs. F. J. Mulqueen. Jessie Anderson, Scotland plays Evelyn Mills of Ottawa in another match.

ST. MIKES DEFEAT O.S.D. AT RUGBY

On wet slippery field and in a drizzling rain the 1938 football season was unofficially and unceremoniously opened with an exhibition grid game played at the O.S.D. grounds yesterday when a visiting St. Michael's Academy squad defeated the boys from the "deaf school" by the score of 11 to 0. The "Irish" opened the scoring in the initial quarter with a major score and added another touchdown in the third stanza.

The wet slippery grass made solid footing uncertain and resulted in slow football. Sheridan carried the sonball across O.S.D. goal line on a line plunge early in the game, but he dropped the pigskin only to have his teammate Jack Hart fall on the fumble for a try, which McQuaid promptly converted for a count of six points.

George Whalen broke away for the "Irish" in the third period and galloped 55 yards for a touchdown, that was not converted however.

Don Dell stood up splendidly with sterling tackles along the winners' line of scrimmage, while the O.S.D. team was handicapped somewhat by playing their initial 12 man game of the year, that school having adopted six-man football for interform competition this season. Coach Jack Doran's charges proved too good defensively and took full advantage of the opportunities presented them while on the offensive.

The lineups:

O.S.D.: Robertson, snap; Bryant, inside; Murphy, inside; Bartu, middle; Cleland, middle; May, outside; Marshall, outside; Graziano, quarter; Kiniski, flying wing; Barton, half back; Bostnari, half back; Elower, half back; subs: Broadway, Smith, Donnovan.

St. Michael's: J. Sheridan, snap; B. Whalen, inside; G. Whalen, inside; J. Hart, middle; W. Fitzgibbon, middle; J. Doran, outside; D. Dell, outside; J. Cowain, quarter; J. Sheridan, flying wing; B. McQuaide, half back; J. Lye, half back; G. Healey, half back; subs: D. Barrett, H. McDougal, J. Bradshaw, D. Ciceri, B. Doyle, G. Morrison.

Referee: Art Cole of Belleville.

Thirteen Nominated For Feature Race At Long Branch

The Long Branch Jockey Club Ltd., whose meeting opened yesterday (October 5), has a number of outstanding attractions, but the highlights are on Thanksgiving Day and the closing day of the meeting Wednesday, October 12

On the holiday the inaugural running of the Long Branch Canadian Championship for three-year-olds, foaled in Canada, is down for decision. Nominations for this totalled thirteen from twelve owners, the list including Bunty Lawless, winner of the King's Plate; Cabin Gal, winner of the Hendrie Memorial Handicap; Legerdemian, winner of the British Columbia Derby; Roman Marcus, winner of the Alberta Derby at Calgary, and Gowcedlace, winner of the Manitoba Derby, as well as the consistent Mona Bell, Contributor, Grand Dame, Fair Wave, Skyros, Suffern, Tabmark and Troublemark.

This race is for $2,000 added, with it costing $25 to nominate each horse and $75 more to start with all nomination and starting fees going to the winning owner. The latter will also receive a pair of gold-plated horseshoes and to give it a more sentimental touch, the winning owner will be asked to furnish two plates of the winning horse, which in turn will be wrought in gold and presented to the winning owner, so the latter will always have in his possession exact replicas in gold of the actual plates worn by the winner of the race.

The $5,000 added, Mrs. Orpen's Cup and Saucer for two-year-olds foaled in Canada, will be run on Wednesday, October 12, the final day of the meeting. This stake closed with 77 nominations, but after two more payments, but 31 remain eligible, and if ten go to the post the race will gross more than $8,000. It is the most valuable two-year-old stake in Canada, and, for that matter, it is only exceeded in value by the King's Plate.

There'll be hurdle racing on three days of the meeting, namely, Thursday, Friday and Tuesday, when they'll be called to the post at 1.30. On other days the starting time will be 2 o'clock.

Dizzy Says He'll Flatten' em In Game Today

Chicago, Oct. 6 (AP)—Eavesdropping on the Chicago Cubs as they prepared to square off against the New York Yankees in the second game of the World Series:

Dizzy Dan: "I'll flatten 'em."

Gabby Hartnett: "They're afraid of us now, gang. We will have them on the run."

Bill Lee: "I'll get 'em the next time—right in their own ball yard."

(Smiles and chuckles were the Yanks' form of comment).

The books show Tony Lazzeri is the first major league player in history to get in two consecutive World's Series as a member of teams in two different leagues.... Looks as though the Lefty Gomez-June O'Dea reconciliation is on for keeps....Mebbe Dr. James Thompson prothro just wants the experience....Anyway, in more than 10 years of managing minor league ball clubs, he's never finished last ....So he's signed to manage the Phillies.

Rain, wind and general inclement weather forced postponements in several events of the Belleville Collegiate annual field day events staged at the Fair Grounds yesterday, although the contestants did get through with the majority of the listed events of the meet. An autumn field day came somewhat as a surprise, but according to Athletic Director George Laughlin the B.C.I. will return to fall field days once again. Perhaps the reason for the shift back to the autumn dates is to avoid clashing with the annual district interscholastic meet each spring, but there is one drawback to the fall school meet—it will necessitate spring training for the district meet as well as autumn training for the school meet.

Something of a school record was established yesterday when Miss Marjorie Hitchon won the senior girls' championship. Miss Hitchon not only won every event in the senior class but it is the second time within five months, that Miss Hitchon has won the girls' senior track and field championship, this same young lady winning the senior championship and all events at the previous school track and field meet held last May. No other school championships were won outright yesterday, several events having to be postponed until today, but Perry Everett seems to have the inside track on the boys' senior class while Gordon Theobold is leading the junior pack, with Bill Pigden and Wilf Mills are still battling it out for the intermediate honors. Due to unfavorable weather conditions, especially the wind, no school records were shattered.

There are several potential track and field stars attending the Belleville Collegiate today including Miss Hitchon, Bill Pigden, Wilf Mills, Perry Everett and several others too numerous to mention at this time. After these students graduate or leave collegiate what opportunities have they to develop their track and field ability, unless they attend college? Actually something should be done to encourage these youngsters after they leave school, as who knows there may be another Percy Williams right in our midst. The Belleville Fair made a move in the proper direction when they sponsored a track and field meet in connection with the Fair some years ago, but because the meet failed to pay dividends the first or second year, it was abandoned. Properly managed such a track and field meet, held on the first day of the Fair, could become a big feature. But as we said it would have to be handled much differently than before if it is to succeed.

Commencing exactly where they left off a year ago, the New York Yankees won the initial game of the 1938 world series by the score of 3 to 1, which is just about the margin indicating the difference between the two clubs. Strangely yesterday's game was marked with brilliant defence, even on the part of the Yankees, whose strength is reputed to be in their bats. The game was a well hurled affair by Ruffing and Lee while several sensational defensive plays added to the prestige of the game. Although the Cubs claim they are not discouraged over yesterday's loss, it must be admitted that the winning of the initial game of the series is a big factor towards ultimate victory and unless Dizzy Dean comes through today, well only a miracle will save Gabby Hartnett's Chicago gang.

Joe McCarthy's New York Yankees are now facing the problem of doing what no other major league club has ever accomplished the winning of three world series championships in succession. Of course there is always a first time for everything and judging from yesterday's results—1938 seems to be headed towards the making of baseball history. High bad winds undoubtedly was the cause of the absence of circuit blows yesterday. Two of baseball's most colorful pitchers Lefty Gomez for the Yanks and Dizzy Dean for the Cubs, were announced as the most probable starting hurlers for today. Both are on the well known spot as Dean must win to keep the morale of the Cubs up and that club in the race, while Gomes has never lost a world series game being tied with Coombs and Pennock with five victories and no defeats. If the clubs continue to play good defensive ball, however, most anything might happen—yes the Cubs might squeeze one into the win column—who knows?

From London comes word that Belleville's favourite gridder — is on the injured list and may not get into the Western lineup versus McGill on Saturday. Three of Western's outstanding stars including Hilton, are laid up with leg injuries—not serious, but sufficient to keep them out of the game versus the 'big red team'.

Coach Archie Duffield has only two more practice nights in which to put his Panthers through their paces prior to the opening of the football season here on Thanksgiving Day afternoon versus the Kingston Garrison. Information from Kingston leads us to believe Coach Bob Elliott has a big sturdy team, that is willing to exchange bumps with the best of them so we look for plenty of action when the football curtain is rung up here on Monday. The Panthers are showing a little more zest in their noctural drills while their passing plays are beginning to click with precision. Morley Baker is booting 'em for more distance each night out, while Jim Pepper, who tosses forwards with abandon, gets distance but must practice control a little more. Of course this is Pepper's first year and the kid is doing surprisingly well in carrying and passing the oval, however.

PETERBORO LACKS PRIME REQUISITES

Weight And Senior Calibre Kicker Needed On Orfuns

Peterborough, Ont., Oct. 6 (CP)—Lacking a couple of prime requisites—weight and a senior-calibre kicker—Peterborough Orfuns will bank on speed and in untested passing attack when they bow into the Ontario Rugby Football Union senior series at Montreal next Monday.

The Orfuns will count, too, on the courage that carried them to O.R.F.U. intermediate finals last year, climaxing a string of successful years in that section.

Beyond those things, Peterborough doesn't expect to throw many jolts at Montreal Nationals in the Thanksgiving Day game. The Orfuns' idea right along has been to build this season, and to come back with an experienced unit in 1939.

Coach Bill Irwin, a star with Toronto Balmy Beach of the O.R.F.U. last year picked up the speedy Curly Krug from last year's Dominion champion Argonauts to spark the backfield.

Krug has been on a succession of championship teams, first with his home town, Woodstock, then at Queen's University and finally with Argos.

Irwin has another nimble-toed halfback in 185-pound Mike Loucks. He has four outside wings who can catch passes and run after catching them; and he's counting on extension plays to make up for plunging deficiencies.

TENDERS

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned and marked "Tender for Repairs to Concrete, Lock 10, Trent Canal" will be received up to 12 o'clock noon, Eastern Standard Time, Friday, October 14, 1938, for Repairing Concrete Walls of Lock 10, on the Trent Canal, near Campbellford, Ontario.

Plans, specifications, labour conditions and form of contract to be entered into may be seen on and after the date of this notice at the office of the General Superintendent of Canals, West Block, Ottawa, or at the office of the Superintending Engineer, Trent Canal, Peterboro, Ontario.

Plans, specifications, labour conditions, form of contract and tender form may be obtained from the said General Superintendent of Canals or Superintending Engineer upon payment of the sum of $10.00. To bona fide tenderers this amount will be returned upon the return of the plans and specifications in good condition.

An accepted bank cheque on a chartered bank of Canada for the sum of $2,600.00, made payable to the order of the Department of Transport, must accompany each tender. Bonds of the Dominion of Canada and, or Canadian National Railways Bonds, guaranteed by the Dominion of Canada, will be accepted in lieu of or in conjunction with such accepted cheque. In any case the sum deposited will be forfeited if the party tendering declines to enter into a contract for the work in form generally as exhibited ("Contract form, Construction") at the rate stated in its tender.

Cheques and, or bonds accompanying tenders will be returned to the respective parties whose tenders are not accepted.

The Cheque and, or bonds of the successful tenderer will be held as security for the fulfilment of his contract for this work.

The lowest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted.

G. W. YATES,
Secretary.
Department of Transport,
Ottawa, October 4, 1938.

Beaverbrook's Paper Calls Upon Premier To Reorganize Cabinet

London, Oct. 6 — (CP—Cable)— Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express (Independent) today called on Prime Minister Chamberlain to reorganize his cabinet and drop "those among the present corps of ministers who have proved themselves quite incapable of discharging their duties with the requisite energy and vigor."

The newspaper expressed concern over reported deficiencies in the Nation's arms and civil preparedness. It supported Winston Churchill's demand for a more vigorous rearmament policy.

Lord Rothermere's Daily Mail (Independent) called for steps to give effect to the Anglo-Italian agreement at the earliest possible moment, and declared a strong stand should be taken against dissident Arabs in Palestine.

The Daily Herald (Labor) expressed fear trouble might arise out of new disagreements among the members of the International Commission which is fixing Czechoslovakia's new borders.

It paid tribute to Eduard Benes, declaring he retires as President of Czechoslovakia "with an undiminished reputation and with that even rarer possession today, a clear conscience."

The News - Chronicle (Liberal) taking a gloomy view af the future of democracy in Europe, recalled Mr. Chamberlain had told the House of Commons last March 7 that "for preservation of democracy I would fight myself and believe the people of this country would fight."

The newspaper declared: "To see that the spirit of this declaration is honored and a firm front presented to any further Fascist aggression is the one hope left to western democracy."

DeLuxe Footgear

By PRUNELLA WOOD

CINDERELLA went down in history as the girl with romance at her feet, but she might have had even more good luck if she could have displayed her tootsies in 1938's de luxe footgear. After all, glass can't be so easy on the dogs, and this department would rather dance with Prince Charming while wearing Herman Delman's notions of clever footwork. Take the platform-soled, wrap-around sandal that is sketched directly below. The ankle straps are gold kid, the platform and toe straps wine velvet, embroidered with gold! Scrumptious! And upper right is a black velvet sandal such as we have never seen before. It is gold piped and has velvet thong sports pendants of topaz.

In the centre is an all-gold slipper made of delicate thongs. They are spiraled up the heel, and then around and around the ankle to keep the hsoe firmly fitted. Below it, at the right, is a latticed black satin sandal, as delicately constructed as a good coil spring, and a good deal more flattering, you might say.

Thomasburg

Thomasburg—The monthly meeting of the Anglican Women's Auxiliary was held on Tuesday evening last at the home of the President, Miss Emma Porter, with a good attendance of members and several visitors. Mrs. W. A. Morton and Mrs. C. K. Mouck were in charge of the programme.

Mr. Everett Geen has returned to Guelph to resume his studies at Ontario Agriculture College after spending the summer months at his home here.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Carter and Mrs. J. E. Brown were guests on Tuesday of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Morton, at Avondale.

Several from Thomasburg attended the anniversary services at Roslin United Church on Sunday when Rev. Mr. Campbell of Grace United Church, Trenton, took charge of both the morning and evening service. Service at the Thomasburg appointment was withdrawn for the day.

Mr. and Mrs. D. McCamon and baby Bobbie and Mr. N. Steven spent a day recently in Toronto.

The September meeting of Thomasburg United Church Women's Association was held on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. E. Way.

Miss Emma Porter left on Friday for Detroit where she will join her brother Mr. Clayton and Mrs. Porter on an extended motor trip through the Southern States.

Mr. George Robinson of Tweed spent a few days recently with Mr. William Way.

The October meeting of the Sun Beam Mission band was held on Saturday afternoon in the Sunday School rooms of the United Church.

Mr. Stanley Geen has returned home after spending the summer months at Embro.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy McTaggart spent Friday evening with Mr. and Mrs. H. McTaggart.

Misses Ruth and Marion Jones spent the weekend with Miss Merle Bateman.

Mr. and Mrs. G. Bradshaw of Tweed spent Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. W. Harrison.

Miss Merle Bateman spent Sunday with Miss Ruth Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Art Morgan and family moved Wednesday to Belleville to live.

Messrs. Ross and Lorne spent Sunday with Mr. Bill Coulter.

Mrs. Raymond Diamond of Belleville spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. Stevens.

Sunbeam Mission Band

The Sunbeam Mission Band was held in the vestry of the United Church on Saturday, October 1st.

Before the meeting a couple of games were played, "Spin the pan" and "General Fruit Basket". Then the meeting was opened by the President, Betty Vance, with a song from the Study Book. The Scripture was read by Merle Bateman Sentence prayer was given by some of the members. The Secretary's report was read and adopted. The Treasurer's report was given. The offering was taken by Joyce Morton. The roll call was answered by "a thought from the Study Book". Ruth Jones gave a reading. Mrs. Herrington gave the story from the Study Book. The meeting was closed with the Lord's prayer.

Mr and Mrs. J. R. Geen and family spent Sunday afternoon with Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Frances of Stirling.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Bateman and family spent Sunday in Campbellford with Mr. and Mrs. Slush.

No service was held in the United Church her because of the anniversary services held at Roslin United Church Sunday, which a number from here attended.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Morton and family spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hall of Tweed.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Harrison entertained company on Sunday.

YEAR TERM IMPOSED FOR FORGING NAME

Kitchener, Ont., Oct. 5 (CP)—Gordon Hearth, Kitchener, pleaded guilty in police court here today to forging the name of County Treasurer Sam Cassel to a cheque for $15 and uttering it. He was given a year in the Ontario Reformatory by Magistrate J. R. Blake.

The cheque form was stolen when he was working about the jail recently and was cashed when he obtained his liberty from that institution.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Oct. 6 (AP)—Stock market leaders shot up 1 to more than 3 points today, many to new highs for about a year, before profit taking reduced or cancelled extreme gains.

Heavy overnight buying orders, both from home and abroad, brought an exciting opening in which blocks of 1,000 to 4,000 shares changed hands. The ticker tape frequently was behind in the forenoon.

It was the seventh out of eight sessions in which The Associated Press averages leaned forward. The extent of the upsurge, however, led many traders to look for a technical "correction" and these inclined to cash in.

The pace slowed as profits were reaped. Only small fractional advances predominated near the final hour.

There was a turnover of 880,000 shares in the initial hour, the largest for this period in months. Transfers for the full day were at the rate of about 2,500,000 shares.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 6 (CP)—Industrial and base metal stocks had another day of rising prices, encouraged by a note of buoyancy in the New York market, while western oils were slightly stronger and the gold listings were barely firm. All indices, excepting the gold indicator, were up at the close. Volume eased off a little to around 775,000 shares.

GORDON'S DOUBLE

Second Inning.

YANKEES—Dean was throwing nothing but slow "stuff" to the Yankees. Manager Joe McCarthy came out of the Yankee dugout as the team came to bat and had Umpire Sears tell the fans in the box seats along the right field line to take their coats off the wall. DiMaggio singled over Jurges' head into left centre. It was his first hit of the series. The Cub bullpen became busy as Gehrig went to bat. Gehrig walked on five pitches. Dickey flied to Jurges. Marty came all the way over to short right field and took Selkirk's fly and the crowd went wild as Dizzy appeared to be pitching his way out of a tight spot. Hack and Jurges collided in going after Gordon's easy roller and it rolled all the way into left field for a two base hit. DiMaggio and Gehrig both scored on the play. Gomez flied to Reynolds in short left. 2 runs, 2 hits, 0 errors, 0 left.

CUBS—Hartnett sent a long fly to Henrich in right. With a southpaw pitching Collins, a switch hitter, shifted to a right hand batter. Collins bounced a single off Rolfe's glove. Jurges forced Collins at second, Rolfe to Gordon but Jurges was safe at first on the fielder's choice. Crosetti threw out Dean on a nice play. 0 runs, 1 hit, 0 errors, 1 left.

Livestock

Toronto, Oct 6—(CP)—Most of the killers offered sold at steady prices on the Toronto Livestock market today. Calves and lambs were steady and hogs also held to previous price levels. No sheep were offered. Cattle holdover from Wednesday was 400 head.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock branch were— cattle 100; calves 20; hogs 380; lambs 130.

One load of choice weighty steers brought $6.50. Butcher cattle sold from $3.50 to $5 with a load of westerns at $5.50. A few butcher sows made $3 to $4.50. Small lots of stockers went from $4.15 to $4.75.

The few calves offered traded from $5 to $9.50 cwt.

Off truck bacon hogs settled at $8.50.

Good ewe and wether lambs by rail were priced at $7.85 and those by truck at $7.50 to $7.60.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford By Financial Service

Field reports state that at East Malartic widths of 60 to 100 feet of ore have been indicated by flat diamond drilling of the main orebody west of the shaft on 4th level. Mill siding has been placed and erection of steel for headframe and connecting conveyorway is going up. More brokers are recommending the purchase of East Malartic than any other stock on the board.

In quarters close to Noranda Mines, talk persists that the stock will be split-up sooner than earlier rumors had it. It is said that the stock will be split up before the end of the present year.

It is reported that Upper Canada have made an arrangement with the Morris Kirkland Co., whereby the former will truck ore to the latter's mill, a distance of about five miles, to the extent of 100 to 125 tons per day. In the meantime the Upper management are going ahead with their own mill plans, clearing the site for their 250-ton mill before the cold weather really sets in.

Recent exploration and development work at McKenzie Red Lake continues to meet with favorable results. Ore results attained this year to date are believed to excel those of any other year in mine history. In first half of this year production was $451,576 and the operating profit $250,968, equal to 8.65 cents per share. The present dividend rate is three cents a share quarterly or 12 cents a share annually; with current earnings reported to be in the vicinity of 20 cents a share annually it is possible that higher dividends may be paid in the near future.

MARKET COMMENT

Signs are not lacking that some improvement will be recorded in general business. For example, the textile industry, and particularly the cotton branch of that industry, should find encouragement in low inventories on dealers' shelves, and also from the natural demand of a seasonal nature and for other reasons, an expansion can be anticipated.

Finally, the heavy season of consumer purchasing is at hand, and with the tensions of September vanishing, these are likely to make their influence felt in a favorable way. The season of social functions, seasonal needs and Christmas gifts account for a large proportion of the year's expenditure in the home and by the individual. Another factor for spending is the winter sports season which is annually growing more significant in the realm of economy.

A good increase in activity has occurred the past few days in the mining section of the Toronto Stock Exchange, indicating that the public is giving more attention to the possibilities existing in our sound gold producers. Those who can assume the risk, are offered a large number of proven gold producers, with good past records, proven ore reserves and sound financial position, that are affording very handsome yields. The gold stocks, in time, should regain their former popularity and the majority in this group, it is believed, are headed for ultimately higher prices.

"Funds Are Safe in Canada", Remarks Head of Wealthy European Family

The head of a wealthy European family has been on this side of the Atlantic for a fortnight or so investigating business conditions and companies that they are interested in. This man remarked to a friend that they feel very secure about the money that they have invested in Canada. According to him there is no better country in the world for capital investment. Being curious we enquired as to some of their holdings here which include, we are told—

International Nickel, Noranda, Asbestos, Dominion Steel and Coal B, Canadian Industries, Aluminium Limited, Royalite Oil.

Incidentally they are about to invest many more millions in Canada at an early date.

Real Bull Market is Unfolding, States Babson

"Since freed from the shackles of war fears, the market should reflect the real progress of our internal economy. The situation is ripe for the gradual unfolding of a real bull market. Both the volume and earning power of general business are improving and the banks are crammed with the potential buying power of their depositors. It is time to reflect," says Babson.

Truck Driver Beats Out Gasoline Flames With His Bare Hands

Flaming gasoline resulting when a truck crashed into a concession owned by Wesley Evans, nearly spelled disaster for the Midway at Madoc Fair on Wednesday.

Only quick action by Evans who beat out the flames with his hands after tearing down part of the wooden structure, saved a more serious trouble. Mrs. Evans, who was in the concession at the time, was sprayed with the flaming liquid, and had her dress ruined before she managed to extinguish the fire that ignited her clothes.

The incident occurred when the driver of the heavy truck, struck a car while attempting to turn his vehicle around in the narrow laneway between concessions in the main part of the Midway. Losing temporary control the driver swerved his truck, which crashed into Evans' wood and canvas built concession. A gasoline stove was hurled to the ground with flaming liquid spouting in the air, and igniting the canvas sides of the structure.

Evans leaped on a box, and tore down the light superstructure of the blazing concession, beating out the flames with his hands and feet. Nearby concessionaires rushed to the burning concession and assisted Evans in extinguishing the blaze.

SAYS PEACE POLICY SAVED

they will be aiding you in the cause."

"I have been charged with cowardice, weakness, presumption and stupidity," Mr. Chamberlain proceeded. "I have been accused of bringing the country to the edge of war and have been denied the merit of snatching it back to safety.

"Nobody who had been through what I had to go through, day after day, faced with the thought that in the last resort it would be I, and I alone, who had to say that yes or no which would decide the fate of millions of my countrymen, their wives and families, could readily forget it.

Conscience Only Matters.

"For that reason I am not here in a mood to try to see what I can do by way of retort. When a man gets to my age and fills my position, I think he tends to feel that criticism and even abuse matters little to him. It is his conscience that matters."

Looking back on recent events, the prime minister said he felt convinced his actions had averted war.

"I claim no credit for my actions," he added, "for it was only what anyone in my position would feel it his duty to do. I am equally sure I was right in doing it."

The prime minister, who was frequently interrupted by cheers from his supporters, declared war today was a different thing from what it used to be, not only in degree but in kind. In the very first hour, if war started today, before any of the professional forces had been touched, it would strike the workman, the clerk, the man in the street, and his wife and children in their homes.

Vital Cause.

"You cannot ask people to accept such a prospect unless you feel yourself, and can make them feel, that the cause for which they are going to fight is a vital cause—a cause that transcends all ordinary human values and a cause to which you can point, if some day you win a victory, and say that cause is safe."

There was also the important consideration of the British Empire.

"You may think we are the country that is directly affected in such cases," he continued. "But the dominions have the right to be brought into consultation before we take a step which might have incalculable consequences for them."

Pheasant Shoot To Be Held on Amherst Island

Hunters who cherish pheasant shooting will be afforded a three-day shoot of pheasants on Amherst Island, near Kingston, some time during the months of November according to information received by Game Inspector Herb McCabe today.

Although the dates set for the proposed open pheasant shoot on Amherst Island have not definitely been announced it was revealed, that the three day shoot would in all probability be conducted during the month of November along the same lines as those on Pelee Island.

Three years ago an extensive stocking of Amherst Island with pheasants was conducted by the Game and Fishery Department of the Ontario Government and the island declared closed for hunting for three years. Yesterday 500 additional cock birds were released by the department on Amherst Island and in order to assure good shooting during the proposed open three days for pheasant hunting, Inspector McCabe revealed today.

"There are 1,100 acres of cranberry marsh on Amherst Island, which proves as a splendid feeding bed for the pheasants placed on the island three years ago. The pheasants on the island have multiplied quite satisfactorily, which no doubt prompted the department in its decision to permit a pheasant shoot on Amherst Island next month," declared the Inspector today.

A pheasant shoot on the island will doubtless bring hundreds of hunters in quest of a full bag of birds. As is the custom on Pelee Island, however, individual hunters will only be permitted to shoot a designated number of birds. The number of birds to be shot and the date of the shoot will be announced by the Department at a later date.

ANGLO-ITALIAN ACCORD FORESEEN

Mussolini Expected To Lay Proposal Before Grand Council

Rome, Oct. 6 (AP)—Diplomatic sources said today Great Britain had submitted proposals for an accord with Italy in the fourth successive daily call of the Earl of Perth—British Ambassador—on Foreign Minister Galeazzo Ciano.

Details of the plan to make effective immediately a settlement of Anglo-Italian differences were not ascertained.

Since the Anglo-Italian Easter agreement was made conditional upon the withdrawal of Italian forces from Spain, it was believed the British government might have proposed to Italy to withdraw at least some of the infantrymen fighting for General Franco.

Premier Mussolini was expected to lay the British plan before the Fascist Grand Council when it meets tonight.

Rumors have circulated for several days that Italy was prepared to withdraw from the Spanish civil war some infantrymen without reducing aviation, artillery and other specialized forces there.

Recognition of Italy's Ethiopian conquest, in line with the projected French recognition, was expected in diplomatic circles to be part of the plan.

Police Blotter

Frank Mitchell, Belleville, was arrested in Toronto yesterday on a warrant issued in this city charging him with the non-support of his family. Today Plainclothes Constable Fred Isard left for Toronto to bring Mitchell to Belleville where he will be arraigned in Friday's police court. It is the second time Mitchell has been brought back from Toronto on the same charge within some months.

Gordon A. Mickel, 25 St. Paul Street was detained at the police station yesterday for questioning regarding the theft of a quantity of iron, the property of the Stephen-Adamson Company. After questioning Mickel he was permitted to return home, Plainclothes Constable Fred Isard preferring charges which will be heard in local police court, tomorrow.

A charge of leaving the scene of an accident was preferred against Michael Meraw, Jr., Tweed, by Chief Clare Hayes of that village yesterday the charge followed a motor accident in Tweed yesterday when a motor car said by Chief Hayes to have been driven by Meraw, was in collision with another motor car, driven by a Mr. Dow of Shannonville on Victoria Street in Tweed and during which considerable damage resulted to Dow's car.

It is alleged Meraw, after colliding with Dow, continued on without stopping: Meraw was arraigned before a Justice of the Peace and the case enlarged until October 13th.

Teachers' Convention Opens in City Today

Over one hundred members of the South Hasting's Teachers' Institute met at Queen Alexandra School this morning for their annual convention. Mr. C. A. Brown of this city was chairman and welcomed those present, at the first session of the two-day program. Tomorrow through the kindness of Group Captain A. E. Godfrey, the teachers will enjoy a tour through the airport.

The convention was formally opened this morning by devotional exercises by Rev. E. M. Cook, who brought to the teachers an inspirational message to go farther afield, so that they might teach from the overflow of the mind. He expressed sincere wishes for the success of the convention.

The reports of the secretary-treasurer, Mr. C. I. Frederick, were taken, as read.

Sixty children of St. Michael's Academy were heard in an interesting musical program arranged by Sister Mary Joan of Arc, who is in charge of the musical instruction at the Academy. The numbers included "The Rover", a two part English song; and "A-Hunting We Will Go", the old English air, with descant. These were sung in splendid voice by the youthful singers. A duet by Carol Kiser and Robert Flurey, "Golden Slumbers Kiss Your Eyes," a 17th century cradle song, was beautifully rendered.

Miss Mildred Lloyd, gifted Belleville elocutionist, delighted the audience with her interpretation of "On Being Clinic-ed."

Tells of Toronto Meeting

A stimulating paper, a report of the O. E. A. convention, was given by J. E. Bateman, who represented South Hastings teachers in Toronto. The annual meeting, he said was particularly interesting because it brought out detailed discussion of the new course of study. The various speakers emphasized the idea that the new course was not a cure-all for the educational "blues", but that its success, as that of all educational endeavour in the past, was based on integrity, industry, common sense and real hard work.

As pointed out by the Chief Inspector, Mr. Grier, the course was simply a new understanding of an old subject. Three aspects were to be commended, the fact that it made the pupils more interested in the work, gave the teacher more choice in the matter of subject, and made child the centre of its purpose, not the subject. The present plan was not to be regarded as permanent, but would be revised from year to year.

Mr. Bateman crystallized the messages of each speaker and brought to his hearers a clear view of educational matters as reviewed by outstanding leaders of the teaching profession at the annual meeting in Toronto.

In the absence of Sister Mary Hilda, through illness, Mr. L. Kells spoke on the advantages of attending summer courses. Behind the department's insistence that teachers strive for higher standing was the principle that a teacher forges ahead or falls behind. For this reason a "permanent" certificate can no longer be regarded as "permanent." The teacher must continue to study to maintain his or her status in the profession.

Speaks on Summer Courses

Mr. Kells told of the various courses in which he had registered at summer school, and the direct bearing these had had on the teaching of subjects in the present course. All wide-awake teachers should take summer courses. On the other hand the speaker warned against the danger of being too enthusiastic over summer study to the exclusion of other equally important developments. Recreation, social life, and travel, with a background of study, made a well rounded program for the successful teacher.

Miss Pearl Campbell, representing the Women Teachers' Association, gave a helpful talk on the advantages of being a member of this organization in which there were enrolled already 4,648 teachers in Ontario. The Western provinces had similar associations, all working for the interests of the teachers. Miss Campbell outlined the phases of Federation enterprises that would be particularly of interest, stressing the sick benefit plan, the information service, the superannuation arrangements, and the Board of Reference which mediates in cases of friction between teacher and trustees.

The following committees held special sessions during the noon hour: Nomination Committee—Mr. F. W. Sherbert, Mr. W. L. Christie, Miss Ena Kerr, Miss H. Justice. Resolutions Committee—Mr. George Wallace, Mr. J. Warren, Mrs. W. Sine, Miss H. Walker, Sister Mary Avita.

Officers of the Association are: Inspector, Mr. H. J. Clarke, B.A.; Honorary President, Mr. H. J. Clarke, B.A.; President, Mr. C. A. Brown; Vice President, Miss Mary Cowain; Delegate to O. E. A., Mr. J. E. Bateman; Alternate Delegate, Mr. W. D. White; Auditors, Mr. Harold Mott, Mr. Milton Fowler, Secretary-Treasurer, C.I. Frederick.

Rawdon Twp. Recluse Found in His Cabin Starved to Death

Marmora, Oct. 6.— Starvation ended the life of Albert Jones, 67, of Rawdon Township, a hermit for the last four years, Coroner Eagleson decided.

The body of the recluse was found early last night by George Wellman, a farmer of the neighborhood. Only two potatoes and part of a bottle of pickles were in the cabin. It was thought he died some time yesterday.

Jones lived in a log cabin about three miles southwest of this town. Mr. Wellman went to get him to work for him. When there was no answer to his knocking, he forced the door and found the body.

Constable A. Dymond of Madoc investigated, later calling Coroner Eagleson, who decided there would be no inquest. Jones rarely appeared in public, only coming to town to buy groceries. He is survived by two brothers, one, Robert, who lives in Marmora, and the other living in the United States.

GERMANY GIVEN

Occupy 4th Zone

A few hours later the supreme army command announced that German troops had crossed the former German - Czechoslovak frontier for occupation of the fourth zone on the schedule agreed upon by the four-power conference at Munich Sept. 30.

(Berlin dispatches published in Paris said Czechoslovak and British members of the International Commission had been told by Germany that they could grant Germany the new territories or Nazi armies would take it—even at the risk of war which the Munich accord was designed to prevent.

(These reports said the Munich accord, which had been explained to the French people as a "peace with honor," had now been converted to almost exactly the terms of Hitler's Godesberg untimatum—demanding cession of certain Sudeten territories by Oct. 1.)

No Plebiscite

The new territory of zone five was granted Germany without the formality of a plebiscite. It deepened the zones previously marked out at Munich to take in a number of towns around the western half of Czechoslovakia.

Among important sections of the new territory were the coal basin of Dux and Bruex; the glass-manufacturing city of Gablonz and the textile centre at Reichenberg.

In area, it is approximately one-fourth of the 20,000 square-mile Sudeten area claimed by Germany

The International Commission chartered the new zone as Germany prepared to bill Czechoslovakia for "reparations" dating back to 1918 and after the Commission had accepted the German contention that Oct. 18, 1918, should be the date for determining where the people will be called upon to vote on union with Germany.

Under the Commission's agreement, a 51 per cent German population would be enough to declare any city, village or district German.

Dealings On New Basis

While the reparations demand was considered a lever to force Czechoslovakia into Germany's economic system, officials and industrial circles predicted that with the resignation of President Benes of Czechoslovakia, Germany's dealings with Prague would be placed on an entirely new basis.

Benes had been the most objectionable person in the eyes of official Germany.

With his disappearance from the scene came realization of Hitler's prophetic words in the Berlin sportpalast rally of Sept. 26, referring indirectly to Benes as the possible number two statesman would have to disappear for not heeding the Fuehrer's previous warning.

The first statesman who opposed Hitler's will — former Chancellor Kurt Von Schuschnigg of Austria—is now a prisoner in the hands of Nazi authorities.

THREE SCHOOL HOUSES WITHIN ONE FENCE

Orangeville, Ont., Oct. 7 (CP)—Surrounded by one fence and all in one line stand three school houses, monuments to the memory of the settlers of school section No. 4, Amaranth Township who struggled to obtain education. All of a different period, the buildings have served rural residents of that district since 1875.

SOPHOMORES REVERSE ESTABLISHED ORDER

Toronto, Ont., 7 (CP)—This is one time of the year Freshmen and Co-eds of the Ontario College of Pharmacy will not be dated up, nor will they want their friends to see them. The Sophomores have decreed the Freshmen must wear goatees and the Co-eds must not use lipstick, powder, rouge or cosmetics in any form.

EXHIBITOR AT FAIR FOR 72 YEARS

Ridgetown, Ont., Oct. 7 (CP)—Consistency has played a large part in the life of Mrs. Freeman Green, 84. For the past 72 years she has never missed an entry in the Ridgetown fair. At the age of 12, she made her first entry with a loaf of bread. Out of 37 entries this year the age lady won 11 firsts and eight seconds.

VOTER SLEEPS IN RURAL HALF OF HIS HOME

Mobile, Ala., Oct. 7 (AP)—City officials have a problem in deciding the legality of Oliver Haas' vote—all because he moved his bedroom. The city line extends through Haas' home and he pays city taxes only on the city half of his property, sleeps in the "rural" half. It's up to city officials to decide whether Haas' place of residence is decided by his waking or sleeping abode.

Why the Weather?

Absolute humidity! We seldom hear of this term, but it means the actual amount of water vapor in the air. This varies considerably not only in the surface layers but with elevation. The amount in the air may be expressed as so many grains of water in a cubic foot of air. On a settled day this actual amount does not vary as much as may be supposed. There is least water in the air just before sunrise and most about noontime. This is because the coolness of the night produces dew and this process dries the air somewhat while beginning with sunrise evaporation commences, thus adding moisture to the air. Later in the afternoon ascensional currents carry some of this moisture air to higher altitudes, and winds also aid greatly to distribute it along the surface.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 7 (CP)—The weather has been cool throughout the Dominion with light showers occurring in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Northwestern Ontario. Frost occurred last night in many parts of Ontario, Quebec and New Brunswick, also in Alberta and Northern Saskatchewan. Pressure is low over the Mackenzie valley and Alaska, and a shallow trough exists over Rainy River district to the southwest states, while high pressure covers the eastern portions of Canada and the United States and the Prairie Provinces.

Lake Superior—Moderate to fresh southerly winds; cloudy with scattered showers. Saturday, moderate to fresh northwest and west winds; partly cloudy and comparatively cool.

Manitoba — Moderate to fresh northwest winds; partly cloudy and cool. Saturday, fair and becoming somewhat milder.

Saskatchewan and Alberta—Fair today and Saturday and becoming somewhat milder.

JEWS FORBIDDEN TO INTER-MARRY WITH ITALIANS

Italy Strikes At 'World Hebrewism' As Inspirer of Anti-Fascism

SANCTUARY IN ETHIOPIA

Jewish Immigration Banned And Expulsion of Undesirables Supported

By G. C. JORDAN

Rome, Oct. 7 (AP)—Italy struck at "World Hebrewism" as the "inspirer of anti-Fascism" today by forbidding inter-marriage of Jews and Italians and restricting Jewish economic activity.

The Fascist Grand Council laid down the anti-Semitic regulations in a series of orders for "defence of the Italian race". Many of the new restrictions were directed against Jews, but the policy was drafted on broad lines to affect "African, Semitic and other races" than Italian.

The Grand Council declared the necessity for "race consciousness" to be urgent "since the conquest of empire", and called for "quantitive and qualitative betterment" of the Italian race.

Two Concessions.

It made two concessions to Jews in line with Premier Mussolini's promise of moderation in his speech at Trieste Sept. 18, exempting Jews who had served the country meritoriously in war and holding out the possibility of sanctuary for Jews in Ethiopia.

The mixed marriage ban forbade union of Italians and "African, Semitic and other races", and marriage of civilian and military employees of the state to "foreign women of whatever race". Other Italians were required to have the interior ministry's permission before a foreign marriage.

Special economic and political restrictions prohibited Italian Jews from belonging to the Fascist party, owning more than 50 hectares (123.5 acres) of land, or entering Italy's military services.

Immigration Banned.

Further Jewish immigration was banned and expulsion of "undesirables" was supported. This referred to the cabinet decree of Aug. 1, ordering all Jews who have settled in Italy since Jan. 1, 1919, to leave the country. Census figures published two days ago said there were about 70,000 Jews in Italy.

At Trieste, Mussolini stated the world would be surprised at the moderation of Italy's anti-Jewish measures.

The exceptions extended to families of decorated war veterans, of volunteers and of soldiers killed in

SAVE TERRITORY WHICH REMAINS SYROVY APPEALS

Appointment of Successor Not Yet Made By Czechoslovakia

PROTEST OF BROADCAST

Hitler May Make Important Announcement On Relations With France

Prague, Oct. 7 (AP)—Premier Jan Syrovy appealed to the army today not to commit any act that might "bring on intervention more cruel than the present situation" for what is left of Czechoslovakia.

"There is nothing to do," he told the troops, "but to reconcile ourselves to our fate.

"The government has decided to be loyal to the Munich agreement so as to be sure to save territory which remains. So forget your debates and useless quarrels and support those in front to work for reconstruction."

Slovaks' Problems.

Dr. Joseph Tiso, new premier of Slovakia, and eight representatives of the most important Slovak political parties, came here to discuss the Slovaks' role as an autonomous unit in the Czechoslovak Federal State. They came from Zilana, where the cheering Slovak populace celebrated its new autonomy within the republic.

The government announced it was uncertain when parliament would be summoned to elect a successor to resigned President, Eduard Benes. It explained the republic's shrunken frontiers still were not definitely fixed and it was impossible as yet to tell who remain in parliament and what deputies would be entitled to vote.

Hitler To Visit Saar.

Berlin, Oct. 7 (AP)—Government circles said today Chancellor Hitler may make an "important pronouncement" on Franco-German relations Sunday at Saarbruecken, in the Saar valley.

It was said if Field Marshal Hermann Goering gives him a favorable report on the status of negotiations with France, Hitler would use the occupation to express friendship with France in some way.

Geneva, Oct. 7 (AP)—The Czechoslovak delegation to the League of Nations today issued a statement protesting against what it called the continuation of anti-Czech broadcasts from German radio stations and expressing fears these might herald further German demands on the dismembered republic.

The communique said stations broadcast "completely unfounded" reports that the Czechoslovak army and disorganized Czech soldiers leaving Sudeten territory had pillaged German homes and seized the money of German citizens.

Eire Believes Time is Rife For Plebiscite in N. Ireland

Hope That Some of Six Counties May Join Eire Government

HISTORY OF 'NORTH'

Dublin, Oct. 7— (CP Cable) — Hopes of Eire Nationalists that a plebiscite might join to the state at least some of the six countries of Northern Ireland were raised today when it became known Prime Minister de Valera had told Prime Minister Chamberlain he believed the time was opportune for a plebiscite.

Mr. De Valera took the step when he called on Mr. Chamberlain at 10 Downing Street on his way home from Geneva where he served as President of the League of Nations Assembly.

The head of the Eire Government is undersood to have emphasized that the problem of minorities in Ireland must be taken up in any general settlement of European minority questions, but it was not admitted in Eire Government circles that the Irish minority problem was due to racial differences.

In County Down

Government circles argued that four of the six counties comprising Northern Ireland, —Down, Armagh, Tyrone, Fermanagh, Antrim and Londonderry—would come under Dublin's administration were a plebiscite held.

It was understood here a plebiscite was being sought for South County Down of which Mr. de Valera himself was for some years the elected representative in the Northern Ireland Parliament, at Belfast— although he never took his seat in that body. That part of the County is strongly Nationalistic in politics.

It was argued the Unionist majority in the Northeast corner of the country could not insist upon self-determination for itself while denying it to a large part of the six-county area—a portion in which a parish by parish plebiscite is sought.

History of North Ireland

A separate parliament for the six Northern Counties was set up at Belfast under a 1920 Act of the United Kingdom parliament. The following year, by treaty under which Dublin accepted Dominion status for the time being, the Irish bracing twenty-six counties. 'The Free State was constituted, emborder was fixed in December 1925.

At the end of 1937 the Free State became Eire under a new constitution which "declares that Ireland is a sovereign, independent, democratic state."

This constitution "applies to the whole of Ireland", its terms stated, "but it provides that, pending the reintegration of the national territory, the laws enacted by the parliament (at Dublin) established by the constitution shall have the same area and extent of application as those of the Irish Free State".

PRAGUE BECOMES MORE AND MORE A BESIEGED CITY

Fugitives Into Ancient Capital Reach Total of 800

PANICKY SCENES

By ALVIN STEINKOPF

Prague, Oct. 7 (AP) — Hostile forces were closing in on all sides today to give this ancient capital more and more the aspect of a besieged city.

The number of fugitives is increasing. A week ago 300 daily got temporary care at the Prague Deutsches Haus. The figure has jumped to 800.

All afternoon newspapers have dwindled to a single sheet to conserve paper. The municipality decided to keep open trenches dug in parks and about public buildings.

An army post office was established despite partial demobilization.

COMPROMISE ON SAILING COURSE

Thebaud And Bluenose To Meet Sunday In First Race

Gloucester, Mass., Oct. 7 (AP)—Two visitors who have long overstayed their leaves today pointed graceful bows toward Boston, off which port they will resume Sunday a dispute over which is entitled to wear the crown of the North Atlantic fishing fleets.

They were the schooners Gertrude L. Thebaud. Captain Ben Pine's Gloucester challenger for the International Fishermen's Trophy, emblematic of sailing supremacy on the ocean's most turbulent waste, and Captain Angus Walters' Bluenose, the Canadian defender.

A last minute compromise ended a dispute over the course to be sailed and cleared the way for today's departure for Boston.

The compromise gave the schooners the 18-mile twice-round course for the opening race Sunday, a 36-mile once-around triangle on Tuesday, and double 18-mile triangle on Thursday and the single 36-mile circuit on Sunday, Oct. 16. If a fifth race is necessary, the rival skippers will toss a coin to decide which course to use.

Thebaud and Bluenose will be meeting for the third time. Thebaud won from Bluenose in 1930, and Bluenose carried away the honors the following year.

CZECHOSLOVAKIA AND GERMANY TO HAVE CLOSE BONDS

Remnants of Old Country To Become Preponderantly Agrarian

HELP DEVELOPMENT

By LOUIS LOCHNER

Berlin, Oct. 7 (AP)—Nazi circles predicted confidently today that remnants of Czechoslovakia soon would have close economic bonds with Germany.

The ties would be so firm, they said, that even transfer of Czechoslovak populations on a large scale from the "wrong" side of the new borders to the "right side" might prove unnecessary.

They pointed out Czechoslovakia had lost most of its industrial areas to Germany and Poland and would become a preponderantly agrarian country.

Germany is the only nation which

DALADIER WORKS ON NEW PLANS

Hopes To Rebuild French Economic And Financial Structure

Paris, Oct. 7 (AP) — Premier Edouard Daladier worked today on plans to rebuild the French economic and financial structure under parliament-given decree powers.

So insistent was Daladier that he be allowed to work "in calm and silence" that he threatened "necessary punishment" if newspapers refused to halt discussion of possible measures dealing with the country's economic life.

The entire Paris press published the statement, read by Daladier personally to assembled newspaper representatives, but many papers continued to analyse various measures they thought open to the premier.

Some few papers commended the statement. The Conservative Figaro suggested France needed a special Board of Censors to control news and editorial discussion in "periods of international tension".

Daladier indicated it would be some time before his financial decrees would be ready for publication. Some observers placed the probable date as late as Nov. 1.

KING AND QUEEN HOST TO GHILLIES

Balmoral, Scotland, Oct. 7 (CP-Havas)—The king and queen were hosts in Balmoral Castle last night at a ball given for the services, tenants and ghillies on the royal estates at Deeside.

The Duke and Duchess of Kent also attended and joined the royal couple and their guests in the old-time dances featuring the program.

CHAMBERLAIN TAKES HOLIDAY

Will Study Some of Problems Facing Britain For Solution

London, Oct. 7 (AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain headed today for a holiday in Scotland, where he might ponder what may be the next Nazi challenge to British diplomacy — demands for return of former German colonies.

When members of parliament yesterday voted endorsement of Mr. Chamberlain's settlement with Chancellor Hitler, the situation returned largely to its pre-crisis status except in Czechoslovakia, which has vanished as an important ally of Great Britain, France and Russia.

Colonial Problem.

Within the next twenty-five days before parliament reconvenes Nov. 1, these problems will be studied:

1. Germany's demand that Great Britain and others return colonies taken from the Reich at the end of the Great War;
2. Italian intervention in Spain, which is holding up fulfilment of the Anglo-Italian agreement;
3. Economic re-alignment of the Danubian states, being drawn into Germany's trade orbit at the expense of Great Britain, France and Italy;
4. Economic and political adjustment of Czechoslovakia, which would be lost to her former friends if Germany realizes Nazi hopes of a customs union with the dismembered republic;
5. Intensification of Britain's rearmament, described during the crisis as inadequate to cope with modern war.

One unanswered question was whether Great Britain would resist Germany's desire for colonial expansion.

Revised Catechism to Define Civic Duties as Obligations

Pay 'Just Debts' And Defence of Country Duties

DOCTRINE UNCHANGED

Washington, Oct. 7 (AP)—National officials of the Roman Catholic Confraternity of Christian Doctrine said yesterday that proposed revision of the Catholic Catechism, defining certain civic duties as religious obligations, "in no sense means a change in the doctrinal content of the Catechism".

"The revision, however, has taken into consideration modern methods of teaching, which are thought to be of advantage to pupils in learning the Catholic religion and in applying it to daily life," a formal statement from the Confraternity said.

Among the responsibilities listed in the revised version, officials said, are: To pay "just taxes"; to vote regularly "without selfish purpose", and to defend the "country's rights" even with life, if necessary.

Seize All Flowers on Route of March Hitler Tells Nazi Party Leaders

Fuehrer At Time Making Triumphal Tour of Fourth Zone

SCRATCHED ON FACE

Ban Placed To Save Chancellor From Being Seriously Hurt

Berlin, Oct. 7 (AP)—Chancellor Hitler was slightly injured in the face today when an over-enthusiastic Sudetenlander tossed a bouquet of flowers at the Fuehrer, making a triumphal tour of the Fourth Zone of occupation.

Dispatches from the Sudetenland reporting the incident did not say just where it occurred.

As a result of the mishap the Fuehrer issued a general order that Nazi party leaders henceforth will be held personally responsible for seeing to it that flowers are taken away from all persons along his line of march.

Even small bouquets in the hands of spectators must be seized.

Admonished By Radio

The population also was admonished strongly by broadcast to refrain from saying it with flowers. Afternoon papers published warnings against flower throwing.

Hitler today visited the first part of the Fourth Zone of occupation, on the northern fringe of Central Czechoslovakia. The German army marched into this district yesterday and was to complete occupation today.

Field Marshal Hermann Goering accompanied the Fuehrer.

Hitler's Face Scratched

Authoritative reports said Hitler's face was scratched when he was hit squarely by a big bunch of roses. However, the injury was so slight that medical attention was not needed.

A Government spokesman said the only reason for giving it publicity was the danger that the thorns on the roses might easily have injured the Fuehrer's eyes, with the possible loss of eyesight.

"Hitler always looks the crowds squarely in the face, therefore anything thrown at him is likely to hit him in the eye," he said. "It was fortunate that this time there were only slight scratches on his face."

Seize On Occasion

It was explained further that the Government was glad to seize on this occasion for stopping flower-throwing at the Fuehrer once and for all.

"It is understandable, of course, that the people in their great enthusiasm try to give expression thereto by throwing flowers," the spokesman said. "It is hard, however, to make the people realize that they might be endangering the Fuehrer. But after this incident they will understand why in future flowers must be forbidden."

Washington, Oct. 7 (AP)—A record-breaking total of $204,844,905 worth of gold came into the United States in the week ended Sept. 30.

CROLL TO RUN FOR MAYORALTY

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 7 (CP)—David Croll, former Welfare Minister in Premier Hepburn's Liberal Government, announced today he would seek the Windsor mayoralty at the forthcoming civic election.

Mr. Croll resigned from the Hepburn cabinet in the spring of 1937 after a difference of opinion with Mr. Hepburn over labor policies of the administration.

Mr. Croll, who was mayor of Windsor before its amalgamation with four other municipalities, said one of his election platforms was eliminating outside control of Windsor affairs. Windsor, as a defaulting municipality, has been under supervision of the Ontario Government for several years.

Mustard Gas To Be Feared In Next War

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 7 (CP)—British military authorities believe that mustard gas is the main thing to fear in the next war, Lieut. R. M. Crowe of the Royal Canadian Regiment told a dinner meeting here last night of the Essex-Kent Chemical Society.

Crowe returned recently from a special course in the British army on the use of chemicals in modern warfare. "Mustard gas is the worst," Crowe said. "Because it is particularly non-volatile and remains effective in both liquid and vapor forms for weeks and even months. It raises sore blisters on the skin and causes blindness if it attacks the eyes."

HALF OF FLIGHT REPORTED OVER

Pick-a-Back Plane Attempting To Break Non-Stop Record

London, Oct. 7 (AP)—The British Pick-a-Back seaplane Mercury was reported almost half way to Cape Town, South Africa, today on her attempt to make a 6,370-mile flight from Dundee, Scotland, and break the world non-stop distance record.

The Imperial Airways station at Alexandria, Egypt, intercepted signals from the Mercury at 6:35 a.m. GMT (1:35 a.m. EST) indicating the plane had almost crossed the Sahara Desert and was approaching equatorial Africa.

The plane was released from its mother ship yesterday for the attempt to better the 6,296-mile mark made by three Soviet Russian airmen on a flight from Moscow to the United States by way of the North Pole in July, 1937.

The Mercury is due in Cape Town tomorrow morning.

'LUNGE EATS CARP

Lindsay, Ont., Oct. 7 (CP)—Game Overseer Alfred Hodgson arrived today with proof that maskinonge eat carp. The proof was supplied at Lunge Haven, Sturgeon Lake, when Gilbert Clarke, Cleveland, Ohio, caught a 19-pound 'lunge. When the fish was drawn, preparatory to shipping it to the United States, a two pound carp was discovered in its stomach, the game overseer stated.

SHOOTING PERIODS FOR PARTRIDGE NAMED

Game Inspector Herb McCabe today announced there had been provisions made for two open shooting periods for the hunting of partridge in Ontario this fall. The two periods are of five days duration; from October 10th to the 15th inclusive and from November 5th to the 10th inclusive. This open season is not applicable in the various sections of the province where regulated game preserve areas have been established.

A limit has been attached the shooting of the above mentioned game birds, however. The limits of catch will be five birds per day and fifteen birds over the entire season, that is no person may take any more than 15 birds during the two periods mentioned as open season for the current hunting season.

Where's Elmer?!

EDITOR COMPLAINS OF EARLY SHOOTING

According to Maurice Detlor, editor of the Deseronto Post in an article in the current issue of The Post: "The wild duck has a hard time under existing conditions. Ducks are being shot before sunrise and after sunset, and why: There is no game Warden living who can cover Hay Bay, Napanee River, Big Island at Northport, Mud Creek and other places along the Bay of Quinte. The first month of duck shooting there should be additional deputies sworn in to enforce the law, and make duck hunters respect the regulations," the article states.

As a result Mr. Dempsey will receive a deluxe copy of the history of the Holstein-Friesian breed of pure-bred cattle.

LOVE OF HONEY CAUSE OF DEATH

His love of honey caused the death of a 250-pound black bear at Cordova this week, believed to be the same animal that has caused considerable apprehension among farmers of the district who have been worried over the loss of sheep and orchard destruction. Raiding the farm of Carl Purdy near Cordova the bear turned over two hives of bees and was busily engaged in wrecking them when the owner discovered him at work. Summoning Mr. Ed. Bowen with his rifle, the bear wash later tracked down and shot.

OBITUARY

JACK KILTY
(Lonsdale)

After an illness of six weeks' duration Jack Kilty, late residence in the third concession of Tyendinaga, near Lonsdale, Ont., passed away at the Belleville General Hospital on Thursday evening, October 6.

The late Mr. Kilty was 61 years of age; his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. David Kilty. For the past eighteen years he made his home with Mrs. Walsh and the late Edward Walsh near Lonsdale. He was well known and highly respected in the community. In religion he was a faithful member of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church at Marysville. He leaves no close relatives.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

LATE SETO CHEW

The funeral of Seto Chew, a native of China, took place from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street, Thursday afternoon, Oct. 6th. The service in the chapel and at the graveside in Belleville Cemetery was conducted by the Rev James Semple, pastor of Bridge Street United Church.

Bearers were fellow-countrymen.

ERNEST MONCK
(Kingston)

Information received in the city shortly after noon today brought news of the death at the home of his son Albert, at 139 Mack street, Kingston, of Ernest Monck, former resident of this city.

The deceased was in his early eighties, and had been ill for some time. He was born in Cornwall, England, and came to Canada in 1909.

He leaves to mourn his passing four sons, Albert, of Kingston, who was manager of the Belleville branch of the Prudential Insurance Co. before he moved to Kingston this year, and who resided at 149 Charles street prior to his leaving the city; Sidney, Hamilton; Stanley, Galt; and Edward, London, Ont.; and two daughters, Miss Ivy Monck, Toronto, and Mrs. J. Chapman, Napanee.

The body is lying at Cornelius Funeral Parlors in Kingston until tonight when it will be transferred to Chesley, Ont., for burial.

TEACHERS VISIT AIRPLANE BASE

Members of the teaching profession from the inspectorates of South Hastings and Lennox and Addington had the privilege this morning of spending the convention session at the Trenton Airport where officers conducted them through a tour of the station.

The visitors assembled at the Administration Building at nine-thirty and were divided into groups with four officers as guides. The hangars were visited and various types of plane inspected, the guides courteously and efficiently answering the seemingly endless questions of the interested spectators.

The purpose of the various buildings were explained and the teachers were shown through the dining hall, where the spotless and attractive kitchen was the admiration of the feminine visitors, and the appetizing food being prepared compelled the attention of the masculine teachers. Various other buildings were open to the delegation, and the officers regretted the fact that the main Administration Building could not be visited as lectures were in session. The seaplane base was an interesting point in the tour. It was explained that the Airport housed one thousand men, with one hundred and twenty-five offisers Sixty planes are in use.

The tour concluded at noon after a most interesting phase of the convention. The teachers are grateful to Wing Commander A. E. Godfrey through whose kindness the visit was possible.

H. D. Bateman Recommended as City Assessor

At the regular committee meeting of city council held last evening, it was recommended that the city solicitor be instructed to prepare a bylaw authorizing the appointment of Harold D. Bateman, as city assessor at a salary of $1800 per annum, to take office on October 15th. It is understood that 23 applications for position of assessor and five for assistant were received and read.

Whether the projected construction of the new firehall addition to No 1 hall will be deferred until the year 1940 will depend upon the report of the city engineer as to the cost of all repairs considered necessary to put present fire buildings in shape until that year, it was indicated by a second recommendation passed in committee. In the recommendation it was requested that the city engineer bring in a report to council as to the condition of the present fire halls and the cost of an repairs considered essential to keeping these buildings in repair until December 31, 1940.

WILL DEMOLISH FORMER HOTEL

Imperial Oil Co. Will Erect Filling Station On Site of Old International Hotel' Near Upper Bridge

Work will be commenced on Monday morning next demolishing the buildings numbered 387 to 393 on the east side of Front Street, immediately opposite the upper bridge. When the property is cleared the Imperial Oil Company will erect a modern gas filling station upon the property which extends through to Pinnacle Street. The main building to be demolished was for many years known as the International Hotel The property is owned by the estate of the late Ald. John Doyle and has been leased to the Imperial Oil Company for a term of years.

NEW CAR ADDED BY FORD COMPANY

'Mercury 8' Will Have Hydraulic Brakes And Advanced Features

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 7—Confirming rumours which have been in circulation for months, Wallace R. Campbell, President of Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, announced today that a new car, bearing its own distinctive name, and selling in the lower medium-price range, would be added to the Ford-Lincoln line shortly before the New York Automobile Show.

The new car will be known as the "Mercury 8." It will have a wheelbase of 116 inches, a V-8 engine more powerful than any hitherto marketed by the Ford company; hydraulic brakes and numerous advanced mechanical features, the announcement said.

Its flowing lines will reflect the modern streamlined styling pioneered three years ago by the Lincoln-Zephyr, which, according to current press reports has inspired to an important degree, the design of a number of other new cars now being prepared for the market.

One of the features of the new car is the unusually wide and roomy interior with passenger space equal to that of many cars selling at considerable higher prices. Upholstery and appointments will be luxurious and styled in keeping with the car's modern exterior design.

Mr. Campbell said the new car would be priced in the range between the de luxe Ford V-8 and the V-12 Lincoln-Zephyr, and would enable the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, with five lineups of cars, which include also the Ford V-8 and the V-12 Lincoln, to bracket the market in which more than 90 percent of all cars today are bought.

MISS M. COWAIN TO HEAD TEACHERS

South Hastings Teachers' Convention Names Officers For Next Term

Teachers of the inspectorates of South Hastings, and of Lennox and Addington, are guests today of officials at the Trenton Airport, which they are visiting in connection with the teachers' conventions, through the kindness of Wing Commander A. E. Godfrey.

Yesterday afternoon at a session of the South Hastings' Teachers' convention held in Queen Alexandra School, Miss Mary Cowain was elected president of the organization. The other officers are as follows:

Inspector, Mr. H. J. Clarke, B.A.; Honorary President, Mr. H. J. Clarke, B.A.; President, Miss Mary Cowain; Vice President, Mr. E. S. Fairman; Delegate to O.E.A., Miss Marion Bedford; Alternate Delegate, Miss Marion Martin; Auditors, Mr. H. R. Frink, Mr. L. A. Kells; Secretary - Treasurer, Mr. C. I. Frederick; Executive Committee, Belleville, Mr. J. E. Bateman; Sidney, Mr. Martin; Thurlow, Mr. Harry Bates; Trenton, Miss E. Black; Separate Schools, Miss Mary Haffey.

Change In Examinations

An interesting part of the afternoon's program was an address by Inspector H. J. Clarke, B.A. He announced that in 1939 there would be a change in the examination program of those pupils who had to write the entrance examinations. There would be only about five papers. A full announcement would soon be made by the Chief Inspector.

Mr. Clarke discussed in detail common errors in making up registers and suggested to the teachers ways in which these difficulties could be overcome.

The speaker also explained the new Board of Reference from a memorandum issued by the Department of Education. Each year the Minister of Education, either directly or through his officials, is called upon to give attention to disputes arising between school boards and teachers. When these are investigated, it is found that frequently they are due to misunderstandings or lack of co-operation between the teachers and the boards concerned. It sometimes happens that teachers who have been doing very satisfactory work are dismissed without sufficient cause. It has also been found that occasionally teachers, who, by taking office without signing written contracts, have not complied with the requirements of the school statutes, have resigned their positions at inopportune times, to the embarrassment of the board and injury to the school. To enable the Minister to provide a clearing-house for disputes arising out of such situations, the Legislature, at the session held in 1938, passed a Bill entitled "An Act respecting Disputes between Teachers and Boards." A copy of this Act is being sent to each secretary-treasurer, and copies will be sent to the Inspectors for distribution to the teachers.

How To Adjust Disputes

This Act permits a teacher or a board, at any time within ten days after the engagement between the two parties has been terminated in writing, to apply to the Minister for a Board of Reference, setting forth in the application the nature of the dispute which has arisen. The Minister may, after receiving a deposit as security for costs, direct a Judge to act as Chairman of the Board of Reference, to which each of the parties concerned will be asked to name a representative. The Board so appointed will then investigate the case and report to the Minister. In the meantime the board of trustees is not permitted to make any permanent appointment of a teacher to replace the teacher dismissed. The Minister will present the findings of the Board of Reference to each of the parties concerned.

In concluding his address Mr. Clarke referred to the fact that in 1939 he reached the superannuation age for civil servants. He took this opportunity of telling the teachers that he appreciated to the full the co-operation they had always shown him. Since he had taken over the inspectorate thirty one years ago, there had been many changes. The professional standing of the teachers had been raised, the school buildings improved, and salaries have increased. But these improvements would not have come about, the speaker said, had it not been for the cooperation of those with whom he had been associated during his term as inspector. The relationship that had existed for thirty-one years between inspector and teachers was very dear to his heart.

Resolutions Passed

The Resolutions' Committee expressed thanks to Miss Lloyd, the pupils of St. Michael's Academy, and Jack Marsh, for their part in the convention program; extended sympathy to those who might have suffered bereavement during the year; recommended that the secretary be given the usual salary and that a grant of $3 be given to the caretaker of the school for extra work in connection with the convention; extended to the Belleville School Board thanks for the use of Queen Alexandra School for the sessions on Thursday; recommended that the library books be left in their present location; that a letter of thanks be written the Airport officials for their kindness in making possible Friday's tour and that the secretary write the Department of Education asking that Mr. Clarke's term of office be extended. All of these resolutions were unanimously adopted.

Master Jack Marsh added to the enjoyment of those present with two solos, "Cathedral in the Pines," and "Rainbow on the River," both executed in a very fine manner.

The convention concluded with grade meetings under the following chairmen: Rural, Mr. Harry Bates; Grade 1, Miss Mary Lockhart; Grade 2, Miss E. Burkett; Grade 3, Miss Hazel Walker; Grade 4, Miss Bessie McKibbon; Grade 5, Miss Lillian Hart; Grade 6, Miss Frances Sullivan; Grade 7, Mr. George Wallace; Grade 8, Mr. A. C. Wilkin.

Important Cheese Meeting Called

Two important cheese meetings which will be held in Campbellford and Peterborough districts within the next two weeks are called to the attention of dairymen of the section. Peterborough factory patrons will meet on Thursday evening, October 13, in the office of Frank Patterson, agricultural representative, in Peterborough, according to an announcement sent out by George Elliott, Norwood, president of the Peterborough county association.

The second meeting will be held on Saturday evening, October 22 at Campbellford and will be addressed by Mr. R. H. Mayberry of Ingersoll, one of four Canadians who attended the Empire marketing conference at Sydney, Australia last Spring. Discussion at both meetings will include recommendations and other business that will later be considered at Toronto, and finally at the Ontario Cheese Patrons' meeting at Ottawa.

JEWS FORBIDDEN

the Great, Libyan, Ethiopian and Spanish Wars, families of those killed or wounded in fighting for the Fascist cause.

In addition, the council exempted from the expulsion order foreign Jews over 65 years of age and all who had married Italians before Oct. 1, this year.

The decrees were made to apply to Italians whose parents were Jews, those whose parents professed the Jewish religion regardless of race, or those whose fathers were Jewish anti-Aryan.

Provisions regulating the activities of Jews in professions are to be made public later.

Some Guarantees Given.

Guarantees given Italian Jews were: Assurance of pension rights of public employees, freedom from "every form of pressure to make them abjure (presumably religion), the free exercise of their religion in accordance with existing laws, and special elementary and upper grade schools for Jews.

Jews previously had been excluded from present state-recognized schools and universities.

Although the Grand Council held forth the hope that Jews might be permitted to settle in "some parts of Ethiopia" it warned that this and possibly other concessions offered to Jews might be annulled or changed "according to the attitude which Hebrewism assumes toward Fascist Italy.

The council led off its Jewish declaration with a general statement on "world Hebrewism" which concluded:

"All anti-Fascist forces have Hebrew elements at their heads; world Hebrewism, here and in Spain, is to be found among the Bolshevists of Barcelona."

CONSERVATIVES

They were contained in an amendment to a motion calling for an April convention, a motion sponsored by Alderman George Sloane of Ottawa.

Two Prominent Candidates

At least two prominent candidates for the leadership have appeared, Leopold Macaulay, party legislative leader, and Col. George Drew, Toronto barrister, author and soldier who ran successfully as an Independent Conservative in the last provincial election. Col. Drew is a former party organizer.

Personally defeated in the general election, Mr. Rowe announced his resignation last July. "I would be very glad to be relieved at the earliest opportunity," he told the meeting. "It would be easier for me politically and personally and certainly not any harder financially."

Debate over the convention date occupied little more than 30 minutes. Supporters of the December date contended the party suffered without the leadership settled.

But in sponsoring the April-date motion, Alderman Sloane contended there was no great rush for a leader. No election was expected for two or three years, he said.

Must Be Unanimity

Mr. Rowe told the meeting there must be unanimity in selection of his successor and said he did not believe there had been, when he was selected two years ago. He warned delegates "not to be stampeded by too much desire for action."

A. R. Douglas, London, president of the Western Ontario Association, told the gathering that winter was a bad time for farmers and Northern Ontario residents. He urged the date for the convention be set in May, following the legislature session.

Gordon Fraser, Peterborough Association President, said his association had unanimously recommended Dec. 9 when farmers were better able to attend than during the spring seeding chores. Boos greeted a final attempt of Mr. Sloane to have the meeting consider an April date.

KIWANIS KARNIVAL POPULAR FUNCTION

This Year's Show To Be Staged In Armouries Oct. 18-21

The frost is on the pumpkin and farmers of the district are completing the harvest. Belleville Kiwanis Club is preparing for their annual Carnival and their harvest is going to be health, sunshine and better living conditions for a number of underprivileged children in this city and immediate district. It takes money to provide for many projects underway under Kiwanis auspices and the good people of Belleville have never failed the club in providing the necessary funds to carry on that work. True the club has always provided excellent entertainment for their guests at these annual functions and this year there will be no exception to the rule.

Under the chairmanship of Frank Domenico, the Karnival Committee have been actively engaged for some weeks past trying to arrange a program that will appeal to all classes and when the full program is announced it will be found the chairmen have done their work exceedingly well. This year the Carnival will be held in the Armouries and the dates are to be October 18th to 21st inclusive, which will give four nights of fun and frolic. Along with the regular show will be run a popularity contest and already seven girls are busy selling tickets, that will enable one of them to win a grand prize of $75.00; the second highest, $25.00; and the third highest, $10.00, while the purchaser of the lucky ticket may win $35.00; the second, $20.00 and the third, $10.00. Bruce Lattimer is in charge of this campaign with Miss Mary Forster looking after the contest.

The Fashion Show committee have arranged an excellent showing of the fall styles for women, younger set and sub debutante in a setting that will more effectively show the various styles. Entertainment will be provided by the best in the amusement world and the complete program will be announced later. Those who like to trip the light fantastic will have their innings also when a dance will be given each ight. The games committee will have a variety of games on which skill and ability can be tested.

PRAGUE BECOMES

The Provincial Bohemian Government met without its Sudeten German delegates. Mail from abroad virtually has been suspended.

Jews Quite Panicky.

There were panicky scenes as the circle of German occupation approached Prague. Jews, seeking to flee, feared being caught in Sudeten zones.

The Jews were afraid that violent anti-Semitism might develop. Jewish leaders here said most of the comparatively few Jews in Sudetenland—said to number 29,000—had fled before the German troops. Instances of mistreatment were reported to have occurred in the interval between the withdrawal of Czechoslovak troops and the arrival of the Germans.

Appeal Against Trickery.

Criticisms, resentment and anger followed receipt of news that an International Commission in Berlin had added a fifth zone to the four district a four-power conference in Munich had granted Germany.

"We were sold out once," some Czechoslovaks cried. "We are now being sold out again. Our hands are being tied. We appeal to the world to aid us against trickery at Berlin."

A propaganda ministry spokesman said the people were certain plebiscites arranged in the Munich agreement for areas of mixed population would be forgotten in the rapid surrounding of Bohemia.

Bohemia Pinched Off.

The Czechs said that many mixed and questionable districts were included by the Commission without asking the population what it wished to do.

It was expected that occupation of the fifth zone would cut the main railway between Prague and Budapest and that going to Brunn (Brno) 90 miles east of Prague, would mean crossing German-occupied territory.

The prospect was that Bohemia, in the west, would be pinched almost completely from the rest of the republic.

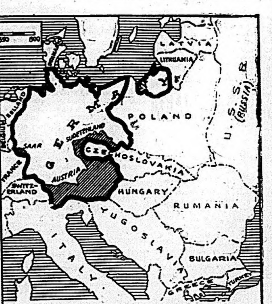
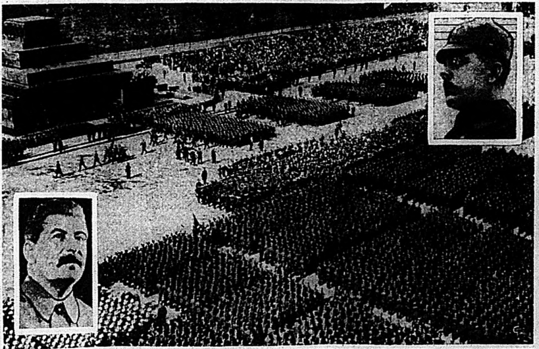
GERMANY AND AUSTRIA-HUNGARY IN 1914
SHADED AREAS SHOW TERRITORY LOST BY TREATY OF VERSAILLES, 1920



GERMANY OF 1938
SHADED AREAS SHOW TERRITORIAL EXPANSION UNDER CHANCELLOR HITLER.

This self-explanatory map shows how Germany has expanded under Fuehrer Adolf Hitler. The German fuehrer has acquired the Saar Basin by plebiscite; Austria by bloodless conquest and the Sudetenland of Czechoslovakia by threat and negotiation. There are six remaining regions once a part of Germany but German spokesmen say Hitler has no intentions of making moves to bring them back into the German fold. The six are the Polish Corridor, Eupen, Schleswig, the provinces of Alsace and Lorraine, the Tyrol area of northern Italy and the Transylvania area of Roumania. The map shows these areas.



In condemnation of France's stand in the recent Czech crisis, Russia has served notice on her French ally that it does not consider the Franco-Soviet alliance as binding and that Russia no longer can consider itself as an ally of France. According to the Russian version, the breaking of the treaty will leave France with only one possible ally—Great Britain. By the abrogation of the Franco-Soviet treaty, France will lose the support of thousands of Russian soldiers in the event war should break out in Europe. Thousands of these troops are shown ABOVE, before Lenin's tomb during a recent celebration. Dictator Stalin, is shown, LEFT, while Marshal Voroshiloff, head of the Russian army, is shown, RIGHT.

THE DAILY ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER is published every afternoon (Sunday and holidays excepted) at The Ontario Intelligencer Building, Front Street, Belleville.

THE EUROPEAN SCENE

The European budget of news continues. Czechoslovakian areas are being handed over to Germany and Poland, President Benes has resigned so as not to constitute a menace to the new conditions which confront his state. British Commons has argued the question of the endorsation of British policy in foreign affairs as carried out in the Munich pact last week and the Prime Minister has been sustained by a large majority, though there was outspoken opposition. To many persons no doubt the glow of the announcement of the peace agreement of last Thursday has dimmed somewhat and others appear to believe they can now see more clearly.

The first flush of the news that the world had been saved from war for "our time" and that it was hoped that this would lead to ultimate world peace was accepted by the world as of supreme importance and yesterday Mr. Chamberlain reaffirmed what peace meant to Europe and the world. Criticism of the agreement on the scare of loss of British prestige and the German gains of territory and industry, the problematic stand of Russia on the pact, expression of sympathy for the unfortunate Czechoslovak republic, have been heard. Fears that Germany will go forward with her "Drive-towards-the-East policy through further agreements or understandings or coercion of buffer states between her and Russia have been expressed. Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill has claimed that the pact wiped out the last chance of averting war, that Britain would rue the day of Munich pact which he called a British defeat without fighting, and that a power which uses threats of force can never be the trusted friend of British democracy. He has urged concentration of effort to reprieve British prestige through British supremacy in the air and in her diplomacy, and favors the mobilization of industry.

On the other hand Sir John Simon said the crisis had meant immediate war and that war in the future is never inevitable.

Mr. Chamberlain reaffirmed on Thursday that the world had been saved from Armageddon and the Czechs from destruction, that the republic had not been betrayed, that peace was preserved and that there were good grounds for belief in a coming appeasement. The public was assured that Britain did not intend to disarm unless other nations disarmed. He gave a hint of a vast British defence effort coupled with a "new spiritual revival". He upheld the view that peace might be gained for "our time", but that to disarm at this time would weaken British diplomacy "because to be successful in diplomacy you must get behind it strength to give it effect." He also asked the nation to realize that Britain did not make new friends at the expense of old ones. Or even at the expense of any other nation at all.

Everyone realizes that Munich did not settle many other crises, for war goes on in the Orient, rioting in Palestine, the situation in Spain is not yet changed, though it may change, it is said, the crisis of the franc in France is still with the French—all weaknesses of the time and age. Many of such problems remain and there are naturally vast problems arising out of the Czech crisis.

Mr. Chamberlain yesterday expressed the view that the way to avoid war and bring lasting peace was to get at the causes of war and try to remove them by discussion in the spirit of goodwill. This work has just begun, he said, on a previous occasion.

"HIGH-POWERED"

A despatch tells of robbers holding up two messengers as they left the post office at Ottawa, Illinois, Wednesday and fleeing with a shipment of $60,000. The respatch adds:—"The robbers escaped in an automobile."

How fashions of words and outlook have changed! A few years ago, bandits escaped in "high-powered cars." not in just mere automobiles. In the old days when bandits get away people were dazzled at the speed of the bandits' escape and writers worked to death the phrase "high-powered car."

That is gone. All cars with any claim to modernity in construction are 'high-powered' of course. No one needs to speak of a car as "high-powered."

Today everyone is acquainted with speed, even if in a few years in the future our present speed will seem slow, when new types of highways approach the absolute of safety.

Who can forget the stories of "the high-powered cars" one used to read about in every paper? It was a high-sounding impressive phrase to writers in the 25-mile-an-hour limit days. Who invented the phrase?

"In America there is a suddenness of action entirely unexpected. English progress is more like the dissolving views of an old-fashioned magic lantern."—J. B. Priestley.

"The modern attitude is that one cannot be truly noble, that all great deeds can be debunked and a selfish motive found at bottom."—Cecil B. DeMille.

MYSELF

I have to live with myself, and so
I want to be fit for myself to know;
I want to be able as days go by
Always to look myself straight in the eye.
I don't want to keep on the closet shelf
A lot of secrets about myself,
And fool myself as I come and go
Into thinking that nobody else will know
The kind of man I really am.
I don't want to dress up myself in sham;
I want to go out with my head erect—
I want to deserve all men's respect;
But here in the struggle for fame and wealth
I want to be able to like myself.
I don't want to stand at set of sun
And hate myself for the things I've done.
So whatever happens I must be
Self-respecting and conscience free.

UNCLE SAM HAS TOO MANY FILIPINOS, the result of too free immigration into California, which has also resulted in being stocked up with too many Japs and Chinese. When the Phillipines were part of the United States Uncle Sam could hardly refuse admission ..to those young men from the isles of the sea who found ready employment as house servants, and also found favor in the eyes ..of white girls, according to a California Judge who remarked that the Filipino boys, 18 to 30 "boast of enjoying the favors of white girls because they are a very superior grade of lovers." Uncle Sam has been trying to induce the Filipinos to return to their native land but with little success. Free passage was offered on steamships but only 2,000 took advantage of the offer, while more than 100,000 remain, embracing low-paid farm workers, houseboys, janitors, cooks.

SOME FOLKS DO NOT BELIEVE IN MIRACLES, and some folks do, particularly a lad named Tex Langford, who sputtered down the Atlantic coast from Boston in a $100 putput broke and without any knowledge of where the next supply of gasoline was coming from. As he was making port at New York he noticed a fine $75,000 yacht in the offing. Tex was admiring the trim yacht when the owner appeared, and noticing how Tex seemed to admire the craft, said, "How would you like to own her?" "Oh, boy," said Tex, "and how." "She's yours," said the owner, and Tex became owner of a dream ship. That night the hurricane struck the coast and Tex's dream ship was swept from her moorings and reduced to matchwood. Not so good,—but a miracle and a disaster following each other so close, is something, we take it.

TRAIN ROBBERS IN WESTERN UNITED STATES WERE FAMOUS or infamous, a few years ago, with the James Boys, the Daltons, Al Jennings, and his brothers, star performers. Yankeeland for a long time held all records for robbing trains, but at long last that record has been shattered by.. continental bandits who stopped a train in France carrying Congo gold to Belgium and decamped with $1,800,000 worth of the metal. The gold was shipped in an ordinary freight train and an accomplice on board the train saw that the emergency brakes were applied. When the train crew swung down they were confronted with armed men, and several shots were fired in the air as a warning. The bandits escaped with their loot.

Poison Ivy

"Poison ivy is one of the first of the vines to take on the attractive reddish hue. Unsuspecting Nature lovers often are inclined to pick it for decorative purposes but the little rhyme "leaves three, let it be" is the better part of valor here. The fruit of the poison ivy is about the size of a small pea, pale green in color before it becomes ripe, and poisonous at this stage. When ripe it becomes cream-colored and is no longer poisonous becoming an attractive food for crows, woodpeckers, and other birds."

I am quoting from Michigan Public Health which so often gives timely health hints to its readers.

Poisoning results when parts of the body come in contact with the oily sap of the ivy plant. The substance from the crushed leaves or broken stem sticks to the skin but the actual irritation may not make itself known until from twelve hours to seven days later.

"The first symptoms include a burning, itching sensation of the skin. This may be followed by the appearance of a red rash on the parts which have come in contact with the milky sap. The poisoning may never be more severe than this or it may develop into blisters. The rash may spread to all parts of the body if irritated by continual scratching."

While most individuals may have some degree of ivy poisoning if they brush against it, it is believed that only about one in eighteen is badly poisoned.

The first treatment for ivy poisoning is a thorough scrubbing of the skin with laundry soap and hot water as the soap dissolves the oily sap. Water alone will not dissolve the fluid excessive rubbing or scratching spreads the infection. A dose of Epsom salts and application of carron oil—lime water, linseed oil equal parts—shortens the length of the attack. Severe cases require the services of the physician.

"Education of children and adults to enable them to recognize the plant, cutting it away from public resorts and highways, and careful avoidance of it in the woods, will prevent many a sad aftermath of a happy holiday in the country."

Pro-German As President.

Some Nazis expected either Rudolf Beran or former Premier Milan Hodza — both members of the Czechoslovak Agrarian Republic Party, Slovaks and acceptable to Germany — to become Czechoslovakia's next president in succession to Eduard Benes, who resigned Wednesday.

With a pro-German president, the Nazis said, the way would be clear for a close relationship between the two countries.

These optimistic views developed from progress of an international commission now working here to determine the remaining preponderantly German territory of Czechoslovakia to be occupied by German soldiers before Sunday.

This area, with four zones granted Germany outright under the four-power Munich accord of last week, would give Germany about 5,000 square miles.

Probably No Plebiscite.

German and Czechoslovak sources indicated the issue of Sudetenland areas with mixed populations might be settled without the plebiscite provided for in the Munich agreement.

Nazi sources believed Czechoslovakia would have no choice but to form what in due time would become a customs union with Germany. Germany will do everything possible to encourage such a development, it was said.

"The memories of Versailles (post-war peace treaty between Germany and the Allies) are too keen with us to make us want to impress a new Versailles upon the Czechs," a foreign office spokesman asserted.

Bratisiavia Not Hungarian.

Hungary, it appears, desires restoration of her former frontiers which would include Bratislava and Egerau on opposite sides of the Danube River.

Bratislava, in the German view, even in the days of the Austro-Hungarian empire was never a Hungarian city, for which reason Germany favors its retention by Czechoslovakia.

Egerau, on the other hand, is claimed to be purely German and for that reason Germany prevailed upon the international commission to have it awarded to the Reich.

Trenton

Trenton—Demolition of the two frame buildings that heretofore have housed Howard's Smoke Shop and the adjoining barber shop on Dundas St., west began this week and within a few days it is planned that the erection of a new and larger building will begin on the premises. The owner, J. G. Aziz, plans that the one part will be occupied by the Smoke Shop, while the other portion will be rented for various sorts of businesses. Present plans will see the building begun on Monday next and completed within a few weeks.

Workmen were busy the early portion of the week demolishing a number of the old wooden buildings on the Weddell property at Middle and Division streets.

Estimated cost of the new College St. School is only about $101,000, reports Mayor H. R. Cory and not $120,000, as reported in some quarters. Architect's fees and building equipment may run the price another $10,000, but the cost will still be below the estimate set by a number of local people who have viewed the work. Plans call for its completion within the next three months, and it may be possible to put it into use before the year is through. Workmen are now stretching the walls up above the ground floor, and the structure is rapidly taking definite shape.

Harold, Ont., Sept. 28, 1938

Miss Jean Donald,
Harold, Ontario,

Dear Jean:

We the members of the Junior Bible Class of Salem Sunday School take this opportunity of spending one more pleasant evening with you in your home before you leave our midst to take up your new duties in your chosen profession of nursing. We will miss you Jean, in our class, also in our Young Peoples', choir and church of which you were a part. How ever we must all make our choice for our place in life, and as you have chosen the noble profession of nursing, we wish you every success and want you to know that we will be watching and hoping for your progress. We would ask you to accept this gift, though small, it carries with it a multitude of sincere good wishes from your friends of Salem Sunday School and Church.

Signed on behalf of the Junior Bible Class, Mrs. Delbert Sine, teacher, Edna McMaster, president.

Jean graciously thanked them all for the gift and invited all to come and see her if they happened to be in Kingston any time. Margaret Danford then put on a contest after which all journeyed outside and enjoyed a delicious feed of weiners and buns and coffee. All departed for their homes wishing Jean every success for the future.

On Friday evening of last week a large number of friends gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cook to honor the newly weds, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Reynolds (nee Verna Jones). Mr. W. J. Tanner acted as chairman and a reading was given by Miss Edith Tanner, after which community singing was enjoyed. Mr. Ross Bailey was called on and read the following address:

Harold, Ont., Sept. 30, 1938

Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds:

One's wedding day is one of the great days in life. We usually wish our friends sunshine on that day, for it is said "happy is the bride the sun shines on". But they say after all we have a nice little shower would help you to remember the happy occasion that is why we are ehre.

There are quite a lot of real nice things that we could say about you, if we took the time, but we shall ask Jim to tell them all to you after you get home, for he knows them all. We all wanted to give you something in remembrance of the occasion.

It would have been more satisfactory for us if you could just have put your hand down in our pocket and taken out a piece of money and got something nice for yourself but the other way seems to be the more usual way, so we have brought these gifts for you taking the the chance of half a dozen bringing the same things. We just ask you in taking them home to take good care of Jim for when the shower is over the dishes broken and the linen worn out, and the sun shines on you again you will need him to hold the parasol. So here they are and good luck.

Signed—Edith Tanner, Erma Sine, Lindsay Tanner, Lorne Hagerman, Kenneth Belcour.

Both Jim and Verna thanked the friends for the lovely gifts and invited all to visit them in their new home. Lunch was then served and a social time spent together.

Miss Ethel Hagerman spent a couple of days last week with Miss Jean Donald.

Anniversary services are being held here on Sunday with Rev. Mr. Delve of Moren as special speaker in the morning and the Rev. Newman of Belleville in the evening. A supper will be served on Monday evening.

Stirling

Stirling—At a special vestry meeting at St. John's Anglican Church recently Dr. E. A. Carleton was appointed to the position of People's Warden for the St. John's Parish filling the vacany created by the death of the late H. H. Alger who acted in that capacity for over twenty-five years.

The meeting was opened by Rev. A. S. McConnell, Rector of the parish who stated the business for which the meeting was called. The minutes of the last meeting were read by Mr. Fred Houchin, Clerk. Election was conducted by ballot and at the conclusion of the election other business pertaining to the activities within the parish were dealt with. The appointment of a committee to take charge of the Byers Memorial Fund for the purpose of erecting a memorial to the late B. F. Byers former rector included the following members: Messrs. J. B. Belshaw; Fred Houchin; H. Cooke; C. Vance; G. Kent; and E. Morrow. Rev. Byers was in charge of the work in St. John's Parish for 27 years, retiring from active service about five years ago. A review of the progress made in the various branches of the church completed the business of the evening and the meeting closed with Rev. A. S. McConnell pronouncing the Benediction.

St. Andrew's Anniversary Dinner

Held in conjunction with the special anniversary services at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Stirling, was the anniversary fowl supper held on Tuesday night. A large crowd of friends from far and near gathered to enjoy the meal provided by the ladies of the Church and also the excellent program presented later in the church auditorium.

Varied Program Feature of The Evening

After about three hundred people had been served to an excellent meal the gathering was called to order by Arthur Duncan, who acted as chairman for the evening in the absence of Rev. W. A. Hunter of Madoc, Interim Moderator for the congregation who was called to another meeting. After a brief c[illegible]sion of thanks to all who had contributed to the success of the anniversary, this on behalf of the Kirk Session and the Board of Managers, the chairman proceeded to introduce the various guest artists that made up the varied and interesting program. Those who assisted on the program in addition to the choir included Mr. George Cornish, elocutionist, Mr. Ormal Shaw, instrumentalist, both of Belleville. Miss E. Sutherland, elocutionist of Sidney; Mr. Wm. Reynolds, vocal soloist; Miss Grace Pitman and Mrs. R. H. Williams, pianist and organist respectively. Each of the above were exceptionally clever in their particular class of work and the audience received them enthusiastically. Rev. A. S. McConnell, Rector of St. John's Anglican Church, speaking briefly, added first a touch of Irish wit, for which he is well known, to the program brought official greeting from his parish to the people of St. Andrew's and left with those present some serious constructive thought fittingly appropriate to the occasion.

Rev. James E. and Mrs. Beckel spent Tuesday in Oshawa where they attended the funeral of the former's uncle.

Rev. A. S. McConnell was in Kingston on church business on Tuesday of this week.

Mr. William Dermedy has returned to Stirling after spending the past few months working in Petebroro, Hastings and Madoc.

Among those who called at the home of Mrs. Arthur Andrews, Church St., during her recent illness were the President of St. Paul's W.M.S. and a number of the members, also a number of the members of the W.M.S. of Eggleton United Church.

Mrs. M. Pearce and Mrs. M. Hough of Foxboro visited friends in Stirling recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Burt Andrews and son Ronald of Belleville, spent Tuesday evening of last week visiting at the home of the former's parents Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Andrews, Church St.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Matheson and family left this week to take up residence in Detroit, Mich. Before the departure Mrs. Matheson who has been prominent in the women's organizations of St. Paul's United Church, was the guest of honor at a farewell social gathering held by the members and officers of the Cheerie Classmates Ladies' Bible Class at the home of Miss Mae Currie. During the evening Mrs. Matheson was presented with a lovely autograph album containing the signature and good wishes of each class-member. The presentation was made on behalf of the group by Mrs. A. Geraldi.

Friends of Mrs. Thelma Tulloch will be glad to learn that she is progressing quite favorable along the road to recovery following her recent operation in Belleville General Hospital.

MEN AND BATTERIES

THE BEST FRIEND that a motorist can have, from the standpoint of satisfactory operation of an automobile, is a dealer who can be depended upon when automotive service or merchandise is needed. Experienced car-owners know they cannot afford to pick service stations casually.

Selecting the right dealer is not a difficult matter. Find the man who is making a success of his business ... he is almost certain to be dependable. His concern for his own future prompts him to offer you the kind of service and merchandise that will make you a permanent customer. There is no surer indication of an automotive dealer's interest in your satisfaction than the brand of battery he handles ... for, unlike other kinds of merchandise, the value of a storage battery is something you cannot see. And the dealer who does not take advantage of that fact but offers you a battery of unquestionable merit, justifies your complete confidence.

You are in good hands at service stations and garages displaying the Exide sign. It is a safe guide to follow in buying automotive merchandise and service generally.

There is an Exide Battery designed to suit every car. Exide Hycap Batteries have extra high capacity for radio, heater, defroster, etc., with ample reserve for starting in any weather.

Look for the Exide Dealer sign—symbol of honest service.

The Wedding Menu

The menu that is served at a very early morning wedding, say at eight or nine o'clock, should be a breakfast menu. For the first course, fruit in some form, such as slices of melon, iced grapefruit, orange juice. Then eggs with small slices of crisp bacon or tiny sausages; or eggs baked in ramekins. Creamed chicken on toast or chicken patties may be served. The rest of the menu would consist of tiny hot biscuits or rolls, toast or toasted English muffins, strawberry or apricot jam or guava jelly, and coffee.

What is referred to as a "wedding breakfast", although the menu is a typical luncheon menu, is served after a later morning wedding, a High Noon wedding or one that takes place before one o'clock. This may be a sit-down meal, with a large table or separate small tables for the guests, and perhaps a table for the bridal party, but usually the buffet service is more convenient: If the service is buffet, the table is set as for an afternoon tea, and the wedding cake, if there is no bridal table, is used as the centrepiece. The flowers used on this table are either all-white or white and pink.

The first course might be fruit cocktail or hot or jellied bouillon.

Hot dishes appropriate to serve for seated or buffet service are:—chicken a la King on toast, lobster or crab Newburg, creamed chicken with mushrooms, chicken or shrimp patties, chicken croquettes.

Appropriate cold dishes are—an aspic of chicken, or any other kind of aspic, such as celery salad in tomato aspic; ham mousse, sliced cold meats with salads or tomato surprise or deviled eggs or asparagus tips with vinaigrette sauce. And of course there is the perennial chicken or lobster salad. Appropriate relishesshould be served. And there should be finger rolls (split and buttered and heated) or tiny biscuits, or thin bread and butter sandwiches, flat or rolled; or, if you prefer, sandwiches with assorted fillings. The coffee service is usually placed on a sidetable. as is the champagne or a substitute cold drink.

Dessert usually is ice cream or an ice. This may be served in individual molds, in the form of wedding bells, hearts, rings, cupids, roses, slippers, lilies or as assorted fruits and flowers. There are dishes of fancy cake, perhaps little cakes iced in white and pink, Only the bride's cake may be served with the ice cream. And, on the table, for decoration as well as for taste, are dishes of mints, bonbons, glace nuts, crystallized grapefruit or orange slices, frosted mint leaves, or candy rose petals, white or pink.

At the afternoon or evening reception, the menu may be similar to the menu for the noon wedding breakfast or luncheon. Or it may be as simple as you wish, consisting of one dish such as chicken a la King with small rolls, or a choice of chicken or lobster salad, with rolls or bread-and-butter or assorted sandwiches, ice cream, bride's cake and coffee.

After an informal afternoon wedding, tea (with coffee as an alternative) and appropriate tea foods may be served such as thin sandwiches of assorted kinds, little cakes. After an informal evening wedding, assorted sandwiches, small cakes, coffee may be served.

Addressing a Widow

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you kindly advise me the correct way to address a widow, whether as Mrs. John Jones, or Mrs. Mary Jones?

Reader

A widow's name is exactly what it was when her husband was living . . Mrs. John Jones. This is the form of name we should use when we address a letter to her, the name she should use on her visiting-card, in her telephone listing, in any social list, and so forth.

The important thing to remember is that in the formal name of a married woman, a widow, a divorcee, the first name should not be used; that is, the first name is not used prefixed with Mrs. A married woman's name is Mrs. John Jones. A widow's name is Mrs. John Jones. A divorced woman should properly use her maiden surname prefixed to her married surname Mrs. Robinson Jones.

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

What Makes a Successful Marriage? —Similar Tastes Required for Good Matrimonial Risk

How about your tastes? Do you enjoy the same things as the girl or man who appears to be your life partner?

This is one of the most important discoveries to make for any person considering marriage. Are you and the "only girl", or the "only man" kindred in spirits, tastes and interests?

Before you're head over heels in the ecstatic madness of love—When you're incapable of sound judgment—discover if that essential ingredient of a happy marriage, congeniality, is real or spurious.

A pretended similarity of tastes has landed millions of mismated couples at the wailing wall. In the beginning, you may play the game of liking the same things as the Desired One, because you're bored, lonesome, want dates—for any one of a dozen other reasons.

But don't fool yourself. Before you get beyond your depth, remember that Nature is the greatest of practical jokers, delighting in throwing dust in the eyes of her victims when she decides to play her pranks.

Beauty is the most common form of dust of which Nature takes advantage. Beauty is the great generator of emotions and feelings. It comes, sees, conquers, without sending up a single danger signal. It makes the serious, sensitive young man see his affinity in the girl whose personality is like the blare of a trumpet and whose voice is like a circus calliope.

It makes the girl who longs to write poetry see in the good-looking, back-slapping, life of the party young man her spiritual counterpart. Like ten pins in a bowling alley, beauty bowls us all over. Beware of it. Do a little cold calculating before it's too late.

You're sorry for the victims on whom Nature has played her prank, and who find themselves dragging their chains. You're almost as sorry for those rash young flies, caught by pretense hopelessly in the web of an unhappy marriage.

You've seen the girl in tight, high-heeled shoes, pretending to enjoy an outing with a young man who walks for the pleasure of walking. You've smiled over the comedy of the musical addict whose idea of a five-star evening is taking the "only girl" to a symphony concert where you've seen the "only one" devouring yawns while she purrs sweetly of adoring music.

Good literature is the favorite tipple of Mary. You see her lugging armfuls of books from the library, and Mary dreams of writing some day herself. Yet she's going "steady" with a young man whose favorite printed matter consists of cheap thrillers. Good books are long, drawn-out torture to him but they offer a short cut to Mary's affections. She reads aloud to him but his thoughts are miles away.

You know, too, the young man whom the Germans call a Natur Freund, keen on sunsets, scenery, the boom of the surf on the beach. His girl, by choice, knows these things only from the movies. That's where she likes to get her scenery. You wonder why she does not wait for a bright-lights young man whose idea of life is to know the latest dance step, whose swing is inspired and who has taken a degree in the Big Apple and the Lambeth Walk.

So it goes, Men and women caught in the net of fancied congeniality; men and women tumbling into the net of pretended congeniality. Why is Nature such a practical joker?

Weddings

O'CONNOR—BELAIR

A pretty Autumn wedding took place this morning at St. Michael's Church, when Katherine Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter N. Belair, was married to Harold Anthony O'Connor, son of Mrs. O'Connor and the late John J. O'Connor of White Plains, New York. Rev. Monsignor J. F. Nicholson, V.G., officiated at the ceremony and celebrated the Nuptial Mass. Miss Margaret Belair was her sister's bridesmaid, and Mr. Joseph O'Connor of White Plains, was groomsman. Following a wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's parents, Victoria Avenue, Mr. and Mrs. O'Connor left by motor for their home at Lake Mahopac, New York.

HEATH—McKEOWN

Rawdon, (Special)—A pretty autumn wedding was solemnized at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edgar McKeown, Mount Pleasant, Rawdon, on Wednesday, October 5th., at eleven a.m., when their only daughter, Frances Marion was united in marriage to Mr. William N. Heath, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Heath of Rawdon, with Rev. J. E. Beckel officiating.

The ceremony took place beneath an arch of evergreen, potted plants and cut flowers.

The charming bride wore an ankle length gown of white silk transparent velvet with shirred neckline and sleeves. An imported silk embroidered tulle veil with a slight train, a coronet of orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of Johanna Hill roses. She entered the drawing room on the arm of her father to the strains of Mendelsshon's wedding music played by Miss Isobel Turner who was gowned in navy blue sheer.

Miss Marion Walker, Burnbrae, was bridesmaid, wearing a frock of Dawn pink silk net over taffeta and carrying a bouquet of Briarcliffe roses.

Mr. Don Heath of Bethel, assisted the groom.

During the signing of the register Miss Evelyn Barnum of Petherick's, gowned in navy blue sheer, sang "All Mine Alone".

The bride's mother was dressed in brown sheer and the groom's mother in a frock of dark green.

Immediately after congratulations the wedding party numbering about sixty, were ushered to the dining-room where the wedding luncheon was served. The decorations were carried out in pale pink with a tiered wedding cake as central decoration for the bride's table.

The groom's gift to the bride was a chest of silver in "First Love" pattern. To the pianist and soloist gold lockets set with cameos.

The happy couple later in the afternoon attended another wedding and the two couples left on a motor trip across the Thousand Island Bridge through New York state and home by Montreal and Ottawa.

On their return they will reside on the groom's farm near Sine.

The bride travelled in a dress of green crepe with green accessories, a coat of imported tweed and a green felt hat with veil.

HEATH—WALKER

The home of Mr. Roy Walker, Harold, was the scene of a very pretty wedding on Wednesday, October 5th., 1938, at three p.m., when their only daughter, Marion Elizabeth, was wedded to Mr. Donald Wesley Heath, only son of Mr. Roy and the late Mrs. Heath, in the presence of some sixty guests. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. A. McMillan of Burnbrae. The bridal couple stood in front of an arch of evergreens and Autumn leaves supported by a huge white bell with beautiful plants in the background. Their attendants were Mr. and Mrs. William Heath, cousin of the groom, and whose marriage took place at eleven a.m. the same day. Little Misses Betty Johnston and Jean Rannie, cousins of the bride were flower girls dressed in old rose taffeta silk floor length gowns, and blue satin sashes and rosebud wreaths on their hair and carried old-fashioned nosegays.

The bride entered the living-room on the arm of her father, who gave her away, while Mrs. Harold Elliott aunt of the groom, played Grieg's "Wedding Day". During the signing the register, Miss Fern Weatherell of Burnbrae, sang "O Promise Me".

The bride looked charming in a floor length white chiffon velvet gown fashioned in Empire style, trimmed with self-covered buttons and two sunbursts supporting the velvet ruching around the neck, leg-o'-mutton long sleeves. Her beautiful embroidered silk veil was held in place by a tiara of orange blossoms and had other white accessories. She carried a bouquet of Johanna Hill roses and fern.

Her matron of honour was attired in her wedding frock similar to the bride's and carried Briarcliffe roses and fern.

The bride's mother was gowned in ruby wine Trico-Maine crepe with self-covered buttons and flowers as corsage.

The groom's grandmother, Mrs. C. U. Heath wore a black embroidered chiffon frock and a shoulder bouquet of roses.

The other grandmothers viz — Mesdames W. Rannie, T. Walker and Hawkins were gowned in black brocaded silk, navy blue crepe, and black cut velvet, respectively, with shoulder bouquets. Mrs. Don McClaren, the groom's sister, wore an ivory silk velvet gown. Miss Weatherell, the vocalist, was in black silk net over taffeta with large appliqued white daisies. Mrs. Elliott, the pianist, worea mulberry Trico-Maine frock and rendered Mendelssohn's Wedding March while the congratulations were offered.

Later Mr. Jack Rannie, uncle of the bride, ushered the guests into the dining room which was beautifully decorated with pink and white streamers with a large white bell over the bridal table. The color scheme was pink throughout. Pink candles and pink flowers centred by a lovely three-tiered wedding cake trimmed with pink roses.

The waitresses were close friends of the bride, Mrs. Bill Craighead; Misses Jean Murray, Clara Thain, Ila Nix, Laura Tucker, Carolyn Johnston, Essie McQuigge. These had white aprons and caps bordered with pink.

Rev. J. A. McMillan and Mr. Wm. Rannie, grandfather of the bride, made a few remarks voicing the sentiments of all present.

Mrs. Preston Hall dressed in turquoise blue silk velvet received at the door. Misses Florence Hay and Thelma Wallace had charge of the presents which were both numerous and costly, consisting of furniture, silverware, etc., including several substantial cheques.

The bride's going away frock was a Hunter's green Trico-Maine crepe with gilt trimming with hat, gloves, and shoes to match, topped with a black tweed travel coat, flecked with white.

Out of town guests Mr. H. Heagle and wife of Kingston, Mrs. Lottie Heagle of Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Don McClaren of Frankford.

The young couple left amid showers of confetti, going by way of Ivy Lea, Thousand Island Bridge to New York returning by Montreal and Ottawa. They will reside in Harold.

ACCORDING to the astral operations for this day, there may be need of much discretion in the management of the affairs, as a great deal depends upon the sagacity with which several difficult situations or perplexing events are turned to the side of profit and security. The principal danger may come through strange influence or strange persons.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year which will call for all their fortitude, persistency and good management of rather pressing, disappointing or sorrowful events. There is peril to finances through speculation or bad investments, through the machinations of a stranger or some unusual experience or venture. Patience, vigilance and sound judgment are urged in all directions.

IN BETWEEN the very dressy coat and the very simple sports coat is the model for general wear. Such a coat is of wine colored woollen with wire pointed collar and tapered-in sleeves of sheared beaver.

Grace and dignity mark dinner dresses designed for the smart matron. One such model is of deep purple velvet with sequin bands marking the dolman shoulders. The bodice is softly shirred and there is a rich clip at the base of the narrow and long V neckline. The skirt has a slight train.

The right girl will look lovely in a poke bonnet of Directoire inspiration made of black felt, open in back to show curls. It is trimmed at the tip of the brim with a cluster of ostrich plumes in various shades from pink to purple.

Plenty of work for a three-piece costume with fur trimmed top coat. A grand model is of rust, green and brown mixture tweed, the jacket belted, the topcoat trimmed with collar and tuxedo revers of sheared beaver.

Recompense

By RAMONA C. WOODBURY

Old Stephen Mayhew stood before the mottled glass in his bedroom and, with fingers that trembled with anticipation, tied his black silk cravat. His wasp-like face glowed with satisfaction as he noticed the result. It was the one part of his entire costume which was not shabby.

Stealthily, he listened for a sound of Mary's activities. Washing dishes in the kitchen. Good! His hand crept beneath the old commode and drew forth a cup, in which floated a viscous, transparent fluid. With a scrap of clean linen he meticulously applied the contents to his worn, black shoes. Suddenly, Mary stood in the doorway.

"Stephen Mayhew, what you doing?"

"Polishing my shoes."

"My sakes I was getting worried. Thought you might be comin' down with somethin'. Might have known 'twas just your vanity! Who is it sings tonight?"

"Yvette Yselda . . ."

Alarmed, Stephen's nervous fingers sought and found the precious bit of cardboard. "A front box seat. Who do you suppose sent it?"

"Oh one of your feminine admirers, I s'pose." Her blue eyes twinkled.

"Wish they'd sent two, Mary."

"Sho, now, you go ahead and enjoy yourself. Music's your life."

Stephen smiled, then said soberly, "Poor Mary, you haven't had such fat pickings with me, have you?"

"It depends," said Mary shrewdly, "on wht you call pickings. But if you count in all the laughter and the loving, I should say no woman had had richer."

But all the way down to the Civic auditorium, a little imp of worry gnawed at Stephen's vitals. During the two years since he had been discharged from the position of superintendent of music of Fairlea's schools, for the inglorious smashing of a cane on an impudent pupil, Stephen had struggled bravely to keep the little home.

Unthankful bussness, teaching music. In all the 40 years he had taught Fairlea's young, he had never awakened is one the passionate love he had for beautiful music. Wait, he'd take that back. There had been one. A black-haired, unkempt girl from the wharves district, who had burst into tears when he had sung "Le Jongleur." And he remembered the day when he had burst into tears wnen she told him she was going to leave school to sing in a cabaret. He had painted visions of a brilliant future if she worked hard. Jazz songs would ruin her exquisite voice.

"Yeh" she grinned, "but they bring in the hard cash." And left him raging. He wondered if the wharves had swallowed her up.

Yvette Yselda. Stephen had heard her on the phonograph and gloried in the sheer beauty of her voice.

At the end of the program, after unending curtain calls, Yvette paused before the footlights and signified that she wished to speak to them.

"My friends," she said, "and I hope that you are my friends, for I have given you of my best, I have come to Fairlea tonight to pay a debt. Not so many years ago I lived amongst you. I shall not tell you my name, for you would not recognize it. To you I will always be Yvette Yselda. My tribute tonight is to the one person of all the world who inspired in me the love for good music, who taught me so thoroughly the beauty of the old masters, that when I would have sold my gift for gold, for Ineeded the money badly, I found I could not sing their banal songs.

"Through inquiries that I have made today I learn that hard times have fallen upon my friend. And authorities in due season will recompense my friend for his years of service, yet, since committees although I am confident that the work slowly and the need to live is urgent I wish to present the proceeds of tonight's concert to my old teacher and benefactor, Mr. Stephen Mayhew."

Then a red-faced man from down front rose for his speech.

"Seems to me, folks, Madame Yselda has an idea that the Fairlea school committee works slowly. We got more than a quorum here—I been countin' noses. How about it, Lafe? Want to put it in the form of a motion?"

And before the audience could gasp twice, the vote went through, unanimously placing Stephen Mayhew on the pension list at full salary. Someone had gone post-haste for Mary, and she shared with Stephen the impromptu reception on the stage of the auditorium, where the entire aurience filed past and grasped their hands. Some time about midnight, Stephen managed to whisper to her:

"Do I look all right, Mary?"

"Real smart," she smiled with excusable pride.

On Tuesday evening a group of men gathered at Mount Pleasant Hall and re-organized "The Farmers' Club" with the following officers:

President, Mr. Ross Hoard; Secretary, Mr. Allan Reid; Treasurer, Mr. Gordon Linn.

Mr. W. Millbanks of Peterboro was guest speaker.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Linn and Ruth, Mr. and Mrs. James Linn enjoyed a trip across the Thousand Island bridge on Monday and were dinner guests in Watertown.

Folks here were very sory to hear of the recent accident and death of a former resident, Mr. Ewart Hannah when the transport he was driving overturned and burned.

Miscellaneous Shower at Hall

On Monday evening around two hundred and twenty five people gathered at Mount Pleasant hall and tendered Mr. and Mrs. Farley Vermilyea (nee Vera McAdam) a miscellaneous shower.

Rev. J. E. Beckel was master of ceremonies and expressed best wishes to the young couple for a successful and happy wedded life. The young couple were given seats of honor and the program opened with community singing led by Messrs Robert Hoard and John Coggins with Mrs. Ross Hoard at the piano.

Miss Marian Johnson gave a piano solo and Miss Joan Hoard a recitation, Messrs Ernest and Norman Rosebush and Mrs. Percy Hubble contributed four orchestra selection, banjo, violin and piano. Mrs. Arthur Phillips gave two humorous readings. Brief addresses were given by Messrs. Will Potts, James Sharp and John Coggins. Mr. and Mrs. Herb Higgs gave two musical selections, guitar and mouth-organ. A vocal trio, "Golden Slippers" was rendered by Messrs. John Coggins, Herb Higgs and Robert Melville. Miss Ferne Hubble read an appropriate selection.

Miss Anna Sharp read the following address:

Mount Pleasant, Oct. 3, 1938

Dear Vera and Farley:

It is on the occasion of your recent marriage that we have gathered together tonight to wish you happiness as you embark on the sea of matrimony.

Vera you have always lived in our midst and have always taken a ready and willing part in the social life of our community as well as having given freely of your talents in our Young Peoples' Union, Sunday School and Church and we cannot let you leave us without expressing our appreciation to you. We know that you will carry on in your new home and community.

We congratulate Farley and while we are sorry to lose you, Vera, we rejoice when a new home is started and your happiness is also ours. You will form new friends and associations and we know you will find a real home in the place you have chosen. To show the respect and esteem in which you are held by all and as remembrance of our friendship we ask you to accept our gifts and as you use them may they remind you of us.

May your wedded life be long and joyous and may health and prosperity ever be yours.

Signed on behalf of your many friends and neighbors, Phyliss David, Anna Sharp, Eileen MacMullen, Irene Hubble, Bill Jeffs, John C. Coggins, Herbert Smith.

Both Farley and Vera suitably replied thanking their friends for the lovely gifts and inviting them to call at their home to see them. The young couple proceeded to open the various parcels and a long table was filled with silver, china, linen, bedding and kitchen articles.

An appetizing lunch was served at the close and all enjoyed a social time together.

PAINFUL TO BEND A JOINT

Hospital Case of Rheumatism

The value of perseverance with Kruschen, in the treatment of some cases of rheumatism, is proved by this man's experience. He says:

"I was abroad for over seven years. When I returned I began to suffer from rheumatic pains—particularly in the feet and arms, and I was eventually taken into hospital, unable to move without groaning with pain. When I left the hospital after two months, I was somewhat better. I was recommended to take Kruschen Salts, have taken them continuously, and until now I am entirely free from pains. I would not be without my Kruschen Salts for anything."—M. B.

Two of the salts in Kruschen are effectual solvents of uric acid the excess of which is decidedly injurious. They swiftly dull the sharp edges of the painful crystals—the cause of pain and stiffness—and convert them into a harmless solution, which is then expelled through the natural channels.

Two Mighty Home Runs by Crosetti and DiMaggio Spells Defeat for Grand Old Diz

Up Till Eighth Cubs Were Leading And Dean Was Winging

YANKEES OUTHIT

Teams Travel To New York For Third Game On Saturday

(By Gayle Talbot, Associated Press Sports Writer).

En Route to New York, Oct. 7—(AP)—Except for the fashionable huzzahs that will be sounded about Sunday night in Yankee stadium the 1938 World Series appears to be all wrapped up.

The Yankees are too good. Too good for Chicago Cubs, and possible too good for the future of baseball. As the two clubs head into New York to resume the unequal contest on Saturday with the Yankees already twice victorious, there isn't much to wonder about except whether Colonel Jake Ruppert's super team will make it four straight.

The general belief on this railway carriage is they will. When Frank Crosetti and Joe DiMaggio rapped those late inning home runs to beat Dizzy Dean 6-3 yesterday, the most obstinate backers of the Cubs gave up. That plus the Yankees' opening 3-1 win was too much.

If the Yanks had done it sooner it wouldn't have been quite so bad. But they let Dis look like the biggest hero since Sergeant York for 7 2-3 innings. Then they reached out and slapped him down.

It seemed as though something went out of baseball when Dean shuffled off the field in the ninth, with a final quick glance at the let field wall, that had wrecked his hopes.

20th Victory in 23 Games

For those who are impressed by figures, yesterday's was the 20th victory scored by the Yankees in their 23 world series games since 1927. No club ever before so dominated the game. Their weakest member, Frankie Crosetti, high lighted the opening game with his fielding and yesterday the little shortstop hit the homer that virtually settled the series.

It is a happy job pitching for the Yankees. Vernon (Lefty) Gomez yesterday became the first pitcher ever to win his sixth straight world series victory without having suffered a loss, and El Goofy was enjoying a nice warm shower at the time.

Dean's "fast ball" is enclosed in quotations because it is slow compared to the specimens Diz used to rear back and fire in other days. Nobody will ever know how he held the Yankees to three hits in seven innings.

After the game Manager Joe McCarthy patted himself over the heart and said: "That fellow Dean has one of these."

Hartnett said in the dressing room: "Dis, you gave me everything you had—and with a sore arm."

Beyond All Pain

DiMaggio's mighty blow in the ninth with Henrich on base seemed an afterthought, for the game already was won and lost. The tall Italian caught the first pitch. A slow "nothing ball," and practically knocked it out of sight. By that time the crowd of 42,000 loyal Cub rooters was beyond all pain.

For tomorrow's engagement, the Yankees haven't any one to call upon except Monte Pearson who recently pitched a non hitter and who stopped the Giants in the third world series game a year ago. The Cubs must pin their scant hopes on young Clay Bryant, a fast baller like Bill Lee, whom the Yankees pelted in the first game.

HIT A "BIG ONE"

San Francisco, Oct. 7 (AP) —A tiny voice answered the telephone at the home of Joe DiMaggio's parents.

"Papa and mama DiMaggio are out in the front room" It was Betty Kron, niece of the Yankees' star outfielder and home run buster, talking. "Papa has mama and they are dancing about the room. Papa is shouting, 'hooray, he hit a big one'."

New York, Oct. 7 (AP)— The Yankee jockey department, ably headed by Professor Art Fletcher, is riding the hide off Cubs for not giving Charlie Grimm a series cut ....The Smiths no longer have it ....The name of Williams leads all the others on Southwest Conference football squad lists....Some eastern baseball writers are hinting Jimmy Foxx ducked the last game of the season to guard against losing the batting championship .... Say it ain't so, Jimmy.... Charlie Bachman, Michigan State coach, has been wearing the same pair of shoes to football games for 10 years.

Colonel Ruppert wired his Newark and Kansas city clubs he hoped both would win the "Little World's series."

Wayne La Master, the Dodger pitcher, wired Billy Herman to get him a pair of tickets for the series, but Herman wouldn't do it because he said La Master gets him out too often.

As soon as the series is over, Rip Collins will go on a six - weeks' vaudeville tour with Pepper Martin's Mudcats at $300 a week .... There will be more football scouts than you can count in Atlanta tomorrow when Notre Dame plays Georgia Teck....The gumshoe men want to see if what they read about those goings on at South Bend last week is really so....Chicago scouts report the folks out there are awfully high on the Irish, but that one and all are glad Pitt is not on the schedule this year

Coaches Fairly Reek With Hopes But Some Doubters

(By The Canadian Press)

The melancholy men of sport, the football coaches, tucked in their ears today, leaned over backwards and told the Canadian Press what they expect to accomplish—if anything—in the eastern campaign that starts Saturday.

The mentors fairly reeked with hope. Most of them had serious doubts. Here is what they said:

BIG FOUR

Lou Hayman, Toronto Argos — "Physicially the team is the same as last year when we won the Canadian title, but mentally the boys show signs of having tasted the fruits of success. The necessary spirit is lacking."

Ross Trimble, Ottawa Roughriders—"The Big Four race looks like a fight between Argos and Ottawa with Montreal and Hamilton presenting strong, young clubs who may pull a surprise and upset all the dope".

Jerry Brock, Hamilton Tigers — "Our progress and chances hinge entirely upon the length of time required for our youngsters to find themselves in senior company. We lack weight and experience, but have any amount of enthusiasm."

Johnny Macdonald, Montreal Cubs—"We're just building. We're short in experience, with few men who played football in Montreal before. But we've got a lot of gumption and team spirit."

INTERCOLELGIATE

Warren Stevens, Toronto—"We're about in the same position as we were last year in regard to manpower. With the Intercollegiate Union much better balanced than it has been for many years every game will be a difficult task."

Ted Reeve, Queen's—"I can't predict what will happen. Our team is a new one and the matter of finding a capable kicker to succeed Johnny Munro is one of our big problems."

Bill Storen, Western—"We'll be in the playoffs. We have a great backfield division this year and if our line holds then it might be Western's year to come out on top".

Doug Kerr, McGill—"We have a fairly strong team with a lot of power in kicking and passing. But I don't want to say anything about our chances because the competition is pretty strong."

O.R.F.U.

Hoddy Foster, Montreal Nationals—"We'll be in there fighting and have hopes of coming out on top. We hope we have some good ballcarriers and expect to go places."

Alex Ponton, Toronto Balmy Beach—"We have a stronger and better balanced team all around than last year, particularly at the ends. Plungers like Manorek, Sward and Seymour give us real power on the ground."

Art Massucci, Sarnia Imperials—"I think we'll be fair but I wouldn't say we'll be strong. Those two exhibition victories don't mean a thing. We made enough mistakes in those two games to lose 15 others."

Bill Irwin, Peterborough Orfuns—"We are just building this season and we're hoping for the best".

FOOTBALL DISH FOR THE WEEKEND A TEMPTING ONE

Big Game In Eastern Section Is Varsity At Queens

WESTERN VS. McGILL

Argos Take On Hamilton Tigers On Their Own Gridiron

(By Sydney Gruson, Canadian Press Staff Writer).

This is the week-end when the east beats a path to the section's football stadium for the season opening. The path will be well worn by the time December's snows are falling and Toronto Argonauts are returned or dethroned as senior champions.

The football dish ready for presentation tomorrow and Monday, Thanksgiving Day, is a choice one, headed by such traditional struggles as University of Toronto against Queen's at Kingston; Hamilton Tigers' invasion into Argo home territory and Sarnia Imperials' visit to Toronto Balmy Beach.

Before Thanksgiving Day is over decisions will be known. University of Western Ontario Mustangs tackle McGill Redmen in Montreal; Montreal Cubs move into Ottawa against the burly Rough Riders and Peterborough Orfuns begin their senior career against Montreal Nationals.

The Interprovincial and Intercollegiate Unions open tomorrow, leaving the holiday to the Ontario Union gridders. There are a number of questions which will be answered at least partly in the opening skirmishes.

Argos Question Mark

Not the least of these is whether Argonauts have sufficient power to hold their National title. Two weeks ago they were pushed all over Varsity stadium, when Balmy Beach eliminated them in the first stage of the Toronto city championship series. Then, to make that defeat more humbling, University of Toronto whipped Balmy Beach last Saturday.

But Argos were without big Bob Isbister against the Beach club. Indications are that Isbister's leg injury has healed sufficiently to let him do the kicking tomorrow against the Tigers—and with Bob hoisting them the Scullers should be a different club entirely. He meant that much difference in the title march last year.

Whether Rocky Rocano has regained his kicking form of two seasons back is the main Ottawa question. If he has, Riders will give any team a stern fight; and if he hasn't they still rank ahead of Cubs replacing the Indians of 1937 and rebuilt with intermediates to take the places of stars who went over to Montreal's O.R.F.U. entry, the Nationals.

Varsity Choice Over Queen's

Toronto Blues move right into the college champions' backyard as the logical choice over a Queen's team that resembles only slightly the one Ted Reeve piloted to the title in 1937. Graduations and academic troubles riddled the Tricolor, yet observers are wary to call Toronto too strongly. Reeve's charges have pulled off to many upsets in past years.

Touted highly on pre-season games, McGill get a real test against Bill Storen's Mustangs. With both teams stressing passing and running among the backfielders, it should develop into a wide-open, high-scoring display. The result is a toss-up.

Beaches May Upset Dope

The annual turkey day classic between Imperials, gunning for their eighth straight union crown, and the strengthened Beaches may overshadow them all. Powerful in all departments, Beaches are being primed for their greatest assault on the Imperial dynasty.

Imperials will be without Ormond Beach, giant backfield ace killed in an explosion at a Sarnia oil refinery last month. They won the exhibition games from Big Four opposition without Beach and they still pack power with Hugh (Bummer) Stirling's punting and Mike Hedgewick's running.

Nationals get the call over Peterborough, whose young players will be running up against tough opposition in Johnny Ferraro, Ernie Hempey, Tommy Burns and company.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with

Ken I. Colling

Last autumn when Athletic Director George Laughlin introduced six-man football into the Belleville Collegiate as an inter-form competitive school sporting venture he organized 13 form squads, divided into four groups. The innovation of six-man football at the Collegiate met with instant success and is being continued as an inter-form sport again this year, but Mr. Laughlin has 20 such squads playing the game today.

When the B.C.I. sponsored junior and senior football teams in the C.O.S.S.A. only about forty or possibly 45 at the outside took an active part in the fall classic. Now Mr. Laughlin has over 200 students playing football under the inter-form six-man grid project. "Frankly speaking I am convinced we are much better off under this new plan, even if our school isn't represented in district competition. At least we are providing recreation and sport for the majority, rather than a selected few," explained Mr. Laughlin.

For those interested in the six-man game here are some of the more essential rules and regulations:

A team shall consist of six players with four alternatives.

The playing field shall be approximately 80 yards long from goal-line to goal-line and 40 yards wide from touchline to touchline, with end-zones extending 15 yards back from goal-line to dead-ball-line. In addition, the field should be marked with a line, extending from touch-line to touch-line, 30 yards out from each goal-line.

Playing time shall be 48 minutes, divided into four periods of 12 minutes each with five minutes "time out" between each period.

When the ball is put into play at the commencement of the second, third and fourth periods, it shall be placed in the same relative position as when "time-out" was called. This eliminates the ball being kicked-off at the commencement of the third period.

On any play originating from a scrimmage, players of the attacking side may interfere anywhere up to three yards in advance of the line of scrimmage.

On all ball-carrying plays, the player who receives the ball from the snapper must pass the ball to one of his teammates before crossing the line of scrimmage. Such a pass must be in an "onside" direction and the ball must clearly travel through the air. Penalty: Ball returned to point of last scrimmage with loss of one down.

On a kick or forward pass play, the ball may be snapped directly to the kicker or passer.

A forward pass must not be thrown on a third down. Penalty: Loss of ball to opponents.

When a forward pass goes into touch it shall be considered as "incomplete." Where the ball is otherwise passed or fumbled into touch, a distance penalty of five yards shall be taken from where the ball was last touched in the field-of-play but no scrimmage shall take place within approximately five yards of either touch-line.

All "distance" penalties shall be five yards except in the case of rough play and where "No yards" are given on a kick ball, for which offence the "distance penalty shall be 10 yards.

Scoring shall be the same as under standard C.R.U. rules, except that a "safety-touch" shall be scored as a rouge. Rouge, one point; goal (from place or drop kick), three points; try (touchdown), three points; additional point after try, one point.

Realizing they are sadly lacking in weight along the line of scrimmage the Belleville Panthers will revert to speed and aerial attacks, when they clash with Bob Elliott's Kingston "beef trust" here on Monday. The entire loop swings into action with the R.C.A.F. at Cobourg on Thanksgiving Day also. Incidentally we understand the "Flyers" are not answering the call to "football arms" as they were last season. Laurie Gibson, their punting ace, is on a month's leave at Ottawa and will not be out with the Airport, while other stars of the Flyer's 1937 grid squad have failed to respond to the call of pre-season practice, so we predict an almost certain win for the Cobourg "Galloping Ghosts", but we expect a real battle here.

When Joe McCarthy's Yankees' "powerhouse" showed its real punch yesterday to put the New York Americans in a commanding position of winning the 1938 world series—the American League champions proved they are a great band of baseball players, but from this corner we cannot help but admire the courageousness of Dizzy Dean, who hurled phenomenal ball, letting the Yankees down with three small hits for over seven frames, which is no mean world series pitching effort. Next to Crosetti the game's star, Dean was surely tops.

Up until the eighth inning yesterday there was a marked absence of home runs in the current series, but in the last two frames Crosetti and DiMaggio both clubbed for the circuit—DiMaggio's being a mighty smash of at least 400 feet into left field.

Col. Rupert's Rifles seem to have the faculty of being able to bide their time and await that inevitable easing off of a pitcher and then apply their great hitting strength most prolifically. Today we find Lefty Gomez in a class by himself, being the only pitcher ever to win six world series games, without a reverse checked up against him. Gomez seemed doomed to the fate of missing that goal, until his team mates bats rang out belated hits and pulled the game out of defeat just as he was replaced on the hilltop. As it is, however, Gomez was credited with the win as Murphy, his successor, was not announced as a relief hurler until after the Yankees assumed the lead. The teams are idle today, but resume activities in the Yankees' apple orchard on Saturday. The series has all the marking of a clean sweep for the McCarthymen. Before leaving we again salute "Ol' Diz", who really gave a great exhibition of pitching yesterday. He retired ten Yankees in succession—something noteworthy in itself and his letting them down with three hits for seven frames is also no mean effort.

NEWARK BEARS NEED ONE WIN

Joe Beggs Hurls Bears To 6-1 Victory Over Kansas City

Kansas City, Oct. 7 (AP)— The man who put Kansas City Blues in the Little World Series tonight faces the job of keeping them there. He is Marvin Bruer, righthanded hurler who won three games from St. Paul in American Association playoffs finals. Tonight he takes the mound against Newark Bears in the sixth game of the Little World Series. If he wins the series will be tied up at three all. If he loses, it's all over.

Joe Beggs in a masterful performance hurled Newark to a 6-1 victory in the fifth game last night to give the Bears their three to two edge.

In registering his second victory of the series, Beggs allowed only eight hits and didn't walk a man.

George Washburn didn't last quite three innings last night and in that time the Bears had scored five runs. Ernie Bonham, who succeeded him, hurled bangup ball until taken out for a pinch hitter, and Al Piechota, who finished the game didn't do so badly, although he was nicked for a run in the ninth.

LONE CANADIAN IN SEMI-FINALS

Mrs. F. J. Mulqueen Meets British Golfer In One Match

(By Ross Munro, Canadian Press Staff Writer).

Ottawa, Oct. 7 (CP)—Three British golfers and one lone Canadian from Toronto matched strokes over Royal Ottawa Golf Club's rolling fairways today in the semi-finals of the Canadian Women's open golf championship.

The four are all that are left from a field of 94 which started out last Monday in pursuit of the open title, vacated by Mrs. John Rogers of Winnipeg, who was eliminated in the first round.

Mrs. F. J. Mulqueen of Toronto, a veteran in golfing tournaments in this country, meets Mrs. J. B. Walker of Britain in one semi-final match and in the other two youthful Britons, Clarrie Tiernan of Dublin and Jessie Anderson of Perth, Scotland, clash.

Most experts at the open concede Mrs. Mulqueen a victory over Mrs. Walker while Miss Anderson is expected to trim Miss Tiernan, her teammate on the British Curtis cup quintet.

McLAIN SECURES 2 STRAIGHT FALLS

Defeats Karl "Killer" Davis Quite Easily

Toronto, Oct. 7 (CP)—Mayes McLain, 238, Pryor, Okla., who unmasked the Masked Marvel here last week, defeated Karl (Killer) Davis, 205, Tennessee, by taking two straight falls in the main bout of a wrestling card last night McLain took the first fall with flying tackles, a reverse roll and spread after 21 minutes, and won with flying tackles little more than six minutes later.

McLain was first wrestler to defeat the Masked Marvel since he donned the mask several months ago. He was found to be Ted (Bull dog) Cox, Yuma, Ariz.

BILL CALLADINE JOINS ORIOLES

Peterboro Starry Centre To Play In U. S. Hockey Loop

Toronto, Oct. 7 (CP)—Acquisition of four leading Ontario players for Baltimore Orioles of the Eastern United States Amateur Hockey League was announced last night by W. E. (Pick) Hines, newly-appointed coach of the Orioles.

Hines said Jimmy Ulman, Bill Meloche and Webb Lancyman of Cornwall Flyers, Eastern Canada senior champions last winter, would join the Orioles, along with Bill Calladine of Peterborough. Ulman and Meloche are wingmen and Lancyman a defenceman, while Calladine is a high scoring forward.

The club will begin training at Baltimore about the end of October.

B. C. I. and Albert Play 6-6 Tie Game

Renewing their ancient football feud of years standing the Belleville Collegiate gridders played the Albert College rugby team to a six-six tie at the Fair Grounds yesterday. The "Collegians" scored their major points in the initial half, while the Albert squad battled back courageously to knot the count in the third quarter. The game was marked with sturdy defence on the part of both squads.

Ken Weller raced over for a B.C.I. touchdown when he took Ross Clare's flat forward pass and raced over Albert's goal line for a try, which Clare promptly converted. Although both squads invaded the pigskin into their respective enemy's territory all efforts to score were in vain until Lougheed snagged a Collegiate fumble and galloped over for a major score that Hagyard converted to knot the count. The final period went scoreless and the game ended in a 6-6 draw.

Coach Pete Beach's Albert College squad is entered in the senior C.O.S.S.A. series and will represent the Bay of Quinte district by virtue of a bye, into the Provincial interscholastic playdowns.

B.C.I.: Mulholland, snap; Bockus, inside; Lancaster, inside; Farquharson, middle; Peoples, middle. Warren, outside; Ethier, outside; Carson, quarter; Clare, halfback; Hafey, halfback; Thorne, halfback; Weller, flying wing; subs, Boyce, McBride, Pigden, Vanderwater.

Albert College: Maldens, snap; Downing, inside; Allen, inside; Hagyard, middle; Lougheed, middle; Scholes, outside; Ellis, outside; Woolley, quarter; Moulden, halfback; Harrison, halfback; Blackman, halfback; Flying wing, Lovey; subs, Partridge, Gerow, Crouch, Watson, Byrans, Worrell.

Referee: Homer "Red" Townsend.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Oct. 7 (AP) — The stock market fought profit taking with a fair amount of success today and leading issues retained major portions of initial advances running to a point or more.

Rails, aircrafts and specialties pointed the way to higher levels in the early proceedings. There were frequent relapses but, near the final hour, U.S. Steel and Bethlehem stepped up to the head of the procession and improvement was registered in most other groups.

Transfers were about 1,500,000 shares, or nearly 1,000,000 under the preceding session.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 7 (CP)—Base metals showed strength in the late session on the Toronto Stock Exchange today but the rest of the mining list tended lower. Steels, utilities and oils were moderately strong in the industrial division. Western oils moved irregularly. Volume was light, around 150,000 shares below yesterday.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford By Financial Service

The action of the stock market during the past week or so definitely indicates that a considerable amount of demand was delayed pending outcome of the European crisis, and in fact the latent buying power was greater than the majority anticipated. We appear to be in a bull market, the extent of which will depend upon the ability of industry to recover, as well as a continuation of confidence on the part of the public in the ability of the Dominion to forge ahead.

As long as the surplus of newsprint on hand remains much above normal, production may not fully reflect the increased consumption. It is still hoped, however, that during the first months of 1939 this excess supply will be eliminated. And there should be a sharper expansion in production as it comes more into line with consumption. Therefore, we think there is a possibility that newsprint consumption may expand faster than general business and, in turn, production may increase faster than consumption as inventories of paper are depleted. If this expansion materializes, the newsprint companies for the first time in well over a decade will feel the full stimulating effect of the substantially higher price—provided that $50 newsprint is maintained.

Internat'onal Nickel Appears to be Behind the Market

During the war scare the common stock of the International Nickel Company of Canada Limited gave an excellent account of itself in the five markets where it is widely traded in. Now that an immediate war has been averted and stocks on the New York board have improved materially, the opinion is expressed that Nickel is behind the rest of the market.

Official utterances are to the effect that sales and earnings should be higher during the last quarter of this year. Copper prices might also be stronger. A two-cent advance in the price of the red metal would mean 40 cents a share in the company's earnings. Under such favorable circumstances, it is only natural to expect that Nickel will be given special attention by its sponsors before long.

Steel Company of Canada

With prospects now favouring improving sales of automobiles, Steel Company of Canada, which sells a goodly portion of its finished output to the automobile companies, should enjoy an increasing volume of business. Because of this and the improved outlook for the building trade, prospects are improved. Long-range outlook is brightened by the $10,000,000 plant improvement program designed to broaden company's line of products.

Production of Butter Increases

Toronto, Oct. 7—Rate of butter production in Ontario continues at a faster pace than last year, with the make-up approximately 1,000,000 pounds last month over a year ago, and total output for the first nine months of the current year 5.2 million pounds ahead of 1937, according to the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Cheese production in September fell 1.5 million pounds from the same month of last year, which brings it to 8.6 million pounds under 1937 for the nine-month period.

Butter Jumps 1 Cent

Prices jumped a full cent per pound for butter, with churning cream reflecting this sharp advance on the local produce market yesterday. Top-grade eggs were also higher in value.

Buyers stepped into the butter market to take on supplies necessary for their current requirements and prices shot up rapidly under the more active demand. Light offerings were the factor responsible for the brisk rise. Fresh receipts are falling off with the seasonal decline in production, while holders of storage stocks are not offering butter, as prices have not yet reached a level profitable to them. Ontario creamery solids were absorbed at 22c to 22 1-2c for No. 1 grades, and 21 1-4c to 21 1-2c for 38 score. Prints joined the upturn, selling at 23 1-2c to 24c for top grades and 22 3-4c to 23 1-4c for 38 score. Churning cream advanced to the range of 20c to 21c for No. 1 grades (country truck prices).

Light receipts was also the cause for increased quotations on top-grade eggs on the egg market. Ungraded shipments changed hands at 34c for grade A-large and 33c for medium, with undergrades maintaining former levels. The retail section of the market firmed in sympathy. Graded eggs cleared readily at 37c for grade A-large, 36c for medium, 30 for pullets, 26c for B's, and 21c to 22c for C grades.

Boost Butter Price at Montreal

Montreal, Oct. 7—(CP)—Light offering and active trading boosted butter prices on open produce markets here today, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported. Quebec No. 1 pasteurized was a full cent higher, and Western butter delivered in Montreal was up 3-4c.

Creamery butter prints to retail dealers sold for 23c to 23 1-2c a pound, and creamery solids for 22 1-2c to 23c. Western butter delivered in Montreal was 22 3-4c. Quebec pasteurised No. 1 in wholesale job lots was 23c. Receipts: 1,314 boxes, including 435 for export.

POLICE COURT

When William Bedford, Belleville, appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., in police court today charged with causing a disturbance in the City Relief Office recently, Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., immediately requested an adjournment.

"I want to give this matter my personal attention and a thorough investigation before I proceed with the case and would recommend an enlargement until Tuesday", stated Mr. Donnan the request was granted. The charge was preferred against Bedford following an alleged disturbance in the City Relief office on Wednesday, when the accused refused to leave the premises when instructed so to do.

"We can't keep this man in custody indefinitely, Your Worship," said Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, when James Bradford appeared on a charge of assaulting his wife. Bradford has been in custody and on remand for a month. He was permitted his liberty today, but warned to refrain from returning home until the case is finally disposed of. The matter was again enlarged for one week.

Miss Emma Dafoe, Belleville, appeared on a charge of the negligent operation of an automobile causing grievous bodily harm and was acquitted without testimony being offered by the Crown. "I have read the testimony of witnesses submitted at the Coroner's inquest and find there is not sufficient evidence to put the accused on trial and therefore dismiss the case, but it is my personal belief that the instructor of the driver was as much to blame as the accused, but we are not trying the instructor," remarked His Worship in comment. Mr. Chas. A. Cameron, K.C., represented the accused.

Frank Mitchell, Toronto, appeared charged with failing to provide for his family. The accused pleaded guilty, but upon intervention of the court the accused later agreed to pay his wife 50 per cent of his wages. Jacob Goodman appeared for the accused.

Two minor charges preferred under the H.T.A. concluded the court.

CHEESE PATRONS TO ASSIST EXHIBITION

In an effort to assist members of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association in holding the Empire Cheese Exhibition in this city in November, it was announced today through local provincial secretary S. L. Joss that cash prizes totalling $100 would be offered the six members having the highest average scores for cheese from May 1 until October 1 of the current year by the Central Ontario Cheese Patrons' Association. The cash donation will be distributed as follows: First prize, $35.00; second prize, $25.00; third prize, $17.50; fourth prize, $10.00; fifth prize, $7.50; and sixth prize, $5.00. This will be limited to Central Ontario district makers only.

REV. DR. MALOTT RESIGNS PULPIT AT BROCKVILLE

Will Complete Ministry At End of Conference Year In June

40 YEARS' MINISTRY

Was Minister of Bridge St. Church In Belleville Seven Years

Brockville, October 7.—The resignation of Rev. Dr. F. E. Malott, pastor of Wall Street United church since June, 1935, was tendered at a congregation meeting held in the Sunday school room of the church Wednesday evening. The resignation will take effect at the end of the conference year which comes in June 1939.

Dr. Malott stated that his reason for giving notice of retiring from the ministry at this time was to give the congregation an opportunity over an ample period of time to select his successor. Dr. Malott spoke of his ministry in Wall Street church, stating that he had enjoyed the happiest relations with the official boards of the church and also with members of the congregation. The speaker said that from now until the end of the conference year in June, 1939, he would continue to use every effort for the betterment of the congregation and asked the members of the church to still consider him as their minister until such time as he terminates his ministry.

DR. F. E. MALOTT

The resignation of Dr. Malott was accepted on resolution of W. C. Dowsley, seconded by W. T. Rogers. The resolution stated the congregation felt unfeigned regret at the decision of the minister to retire. The motion assured Dr. Malott of the continued loyalty of the congregation and informed him of the entire satisfaction the congregation of the church had derived from his ministry At the termination of his services, the resolution stated, the congregation will have an opportunity to say farewell, but for the present it was impossible to adequately express the high esteem in which his work in all departments of the church is held.

Senator Graham's Tribute

Rev. Dr. Hamilton paid striking tribute to the work of Dr. Malott during his pastorate in Brockville, saying it was typical of the man to allow the congregation such a long period of time in which to select a successor. Dr. Hamilton read a letter from Rt. Hon. Senator George P. Graham expressing regret at his inability to attend the meeting.

A second letter, also addressed to Dr. Hamilton to read to the congregation and to hand to Dr. Malott after its reading, from Senator Graham was also read. The letter praised the tireless energy of Dr. Malott during his pastorate and said the announcement of his retirement would be received with deep regret by members of the congregation. No man could have been more to his people as pastor, preacher and friend than had the retiring minister been during his stay in Brockville, Senator Graham's letter stated. The letter closed with best wishes that Dr. Malott and his family would be spared for many years to come and that all would enjoy good health.

On motion the meeting named the official board to the church to select a commitee to consider a successor for Dr. Malott.

Ordained 40 Years

With the completion of the present conference year, Dr. Malott will have served 40 years as an ordained minister. For the past four years he has served the congregation of Wall Street church, coming to Brockville from Young United Church, Winnipeg, where he was stationed for six years. Before going to Winnipeg, Dr. Malott served Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, for seven years. Others pastorates held by him have been at Chatham, London, Ont., St. Mary's, Orillia and Peterborough.

Dr. Malott graduated from the University of Toronto in Arts and from Victoria College in Divinity. In 1925 the degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred on him by Victoria University. He has held many high positions in the church, having served as chairman of various committees of conference and was named a number of times as commissioner to the General Council of the church. During his academic career he won three gold medals. At Toronto Normal School he won the high honor, later he was gold medalist in philosophy in University of Toronto. He won a third gold medal in Divinity at Victoria College.

In 1910 Dr. Malott pursued post-graduate work in England and Germany, spending a year abroad.

Dr. Malott has two daughters, Mrs. E H. Carnahan, of Buffalo, N.Y., and Miss Eleanor Malott who resides with her parents here.

For Czech Refugees.

London, Oct. 7 (CP-Havas)—Several thousand pounds have already been received at the Mansion House for the Lord Mayor's fund for the Czechoslovak refugees from Sudetenland, it was announced today. Many donations have come in the form of jewels or gold watches.

The Union of Post Office Workers decided to donate £1,000 ($4,800) to the fund.

CHAMBERLAIN

political meeting today to take action looking toward a plebiscite to determine whether this former German colony should be restored to Germany or remain under the Union of South Africa.

A resolution adopted by the Omaruru Branch of the United Nationalist Southwest African Party asked the administrator to summon the legislature, to arrange for a vote on the question of ending the League of Nations mandate and either returning the territory to the Reich or annexing it to South Africa, which holds a League of Nations mandate over the colony.

Population of Territory.

The population of Southwest Africa includes 30,000 persons of European ancestry including 21,000 South Africans (mixed Dutch and British stock), 6,000 Germans naturalized as South African citizens, and 3,000 German Nationals.

(Southwest Africa, with an area of 317,725 square miles and a total population of about 360,000, mostly natives, was annexed by Germany in 1884, but was surrendered to the forces of the Union of South Africa early in the Great War, July 9, 1915.)

Runciman Denies Rumor.

London, Oct. 7 (CP-Havas) — "I have not been offered anything," Viscount Runciman was quoted by the Daily Mail today as saying in connection with reports he would succeed Alfred Duff Cooper as First Lord of the Admiralty.

Police Blotter

Local police authorities were requested to assist in the search for 19 year old Bernard May of Picton, who disappeared from his home two days ago and has not been heard of since. Last seen young May was wearing a blue suit, glasses, and is of fair complexion. Any information regarding this young man's whereabouts should be communicated with Chief Kidd.

Kingston police reported the theft of a Dodge sedan from that city last night. The vehicle is the property of Mr. L. M. Greeney of Port Hope, and bore Ontario licence plates number 4-Z-228.

Ruben Irvine, Chatham St., reported the theft of a flashlight from off his bicycle last evening. Young Irvine left his bike parked near the corner of Chatham St. and Victoria Ave. while making a personal call. The flashlight was left attached to the bicycle when stolen.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper ma said to pop, Senator Tocker spoke at the meeting of the Dawters of Cleopattera this afternoon, Willyum.

Yes, he's been spouting here there and everywhere now that the elections are drawing near, pop said, and ma said, Dont sit there and call it spouting. He was wonderful, he was thrilling, he proved that the golden gift of oratory is not dead, she said, and pop said, He's been proving it for years.

Such fire, such eloquence, ma said. I never experienced anything like it; his eyes seemed to light up as though from some inner flame, she said, and pop said, I heard him once and I thought that was the reflection on his glasses.

He was inspired and we were all spellbound, ma said, and pop said, What did he say?

Does it matter what he said as long as he expressed it with such magnificient ardor? ma said, and pop said, Perhaps not, as long as a politician accomplishes his purpose, the less that's known about what he says the better. Anyway he converted you, did he? he said.

How do you mean, converted me? ma said, and pop said, For Peet sake dont you even know what side he was on?

Why should a man as big as that be small enough to need to be on any particular side? ma said, and pop said, Because the square root of 2 equilateral triangles is the sum of the distance between their 2 shortest points.

And he got in back of the sporting page and stayed there.

WHEN YOU FIRST STARTED TAKING AN INTEREST IN BOB, TILLIE, MY IDEA WAS TO LET HIM GO TO YOU, IF HE WAS SO WEAK HE COULDN'T RESIST YOU, BUT NOW I'VE CHANGED MY MIND AND I'VE DECIDED YOU'RE NOT GOING TO GET AWAY WITH IT
WELL, BUBBLES, NOW THAT YOU'VE GOT ME IN THE SPOTLIGHT, I'LL TELL ALL —THIS IS A SURPRISE PARTY
YEAH— THAT'S IT, BUBBLES. HONEST IT IS
I'LL SAY IT'S A SURPRISE PARTY—YOU DIDN'T KNOW THAT WE WERE FOLLOWING YOU
NO, BUT I'M GLAD YOU DID, BECAUSE NOW WE CAN GO OVER AND SURPRISE MAC AND DICK AS SOON AS THEY ARRIVE AT THAT OLD BARN OVER THERE
LOOK, BUBBLES —A CAR IS JUST DRIVING INTO THAT BARN
I DON'T BELIEVE IT'S MAC, BUT, ANYWAY, WE'LL GO OVER AND SEE GOOD GIRL, TILLIE—THAT WAS FAST THINKING

TENDERS

SEALED TENDERS, addressed to the undersigned and marked "Tender for Repairs to Concrete, Lock 10, Trent Canal" will be received up to 12 o'clock noon, Eastern Standard Time, Friday, October 14, 1938, for Repairing Concrete Walls of Lock 10, on the Trent Canal, near Campbellford, Ontario.

Plans, specifications, labour conditions and form of contract to be entered into may be seen on and after the date of this notice at the office of the General Superintendent of Canals, West Block, Ottawa, or at the office of the Superintending Engineer, Trent Canal, Peterboro, Ontario.

Plans, specifications, labour conditions, form of contract and tender form may be obtained from the said General Superintendent of Canals or Superintending Engineer upon payment of the sum of $10.00. To bona fide tenderers this amount will be returned upon the return of the plans and specifications in good condition.

An accepted bank cheque on a chartered bank of Canada for the sum of $2,600.00, made payable to the order of the Department of Transport, must accompany each tender. Bonds of the Dominion of Canada and, or Canadian National Railways-Bonds, guaranteed by the Dominion of Canada, will be accepted in lieu of or in conjunction with such accepted cheque. In any case the sum deposited will be forfeited if the party tendering declines to enter into a contract for the work in form generally as exhibited ("Contract form, Construction") at the rate stated in its tender.

Cheques and, or bonds accompanying tenders will be returned to the respective parties whose tenders are not accepted.

The Cheque and, or bonds of the successful tenderer will be held as security for the fulfilment of his contract for this work.

The lowest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted.

G. W. YATES,
Secretary.
Department of Transport,
Ottawa, October 4, 1938.

2,122 BUS. OF GRAIN THRESHED IN 10 HRS.

A bid for the district's threshing honors for this season has been advanced by Mr. Geo. Bailey of Stirling who this week during a period of ten hours threshed 2,122 bushels of grain. The mill, owned by Theodore Cooney of Rawdon, is tractor powered.

Lady for Shanghai

"You know what will happen if I report this matter to the Chief Steward?" he asked at last.

"I shall be dismissed at the end of the voyage," she said quietly. "I understood that, Doctor — I knew the risk I was taking when I left the hospital."

"And—what you had to do was so important that you took that risk? You put me in a very difficult position, Miss Jordan. I could have sworn that you were reliable—I'm completely puzzled."

He swung round to face her again, and she met his eyes bravely. She would not ask him for mercy, would not beg him not to make a report to Mr. Perrin, who hated her, and who would think, as Mrs. Parr did, that her reason for leaving the hospital was that she was carrying on an intrigue with some man on board. She knew that John Stanhope would be perfectly justified in making such a report to Perrin, and she would not tell him of the squalid accusations which would certainly be added to that report, before it was passed on to headquarters.

He said slowly: "Miss Jordan, I am not going to press for your confidence—I am not sure that I even want to know why you failed in your duty to-night. You have your own reasons for keeping silent. But—I am not going to report what has happened. It would mean the loss of your job, and no harm has come to my patient."

"Thank you, Doctor," she said and was ashamed of herself because she could not keep her voice from shaking.

"Then we will not speak of this incident again, Miss Jordan. I cannot pretend that I shall forget it, but I have said all that I have to say. You had better go to your own room now. You need sleep."

Christine Breaks Down

Sleep. Did he really think that she could go calmly to her own room and sleep, after that scene with him? She left the hospital at once, with a murmured "Good-night" to him, but in the deep shadow below one of the boats she flung herself down on the deck, her face hidden in her hands, and long, low sobs racked her.

John Stanhope would never forget. They would work together until the end of the voyage, perhaps for many voyages, but he would never again have any real confidence in her. Always there would be the knowledge between them that she had once failed in her duty, for a reason which she could not explain to him.

From John Stanhope there would be no more friendly smiles. He would give her his orders, and he would wonder, as he gave them, whether she would obey them faithfully.

After a little time, she stumbled to her feet and went to the rail. The moon had risen, and beyond the narrow silver ribbon of the Suez Canal the great desert stretched to the far horizon, pale gold in the moonlight. An Arab wrapped in his burnoose, still as a statue on his white camel, watched the liner go past from the bank of the Canal.

The great quietness of the desert brought peace to Christine's tormented spirit. It was as though that Arab watcher on his white camel was a symbol of the desert itself, as though so many human griefs and joys had passed before his hooded eyes, passed and been forgotten for human griefs and joys were fleeting, and the desert endured for ever.

"I must go to Fay," she said wearily, under her breath, and turned and went down the companion.

It was long after midnight, and she met no one on her way to the lower deck, though the lights were still on in the cabin de luxe, and she could hear that Royde had turned on the gramophone again. Probably Dosia Smythe and Iris Collins were still with him.

Fay's room was in darkness, but when Christine switched on the light, she saw that Fay had flung herself across the narrow bed and was fast asleep, still fully dressed. Christine noticed the long chain of amber beads on the dressing table, and guessed that Royde had bought them for Fay in Port Said that day, and that she had not worn them because her dress was red.

"Wake up, she said softly.

Fay stirred but did not wake until Christine deftly began to take off her shoes and then her red frock. Then she opened her eyes and stared sleepily at Christine.

"Is it morning—time to get up?" she murmured drowsily.

"No—you've not been to bed yet, Fay."

"I'm so—sleepy, Christine," Fay said, closing her eyes again.

Christine saw that it would be useless to try to talk seriously to Fay that night, for she was not shamming drowsiness; she was so drugged with sleep that she simply did not know where he was, or why Christine had come to her. The only thing to do was to get her into bed.

And Fay, letting Christine undress her and tuck her up in bed like a child, was so like the baby sister whom Christine had mothered years ago, that it was difficult to remember how much trouble she had caused Christine, that very night. For ten minutes, they were back in a distant past.

"Good-night, darling," Christine said gently, stooping over Fay to kiss her.

"Good-night, Christine," Fay whispered.

Christine went along the alleyway to her own cabin, and neither Mrs. Parr nor Miss Crane spoke to her, but she was almost sure that she heard a faint movement from the upper bunk. Miss Crane at least was awake, and would tell Mrs. Parr to-morrow that Christine had come into the cabin in the small hours of the morning.

There was something else which Christine had to decide before she fell asleep—whether she was to take any notice at all of the accusations which Mrs. Parr had hurled at her in the hospital that night. It seemed to her that the only thing to do was to ignore them. Spiteful though the two women were, their suspicions could do Christine no harm unless they had definite proof to back them up, and they could certainly get no proof that she was meeting a man.

When she stumbled out of bed in the morning, after less than five hours sleep, she found that Mrs. Parr and Miss Crane had also decided on a kind of truce.

"How's your patient?" Miss Crane said, sourly enough, as she picked up the tray which she was taking down to the pantry for fruit.

"She's not very bad—she was delirious last night, but Dr. Stanhope thinks she will be all right to-day, except for a head-ache."

"I've only once had a bad case of sunstroke—and that was touch and go," Mrs. Parr said, "but we never seem to get through the Canal without one or two slight cases."

She did not look at Christine as she spoke, but Christine was thankful that the two of them were still more or less on speaking terms with her. She was angry and disgusted with them, but she did not want to quarrel with people with whom she must share a room for the next three months.

AVIATOR LANDS WITH BEAR CUB

Flier Mistakes Way And Makes Perfect Landing West of City

Carrying a small cub bear as a passenger, an unidentified aviator who told excited spectators he hailed from Northern Quebec, brought his low-winged private monoplane to a perfect three point landing in the small field near Sidney and Wilkins Streets, shortly after seven o'clock Wednesday night.

Tying his fuzzy-coated passenger to the plane, the aviator produced a sleeping bag, curled up in it in a fence corner and stayed there for the night, taking off in his machine from a difficult angle at seven o'clock Thursday morning.

He stated to a bystander that he was enroute to his home in Pennsylvania from Northern Quebec. He had intended to travel via Kingston, but had missed his direction and discovered himself in Belleville. He was taking the bear to his children for a pet.

The flyer had apparently missed his Kingston objective by a wide margin, for residents of the district stated the plane arrived from a westerly direction, and after circling over the city a couple of times, finally negotiated the difficult landing without mishap, although the propeller of his machine was but a few inches from a fence when it finally stopped.

THANKSGIVING DISPLAYS SEEN

Shop Windows Indicate Fine Crop of Season

Indicative of the splendid harvest reaped by farmers in this district are the fine Thanksgiving displays of fruits, flowers and vegetables of the field and garden to be seen in various shop-windows of the city.

The yellow of the pumpkin, the reds and greens of the apple, gold of the peach and orange and the hundred and one colorful varieties of produce, enhanced by decorations of brilliant scarlet and yellow maple leaves, form an eye-pleasing picture.

Pussy on Pole Brought Down By Firemen

ed abruptly for a thoroughly-frightened black kitten perched atop a telephone pole on Wickett Street last night, when members of the Belleville Fire Department came to its rescue with long ladders.

The small kitten, believed to have sought the top of the pole when chased by dogs, refused the attraction offered by sympathetic residents, and could not budge until taken from its precarious position by firemen.

The stray kitty, was nearly frozen through exposure to the cold breezes, when rescued.

WILD RASPBERRIES STILL GROWING

Wild raspberries are still growing in the county despite the heavy frosts. This week Mrs. E. Scrimshaw of Stirling, discovered a number of bushes of the wild variety well laden with berries along the road near Evergreen cheese factory.

LOT PURCHASED FOR NEW POST OFFICE

Notification has been received by the village of Stirling in a communication from Mr. C. A. Cameron, K.C., M.P. for South Hastings, that the Mathews lot at the corner of North and Charlotte streets has been chosen for the site of the new post office. Plans for the building are under way, and it is expected that tenders will be called for soon.

FLOOR JOISTS SLIGHTLY BURNED

Fire that broke out in the cellar of a house at 101 Cannifton Road, yesterday afternoon while the lady of the house was searching for articles resulted in a slight damage to joists of the first floor.

A quick response to an alarm by city firemen extinguished the blaze before serious damage resulted.

AT THE BELLE

"Carefree"

Bringing the world-famous team of Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers together once more, R K O Radio's "Carefree" presents a glittering joyous and song-studded film romance embellished with Irving Berlin melodies, startling dance routines and a deftly-handled story at the Belle.

Because Ginger keeps breaking off her wedding date with Ralph Bellamy, the latter asks Astaire, a psychiatrist, to fix up any lurking inhibitions the lady may have on the subject of marriage. The pretty patient complicates matters by falling in love with Fred instead of with Ralph.

When the psychiatrist fails to respond, the actress starts a hectic series of madcap adventure, the doctor meantime falling in love with her himself, only to find that he has a new resistance to overcome. How the seemingly lost cause is won at the last moment makes for the uproarious climax of the picture, which is said to be both the funniest and most entertaining of all the Astaire-Rogers vehicles.

The two stars, with cleverly drawn roles to enact as the psychiatrist and the actress, have unusual opportunities to display the talents that made them the world's premiere dancing duo, and Ralph Bellamy as the lawyer forms the third corner of the tumultuous triangle in what is perhaps his finest role to date.

The brilliant supporting cast is headed by Luella Gear noted Broadway comedienne, and Jack Carson, hailed as the comedy "discovery" of the year, along with Clarence Kolb and Franklin Pangborn. Four of Irving Berlin's catchiest tunes, "The Night Is Filled With Music," "I Used To Be Color Blind," "The Yam" and "Change Partners," are featured in the picture, and all four are in the top rank of popularity in the nation's song lists. There is a choral feature also by Robert B. Mitchell and his St. Brendan Boys.

The dance numbers of "Carefree" following the Astaire-Rogers tradition of introducing spectacular routines into their vehicles, are unusually diversified. They include the Golf Dance, a solo novelty by Astaire, the "Change Partners" routine, a sensational romantic ballroom dance, a dream fantasy number and "The Yam," a colorful but simple ballroom routine, the first dance the two stars have ever presented which can without revision be performed by the general public, and which has caught on widely.

3 Select Featurettes

Three varied and select featurettes are announced for exhibition on the same program including Leon Errol in a new uproarious multiple-reel comedy "His Best Friend," Paramount News presenting latest World News Events and Walt Disney's newest color cartoon "Polar Trappers."

Fred Astaire featured with Ginger Rogers in "Carefree", coming to the Belle.

Sunday Midnight Show

The mad, merry Marx Brothers bring their latest lunatical comedy, "Room Service," to the Belle screen for a special holiday preview presentation after an absence from pictures of one year.

"Room Service," a mirthful picturization of the sensational New York comedy smash presents Groucho, Harpo and Chico as a daffy trio of theatrical promoters How they manage to remain with a cast of twenty-two in a big hotel without paying rent, and induce a noted financer and hotel auditor to back the show, provides uproarious merriment in "Room Service."

A great surrounding show has been assembled for exhibition on the same program.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Street Scene"

The swift drama of New York caught and carried to the screen by an author who has lived his life there.

In that, perhaps, lies the true greatness of "Street Scene", Samuel Goldwyn's United Artists' production of the Elmer Rice stage play, which is current on the screen, at the McCarthy Theatre.

Once each year a distinguished body of dramatic judges assemble to select the greatest American dramatic creation of it season. The fact that "Street Scene" was the unanimous selection which carries with it Pulitzer prize award, bespeaks greatness for Elmer Rice's masterpiece.

An International Success

But still more significant is the fact that "Street Scene" ran into its second year in New York, that it scored triumphs in London, Chicago, Los Angeles and other large cities. To the pundits of dramatic criticism may belong the right of judging a play's greatness, but it is the public which determines the question of popularity.

"Street Scene" which comes to the screen with members of the original stage cast augmented by such cinema names as Sylvia Sidney, William Collier, Jr., and Estelle Taylor, has passed the test of both critics and the public. It has served as never before to bring Elmer Rice into the spotlight as one of America's great dramatists.

Born In New York

Writing in Theatre Magazine, Elmer Rice had this to say about himself and his play:

"I am one of the very few native New Yorkers extant. I was actually born on Manhattan Island—somewhere in the East Nineties, to be moderately accurate—and for the first twenty-one years of my life I never was out of the city for more than two weeks at a time, or more than two hundred miles away. New York is in my blood; it has moulded me and colored me. I am a product of its sidewalks, its parks, its public schools and its brownstone front. In my childhood and youth, I lived in more than one house that, at least as far as externals go, might very well have been the house which the rising curtain reveals to the audiences at the playhouse.

"Not only did my eyes first open upon the New York scene, but they witnessed a transformation in the city that, in retrospect, seems almost unbelievable. The past thirty years have probably wrought more changes in the city than did the preceding two centuries.

"Street Scene" is an attempt to project upon the stage one small section of New York life. In writing it I tried as far as possible both in its title and its treatment to make it the antithesis of the Zangwill play. "The Melting Pot" which had a great vogue about twenty years ago. I do not think that I ever saw "The Melting Pot" but I remember distinctly reading it and forming a resolution then and there to write a play, someday, as unlike it as possible."

Three Stooges Comedy

Preceding the presentation of the feature attraction, the McCarthy Theatre featurettes are excellent and include the Three Stooges Larry, Moe and Curly, in their latest and to date their funniest riot of comedy entitled "Three Dumb Clucks" that is guaranteed for laughing purposes. Also "Fishing Thrills", the finest sport subject to be presented on the screen in quite some time, from stream fishing to whaling, it takes you through ten minutes of sport life that makes one imagine that they too are enjoying the pleasures of those who are actually being shown on the screen. "The Great Adventures of Wild Bill Hickok" thrilling and exciting chapter play that is presented is also splendid and balances off the entire program to a nicety.

BLUE WATER HIGHWAY BRIDGE IS DEDICATED

Mussolini Likely to Withdraw 10,000 Troops From Spain

NEWS ODDITIES AND BRIEFS

OFFER TO SEND 5,000 PACIFISTS

London, Oct. 8 (CP-Havas)—The "peace news" reported today that the Peace Pledge Union had submitted to Prime Minister Chamberlain an offer to send 5,000 Pacifists to the Sudeten regions of Czechoslovakia being turned over to Germany. The object of this group would be "to put into practice the methods of non-violence," the article said. No reply has been received to this suggestion.

LEATHER FOOTWEAR PRODUCTION HIGH

Ottawa, Oct. 8 (CP)— Highest point reached this year, Canada's August production of leather footwear totalled 2,178,202 pairs compared with 2,321,489 in August, 1937, the Dominion Bureau of statistics reported today.

Imports totalled 72,739 pairs valued at $131,937 against 57,685 at $119,457 in August last year, and exports 28,103 at $67,025 against 56,851 at $125,263.

Sandpoint, Idaho, Oct. 8 (AP)—"I got one!" yelled Charles Meulethaler, trolling for trout on Lake Pend Oreille.

"Me, too," replied his boat companion, Larry Dixon.

They reeled in—one 12-inch silver trout that had snapped up both spoon hooks.

CHAPEL AT QUEBEC 250 YEARS OLD

Quebec, Oct. 8 (CP)—Canada's oldest church, the historic little Roman Catholic chapel of Our Lady of Victories, will observe its 250th anniversary with special services Oct. 23. Standing in old Lower Town in the heart of Quebec's business district, the quaint wooden chapel was erected in 1688.

Why the Weather?

Absolute humidity! We seldom hear of this term, but it means the actual amount of water vapor in the air. This varies considerably not only in the surface layers but with elevation. The amount in the air may be expressed as so many grains of water in a cubic foot of air. On a settled day this actual amount does not vary as much as may be supposed. There is least water in the air just before sunrise and most about noontime. This is because the coolness of the night produces dew and this process dries the air somewhat while beginning with sunrise evaporation commences, thus adding moisture to the air. Later in the afternoon ascensional currents carry some of this moisture air to higher altitudes, and winds also aid greatly to distribute it along the surface.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 8—Pressure is high to the immediate west of Lake Superior and over the eastern portion of the continent, and relatively low over the Northwest Territories and Rocky Mountain States and a trough of low extends from far northern Quebec southwest to the lake regions. A disturbance of unknown intensity is centred well off the middle Atlantic coast. With the exception of showers in Ontario and northwestern Quebec the weather over the Dominion has been fair, quite cool over Eastern Canada and it has become a little milder in the Prairie Provinces.

Lake Superior—Moderate variable winds; fair and comparatively cool tonight and Sunday.

Manitoba—Fair and a little milder. Sunday, partly cloudy and comparatively mild with light scattered showers.

Alberta—Mostly fair tonight and Sunday; not much change in temperature.

History of Border Peace Is Challenge to Nations, Says Premier Hepburn

'Bridges, Not Batteries,' He States Should Be Slogan To World

GOODWILL GREETINGS

Governor Murphy Brings Felicitations From State of Michigan

Sarnia, Ont., Oct. 8 (CP)—The international Blue Water bridge, linking Canada and the United States, was dedicated today to a continuation of the existing amity between the two countries. Speakers contrasted the prevailing Good Neighborliness with Europe's troubled political conditions.

The $3,250,000 span across the St. Clair River formally was declared open by Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn of Ontario and Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan. The 871-foot steel and concrete structure connects Sarnia's Lake Huron port, Point Edward, with Port Huron, Mich.

Flags Raised, Bombs Fired.

In place of the traditional ribbon-cutting, flags were raised at the entrances to the Canadian and United States approaches, simultaneously with the firing of two aerial bombs, to mark the dedication.

Terming it "an historic occasion", Premier Hepburn voiced a "genuine and sincere expression of good-will" toward the citizens of the United States. "We Canadians are always happy to visit your country and meet in a personal way neighbors with whom we have so much in common," he said.

Governor Murphy contrasted the strained European situation to that of two democracies engaged in a work of peace and said the bridge was another bond "of respect and fraternity". The governor added: "Here, as others moulded concrete and steel into forts and bastions, we employed them to cement the unity of brothers under two flags."

Work on the bridge approaches started last Dec. The structure was ready for dedication in August when President Roosevelt found it impossible to attend.

Other prominent participants in the ceremony included: Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Ontario Minister of Highways; V. B. Steinbaugh Michigan Bridge Commission Chairman; Ross W. Gray, Liberal Member of the House of Commons for Lambton West; United States Senator Prentiss M. Brown; Mayor Fred Pelling of Sarnia and Mayor Charles D. Rettie, Port Huron.

Jewish People Reject Solution Made by British

London, Oct. 8 (AP)—Colonial Secretary Malcolm MacDonald and Sir Harold MacMichael, High Commissioner for Palestine, continued their urgent attempts today to find means of stopping disorder in the Holy Land.

Sir Harold, who flew here Thursday at the request of the Colonial Office, was expected to stay in London until Monday at least.

It was understood the Foreign Minister of Iraq, at a conference with Mr. MacDonald and Sir Harold yesterday, proposed a scheme which would prohibit more Jews from entering Palestine.

Reports of this proposal immediately brought a statement from the Jewish Agency for Palestine that "the Jewish people reject any solution which would condemn them to a minority status in Palestine."

"Jews are in Palestine 'on right and not on sufferance'," the statement said. "Their right to reconstitute their national home has been solemnly recognized in the United States of America, Great Britain and the whole civilized world."

PLAN SISTER SHIP TO NORMANDIE

French To Have Another Huge Liner To Cross Atlantic In 4 Days

New York, Oct. 8 (AP)—A $60,000,000 liner, a sister ship for the Normandie is planned by the French line Henri Morin de Linclays, American representative, said today on his return from Paris on the Ile de France. The new ship will have 250,000 horsepower, a speed of 34 knot and will make the trip between Havre and New York in four days De Linclays said. It is expected to be ready for service in 1941.

Opposition to British Gurantee Of New Frontiers is Expressed

Lord Beaverbrook Declares 'It Is Not Our Business'

LOAN IS OPPOSED

London, Oct. 8 (CP-Havas)—Opposition to a British guarantee of the new boundaries of Czechoslovakia, and against British loans to the Prague government, was expressed today in the Daily Express in an article signed by its owner, Lord Beaverbrook.

"Now we are making the grievous error of guaranteeing the boundaries of a truncated Czechoslovakia." Lord Beaverbrook wrote. "It is not our business. We are against it in any circumstances and every situation. Millions of our pounds are being sent to the Czechs in Prague with no justification.

Money To Go To Germans?

"The money will go straight to the Germans, who are thus getting reward from our government for conduct which our ministers deplore and condemn. Yet every penny of this capital is needed to equip our own country in armed isolation.

"Here, too, let it be said, emphatically and without fear of contradiction by any minister of the crown, that we know the dominions will only take part in quarrels that concern the British Empire. They will not participate in territorial disputes and boundary demarcations in central Europe."

Paying Price of Safety.

"There can surely be no man or woman in Britain," said the Daily Herald (Labor), "whose heart and conscience are not troubled as they read of the plight of refugees fleeing before the German army of occupation in the Sudetenland. But to be troubled in heart and conscience is not enough.

"We have direct responsibility to these men and women and children. It is they who are paying the price of our safety. It is they who are called upon to pay the first price of the Munich agreement.

"For many of them the only hope lies in assisted emigration to other lands. In that we and the dominions can play a great part if we will."

Germany Has Many Problems For Solution

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Berlin, Oct. 8 (AP)—The proverb that a prophet is not without honor save in his own country does not apply to Nazi leader Hitler.

At this moment fresh from his triumph in the Czechoslovak crisis he is riding the crest of a wave of German adulation that in many instances closely approaches worship.

This in itself is a partial answer to the oft repeated query in other countries as to whether Hitler has imposed himself and Nazism on an unwilling people who are only awaiting an opportunity to escape.

Nazidom has its opponents—some of them representing powerful interests—in the fatherland.

Hitler Idol of Masses.

But broadly speaking Hitler is the idol of the masses.

That is the way matters stand and they may so continue indefinitely, but close observers say there are a number of things against which he must safeguard his political house if he is to ensure its performance.

The most important of these are four:

1. An exceedingly difficult economic situation which must be righted if it is not to founder.

PICK-A-BACK PLANE FAILS TO BREAK RECORD

Makes Emergent Landing 380 Miles Short of Goal

COVERS 6,000 MILES

Cape Town, South Africa, Oct. 8 (CP)—The British pick-a-back seaplane Mercury today shattered the world non-stop seaplane flight record but failed to break the non-stop distance mark for all classes of planes.

The Mercury was forced down by fuel shortage this morning on Alexander Bay, near the mouth of the Orange river. The plane had covered 6,000 miles of a projected 6,370 mile flight from Dundee, Scotland, to Cape Town.

The longest previous non-stop seaplane flight was made by the German Lufthansa Do 18 last March with a 5,313-mile flight from Start Bay, Devon, England, to Caravellas, Brazil.

The seaplane settled in Alexander Bay while the pilots debated whether to resume the flight after refuelling.

First messages to Cape Town indicated the Mercury landed near the mouth of the Orange on the Atlantic coast along the border between the Union of South Africa and Southwest Africa.

The Mercury was released from its

German Passports To Jews Declared Invalid

Berlin, Oct. 8 (AP)—All German passports in the hands of Jews living within the German Reich have been declared invalid by a decree of the Interior Ministry.

If a Jew wishes to travel abroad, his passport—if his plan to travel is approved—may be made valid again by a special amendment entered in the document.

Instead of passports, the decree provided, Jews will be given police identification cards.

POISON ALCOHOL CAUSE

Hancock, N.Y., Oct. 8 (AP)—Poison alcohol was listed today by police as the cause of the deaths of five men whom he described as transients. Police said the men drank the liquid in a railroad sand house yesterday and died shortly afterward.

NO ISSUE OF PAPER THANKSGIVING DAY

Monday October 10th, "Thanksgiving Day", being a statutory holiday, there will be no edition of The Ontario Intelligencer.

DR. STEVENSON IS RE-INSTATED

Order Is Issued By Harold Kirby, Minister of Health

Toronto, Oct. 8. (CP)—Dr. George H. Stevenson was reinstated as superintendent of the Ontario Mental Hospital at London by an order issued today by Hon. Harold Kirby, Minister of Health.

The minister's action was the result of a recommendation by the Magone Commission which recently completed its inquiry into the administration of the London institution.

Dr. Stevenson was suspended when the Commission first started its investigation of mental hospital following the case of John R. Green, St. Thomas lawyer, that he had been improperly detained at the London hospital.

The superintendent's reinstatement is effective today.

ELDERLY WOMEN BURNED TO DEATH

Fire Believed Caused By Gasoline Igniting In Home

Toronto, Oct. 8 (CP)—Two elderly women were burned to death today in a fire that swept their Central Toronto home. A man who attempted to save one of them is in hospital in critical condition.

Mrs. Isabel Davis, 87, and Miss Elizabeth Bryson, 67, both died in the flaming ruins of the building. Albert Nicholl, believed to be the owner of the home, attempted vainly to save Miss Bryson. He dashed into the house but the flames drove him back and he was so severely burned he was removed to hospital.

Firemen said they believed the fire was caused by gasoline igniting but they could not say how immediately.

Near-Riot Occurs In Vienna After Demonstration

Vienna, Oct. 8 (AP)—A hostile demonstration involving youths who had heard Theodore Cardinal Innitzer preach a stirring sermon and customers of a Nazi-frequented cafe created a disturbed atmosphere here today.

Police were summoned to restore order after blows had been exchanged by members of small groups and some arrests were made.

Nazis shouted "to dachau (a notorious German concentration camp) with Innitzer!"

The near-riot occurred about midnight following a big Catholic demonstration, the first since the union of Austria and Germany Mar. 13. More than 10,000 attended, with many standing outside.

The Cardinal, in the address, said the church had been robbed of many things in the past months, including its organizations and banners, but had also gained a better appreciation of the value of community spirit.

MARKET PRODUCE A HEAVY CROP

Market gardeners and farmers of the district have many blessings to be thankful for this year, according to a survey of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Market produce such as small fruits and vegetables have been more plentiful this year than for many seasons. Berries during the forepart of the season were a bountiful crop and of splendid quality. Even the yield in wild fruits was exceptional. Apples have been a good crop, and more are being shipped from the section this season than since the year of the big frost in 1933 when thousands of trees were killed by the severe frosts, according to local inspector of Fruits and Vegetables branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, Mr. C. T. Stevenson.

ITALIAN TROOPS IN SPANISH ZONE TO BE RECALLED

Those With More Than 18 Months' Service First To Leave

DUCE ISSUES ORDER

Believe British-Italo Accord Will Now Be Matter of Promulgation

Rome, Oct. 8 (AP)—The government announced today that Italian troops with more than 18 months' service in Spain would be recalled to Italy.

The announcement was made in the form of a communique from General Franco's headquarters at Salamanca, Spain, and was distributed by the official Italian News Agency, Stefani.

The Communique.

The communique, without standing the number of troops actually to be withdrawn, said:

"General Franco is preparing immediate repatriation of Italian Legionnaires who have had more than 18 months uninterrupted campaigning in Spain.

"Nationalist Spain, in effecting this substantial withdrawal of volunteers, is contributing in an efficacious manner to the re-establishment of international confidence and at the same time satisfying in this manner the desire manifested by the non-intervention committee."

Private sources estimated 10,000 men would be withdrawn.

The question of removing Italian troops from Spain has complicated Italo-British relations for nearly a year.

A Primary Theme.

It was understood to have been a primary theme of several conversations this week between the British Ambassador, the Earl of Perth, and the Italian Foreign Minister, Count Galeazzo Ciano.

ESKIMO FAMILIES GIVEN 800 DEER FOR FOOD SUPPLY

Canadian Government To Rehabilitate Eskimos On Permanent Basis

ON NEW RESERVE

Ottawa, Oct. 8 (CP)—Canada's efforts to place the 2,500 Eskimo of the Western Arctic on a permanent basis as regards food and clothing, an effort which has already taken eight years and cost upwards of $250,000, reached another milestone next month when a herd of 800 reindeer will be turned over to four Eskimo families. The outcome will be awaited with hope that the experiment will be a success.

Eight years ago a herd of reindeer was purchased in Alaska by the government and the drive to the reserve selected for them on the Arctic coast east of the Mackenzie river delta began five years later, in the spring of 1935, the herd, slightly under 2,500 strong, arrived at its destination, travel-worn and after almost incredible hardships had been suffered by the deer and herders.

Restoration King Prajadhipok To Siamese Throne Attempted

Ten Arrests Made In Connection With The Coup

NEPHEW NOW RULING

Singapore, Oct. 8 (AP)—Ten arrests had been made today in connection with an attempt to overthrow the Siamese government.

It was believed those arrested intended to try to restore former King Prajadhipok to the throne from which he abdicated March 3, 1935, to be followed by his young nephew, now King Anada Mihidol.

The Minister of Agriculture fled from Bangkok.

King Prajadhipok abdicated after a lengthy controversy with the Siamese parliament. Since he had no son, the throne went to his young nephew, Anada, who was nine years old at the time.

Anada was proclaimed king four days after Prajadhipok abdicated. He remained in school at Lausanne, Switzerland, however, and a regency was set up to rule until he was of age.

Prajadhipok left the country after his abdication and took up permanent residence in England.

A plot against the government, said to have been started by non-commissioned officers of the army, was nipped in August, 1935.

Disarmament Plans Talk Is 'Decidedly Premature' Says Berlin Spokesman

Restriction In Use of Armaments Must Come First Is Claim

SEEK NEW ACCORD

French-German Accord Being Sought By Nazi Diplomats

By LOUIS LOCKNER

Berlin, Oct. 8 (CP)—All international talk and hopes about any disarmament plans Chancellor Hitler may have were branded "decidedly premature" today by a foreign office spokesman.

"Our top men and those who determine foreign policies in other capitals have so many immediate things to worry about that the armaments question is necessarily in the background," the official asserted.

A prominent Nazi editor who is close to Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering added that "our Fuehrer does not believe disarmament or even the limitation of armaments can be achieved until there has been first a restriction in the use of armaments."

MAY RECONSTRUCT BRITISH CABINET

Admiralty Post May Not Be Filled For Some Time

By J. F. SANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 8 (CP Cable)—Reconstruction of the Chamberlain Cabinet is regarded as a distinct possibility in political circles.

Prime Minister Chamberlain may not fill the Admiralty post vacated by Alfred Duff Cooper for some days and it may be used for a general reshuffle of portfolios. Viscount Hailsham, Lord President of the Council, and Lord Maugham, Lord Chancellor, are two elderly members of the Cabinet, who may step aside, both having hinted recently to friends that they find their duties onerous.

One of the men mentioned for the Admiralty post has been Viscount Runciman, but this may not come true. In some quarters Lord Runciman is reported to be the Prime Minister's choice to reorganize the merchant marine and some announcement of this plan may be made before Parliament meets.

Meanwhile, Mr. Chamberlain is keeping his own counsel on the Cabinet changes, turning them over in his mind while he fishes for salmon in Scotland. He may not complete the whole reconstruction until a few days before Parliament re-assembles Nov. 1.

JAPANESE FLEET STEAMS PAST KICHUN

Shanghai, Oct. 8 (AP)—The Japanese occupation of Kichun and the consequent placing of the invader's naval forces just 95 nautical miles from Hankow was announced today by Japanese officials.

After 458 days of fighting in the Yangtse River Valley, with the provisional capital of Hankow as the goal, the Japanese warships steamed past Kichun, 505 miles from the sea.

Attempt Made To Overthrow French Gov't

Paris, Oct. 8 (AP)—French Communists today sought to reform the shattered people's front on a broader base in an attempt to overthrow Premier Edouard Daladier's Government because of the Munich accord and to prevent a possibility of French recognition of Insurgent Spain.

At the same time Maurice Thorez, Secretary-General of the Communist Party, made an apparent bid for co-operation with such former enemies as the Liberal Nationalist Deputy Henri de Kerillis. Thorez referred flatteringly to the latter by name as having realized where the nation's interests were in voting against the Government.

Leon Blum, former Socialist Premier, has agreed the Socialists would accept the new Communist proposals if Daladier's use of his new decree powers should force the Socialists to break their tacit alliance with him and the Premier then decided to dissolve Parliament and hold new elections. Daladier has been widely reported to be considering this step.

Five Fraud Charges Laid After Arrest

Toronto, Oct. 8 (CP)—Bernard McKinnon alias Fitzpatrick was arrested on five fraud charges, including one of obtaining money from Loretta Morrison, secretary to Fred Orpen, allegedly in return for information concerning a death-plot against the Toronto race-track owner.

Miss Morrison told police she gave the man $20 at a "rendezvous" after he telephoned Orpen's office and told of a plot to kill him.

The other charges against McKinnon involve $22.

STIRLING RESIDENT ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

When his shotgun accidentally discharged while duck hunting just outside the limits, Clayton Stapley, Stirling resident, received part of the charge of shot in the right forearm this week. Talking to two companions who had accompanied him, Mr. Stapley noticed two ducks flying in his direction and was in the act of pulling his gun from the boat when it discharged. Dr. E. A. Carleton rendered medical aid.

TWO YOUNG GIRLS OBJECT OF SEARCH

A provincial-wide search for two young girls, who have been missing from their respective homes for one week, was directed by Belleville police upon learning of the facts yesterday. The girls are Violet Mitchell, 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mitchell, second concession of Sidney Township and Marjorie Jackson, 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jackson, 266 Albert St.

The girls left the Mitchell home late last Saturday afternoon and have not been heard of since. Upon learning the facts yesterday, police made the girls the object of an intensive search for their return.

The information was not given out by the parents to police until yesterday, as it was thought the girls were visiting relatives in Toronto. A check revealed that they had not been seen in Toronto.

Descriptions of the girls are: Violet Mitchell, age 15, weight about 135 pounds, 5 feet 3 inches tall, fresh complexion, brown hair, blue eyes; was wearing a green coat with fur collar and navy blue dress. Marjorie Jackson, age 15, looks much older; 5 feet 6 inches tall, weighs 135 pounds, dark complexion and hair; wearing blue hat and blue coat.

$25 GRANT MADE BY CHEESE BOARD

For the purpose of assisting members of the Central Ontario Cheesemakers' Association in the holding of the Empire Cheese Exhibition in this city in November at which exhibits will be shown from practically all British possessions, and other countries, members of the Belleville Cheese Board today authorised a grant of $25.00 which will be used as the Association may desire. This followed a motion by buyer James Cook, seconded by J. F. Treverton, salesman.

EASTERN ONTARIO ELECTRIC BODY TO MEET IN CITY

Dr. Thos. Hogg, Chairman of Ontario Commission Will Be Present

From one hundred to one hundred and twenty-five delegates are expected to attend the annual meeting of the Eastern Ontario Electrical Association in Belleville on Wednesday, October 12th. The territory which the association covers stretches from Port Hope to Ottawa.

The convention will open at the city hall at ten o'clock in the morning. At twelve thirty p.m., luncheon will be held at Hotel Quinte, His Honor Judge E. H. McLean, of Picton, being the special speaker. The afternoon meeting opens at 2.30 in the city council chamber.

Dr. Thomas Hogg, Chairman of the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario, is expected to be present at the convention.

MINISTERS GATHER FOR OPEN SESSION

Wives Present To Enjoy Banquet Given By Comrade Club

The Ministerial Association held its first meeting of the season in the ladies' parlor of Tabernacle United Church last night. The supper was served by the Comrade club and was greatly enjoyed by about 25 ministers and their wives. A hearty vote of thanks was given the ladies and was appropriately responded to by Mrs. Harry Moorman. Each person wore something representing a book and much enjoyment was found in guessing the name of the book.

The executive recommended that the Association meet every month and that on the first Monday of November invite the Association of Stirling as our guests. For the meeting in December it was recommended that Rev. Mr. Walker give his address on Astronomy. The executive was given power to issue these matters.

Retired Ministers to Help

It was pointed out in connection with the teaching of the Bible in the schools, that in the absence of Mr. Sinclair and Mr. Stoner and also because some of the ministers, who taught last year cannot see their way clear to teach this year, it would be necessary for the retired ministers to assist until these places were filled. The retired ministers expressed their willingness to co-operate. Teaching is to begin next Wednesday.

A hearty vote of appreciation was passed, of Rev. Mr. Sinclair and Rev. Mr. Stoner, both of whom are leaving the city. Both these men had been useful members of the association and would be greatly missed. The secretary was authorized to send a letter of sympathy to Rev. Mr. Walker in his recent illness. Mrs. Baker expressed the appreciation of the women for the privilege of being present.

Work of Blind Outlined

The guest speaker was Mr. A. W. Sparks, Field Secretary of the Canadian National Institute of the Blind, who gave an exceedingly interesting account of the service rendered to the blind people by this institute. Rev. D. T. McClintock moved a vote of thanks. Mr. Sparks was welcomed by all.

Major Alderman sang a solo and led the gathering in a sing song that was enjoyed by all.

Many expressed the feeling that such gatherings should be held more frequently. Rev. R. E. Newman and Major Alderman was the man and Major Tiderman was the efficient Secretary.

School Champions Are Announced

Following the completion of the postponed events held in connection with the annual Belleville Collegiate track and field meet at the Collegiate campus yesterday, the respective B. C. I. & V. S. field day champions were named.

During the pole vault yesterday Bill Pigden, intermediate boys champion, established an all-time record for that event when he vaulted 10 feet 1 1-2 inches. Although Bill Wright cleared 5 feet 3 1-2 inches in the senior high jump yesterday, Perry Everett won the senior school championship, while Gordon Theobald won the junior honors.

Miss Allison today released the names of the school athletic champions in the girls' events. Miss Marjorie Hitchon, who won all of the senior events, took the senior title, while a three-way tie was established for the intermediate honors when Audrey Nickolson, Gena Hicks and Doreen McKenna each took eight points to tie. Marion Diamond won the junior honors. Form 'G' was declared form winners and possessors of a shield.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM LINDSAY

After a lengthy illness William Lindsay passed away at the family residence, 52 Dundas Street East, on Friday, October 7th.

The late Mr. Lindsay, who was in his 78th year, was born in Ireland, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. John Lindsay. For over forty years he resided in Belleville and for twenty-seven years he was yard and stock superintendent for the Schuster Company. Mr. Lindsay was well known in the city and enjoyed the esteem of many friends and acquaintances. In religion he was a member of St. Thomas' Anglican Church and fraternally he was a member of Eureka Lodge A.F. & A.M. No. 283 and Quinte Friendship Chapter R.A.M. 227.

Surviving to mourn his loss are his widow, who prior to her marriage was Miss Mary Jenerex; one son, William Lindsay, Belleville; one step-daughter, Mrs. Robert Naud, Belleville; four step-sons, Reginald Arnott, Belleville; Lionel Arnott, Preston, Ont.; Clarence Arnott, Belleville, and John Arnott, Belleville.

The funeral announcement is made elsewhere in this paper.

FIRE BRIGADE PLANS TO MARK PREVENTION WEEK

Fire Drills Will Be Held In Schools — Educational Program Will Be Carried Out To Stress Dangers of Fire

Sixty-seven years ago, according to story, (since then it has been stated that the yarn was the brain-child of an imaginative newspaperman) Mrs. O'Leary's famous cow lashed out with a hoof and kicked over a lantern in Chicago that originated one of the worst fires in the history of the North American Continent. Before the flames were finally subdued, over three and one half square miles in area had been ravaged by fire, and property to the value of $168,000,000.00 had been destroyed.

Since that time, the week in which Oct. 9th falls, has been set aside by the governments of the United States and Canada as Fire Prevention Week.

A study of the fire losses in Canada in 1937, as outlined in a report of the Dominion Fire Commissioner, reveals that there were 44,660 fires, involving a property loss of nearly twenty-three millions of dollars. The appalling part of this picture, however is the fact that 246 lives were lost last year. This number included 105 children, 73 women and 68 men. Worse than that is the fact that in the 13-year period between 1925 and 1937, 3,902 lives were sacrificed on the altar of the fire demon, and of this number, 2,014 were children.

1937 Fire Losses

Among the causes of fire listed in 1937, nearly 13,000 were caused by smokers, with a resulting property loss of $2,670,445.00. Heating hazards involving stoves, furnaces, boilers and pipes accounted for 4,815 fires and nearly two millions of dollars property loss. Defective chimneys and flues caused 3,937 fires occasioning $2,268,014.00 damage.

Manufacturing establishments suffered from 824 fires which caused $3,604,941.00 property loss.

Statistical records, however show a brighter side, for according to them fire losses have been steadily declining since 1929, when they reached a grand total of $47,500,000.00. That year the per capita loss amounted to $4.86. In 1937 the per capita loss was $2.04. The lowest per capita loss occurred in 1936 when it amounted to $1.95. For a number of years this loss has hovered around the $2.00 mark and it would appear that losses have reached the lowest level consonant with the structural hazards of the country.

Be that as it may, government officials warn that there should be no easing off of accumulated efforts in Fire Prevention.

Next week, members of the Belleville Fire Department will, in conjunction with other fire-fighting units of the province and Dominion, inaugurate Fire Prevention Week in Canada.

An extensive program has been arranged for the city, officials stated this morning. Every place of business as well as factories within the fire zone will be inspected by squads of firemen. Fire drills will be held in public schools and other public institutions. Theatres will run trailers advertising the various methods of fire prevention. Ministers, it is expected, will announce the importance of this work from city pulpits.

There will be active demonstrations by members of the fire department and apparatus during the week. Fire drills will be carried out in every part of the city where such a procedure is necessary in case of fire breaking out.

Fire officials will endeavor to bring to parents the fact that it is a duty to teach the children the principles of fire prevention. They should not be allowed to play with fire, matches should be kept out of their reach and the playing with celluloid toys should be discouraged. By a strict adherence to these rules, it is pointed out, and the use of common sense, parents can thus save themselves the bitter anguish and life-long regret which must ever be present when a child perishes by their neglect.

Police Blotter

Local police today were investigating a break-in reported on Bleecker Ave. Entrance to the premises was made last night and a number of drawers ransacked, but nothing stolen, police were informed. The family silver was untouched, which led authorities to believe the object of the search was solely money.

Following a general fight, in which numerous persons are reported to have taken part at the Belmont Restaurant last night at midnight, two R.C.A.F. employees, who gave their names as John Powers and Harvey Provost, were detained at the police station for questioning. They were later released, while police stated today the matter would be presented in subsequent police court.

Several persons were injured during the melee which saw fists and feet swing into action as general fisticuffs ensued. During the excitement some person stole a box of cigars from behind the counter in the restaurant, and when several persons left the building in a general free-for-all fight, luncheon checks to the amount of nearly $5.00 were left unpaid, the management later complained to Constables Thomson and Taylor, who investigated the matter.

Chief Kidd today received a telegram from Chief Inspector Alexander C. Anderson of the New York City police department, requesting the local police hold one George Addie Evans for further investigation. Evans was arrested in Belleville two weeks ago tonight on a charge of vagrancy after he had attempted to dispose of a valuable diamond ring at a reported reduced price.

According to the information received from Inspector Anderson of the New York police a check-up on the jewellery found in Evans' possession is requested by the New York police department. Information regarding Evans' detention was sent all over the continent by circular, which resulted in the New York response. Evans has been held in custody since his apprehension.

MUSICAL MUSINGS

by HECTOR CHARLESWORTH

HECTOR CHARLESWORTH

A most important musical development this year has been the "come-back" of high grade records and recording instruments, after a period of neglect. It should not be forgotten that by these mediums good music became habitual in millions of homes long before radio existed. Re-birth of public interest is a healthy sign of musical progress.

October releases of Victor Records keep pace with the revival, and the musical values involved could not be better demonstrated than by that of the great soprano, Kirsten Flagstad, singing the tragic aria "Monstrous Fiend" from Beethoven's "Fidelio" (RED SEAL, 14973). The true quality and colour of her voice are more fully revealed than in any broadcast of hers that I have listened to. Admirable, also, are two "Carmen" episodes (RED SEAL, 1936) sung by the gifted Brazilian mezzo, Bruna Castagna. Especially memorable are her low tones in the scene from Act III when the enchantress reads death in her cards. John Charles Thomas' vocal splendour, and perfect French diction, are manifest in two lyrics (RED SEAL, 15134) of which Augusta Holmes' patriotic "Au Pays" is appropriate just now.

Gifted Canadians figure in new instrumental releases. Reginald Stewart, eminent conductor and pianist, makes his first appearance in Victor catalogues with two brilliantly executed piano compositions, (RED SEAL, 29037) Rubenstein's "Staccato Etude" and a Chabrier Scherzo. Over ten years ago a young Toronto pianist, Gerald Moore, went to London where he has won renown. He figures jointly with the famous viola player, William Primrose, in a noble rendering of Brahm's beautiful Sonata in E Flat Major (MASTERPIECE SET M-421).

New orchestral releases include the familiar and exhilarating Polevetsian Dances from Borodin's "Prince Igor" (RED SEAL 15169-70) interpreted with virtuosic abandon by the Philadelphia Orchestra under Stokowski. Vital also with Oriental rhythms is the Bacchanale from Saint-Saens' "Samson and Delilah", played by the Boston "Pops" Orchestra under Arthur Fiedler (RED SEAL, 12318). The classics are represented by Haydn's Military Symphony in G Major, played by the Vienna Philharmonic Orchestra under Bruno Walter, probably the greatest living interpreter of that composer (MASTERPIECE SET, M-472).

After the death of the young New York genius, George Gershwin, the well known conductor Nathaniel Shilkret presented on the Magic Key broadcast a Memorial Programme, representing every phase of his work, from his early operetta "Lady Be Good" to the more serious "Porgy and Bess". Of unique interest was a choral setting of "Rhapsody in Blue" sung by the Victor Salon Group. Other distinguished singers also participated and all numbers were directly recorded at the time. They now take the form of a "Gershwin Memorial Album" (VICTOR CONCERT SERIES C-29) and reveal Gershwin as a genius, whose melodies will probably live, even though as in the case of Stephen Foster, his harmonic gifts were limited.

The Augustana Choir of New York, conducted by Henry Veld, is growing in fame, and a lovely example of its tone and expression is Kodaly's "Evening" (RED SEAL, 1937). Britain's army has been much in our minds lately, and special interest attaches to a series of records (120900-1-2) "Tattoo-Aldershot-1938", in which are heard the massed bands of the Aldershot and Eastern Commands, rendering stimulating march numbers. Unique in quality is a record by Anthony Galla-Rini, an amazing accordeon player (26020) who succeeds in imparting orchestral colour to a Brahms Hungarian Dance.

Twenty or more dance releases by widely known conductors like Tommy Dorsey, Benny Goodman and others, cater to many tastes. I was captivated by "Lambeth Walk" and "Je Ne Sais Pa Pa" (26015) as played by Joseph Rines and the Hotel St. Regis Orchestra. A new Rhumba "Perdon" (26025) played by Xavier Cugat's orchestra is capital—as is a tango, "Bambina" (26031) played by Hal Kemp. So far as descriptive ingenuity goes, Ralph Gordon's "Fun in a Boiler Shop" (26033) is the last word, and not as fierce as its title sounds.

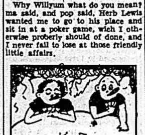
Little Benny's Note Book

We were eating supper, being lambstew without dumplings, and ma said, Have you anything on your mind to do this evening, Willyum?

You cant trap me that easily, my fair friend, pop said. I have it on my mind to take you to a movie, just as I promised you at breakfist when you read in the paper with glassy eyes and halting breath that this is the last nite of somebody or other in something or other somewhere or other. And I figure that my little act of mercy will save me approximately between 7 and 8 dollers he said.

Why Willyum what do you mean? ma said, and pop said, Herb Lewis wanted me to go to his place and sit in at a poker game, wich I otherwise proberly should of done, and I never fail to lose at those friendly little affairs.



Now Willyum, you're just saying that to make me feel I'm not depriving you of anything, and I just want you to join those men and enjoy yourself to the full in a gassly smoke filled room, ma said, and pop said, Now by gollies I wont go, your magnanimity shall have its reward.

But Willyum, my Sattiday bridge game was postponed till the evening in stead, and the ladies will be here in a half an hour or so, of course if we play in the front room you proberly wont even hear us up in the living room, ma said, and pop said, I'm sure I wont be able to hear you around at Herb Lewis's, yee gods, this is a woman's world and there's no change in site.

And after supper he called up Mr. Lewis on the telefone to find out if there was still room for him in the game.

Wich there was.

BRITAIN'S LATEST

The 1,750-ton submarine, Seal, is shown in this unusual head-on shot after the craft was launched at Chatham naval dockyard recently. The craft, most modern of undersea boats, is 271 feet long and said to have the most powerful armament of any submarine afloat.

Blue Water Bridge is Dedicated

A great highway link between Canada and the United States was dedicated today at Port Huron and Sarnia with the $1,750,000 Blue Water Bridge. Seventy thousand persons attended the ceremonies as Premier Hepburn of Ontario and Governor Murphy of Michigan, declared the bridge open for traffic this (Saturday) afternoon. The event was marked by the presence of provincial and state officials from the two sides of the international border. The bridge stretches 871 feet over the St. Clair River. Yesterday a peace plaque was dedicated by services clubs of the two cities and a coronation ball was held last night in Port Huron. At today's ceremony a religious service was held, and later relay teams from Detroit and Western Universities raced across the structure with goodwill messages for the two countries.

DISARMAMENT

Seek Better Relations.

With the arms question and the German colonial problem temporarily in abeyance and with an indication seen of the gradual restoration of normal German-Czechoslovak relations, German diplomacy became centred on attempts to reach a French-German understanding.

The arrival of 400 Sudeten Germans at Karlsbad and 300 more at Eger after they had been held by Czechoslovaks as hostages was taken to foreshadow an improvement in relations with Czechoslovakia, of whose 54,244 square miles Germany will have annexed 11,500 square miles by Monday according to German estimates.

Amnesty Declared.

(A Reuters News Agency dispatch from Prague said the Czechoslovak cabinet met during the night and declared an amnesty for Sudeten German, Hungarian and Polish political prisoners.)

Nazi diplomats seek a French-German understanding similar to the agreement between Chancellor Hitler and Prime Minister Chamberlain at Munich Oct. 1, that Germany and Britain would never fight each other again.

May Be Short Delay.

They even expressed the opinion a French-German accord may be delayed until after Great Britain, France and Italy have first arrived at an amicable arrangement among themselves.

Such an arrangement, it was said, depends upon an early settlement of the Spanish civil war — if Italy, France and Britain agree on a solution to the Spanish problem, the ground would be considered sufficiently spaded for a general European appeasement.

ATTEMPT MADE

The Communist proposition was that the unified parties would throw all their support to the present candidates for reelection in senatorial elections Oct. 25 and agree to support a single candidate in other constituencies.

The renewed activity was believed based on the Communists' increasing fear that Daladier was about to make a bargain with Italy to recognize the Spanish Insurgents, as well as dissatisfaction in Socialist ranks over the party's vote of confidence in Daladier after the signing of the Munich pact ceding parts of Czechoslovakia to Germany.

ESKIMO FAMILIES

Presents Report.

Dr. J. A. Urquhart, then medical officer in the Aklavik district, became the department of mines and resources administrator of the district and as such had supervision over herd. He arrived in Ottawa with Mrs. Urquhart this week and yesterday presented his first oral report of the progress of this national undertaking. Some of the high spots of his report are:

In addition to reindeer slaughtered for food to supply the herders and some 200 slaughtered each year to provide food for northern missions, the herd has increased to about 5,000 in three years.

The average weight of the reindeer in the hred today is at least fifteen pounds greater than when they arrived and they are much improved in general fitness. The average weight of the steers ranges from 165 to 170 pounds and the does from 145 to 150 pounds.

Highly Developed Instinct.

Owing to the highly developed herd instinct of the deers, it would be impossible to divide off a herd of less than 800. Smaller herds would go frantic in efforts to get back to the main herd.

Eskimos have shown an aptitude as herders for the government and Dr. Urquhart expects they will be successful herders on their own.

Especial care was exercised in picking families that are close friends of one another so that the danger of disputes over the ownership and care of the herd will be reduced to a minimum.

Drive To New Reserve.

When the 800 reindeer are segregated from the main herd it will be driven to a new reserve on the south shore of Liverpoole Bay, on the eastern border of the reserve used by the main herd, and 160 miles east of Aklavik

The Eskimos will be able to herd their deer and also carry on their usual occupation of fishing. The herd can never be left without someone watching it.

If the present experiment is successful another herd of 800 will be separated from the main body next year and handed over to four other native families and in this way each year a new unit would be provided.

Gilead

Gilead—A very successful anniversary service was held in Old St. Andrew's church at Gilead on Sept. 25th., in commemoration of the 75th year of the erection of the church.

At the morning service Rev. Mr. Johnson occupied the pulpit and delivered a fine sermon. Rev. Mr. Becked gave a fine address at the evening service.

In the morning Miss Phyllis Hall sang a solo "My Cathedral" and the choir rendered 2 fine anthems. At each service Mr. Lorne Lazier assisted the choir. Mrs. H. McCreary and Mrs. A. Hall sang a duet at the evening service.

A similar service was held just 25 years ago in June. Not many who were present then were in attendance this year.

On Monday evening following a fine concert was given in the church. Readings were given by Miss Sharp and Mrs. Bowham of Belleville. Mrs. Darlington, Belleville, delighted the audience with 2 readings. A duet by Mrs. Herrington and her daughter of Thomasburg was much appreciated. Mr. Porter gave an instrumental. Mrs. Stanley Grills and sons Bert and Cecil sang two songs. Mr. Mitchell played the cornet. Others assisting in the program were: Mr. Spafford, impersonater and Miss Herrington, solos.

Proceeds from Sunday collections and the concert amounted to $62.80. The church has been recently renovated and put in good repair.

Much credit is due Mr. Harold Foster of Tweed for the fine appearance.

Mrs. Ross Stewart and son, Donald of Toronto have returned home having spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Leavens.

mothership, the Maia, at 1:20 p.m. (8:20 a.m. E.S.T.) Oct. 6. The aim was to surpass the 6,296-mile mark set by three Russian fliers in July, 1937, who flew from Moscow to California via the North Pole.

Magnificent Flight.

London, Oct. 8 (CP-Havas)—The 6,000-mile non-stop flight of the Mercury was hailed today by its builder, Major R. H. Mayor, as a "magnificent accomplishment" on the part of its crew.

Major Mayor said he was convinced the Mercury would have reached Cape Town had the winds been favorable.

"Before the Mercury left England, it had come down from 7,000 to 3,000 feet because of ice formation," he said. "By the time Newhaven was reached, the machine had climbed to 5,000 feet but at the cost of extra fuel.

"We must not be discouraged about it because the long-distance seaplane record has been beaten by about 800 miles and the Mercury was only deprived of getting to Cape Town and establishing an absolute record by unfavorable weather."

Crowe — Whiteman

A very pretty wedding ceremony took place on Tuesday, October 4, at 10 A. M. at the Eldorado United Church, when Vera Mae Whiteman, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Whiteman of Cooper, was united in marriage to Mr. George Ferris Crowe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Crowe of Frankford, Ont. With Rev. S. B. Smith and Mr. Billie Crowe, brother of the groom.

They were attended by Miss Mildred Whiteman, sister of the bride officiating.

The bride was charming in her gown of blue silk crepe with matching accessories.

After the ceremony, the bridal party returned to the home of the bride's parents at Cooper, where a reception dinner was held for the immediate family and friends.

After the dinner Mr. and Mrs. Crowe left on a short motor trip to Peterborough and other points. On their return they will reside at the groom's home at Frankford.

The Anniversary Service was held in the Cooper United Church on Sunday. The church was suitably decorated with lovely cut flowers.

Large congregations were present at both the morning and evening services to welcome back a former pastor, Rev. J. R. Trumpour of Cacan, who was in charge of the services, and delivered very appropriate Thanksgiving messages in keeping with the season. The choir rendered special musical selections under the leadership of Mrs. W. R. Rollins.

Rev. Trumpour was accompanied by Mrs. Trumpour and his daughter Joyce.

Mr. and Mrs. John Potts of Belleville have moved into part of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wright's house, where they intend to reside for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Harvey and Miss Freda Harvey were callers at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry McCoy on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. McCann spent the dinner hour on Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Rollins of Cooper.

The Madoc Young Women's Club of St. Peter's Presbyterian Club held their October meeting at the home of Miss Connor, Marmora. This took the form of a very enjoyable supper, combined from the favorite dishes, one each which were brought by the members. Any of these special recipes, if desired, were bought later.

The regular meeting followed. Passages of scripture were read by Mrs. K. Nicol, Mrs. K. West and Miss Jean Mackintosh. The financial statement resulting from the rummage sale was given and considered satisfactory. It was decided to hold a pot luck supper around Thanksgiving if it did not interfere with other functions of the church. Mrs. Brett was appointed convener. Mrs. Gammage gave a very interesting current event, "The Visit of the King and Queen to France." Miss West offered her home for the next meeting. A new member, Mrs. Thain was welcomed to the club at this meeting.

THANKSGIVING DAY

Thanksgiving Day brings forcibly to mind the dependence of man upon nature and reward for labor. The time is particularly associated with the harvest-festival season when the crops have been gathered in against the coming of winter. Though man regrets the passing of the growing season and the lovely days of summer, he realizes that this is the progress of things on earth and he counts his blessings and pays his worship of praise to the Giver of all for the bounty which is the recompense for the cultivation of the earth. While there are other occasions which call for thanksgiving, these do not all come with such regularity as the march of the seasons to autumntide and the harvest, and some cre especially celebrated as Christmastide and Easter and national holidays. But Thanksgivink Day has its inspiration in agriculture. Yet it is made also a time of thankfulness for other blessings.

This year the bounty of nature has been manifest everywhere. The farmer first of all knows what a good growing season and a gathered harvest mean to human society and men of business and workers in city and town appreciate the meaning and significance of good crops. Rightly they all consider as fundamental the great industry of agriculture.

The past few years have been times not without grave anxieties and difficulties. Just recently the world has passed through a period in which many found their dependence upon the Higher Power as they prayed for the lifting of the clouds of threatened international strife. Troubles of economic and international character still remain to keep restless the spirits of the people, so that it is a relief when the festival of Thanksgiving returns so that the people can catch something of the spirit of joy and gratitude for blessings.

Canada is blessed with fertile lands, rocks rich in minerals, with vast timberlands and with all the fundamental requirements of a noble civilization. Such have developed a stalwart self-reliant character in the Canadian people, a healthy outlook on life, virility of body and of mind and the ability to match brains against the problems and difficulties as they rise. As foundation for all this the people realize the goodly heritage which has been theirs in a democratic civilization with its liberty. Without this could not have been the peaceful development of the social and national life as it is today.

So they come to the time of year when it appears the rightful thing for man to give praise and thanks for what he has been allowed through Providence to enjoy. Nature has largely done her work, the cold days are not yet. Around lies nature in her richest garb, even though this coloring in tree and field and sky spells severer days to be. In a land of flaming maple, to mention but one of the sources of beauty in these times of supreme magnificence of the outer world, clothed in its leaves, as kings would be clad and surrounded, man is indeed enthroned as regent of the earth under Providence. Nature's brilliance of coloring is admittedly a sign of decay in nature for a deeply colored leaf is about to fall but it falls in its time of greatest beauty, when its work of service to earth is done. Then too as nature gathers the leaves, covers roots and seeds she gives a hint of another springtime on the other side of winter's cold.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK

The week Oct. 9—15 is to be fire prevention week. Under a proclamation of the Dominion Government, setting out the days for special observance.

In seventeen years 727.000 fires have destroyed in Canada more than $677,000,000 worth of insurable property, 7,200 persons have lost their lives and over 22,000 have been seriously injured as a result of fire. This waste in human life, labor, money, time and natural resources cannot be recreated, the proclamation points out, but is an absolute and irrevocable loss largely distributed over the entire population through the agency of fire insurance which imposes an inescapable and burdensome tax upon industry and thrift and substantially adds to the cost of living.

"At least eighty per cent of the fires which occur originate either directly or indirectly through inexcusable ignorance and neglect and are therefore preventable and that the exercise of reasonable prudence and proper carefulness on the part of responsible individuals would substantially reduce the losses occasioned by fire," it is said.

The proclamation declares that economic and humanitarian considerations imperatively demand that human life and material resources in Canada be so far as possible conserved in order that the general welfare of the people may be measurably increased.

"In both business and diplomacy you have something to sell, and you have to make it palatable, attractive, to the other man."

THANKSGIVING IN THE COUNTRY

I want to go home for Thanksgiving,
To the country so fresh and so sweet,
I am weary of work and of worry
And the noise of the city street;
And I long for the home on the hillside,
The grey old home of my heart,
The home where I played in my childhood,
When care in my life had no part.

I want to go home for Thanksgiving,
The trees are waving to me,
Their banners all golden and crimson
Afar on the hilltops I see;
And the apples hang red in the orchard,
And the pumpkins are yellow like gold,
And the grapes in bright purple clusters
Are gladdening sights to behold.

I want to go home for Thanksgiving,
For there at the wide open door
Are loved ones with welcome awaiting
For wanderers weary and sore.
And love fills the air all around us,
And love shines from eyes brimmed with tears;
As we reach the old home in the country
Our griefs fall away with the years.

And when Thanksgiving is over
We'll hie to the city again,
We'll take up our tasks uncomplaining
And play our true part among men;
Our burdens will then seem the lighter
And love in our life prove its part,
For in the old home at Thanksgiving
We lost the sad ache of the heart.

PEOPLE WHO ARGUE THAT GREAT BRITAIN SHOULD HAVE GONE TO WAR over the Checko incident should acquaint themselves with the facts concerning modern warfare and what it really means. Professor J. B. S. Haldane, of University College, London, who has personally experienced modern bombing from the skies in Spain, has published a book which is a best seller in England. The following paragraph indicates the general tenor of the book:

> A man standing within ten yards of a large bomb will be torn to pieces, and the pieces thrown for hundreds of yards. A brick wall is not merely knocked down. It is shattered into a hail of projectiles which may kill people at a great distance. At a still greater distance the blast is translated into a wave of sound, but a sound like that of THE LAST TRUMPET which literally flattens out everything in front of it . . . IT IS THE LAST SOUND THAT MANY PEOPLE EVER HEAR, even if they are not killed, because their eardrums are burst and they are deafened for life. It occasionally kills people outright without any obvious wound.

When you come to think of it the ancient savages were angels of mercy compared to modern war strategists. Professor Haldane, after studying war at first hand in Spain, recommends that 1,100 miles of brick-lined tunnels be constructed at a depth of sixty feet under London to save the lives of the population in air raids. Present program is to evacuate the population to the open fields outside of London in case of air raids, plans for which having been prepared and rehearsed.

THIS GREAT FAMILY JOURNAL KEEPS UP ITS RECORD FOR QUICK ACTION. Every day reports come in from delighted advertisers who have tried the magic of the advertising columns to put over a business message. Regular advertisers are not surprised, however, they expect it, and are never disappointed. A small three-inch adv., in Tuesday's issue brought a dozen customers before ten o'clock the same evening, and more than delighted the advertiser. Just another reminder that the daily newspaper is read thoroughly as soon as it enters the house. Dozens of instances like the above could be related if necessary, but when the unusual becomes usual it ceases to be news.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

OCT. 8TH, 1918

In order to encourage the establishment of industries in Belleville, the city council will endeavour to arrange with the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario for a larger amount of electric energy than is now being delivered to the city.

The inspector of bread and bakeries, Mr. B. R. Quincey reported to the city council that during the year he made 1022 inspections and that the bakers had well observed the law.

Belleville business places are hard hit by the epidemic of influenza and working staffs are much depleted.

The Belleville High School Rugby team covered itself with mud and glory when it vanquished the visiting Peterboro team on the Albert College grid iron. The final score was 16 to 0 in favor of Belleville. The following composed the Belleville team: Boyle, Diamond, McWilliams, Wrightmeyer, Haines, Burgess, Blackburn, Andrews, Swayne, Wensley, Deeton, Brant, McGie, Weir and Cooper.

Mr. M. Graham left last evening for New York City.

Mr. Wesley Sine of Rochester, N.Y., is visiting his Belleville friends.

Mr. George Hill and family, Emily Street, are going to Toronto to reside.

The Rev. Canon Burke and the Rev. Rural Dean Bogart are attending a meeting of the Bay of Quinte Clerical Union in Kingston.

Mr. A. Robinson has returned to the city from Park Hill.

Capt. Charles Rogers of Lachine, Que., spent yesteray here with his family.

Mr Albert Morton left yesterday for Goderich, Ont., where he has accepted a position.

50 YEARS AGO

Oct. 8th., 1888.

The beautiful new St. Michael's Church in this city was dedicated on Oct. 7th. by His Lordship, Bishop Cleary, assisted by the Rt. Rev. Monsignor Farrelly, the popular priest of the parish and a number of visiting priests. At 11.30 o'clock A. M. the procession, composed of forty altar boys, vested in red cassocks and white capes, a number of priests, His Lordship Bishop Cleary and Monsignor Farrelly emerged from the rectory and made a circuit around the church building chanting the dedicatory service. The same ceremony was performed inside the church before the people were admitted. The moment the doors were opened the people entered and the church was soon filled to capacity. The interior presented a very pleasing appearance, the altar being beautifully decorated with flowers and with the lighted candles presented an inspiring spectacle. The service commenced with the celebration of High Mass. His Lordship delivered an eloquent address. The music was especially fine. The following composed the choir: Sopranos, Misses Downs, L. Butler, M. Lalonde, and Burns; Altos, Misses. D. Lalonde, S. O'Brien and Huffman; Tenors, Prof. Stanistreet, Messrs. F. Fellowes, Valiquet, L. Lalonde and J. O'Brien; Bassos, Fred P. Lalonde, J. Doyle and Maudeville. The organ was ably played by Prof. P. Denyes. An orchestra was also present composed of the following players: First Violin, Prof. Chalaupka: second violin, E. O'Rourke; Clarinet, C. Turner; cornet, Prof. W. B. Riggs; baritone, R. Blaind; bass, J. Weese. The playing of the orchestra was excellent. The entire length of the building is 140 feet and the width 65 feet. The style is purely Gothic. The main walls are supported by twelve massive and magnificent granite columns. There are six on each side of the church and were donated by the following members of the parish: Messrs. John Doyle, M. J. Grainer, James Grant, Dr. Murphy, William McCarty, Archibald McDonnell, Walter Cahill, Frank Dolan, Mrs. McGurn, Mrs. Butler, Mrs. James Mackie and Miss O'Hearn. The seating capacity of the church will be about 900 and the cost of the church when completed will be about $80,000 and will be ornament to the city. The contractors who have performed well the different parts of construction are: Hugh Quinlan, mason; Frank Dolan, plasterer; John Cornelius, painter; Ald. Thos. Hanley, carpenter; William McGie, iron galvanizer; Joshua Lang, slater; architect, James Connolly, Toronto. To the popular parish priest, Monsignor Farrelly is due the utmost praise. He has presided over the parish for seventeen years and by his kindness and courtesy has endeared himself, not only to his own congregation, but to all citizens in general. He is ably assisted by the Rev. Father O'Gorman who does much of the pastoral work. In the evening a number of priests from various parts of the diocese assembled at the rectory and presented Monsignor Farrelly with an address accompanied with a handsome and valuable gold chain and carved cross.

FLOWER FACTS

There are flowers that act as timekeepers for those who have studied their ways, and habits. So punctual are they that laboring men in some countries tell from them when the hour for dinner and leaving work has come, while in certain districts of Scotland where clocks are not numerous, the school children are said to be dismissed when the goat's beard closes, which it does at the same time every day.

The gardener to a millionaire has provided a flower clock in the shape of a circular-flower bed, with twelve divisions. Each of the divisions, from one to twelve, contains flowers which open or close at the corresponding hour. Thus the two space is occupied by a figure made of hawkesweed, which closes at 2 p.m. precisely, and so on.

He has no difficulty in finding flowers to suit the several hours, and in some cases the figure has been made of more than one flower.

Amongst the flowers used are the snowthistle, blue chicory, pimpernel, marigold, Star of Bethlehem, and evening primrose.

The shortest-lived flowers are the dew-flowers of the Death Valley in California. Heavy dews are wafted from the mountains over the parched plain, and an hour or two before sunrise the moist sand with the under current of warmth, gives life to the dew-flower.

When the light begins to glow in the east, myriads of tiny pink flowers burst into bloom, hugging the sand for the few minutes they are destined to live.

The sun's rays come slanting along the surface, and, as though a touch of fire had passed over them, the dew-flowers wither and disappear.

The Yellowstone Park contains the most unique greenhouse for flower cultivation in the world, the heat being obtained from one of the natural hot springs, or geysers, the water of which issues from the earth at a temperature near boiling point.

NOSE FOR SEASONS

Every season has a smell all its own. People associate different odors with different times of the year just as the changing terrain signals the approach of Spring or Fall or the other seasons. Who is there in this country who doesn't associate the smell of burning leaves with autumn. When the nostrils smart with the acrid odour of the smoke from dried maple leaves it is a sure signal that that season has arrived which closely precedes the days of snow and ice.

When, in the late fall, the early morning air carries that crisp, frosty "smell" you know that Winter is here. You don't need snow or sleet or blocked roads to tell you. That will come later. When the crisp morning signals to your nose that winter is at hand it is there.

Spring comes slowly nearer. The calendar tells you that the time is nearly at hand when that glorious season will come forth. The snow begins to go and it is your sense of smell that first finds Spring in the fresh earthly odor. The warming breezes carry the breath before the eyes see the change which Spring has brought.

Spring brings with it tulips, daffodils and other flowers which, although their beauty is unexcelled, have no odor. When the air fills with scent which delights the nostrils as myriads of flowers finally burst from buds, then it is that summer has arrived.—Lindsay Post.

CHAMBERLAIN'S TRIP

The Christian Science Monitor has looked up a few precedents for Chamberlain's visit to Hitler, as follows:

1878 — Prime Minister Disraeli personally attends Berlin Congress on Turco-Russian peace.

1919 — Woodrow Wilson becomes first American President to attend foreign peace conference, at Versailles.

1928 — President - Elect Hoover makes good-will tour of South America.

1929 — Prime Minister MacDonald visits United States to sit on the "log of Rapidian" with President Hoover laying groundwork for London naval conference when naval arms race threatened.

1933 — Mr. MacDonald visits Benito Mussolini in Rome during arms conference.

1936 — President Roosevelt attends Buenos Aires peace conference.

1937 — Mussolini visits Hitler in Germany.

May, 1938 — Hitler repays Mussolini's visit.

September 15, 1938 — Mr. Chamberlain flies to Germany.—Peterborough Examiner.

"JEST-A-SETTIN'"

The story is told of a travelling salesman passing through a sleepy country town. He entered the general store where he found a group of the natives gathered around the cracker box. "What do you people do around here?" the city chap asked. "Sometimes we set and think and sometimes we just set," was the reply.

There are country stores in the Lindsay district where neighbours gather of an evening to discuss everything from Neighbour Jones new holstein calf to the Sudeten-Czechoslovak situation. They don't just "set" they "set and think." Farmers of this country are solid, thinking citizens, capable of producing leaders in all fields of endeavor. They give the country the finest politicians, clergymen and leaders of industry and they gather about the general store in the evening to discuss the achievements of their fellows.

If our leaders of government, through some superhuman agency, could manage to listen to many of these "after-work" discussions in all parts of Canada what a wonderful cross-section of the peoples' problems could be impressed upon them. What true-to-life philosophy must be uttered in these impromptu get-togethers.—Lindsay Post.

"SHORTS" SENSE

The municipality of Upper Gatineau, has just come into the limelight by banning men from wearing "shorts." The case in question was that of an Ottawa man staying in the district on holiday. When a constable suggested he cover his "shorts" with something longer, he asked the policeman if he had seen a picture of His Majesty King George VI in "shorts", or if he knew that the Royal Canadian Air Force had issued this particular form of abbreviation attire for summer use. The policeman, wise in his generation, admitted ignorance, but allowed himself to be duly impressed and let the offender go with a warning.

How many more times are Canadian municipalities to make themselves ridiculous by enforcing asinine regulations against summer attire, against bathing costumes that are not full-length, and against children bathing in trunks? It all seems so futile, a throwback to the puritanical days when elderly women entered the sea attired in a wonderful combination contraption that weighted them down from neck to heels with soaked serge and rendered bathing a punishment to be endured, not a pleasure to be revelled in. The municipal fathers would do far better if they turned their attention to improving the local bathing facilities all around. — Ottawa Journal.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton M.D.

Bleeding the Patient

Years ago we were inclined to smile when we read the stories of the medical man of the savage African natives who boiled human organs and used this liquid in the treatment of disease. Today extracts of organs—thyroid, pancreas, stomach, intestine, pituitary and others—are used regularly by many physicians.

Many years ago regular physicians used to bleed their patients for various ailments but the bleeding of patients has been abolished by the medical profession. However as many healthy individuals now give blood regularly for patients with anaemia, or after operation or a severe illness, research physicians decided to investigate the health of these blood givers (donors).

Dr. F. Cadham, Winnipeg, in the Canadian Medical Association Journal states that following the 1936 epidemic of infantile paralysis in Manitoba, convalescent serum for the treatment of the disease was prepared in the government laboratory. This serum is made from the blood of those who have recovered from the disease. Each of the 125 blood donors was asked to return at intervals and each time about 2 to 5 ounces of blood was withdrawn. Fifty of the 125 donors supplied blood six or more times, at an interval of one week.

An investigation of the physical condition of donors six months later showed no ill effects. Forty-seven of the fifty donors said they were improved in health; even those who were apparently in good health remarked on a feeling of well-being. Sixty-five of the donors experienced an improvement in appetite and seven noted a clearer and healthier tone of the skin. Three who had suffered with acne (pimples) found that the acne had disappeared. Seventy-two of the donors increased in weight (3 to 15 pounds).

Of 200 blood donors who had not had infantile paralysis, that is normal healthy individuals from whom 2 to 3 ounces of blood was withdrawn over a period of from six to ten days, none suffered any ill effects and the majority were really benefited by the giving up of this blood.

Just why the removal of these small quantities of blood benefit the donor is not clear, but Dr. Cadham states: "Evidently under certain circumstances the withdrawal of small amounts of blood at regular intervals may prove of value in treatment"

It would seem then that physicians of former times really knew that 'bleeding' was of value in the treatment of disease.

IN TRAFFIC COURT

Success or a bit of good luck which brings happiness is reflected in the tempo of our actions. If a man has sudden cause for rejoycing he walks with a springy step until the first reaction wears off. It also seems to have effect on the foot that presses on the gas pedal. Some interesting illustrations were noted in British police courts on a recent Saturday.

Case No. 1 was that of a young woman who pleaded guilty to driving at 50 miles an hour in a city area where the speed limit was 30. Her excuse was that she felt "exuberant" as the date of her marriage approached. Her exuberance cost her $30, which was rough on a bride.

No. 2 was that of an Aberdeen man who was mulcted $10. "I was speeding," he said, "because it was the first day of my honeymoon." Even an Aberdeen man might feel it was worth $10.

No. 3 was a girl whose car obstructed a pedestrian crossing and she was excited because she was "on her way to the jeweller's to collect her engagement ring."

Then there was a man who stepped too hard on the gas because he had just been notified of a job. Ten dollars must come out of his first pay envelope.

A young officer was fined no less than $200 and $10 costs for driving dangerously while under the influence of liquor. Reason—Mr. Hore-Belisha, Minister for War, had been kind enough to give officers a raise in pay and he had been "celebrating".

Our sympathy goes out to the governor of a prison in Edinburgh who very nearly found himself occupying another position in his own jail but was fined $75 instead. He had been invited to sing at a social function and took a glass of whisky "to sustain myself for the effort." This man took a drink more to drown his misery than to celebrate happiness. But there is a certain affiliation between drinking for joy and drinking for sorrow.

Last but not least there was a truck driver who was stopped by a policeman at a crossing near Manchester because he was driving too fast. Said he to the officer: "I'm thankful you stopped me before I had an accident. I quite agree with you reporting me."

The court fined him $5. The court should have given him $5.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

I'll Take You With Me

By Farley Faulkner

Shirley Temple is, and has been for three consecutive years, Hollywood's No. 1 boxoffice attraction.

Youngsters have consistently been near top—or top—drawing personalities of motion pictures, from the time Charlie Chaplin sent Jackie Coogan soaring to fame in "The Kid." Prior to that, the screen was largely by and for adults; children did appear before the camera, of course, but their importance was insignificant in the general scheme of things.

Once the film industry realized the enormous appeal of children, as Jackie Coogan proved so conclusively, the era of the child-star began.

Young Coogan had a rival for child acting laurels in 1920—a roly-poly little lass named Baby Peggy. She became the crowned queen of Hollywood while Jackie was ruling as king. The public's acceptance of these two children convinced film makers that youthful thespians had a definit,e permanent place on the screen.

Next youngster to sweep movie fans off their feet was Jackie Cooper, who blazed a glowing trail as "Skippy" in 1930. Jackie was the easy successor to his namesake for whom producers had been searching far and wide.

While young Cooper was still the brightest child star in Hollywood, another youngster commenced to shine—dimly at first but with an increasing radiance that overshadowed anything that had happened in the industry before. That, of course, was Shirley Temple. In the years since then, a host of children have scored enormous Hollywood successes.

There are, to name but the leaders, Deanna Durbin, Bobby Breen, Mickey Rooney, Jane Withers, Freddie Bartholomew, Jackie Cooper, Irene Dare, Edith Fellows, Bonita Granville, the Mauch twins, Sabu (the Hindu lad), Donnie Dunagan, Virginia Weidler, Ann Gillis, Jackie Moran, Douglas Scott, Sybil Jason, Janet Dempsey, David Jack Holt, the "Our Gang" children, the "Dead End" kids, Shirley Temple (of course), and Tommy Kelly.

Latest Rage

Young Mr. Kelly is Hollywood's latest rage. He is the boy selected from thousands of applicants for the title role in the recent "Adventures of Tom Sawyer." A year ago Tommy was an unknown Bronx youth. Today he can't walk down a street without being mobbed for his autograph. His career as a child-star seems assured.

Producer Sol Lesser who discovered Jackie Coogan, has taken a hand in Tommy Kelly's career. He is starring the lad in "Peck's Bad Boy With the Circus," first of a series based upon the famous, almost legendary figure of young Bill Peck, typical American boy. The story is an adaptation of a novel of the same name by George W. Peck, who wrote "Peck's Bad Boy", "Peck's Bad Boy and His Pa," and other books presenting the beloved youthful figure.

It is a curious circumstance that, though the first "Peck's Bad Boy" book was written a good many years ago, it still sells thousands of copies a year, being one of those timeless pieces of American folklore like the "Oz" books, the flavor of which never seems to go out of date. The truth of the matter must be that an exciting literary character never dies.

Career In Director's Hands

The career of the child actor, like Tommy Kelly, is far more in the hands of the director than is true of adult stars, who may shape and mold parts and scenes to their own liking in co-operation with the director. The child, minus a perspective on his own abilities, moves as the director molds him. The freckled Kelly lad is fortunate in that he has had two directors who have specialized in pictures set in the world below 'teen age—Norman Taurog, who did "Tom Sawyer", and Edward Cline, who is directing "Peck's Bad Boy With the Circus."

Cline, a portly, amiable, jovial man and a prime hater of pomp, is one of those fortunate people with whom children are instantly friendly, without even the first awkward minute of making friends. Cline, as a matter of fact, directed Jackie Coogan in the original "Peck's Bad Boy" picture a good many years ago. And Mr. Lesser produced the film.

Now both Mr. Lesser and Mr. Cline who certainly ought to know about the potentialities of child actors because they have been so successful for the past twenty years in that phase of film making, believe young Tommy Kelly is about to succeed to the mantle once worn by Jackie Coogan. They have made this faith public with the announcement that Tommy will be starred in two more "Peck's Bad Boy With the Circus."

When Grandma raises her hands in horror at the modern generation and their swing dances and music, just tell her she started it.

That's the advice given by Tony DeMarco, world famous dancer and partner of Joan Crawford in a spectacular number to be introduced in her new picture, "The Shining Hour."

Nothing New In Swing

"There's nothing new in 'swing'," DeMarco stated. "The thing started back in the old square dance days when the caller would shout, 'Swing your partner'."

According to the dancer, the word died down, to be revived several years ago in New York's Roseland Dance Hall and Harlem by youngsters who substituted the name "swing" for "dance".

Orchestras of the country simply followed the lead these kids gave them, both in name and movement," DeMarco continued. "So-called 'swing' music isn't any different fundametally from what it was three years ago. The only thing that has changed is the mode of orchestration."

Directly in opposition to the theory that the new type denotes decadency, DeMarco believes it to be a healthy sign. "Dancing had hit a peaceful lull until these new, vibrant, violent numbers came into being," he said. "That shook it out of itself, woke it up. Fad dances are the literal heart of the art, the things that keep it alive. They aren't new either. Think back to the Turkey Trot, the Bunny Hug, even the Fox Trot began as a fad, but lasted because of the sound basis of its rhythm.

For his number with Miss Crawford in "The Shining Hour", De Marco has woven six dances into one, using the Tango, Rhumba, Waltz and musical comedy number as the foundation.

Columbia Studios revealed yesterday that Penny Singleton, selected as the living embodiment of "Blondie" in the picture being made from Chic Young's cartoon strip, had been backed for the role by the largest college sorority in America.

Soon after the announcement that Columbia had purchased the popular comic feature for a motion picture, the studio received a round robin signed by members of Beta Sigma Phi urging Miss Singleton for the role.

Boosted by Sorority

Miss Singleton was elected to Beta Sigma Phi when she was attending Columbia University, and her sorority sisters followed her Broadway career with enthusiasm. When she went to Hollywood their support and good wishes went with her.

It was a Kansas City chapter of the national sorority that initiated the agitation to boost Penny as Blondie.

The Columbia executives occupied with the production considered every young woman in Hollywood who might be eligible for the part and came to the conclusion that Miss Singleton was the perfect choice.

Arthur Lake is the Dagwood to Miss Singleton's Blondie, and their Baby Dumpling is played by little Larry Simms. Daisy, the dog, is enacted by Spooks, and Elsie by Ann Doran. Frank Strayer is directing under the supervision of Robert Sparks.

The most extensive newspaper publisher in the world operates a small but modern printshop in Culver City, California. He has published every important newspaper in the United States and Europe. He has published Chinese, Japanese, and Turkish newspapers and magazines, court bulletins, and practically every form of printing ever used.

He is Gene Donovan, who publishes the "newspaper inserts" for Hollywood's pictures.

When a New York newspaper chronicling the exploits of Clark Gable and Myrna Loy in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Too Hot to Handle" flashes on the screen, it is a sample of Donovan's skill. When music manuscript of Strauss in "The Great Waltz" appears, it is the work of Donovan and his printers. The Civil War Newspaper in "Of Human Hearts", the flamboyant gangster headlines in "The Crowd Roars" are products of his press.

When a picture starts, the script is scanned for newspapers shown in the picture, and the details sent to Donovan. He is told the city, country, period, and such details. To make them authentic he has made a wide study of newspaper technique of different periods.

Streamer Headline Out

"For instance, a newspaper before the Spanish American War wouldn't carry a streamer headline," says Donovan. "These headlines weren't in use at that time. And papers were seven columns wide then, instead of eight. A paper of 1900 would carry local news stories on the front page, but world affairs, wire service stories and important national news. The 'freak' story began to appear in 1907."

Whenever he prints a newspaper in English, he has it translated and reprints it in different foreign languages for foreign releases. Because any paper of any country may be called for at a moment's notice, he keeps every style of type obtainable, and even then runs into difficulty.

"They called for a Turkish proclamation in 'The Cossacks." He relates, "We could not find any Turkish type in the United States. So we got a Turkish book, cut out its letters and reassembled them, mounted on paper with paste, to spell what we wanted to say, then made a photo engraving of the pasted material and printed from that."

He prints about 500 newspapers a year, including replicas of papers in San Francisco, Omaha, New York, Chicago, many small country towns, Paris, London and other cities. He reproduced an Omaha paper for "Boys Town" a Baltimore paper for "Young Dr. Kildare," a Paris paper for "Three Loves Has Mary" on the same day, then printed a series of theatrical papers for "Sweethearts."

Donovan started as a printer in San Francisco, came to Culver City to start a newspaper, was called on in the early days to print a "dummy newspaper" for a picture, and has expanded the idea until today he supplies many studios with their "inserts" and has built up an important business.

Weddings

SMITH—TURCOTT

On Friday afternoon at two o'clock, at 104 West Moira Street, the Rev. J. D. P. Knox, united in marriage, Harry Edward Smith, son of Mrs. Smith and of the late Isaiah Smith of Hungerford; Hastings County and Mary Ann Helena Turcott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Turcott of Hungerford. The young couple were unattended. They will reside on the groom's farm in Hungerford Township.

CANNELL—COLLING

At the Church of the Redeemer, Toronto, Miss Alice S. Colling, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Colling, Bancroft, was married to Dr. Douglas E. Cannell, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Cannell, Port Carling. The immediate families and about seventy-five friends attended the ceremonies, at which Rev. Canon R. A. Armstrong, rector, officiated, and Mr. Otto James played the wedding music.

The bride, who was unattended, wore a navy crepe dress appliqued with white kid, navy accessories and corsage of gardenias. Immediately after the ceremony the couple left for New York, whence they sailed for Italy, France and England. On their return Dr. and Mrs. Cannell will reside in Toronto.

De GENOVA—GAZLEY

A pretty wedding took place at seven-thirty this morning, at the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, when Dorothy Lillian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Gazley, became the bride of Mr. Anthony De Genova, son of Mr. and Mrs. James De Genova. The ceremony was performed by Rev. C. E. Baker.

The bride wore a brown crepe frock with matching accessories and carried yellow roses.

Miss Antoinette De Stefano and Miss Lena De Genova were bridesmaids and wore wine crepe with matching accessories. Their bouquets were red roses.

Mr. Patrick De Genova was groomsman.

Following the ceremony wedding breakfast was served at the groom's home. Guests were present from Montreal and Toronto.

Mr. and Mrs. De Genova will reside in Belleville.

HOLLOWAY ST. W.M.S

The regular meeting of the W.M.S. of Holloway Street Church was held on Wednesday afternoon with a good attendance. Mrs. James Cordes presided over the business meeting. Good reports were brought in from the various Secretaries on their work during the month. The Devotional period and programme was in charge of Group 8 with Mrs. McMurray in charge. Those taking part in this part of the meeting were Mrs. Newman, who offered prayer and spoke on Peace conditions. Mrs. J. Hogle read the Scripture lesson and Mrs. Hogle and Mrs. J. Hudgins took up the offering. Offertory Prayer was given by Mrs. B. McMurray.

Mrs. T. Ketcheson introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Mrs. Blows, who with her husband were missionaries in the McKenzie River district. Her talk was most interesting and instructive, touching on the missionary work and also giving a description of the mode of living and dress of the Indians and Eskimos in that district.

A vote of thanks was tendered to the speaker and the Mizpah Benediction brought the meeting to a close. Group 8 served refreshments.

Mrs. Chas. Walters, Mrs. D. Hyde, Mrs. Leavens, and Mrs. James Cordes attended the Sectional Rally held at West Huntingdon on Thursday.

BANCROFT PAIR WED 65 YEARS

Husband Cleared Virgin Forest And Wife Spun Clothes

Bancroft, Oct. 8—Sixty-five years ago, Lewis Vardy took as his bride, Katharine Way, and at an anniversary gathering given by their kinfolk, the couple recalled the pioneer days when clearing the forest was the man's job while his wife spun yarn for clothes.

Pioneers of north Hastings county, Mr. and Mrs. Vardy received some 60 relatives and friends, including several from Toronto. "On my wedding day," said Mrs. Vardy, "the sun shone through the clouds and the afternoon was beautiful."

Eleven years after marriage, they came to Bancroft, received 100 acres of land and cleared away enough of the trees to build a log cabin. Mr. Vardy told of those days when he worked in the lumber camps for 50 cents a day. He paid tribute to his wife who "spun yarn for their clothes, helped in the fields for the harvest and practiced rigid economy in the home."

Smilingly, Mr. Vardy attributed his good health to his wife's ability to prepare good, simple foods, and to serve them regularly.

At the dinner and reception, Frank Graham of Toronto, the couple's eldest grandchild, congratulated them, and Mrs. Alice Graham, eldest of the couple's seven children at the event, presented them with gifts from the family.

Among those attending were Mr. and Mrs Frank Graham and Miss Ruby Graham, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Blackburn, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Hawker and Mrs. Alice Graham, all of Picton; Mrs. R. Vader of Bloomfield; Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Blackburn, Belleville; Mr. and Mrs. C. Vanclief, Carrying Place; Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Blackburn and Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Blackburn, Eldorado; Mrs. Arthur Casement, Lindsay. Those from Bancroft and vicinity included Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Vardy, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Bierworth, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bierworth, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Bierworth, Mr. and Mrs. James Woodcock, Mr. and Mrs. William Plumley, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Vardy, Mr. and Mrs. Felix Vardy, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Fuller, Gerald and Merle Bierworth and Sherwood Vardy.

Hair Dying No Job for Amateur

By HELEN FOLLETT

HAIR DYEING is an individual problem, requires the services of an expert. The woman who goes blindly into this experience is likely to pour troubles on her head. The work can be done so skillfully that the counterfeit color cannot be detected. But it is no job for the amateur.

Some shades of hair are difficult to duplicate. When there is a stepping away from the original tone, the character of the face changes, looks brittle and unnatural. The hair at the roots should not be matched, or the color of the ends, but the shade that is midway the length of the shaft.

The prejudice against ducking the feminine head in the dye-pot has just about evaporated. There's no difference between coloring the hair and coloring the cheeks or the lips if the presto-change act is done cleverly. Criticism is justified when the brunette turns blonde and her skin isn't in harmony with her tresses, or when the aged white-haired lady suddenly acquires a black topcrest that emphasizes her age.

Time for a Party

Old Fashioned Fun With New Fangled Food

By Katharine Baker

"There was a young man so benighted
He never knew when he's been slighted
He'd go to a party
And eat just as hearty
As though he'd been really invited".

This was in the days when hostesses gave old-fashioned parties to which so many people were invited that a few more were not even noticed. Variety and abundance were the keynote of such gatherings.

These Autumn week-ends are ideal times for a party, one to which you can invite a few old friends, sing old songs and play the laugh-provoking games of the old days But don't serve the some old food. Be different by serving this new cake which suits the occasion but is so modern that you'll be the first woman in your community to serve it.

Harvest Cake

2 cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1-4 teaspoon salt
1-3 cup butter or other shortening
3-4 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
2 egg yolks
2-3 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Sift flour once, measure, add baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually, and cream together until light and fluffy. Add egg yolks, beat well. Add flour, alternately with milk, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in greased pan, 8x8x2 inches, in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 45 minutes, or until done. Spread with Harvest Moon Frosting.

Harvest Moon Frosting

2 eggs white, unbeaten
1 cup brown-sugar, firmly packed
dash of salt
1-4 cup water
1 teaspoon vanilla
3-4 cup almonds, blanched, toasted and chopped

Put egg whites, sugar, salt and water in top of double boiler. Beat with rotary egg beater until thoroughly mixed. Place over rapidly boiling water, beat constantly with rotary egg beater, and cook 7 minutes, or until frosting will stand in peaks. Remove from fire, add vanilla and beat until thick enough to spread. Add nuts. Makes enough frosting to cover top and sides of 8x8x2-inch cake.

Mission Play Pleases Audience At Bridge St. Church

A very enjoyable missionary play entitled 'Two Masters' was presented by Miss Kay MacPherson's group of ladies of the Evening Auxiliary of Bridge Street United Church on Tuesday. Each character was exceptionally well portrayed, and the production was directed by Miss Mary Lockhart.

The part of Mrs. Stewart, dear old invalid lady was well portrayed by Miss Helen Sulman who has delighted audiences in the past with her brilliant conception of character roles. Mrs. Van Horne, Mrs. Stewart's daughter, who tried to serve two masters and thus was missing the missionary spirit was capably presented by Mrs. Taylor Franklin.

Janet MacCrea, a missionary's daughter, who had come to America to college and make her home with Mrs. Van Horne during holiday time, was characterized by Miss Irene Grills. Although this was Miss Grills' first attempt in drama, she played her part very well indeed and delighted her audience to the fullest degree. The Misses Irene Price, Marjorie Lashbrook, and Kay MacPherson, as college friends of Janet, introduced to the pleasure of those present a bit of college life, recreation and humour.

In the part of the president of the Culture Club, Mrs. H. McElrath proved herself a convincing presiding officer, while Mrs. O. R. Thompson as Mrs. Van der Wit, a society woman with culture, handled the comedy role with ease. The play ended with Janet, and Mrs. Van Horne, both realizing their rightful place in the world, and the latter making a resolution to serve in the future one Master, instead of two. Misses Doris Williams and Norma Clarke assisted in one scene as Club members.

Songs and piano number between acts by Miss Bernice Saunders added to the enjoyment of the audience.

Argyll I.O.D.E. Plans Season

The October meeting of the Argyll Chapter I.O.D.E. was held in the Armouries on Thursday afternoon. The Regent, Mrs. A. B. Gribble presided. The meeting was opened with the I.O.D.E. prayer.

The Treasurer's report showed a substantial balance to start the winter's activities. And it was decided to start sewing for the Christmas baskets immediately, also to assist the Red Cross when needed. Plans were made to hold a rummage sale in the near future, also a bridge and tea.

At the conclusion of the business meeting tea was served by Mrs. G. M. Davison and Mrs. A. J. Lazier.

First Class Brush Is Friend of Hair

MARIE WILSON
Doesn't neglect her lovely hair or her scalp

By HELEN FOLLETT

FROM THE DAY when the finger wave swept into popularity, scalp care has "gone by the board". Tonics cause the undulation to go limp, oil treatments string them out so the poor little scalp gets nothing in the way of stimulation or nourishment. The good old hair brush has almost disappeared because that ruined the wave.

That's too bad. A first class hair brush is the best friend a woolly thatch can have. It sweeps out dead shafts which are constantly on the go even when hair is healthy. It removes surface dust. It tugs at the hair roots, rousing the activity of fibres in which they rest, stimulating tiny blood streams that feed each silky thread.

The place where the hair lives is in the scalp, which is home and commissary department combined. Let the flesh atop the head lose tone and tresses will look lifeless, lose luster, and their numbers will be lessened.

Vote a little more money into the beauty budget. Get the best brush you can buy. Twice a year take a course of scalp treatments. They're well worth while. If you feel that is an extravagance, maul your scalp for five minutes every night before tucking your coiffure into the wave net.

Snow-white nail varnish is going strong. It looks lovely, too, my hearties. The men love it. It's worth while using it to hear their shouts of approval.

When applying polish remover, use a pledget of cotton and make a clean sweep of it, working from the matrix toward the nail eave. Treat the sides of the nails so every bit of the old application will be removed.

It's doubtful if liquid nail tints have anything to do with brittle claws. You may need more butter on your bread, more cream in your coffee.

Hopes and Fears
Of People with Nervous Disorders

Life is made up of hopes and fears. When good health prevails we are hopeful and buoyant. In times of ill-health the fears dominate. Especially is this true of nervous disorders. Fears then make life miserable.

You fear or worry because you cannot sleep. You have a dread of crowds, and fear of being closed in or having things fall on you. But you also dread being left alone. You may even have fears of insanity. Fear and helplessness may so dominate you that you have spells of despair and discouragement, when you can do little else but cry.

You must have something to restore hope, something to buildupstrength and confidence.

Most people have found that Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is a most satisfactory restorative for the nerves. With nerve force restored to the system you soon regain the vigor and energy which are necessary to health and hope and confidence.

Don't Set Up A" Shining Example"

Method Won't Improve Behavior of Child, Says Lisa Grenelle

By LISA GRENELLE

MOTHER WAS pleading again.

"Why can't you be a good girl, Alice, like Peggy?" she asked. "The way your room looks! Peggy's room never looks like this. And I don't have to remind Peggy to wash her neck, or—

"—to do her homework, or keep clean, speak politely to visitors, not to pester the cook". Alice carried on. She knew it all by heart, because Peggy had been used as the "shining example" so long.

"Don't you want to be good?" her mother asked in despair.

"I don't want to be like Peggy!" retorted Alice.

"Peggy's a good girl."

"That's why I hate her!"

"Alice!"

Remember Them?

Yes, its very shocking, of course. But how did you feel about the shining examples when you were small? You loved them just the way you loved the teacher's pets and the tattle-tales, didn't you?

It doesn't work out very well for the shining example, either. I think I'd rather have one than be one. Being a shining example is just something you can't live down; it's worse than having a criminal record or having been a football hero. The only thing to do is leave the country, or change your name and grow a beard.

Peggy's shining example didn't improve Alice. On the contrary, it made a rebel of her, one of those "against everything" children. And certainly it didn't fill her with sisterly love.

No child should be rebuked, scolded, reproached or punished in front of another brother, sister or friend.

Family as Threat

No member of the family should be used as a threat to make a child behave. Not even Father, like this: "If you do that again, Willie, I'll tell Father, etc." What a home coming for Father

This applies also to mothers, uncles, older brothers and policemen.

You see, the real object of child training is to build up love, confidence, loyalty and congeniality among the members of a family. This can't be done if you humiliate one child before another, if you make one child feel inferior, a greater burden, less loved or of lesser importance.

The Stars Say—

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, October 9

SUNDAY'S HOROSCOPE holds auguries of a conflicting nature, with much prospect of mental activity, progressive ideas and proposals, but with certain frustrating or delaying influences to be taken into account. This might possibly be attributable to a bereavement or some other loss. But there are also promises or gain through property, sound investments or perhaps legal adjustments or agreements.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of conflicting experiences, with much gain, increased or stablized fortunes through investment or favorable litigation.

A child born on this day may have a sound and progressive mentality. At the same time it should be profound and analytical.

For Monday, October 10

MONDAY'S ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST is for a day of mental pressure involving problems or perplexities that demand quick action. A rather devastating influence is shown, but it actually will be in the direction of progress and constructive achievements, and perhaps in unusual channels. Dramatic events or drastic moves seem imminent.

Those whose birthday it is may not complain of a year of monotony or lack of adventure. Astrological forces and faculties indicate adventures into many lines of progress and unorthodox experience or adventure.

A child born on this day may be brilliant and versatile, original and creative, but its tempestuous, reckless or passionate nature may lead it into strange adventures.

BETHANY Y. P. L.

The regular weekly meeting of the Bethany Y.P.I. was held on Tuesday evening with an attendance of 13. The president, Mrs. Arthur Miller took charge of the meeting which opened with Quiet Music and a poem. Hymn 435 was sung and hymn 389 was sung softly as a prayer. The Lord's prayer was repeated in unison. Responsive reading No. 724 was read responsivley. The offering was taken which amounted to 83c. Business was discussed It was moved that a vote be taken next week to decide whether to hold meetings on homes or at the church. Hymn 355 was sung.

Mr. Clayton Ritz took the remainder of the meeting. A Thanksgiving poem was given and hymn 516 was sung. The topic "Building for Peace" was given.

A duet "Have you been in the garden with Jesus" by Misses Edith and Hazel Walker.

Reading by Mrs. Arthur Miller. Master Roy Treverton favored with a piano solo. A poem "Indian Summer" was given and hymn 507.

Clayton Ritz thanked all who took part and the meeting closed with the league benediction.

Gifts Connected With a Wedding

The bride and groom give gifts

While it is, of course, not necessary for the bride and groom to give each other something to commemorate the day. The gift may or may not be an expensive one, but it should be personal, should have a thoughtful and charming touch of sentiment. The groom's gift to his bride is something for her personal adornment, usually an ornament that she wears on her wedding day . . . anything from a string of pearls to a simple brooch or bracelet or pendant. The groom usually sends the bride her wedding bouquet; often pays for (but does not choose the bouquets for the bridesmaids; and, on the wedding day, sends a corsage to the bride's mother and to his own.

If the bride gives the groom a gift, it would be something personal; a gold or silver key to their new home, inscribed with the wedding date, or a message; cuff links, a dress set, a pocket or wrist watch, a cigarette case.

Gifts to Attendants

The bride's gift to her attendants may be an elaborate and expensive present, if the bride can afford such an important gift, or it may be a modestly-priced but thoughtfully-planned remembrance, if the bride has to make a careful budget. Very often she gives her own bridal photograph in a silver, gold or crystal frame. Or she may give a vanity case, a wrist watch, a gold or silver keycase containing a key to be cut to the desired shape, a pendant or charm, brooch, necklace, bill clip, bracelet, traveling or dresser clock, fountain pen and pencil set, enamel or silver or gold pencil, an evening bag, a plain or fitted over-night bag, a jeweled hat ornament, a jewel box, a piece of costume jewelry, a dressing-table accessory, a short gold key-chain with gold tag for monogram, or an article of jewelry set with the individual birth stone of the attendants. The gifts are given to the attendants at the bridesmaids' luncheon at the bridal dinner, or at any other convenient time before the wedding.

To his best man and ushers (the best man's gift may not be the same as that given to the ushers), the groom may give a cigarette case, cuff links, wallet, pocket watch or wrist watch or sport watch, gold or silver pencil, fountain pen and pencil set, a combination knife and pencil, watch chain, short gold key-chain with gold tag for monogram, gold key-piece and key, gold or silver key ring, dress sets, or evening set (black moire or other silk with gold corners) consisting of cigarette case, matchcase and wallet, leather traveling case.

Wedding Gifts

The gift that we send as our bow to the happy couple should, if possible, be something for the new home, rather than a personal present. Wedding presents are always sent to the bride-to-be, even when the sender is a relative or friend of the groom and has never met her.

The wise bride-elect provides herself with a gift book, and as each the name and address of the donor, the date received, and, if possible, the place where the gift was purchased. As soon as possible—the day the gift is received, if she can—the bride-elect writes a note of thanks, personal, gracious, appreciative.

With our wedding present we enclose our visiting-card. It is not necessary to write a message on it, but it is entirely proper to write "with best wishes" or "with all good wishes for your hapiness." or any other appropriate message. If you write a message on the card, cross off the title before your name. A married woman encloses a Mr. and Mrs. card, or her own card and her husband's, or her own card and her husband's, or her own card with Mr. and written before her name. If it isn't convenient for you to enclose a visiting-card, write your name, or your name and a message, on a plain white card. Or if you prefer, you may enclose a little note of good wishes.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage.

What Makes a Successful Marriage?

Have You Tolerance?

When it comes to marriage, a good many of us have a spice of intolerance hidden in our makeup. The light has been vouchsafed to us on a good many things. Isn't it our duty to share with friend husband or wife a spot of light, too?

The wise realize that a refusal to tolerate another's point of view—even if the other is a husband or wife—often means shipwreck of the matrimonial craft.

Religious beliefs head the list of the tragedies of intolerance. Knowledge of the only true theosophy has been reserved for these intolerant folk alone, they believe. The doctrine of "live and let live" makes no hit with them. The most bitter wars fought have been "Holy Wars". How the God of Love must sorrow over his children.

Nationality comes next on the list in bringing intolerance to the battlefield. Letters have come to this column since it was inaugurated, expressing contempt for people who are "foreigners". The writers forget they are equally foreign to the people they despise.

Parents object to sons and daughters marrying beyond the geographical boundaries from which they hail. The persons to whom these parents object so bitterly may come from countries which have achieved immortality in science and the arts. But they are "foreigners".

The objects of this derision are apt to regard the objectors as one cut above jungle pygmies. "They have no background," the foreigner reflects complacently.

Politics—but you've only to read the casualties, after a big election day to know what a difference of opinion can do to the minds and imaginations of people, concerning that which is apt to be a case of Tweedle Dee and Tweedle Dum.

Culture fares hardly better with the intolerant. Belligerent modernists, who like their literature hot and peppery, shudder at the thought of Dickens and Thackeray. The devotee of jazz, ragtime and swing consider Beethoven "an old bloke". They prefer the portrait of an angular cross-eyed lady to the beauties of Gainsborough and Lawrence.

If only these hardy souls would not try to show us the error of our ways. We'd be so glad to be left to our depraved tastes in art, literature and music. We're willing to let them sing the praises of what seems to us disjointed. Why can't they be equally tolerant? But they must proselyte; tell us how hopeless is our taste for preferring the Meistersinger when we might have the cacophonies of swing.

The writer recently attended a luncheon given to Jacqueline Cochran, who won the Bendix Trophy. Besides being a record-breaking flier, she runs a cosmetic laboratory in New Jersey and has a chain of beauty parlors. The ladies at the luncheon seemed more interested in cosmetics than they did in her great cross-country flight.

What color fingernail polish did she prefer asked attractive young things whose nails suggested the slaughter of oxen in an abbatoir. Miss Cochran announced she didn't use fingernail dye of any shade. After a few "whys" the amazed horror was reflected on nearly every face. Tolerance?

Curing Phil

By RAY SAPERSTEIN

It was snowing hard when Mr. and Mrs. Culver and their daughter Anna saw the machine approaching and went on the porch to meet their guests. But the greetings were scarcely over before it became apparent that something was wrong. Phil Marley was pale and thin, while the face of Edna Marley, nee Culver, wore a harrassed and anxious expression.

"What's wrong, darling?" asked Mrs. Culver, a few minutes later. It was the first time she had seen her daughter since her marriage.

"It's Phil, mother. He's been sick for a long time, and he won't take any medicine, or see a doctor, or anything. And I'm worried to death.

Anna, who had been listening to her sister's tale of woe, went to the medicine chest, and returned with a spoon and an awe-inspiring bottle containing a greenish liquid.

"This is the best cough medicine in the world." said she. "A single dose will relieve him."

Phil Marley eyed her with suspicion, and sat up with a jerk as she brought the spoon near "Is that for me?" he demanded.

"For no one else. Drink it like a man, and not like a foolish child. It will make you well."

It didn't make Phil well at all, for the simple reason that he pushed the spoon away, and the health-giving liquid made a dark stain on the rug.

"I'm going upstairs for some rest," he declared, grimly "If there's a thing like that to be found in this house".

Edna began to cry. She hadn't thought Phil's illness serious, but if other people did — "What — what shall I do?" she asked, quite overcome.

"Telephone Doctor Strong."

"But he doesn't want a doctor."

"Telephone, anyway, and when the doctor comes it will be too late for Phil to object."

Edna hesitated, knowing her husband's temper when crossed. However, for his own good—she gave a reluctant consent but her conscience troubled her so much that when it was nearly time for the doctor to come she ascended the stairs to her husband's room, sat down beside him, and said: "Phil, dear, I hope you won't mind our sending for the doctor—"

He jumped up like a jack-in-the-box. "You—you sent for the doctor?"

"Yes. You have such a cough, and—"

He tumbled out of bed and began fumbling for his clothes. He found his bathrobe and slippers, muttering, as he put them on, "So you think I'm crazy, do you? A fine wife I've got—a wife who conspires with others to make an idiot of her husband. But you're not going to—"

The clang of the doorbell downstairs shut off further speech. Clad in his slippers, a bathrobe and a silk hat, which, in his excitement, he put on without thinking, he rushed down the back stairs just as the doctor climbed the flight of steps in front.

No patient greeted Doctor Strong. Instead, he found a pretty young woman wringing her hands and weeping.

"Where's the sick man?" he demanded.

"Somewhere downstairs, I guess."

But a search of the house failed to reveal him. Doctor Strong went about his business, leaving a distracted family behind. Where could Phil have gone—in a bathrobe and slippers and a silk hat? After another fruitless search Edna came to the unhappy conclusion that her husband had jumped into the river a few miles away.

Night came, and Mr. Culver went downstairs to replenish the furnace—and discovered his son-in-law stretched on a couple of blankets before its genial glow.

"Well!" said the old gentleman, emphatically, after staring a few seconds to make sure it was indeed the missing man.

Phil Marley opened his eyes, looked around sheepishly, and said, "It was nice and warm here, and I knew nobody would bother me. The heat from the furnace seemed to warm me clear through, and I feel a whole lot better."

Mr Culver repressed the retort on his tongue, and said, mildly, "Well, if you feel better, perhaps you'll go upstairs and convince Edna that you're not drowned. We were thinking of dragging the river for you tomorrow."

"I'll go right up. I guess I've been pretty cranky, but I won't be any more."

HISTORY OF BORDER

Port Huron, Mich., Oct. 8 (CP)—The peaceful history of the relationship of the United States and Canada constitutes a challenge to those charged with the responsibility of shaping public policy. Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario said today at the opening ceremonies of the Blue Water bridge which connects Port Huron with Sarnia and Point Edward on the Canadian side of the border.

He said the recent European crisis made the people of Canada and the United States realize what it means to be on unfriendly terms with one's neighbors. He pointed to the contrast between European and North American frontiers. Connecting links in the form of bridges were built here while in Europe border activity was marked by the construction of fortresses.

Goodwill Expression.

"It is regrettable indeed that other countries do not emulate in every particular the splendid example set on this continent," Premier Hepburn said. "In order to bring this important fact more forcibly to those would-be warring nations, our slogan should be 'bridges, not batteries'."

Mr. Hepburn voiced an expression of good will towards the citizens of the United States. "I think I can undertake to speak not only for myself but on behalf of all the people of Canada," he said.

To Governor Murphy of Michigan he expressed appreciation on behalf of Ontario citizens of the friendly and co-operative spirit extended at all times of the State of Michigan.

Governor Murphy Officiates.

Port Huron, Mich., Oct. 8 (CP)—Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan contrasted today the picture of European nations lining up their forces for a potential war with the picture of Canada and the United States joyfully opening a new link between the two nations as he spoke at opening of the Blue Water bridge today. The bridge spans the St. Clair River between Port Huron, Sarnia and Point Edward, Ont.

"Here no frenzied mobilization of troops, no hasty manning of frontier ramparts, no feverish measures of partial law," Governor Murphy said. "As others exerted themselves to prevent invasion, we labored to encourage the flow of commerce and travel between friends.

"Here as others moulded concrete and steel into forts as bastions, we employed them to cement the unity of brothers under two flags.

Respect and Fraternity.

"Today we dedicate another bond of respect and fraternity between the land of the maple leaf and the home of the stars and stripes; we dedicate above all an enduring monument to peace."

Mr. Murphy said the bridge was justly a matter of pride to the two nations for "they have had the wisdom and the foresight to plan this undertaking so soundly that in ten years the Blue Water bridge will be the unencumbered property of the people to use freely and without cost."

He concluded his address with expression of the hope that in the years to come European nations would find in the bridge's construction an example for future conduct.

Cost $1,750,000.

Sarnia, Ont., Oct. 8 (CP)—Officials of two nations gathered today for the opening of the $1,750,000 Blue Water bridge connecting Canada and the United States through Sarnia and Port Huron, Mich.

Approximately 70,000 persons were expected to be on hand when Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario and Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan formally declared the bridge open for traffic.

State and provincial government officials and many civic organizations from both sides of the international border took part in the opening ceremonies that included explosion of aerial bombs and hoisting of the two nations' flags.

Eighth Connecting Bridge.

The steel and concrete artery, the eighth bridge connecting Ontario and the United States, stretches 871 feet over St. Clair River.

Re-dedication of a peace plaque by Port Huron and Sarnia Service Clubs opened celebrations yesterday on the Michigan end of the span. Social highlight of the celebration, a coronation ball was held in Port Huron last night at which Judy Dunford of Port Huron was crowned "Miss Blue Water" by Governor Murphy.

Before the official opening ceremonies today, clergymen from the two cities held a religious service in the centre of the bridge and a relay team of runners from University of Western Ontario and University of Detroit raced across the bridge with good-will messages from both nations.

First all-Canadian ceremony was held a few hours before opening of the structure when the Lambton County Women's Institute dedicated a plaque to the women of North America.

IN MEMORIAM

CHURCHILL—In memory of Irene Beatrice (Young) Churchill who passed away October 10, 1937.

'Tis God who has taken dear Irene away,
From sickness and sorrow and pain.
Then why should we weep as those without hope?
Our loss is her infinite gain.
Then why should we weep, she's only asleep
And hid from our eyes for awhile,
She has entered the place where God shows His face;
And where sin can never defile.

—Greatly missed by Mother and Grace. o8-1t

JEWISH PEOPLE

The statement added, however, that "the Jewish people remain ready to cooperate with the Arabs for the general welfare of the country."

R. G. B. Spicer, former Inspector General of Palestine police, in a letter to the London Times suggested two alternative ways of settling the trouble.

1. To employ ruthless force against Arab revolutionaries to conquer their rebellious people by force of arms and once this has been done to deal with any recrudescence with inexorable severity.

2. To say to the Jews: 'You must abandon any further expansion to your Zionist dreams. What you have you may hold, but it must stop there both in regard to immigration and to land.'

Shell Shocked Chicago Cubs Limp into Yankee Stadium To Renew Unequal Struggle

Pearson And Bryant Are Selected As Starting Pitchers

YANKEES OUTHIT

Cubs Boast Mark of .303 But Their Fielding Has Been Bad

By GAYLE TALBOT

New York, Oct. 8 (AP)—The shell-shocked Chicago Cubs, beaten in the first two games in their home park, limped into huge Yankee Stadium today to renew the unequal struggle against Joe McCarthy's wonder team in the third battle of the world series.

But New York was not visibly excited about the annual blue-ribbon baseball classic. The prospect was the stadium's 70,000 capacity would not be strained because the average New York baseball nut is convinced now that the Yankees will make it four straight, winding up with their third consecutive world championship Sunday night.

Threw Best Bets.

Gabby Hartnett, the locals point out, threw his two best bets, Bill Lee and Dizzy Dean, at the slugging American Leaguers in Chicago, and Bill and Dizzy got it in the neck. Today Gabby had to gamble on Clay Bryant, a nervous young newcomer to the big series, while his rival, McCarthy, could blast loose with Monte Pearson, a series veteran and a magnificent pitcher.

The Cubs were badly shaken by those home runs that Frank Crosetti and Joe DiMaggio hit to beat the courageous Dean in the second game, but they still were talking a lot of fight and contending in loud tones that the Yanks had been lucky stiffs. They felt yesterday's rest would do them some good, and they were confident that if Bryant could win today they would come back behind Lee to square the count tomorrow.

Marty in Lineup.

Impressed by the way Joe Marty slugged the ball in the second game, Hartnett announced he would keep him in centre-field for today's game, at least. Marty, who replaced Phil Cavaretta, collected three solid hits and drove in all three Chicago runs.

Despite the Crosetti-DiMaggio outburst Thursday, the Chicagos went into today's contest with a slightly better series batting average than their vaunted rivals—.303 to .279. All except two of their twenty blows, however, had been singles.

Yankee Fielding Smart.

Outstanding feature of the series to date, though, has been the Yankee fielding, particularly by Crosetti and Joe Gordon. Between them, they handled 31 chances in the first two games and put together four double plays to spike Chicago rallies.

Chicago fielding on the other hand has been a big disappointment. Bill Herman's error in the first game enabled the Yankees to beat Lee 3-1 and the tumbling act put on by Bill Jurges and Stanley Hack, while they tried to grab a roller, provided the Yanks with two more runs in the second game, to win 6-3.

CLAY BRYANT HAS REAL GOOD CURVE

Starting Hurler For Cubs May Beat The Yankees

New York, Oct. 8 (AP)—Subject of much of the hot stove oratory that agitates this town as the world series moves in is Claiborne Bryant—Clay to you and you—who is slated for Chicago Cubs' mound job today.

Most National League rooters think he is a whiz but won't guarantee him against the Yanks. Bryant was better than fair at the Polo Grounds this year against the Giants. He chucked two shutouts, three-hitter and two-hitter.

He is fast and contrary to rumor can throw a pretty fair curve. Ask the Dodgers. He twisted them into knots a couple of times.

SERIES ALL EVEN

Kansas City, Oct. 8 (AP)—Because Kansas City Blues don't know when they are licked, they will play Newark Bears in the seventh and deciding game of the Little World Series here tonight (8 p.m., C.S.T.).

They were down twice to Newark, International League champions, in the present series, two to one, then three to two, but last night they squared it with a 4-2 victory behind the steady pitching of Marvin Breuer.

ST. CATHARINES DEFEAT ADANACS

Finish Like a Hurricane To Trample Western Champs 18-11

Toronto, Oct. 8 (CP)—St. Catharines Athletics need only two more victories to take the Canadian Senior Lacrosse championship over New Westminster Adanacs, but even if the Athletics get into deep water in the best-of-five series their supporters won't give up the ghost.

Tht Athletics have a breath-takiig habit of finishing like young hurricanes, as they demonstrated last night in defeating Adanacs 18-11 in the first game of the Mann Cup series. Down 3-4 at the end of the first quarter, they tied the British Columbia team 6-6 by halftime and 9-9 at the three-quarter mark. Then Art Brown's great young machine stormed down for nine fourth-quarter goals.

It's been that way right along with the A's, who like nothing better than to tramp all over a defence when it counts. Orillia Terriers, who lost in Dominion finals to New Westminster Salmonbellies last year, thought they had St. Catharines on the run by taking the first game of Ontario Lacrosse Association finals. The Athletics got hot to win the round in three straight games—and got hotter every time out.

Just Matter of Time.

So there wasn't a whole lot of worry among the St. Catharines supporters in the crowd of 5,000 last night while the Adanacs stayed level. When Roy (Punk) Morton and Joe Cheevers got the Ontario club's attack going they knew New Westminster had to crumble.

George Urquhart put St. Catharines ahead 35 seconds after the start of the last period. Within a minute Morton had rattled in two more goals and after a single Adanac reply the Athletics went back to their wrecking. Billy Wilson banged in the thirteenth counter and Cheevers, Urquhart and Harry Green, big Indian star, followed him in quick order.

Morton scored seven times, Cheevers six and Lee was easily the best of the invaders' forwards, tallying four times. The rest of the scoring was spread over the two lineups.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIETZ

New York, Oct. 8 (AP)—World's series situation: The baseball mob hit New York yesterday like a hurricane. . . . It blew in from the west by plane and special train to be in on the "kill" which every one takes for granted will start at the Yankee Stadium today. . . . Two down, the Cubs have their backs to the wall. . . . They were a glum lot rolling east on their special. . . Unless the Yanks get too cocky, it looks as though they'll be the first team in history to win three world's championships in a row. . . . Yanks figure they'll murder Clay Bryant's fast ball today, but some of them fear Bill Lee may be a bit tough in tomorrow's return engagement.

Even Chicago writers have quit on Cubs. . . . Most of them predict the Yanks will do it in four straight. . . . The Cubs haven't quit but they are mighty low. . . . Gabby Hartnett was around his hotel booming that it'll only take one win to put Chicago back in the series, but nobody so much as looked up. . . . Most tragic figure of the series so far is Dizzy Dean, who pitched himself one whale of a ball game (with nothing on the ball except cunning) for seven innings until those homers began to fall. . . . Of course, there is only one nomination for hero—Frankie Crosetti.

World's series scene: Plenty of gossip around the hotel lobbies. . . . Latest on the Brooklyn situation is that Burleigh Grimes is out, rain or shine, and that the only candidates to succeed him are Charlie Dressen of Nashville, Leo Durocher and Jimmy Wilson, the ex-Philly. . . . Another story has Grimes going to manage a Dodger farm in the International League and still another sends him to Milwaukee to replace Alan Sothoron. . . . Most of the talk on the Yankee special coming east had to do with Lou Gehrig actually shaking Joe DiMaggio's hand after Joe hit that homer in the second game. . . . Insiders say it hasn't happened before this season.

Ford Frick, president of the National League, looks and acts jittery. . . . On the other hand, Will Harridge, head of the American League, looks plump and sassy. . . . He's getting used to these American League victories. . . . Paul Shannon, veteran baseball expert of the Boston Post, is the new president of the Baseball Writers' Association.

Football Curtain Rings up With Kingston Squad Here

Garrison Meets Belleville Panthers In Opening Struggle

EXPECT LARGE CROWD

Rugby football — that whirling, shifting, breathless, hard driving team sport looms on the sport horizon and which will be the major sport dish for the next few weeks, swings into action for public approval at the Belleville Fair Grounds on Thanksgiving Day when the Belleville Panthers clash with the Kingston Garrison in the opening league game of the current O.R.F.U. season.

Although something of a mystery surrounds the relative strength of the Garrison and Panthers, owing to the fact neither squad has participated in a pre-season game whereby their gridiron strength could be ascertained, but the "soldier boys" are reported to be a sturdy band of pig skin chasers with plenty of heart.

The Garrison is led by Coach Bob Elliott, former Queen's football star and manager of the Kingston Ponies baseball team this season. According to Kingston reports Coach Elliott had some sixty candidates to choose his Garrison squad from and will doubtless bring a goodly reserve squad to throw into Monday's opening game. Both squads realize the importance of winning the initial game of the group schedule, as such a victory will ultimately have a strong bearing on the final standing, as well as the morale of the team for future games.

Will Stress Speed.

Coach Archie Duffield has been working feverishly on his line of scrimmage in an effort to bring it up to a point whereby it may cope with the strong Garrison line. The Panthers' line was weakened with the loss of Dick Burns, who injured his ankle, and Harry "Hot-dog" McCreary, who was injured in a motor accident recently. Both will be on the sidelines, but in the face of these regrettable replacements, coaches Duffield and Schrieder are stressing the speed of the perhaps lighter Panthers, as against brute strength.

Morel Baker will do the punting for the Panthers, with Pat Blaker getting all placement kicking tossed his way. On the shoulders of the youthful Jim Pepper lies the responsibility of tossing forward passes—a line of attack which will be employed by the Belleville squad while on the attack.

The Panthers will line-up, in brand new uniforms, as follows: Snap, Blaker; insides, Bradford and Skelcher; middles, Flagler and Baker; ends, Cook and J. Hafey; quarter, Don McKee; halves, McQuaid and D. Grant; fullbacks, Storey and Pepper; subs, C Hafey, Knott, Jackson and M. Hafey.

MRS. MULQUEEN REACHES FINAL

Meets Clarrie Tiernan In 36-Hole Match For Women's Crown

By ROSS MUNRO

Ottawa, Oct. 8 (CP)—A Toronto veteran of big-time golf whose heart is set on winning the Canadian Women's Open Golf Championship and a 22-year-old Irish girl with one of the longest drives in the game meet here today in the 36-hole titular match.

Mrs. F. P. Mulqueen from the Ontario capital qualified for the finals in a stirring semi-finals contest here yesterday against Mrs. J. B. Walker of Ayrshire, Scotland, and after being three down at the end of the 12th staged a sparkling comeback to win the match one up on the 18th green.

Her opponent in the 36-hole event which winds up the open tournament is Clarrie Tiernan of Dublin who ousted Jessie Anderson of Perth, Scotland, 3 and 2 in the semi-finals.

The games of the two finalists are as different as their appearances and personalities. Mrs. Mulqueen is a little woman with a quiet smile who poles out consistent tee shots, plays a steady but not spectacular short game, and is deadly on the greens.

Plump Miss Tiernan is a laughing Irish girl with a booming drive which generally soars past the 225-yard mark.

The Toronto Star has been Ontario women's champion but has never won the Canadian open.

JEWS FEAR NAZIS WILL SEIZE DANZIG

Hoboken, N.J., Oct. 8 (CP)—The 14 Jewish Ankers of Danzig arrived in America today aboard the Holland - American steamship Noordam to begin a new life. Three brothers, their wives and eight children came here, they said, because they fear Chancellor Hitler is about to seize the free city of Danzig where they said they had holdings valued at $1,000,000. They intend to buy a farm in California.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with

Ken J. Colling

Two of Belleville's ranking golfers will provide one of the most interesting golf matches ever played in this city when Harry Ridley and Tommy Carruthers meet for the Belleville Golf Club championship on Sunday morning. The public is cordially invited to witness this outstanding golf event of the season, which will bring two of the best golfers in this district together in common play. Harry Ridley has won the Belleville Golf Club championship for several consecutive years, but young Carruthers has rapidly advanced in the golfing realm of late and only recently won the Central Ontario amateur golf championship at Cobourg. Glancing over their respective scores in past games we find there is little to chose between these two ranking players. Last year over a shorter course Ridley shot a 6 for 18 holes, but the course at the Belleville Golf Club has been extended to over 6,000 yards this year. Par is 70 today and on several occasions this year Carruthers has shot two 35's. This match will be well worth attending as both boys are qualified for championship play.

Bedecked in smart new blue and red uniforms the Belleville Panthers will usher in the 1938 football season versus the strong Kingston Garrison squad on the home gridiron on Monday afternoon. The Panthers will be minus the services of Dick Burns, fleet-footed outside, who is on the side lines as the result of an ankle injury and also they'll have to get along without Harry (Hot-dog) McCreary, their bruising and battering halfback, who sustained injuries in a motor accident and will be absent from this important opening game fixture. Incidentally Coach Archie Duffield wishes to thank the various druggists of the city, who kicked in with sufficient tape, liniment, etc to assure a complete first aid kit for the Panthers.

Jake Bradford returned to his favourite position at inside this week and will materially help to bolster the Panthers' defence, but Coaches Duffield and Schrieder are resigned to the fact they must depend upon the fleet-footedness of their charges or revert wholely to an aerial attack if they are to place in their group. Monday being a holiday should see a bumper crowd out to usher in the 1938 rugby football season.

Now for our week end big league football prognostications: It's McGill slightly over Western, while Varsity should beat Ted Reeve's Queen's youngsters right in Kingston. Sarnia over Balmy Beach, while the Peterboro 'Orfuns' are in for a sweet shellacking at Montreal on Monday, Argos over Hamilton and Ottawa to beat Montreal today. Cobourg will doubtless beat the R.C.A.F. while we are none too optimistic over the Belleville-Kingston Garrison tussle.

FLASH NEWS: "Chicago Cubs beat New York Yankees yesterday"—It's a fact Hartnett's boys did beat the Bronx Bombers, but only minutes. It seems the Cubs' special train steamed in Gotham ahead of the Yankees' train, which is about the only time the Cubs will be ahead of the Highlanders this season. The world series resumes in New York today with big Monte Pearson likely to take the mound for the Yankees and either Clay Bryant or French on the hilltop for the Cubs. If Pearson wins today no doubt McCarthy will try to polish off the Cubs with four different pitchers by sending Bump Hadley in on Sunday.

The postponed events of the Belleville Collegiate field day were completed yesterday afternoon on the school campus, following which Instructor George Laughlin announced the 1938-39 track and field champions of the B.C.I.V.S. Perry Everett repeated in the senior boys' class, Bill Pigden nosed out Wilf Mills for the intermediate honors, another repeater, while Gordon Theobald won the junior. Miss Marjorie Hitchon won all events in the senior girls' group and will no doubt be voted the school all-round champion.

Although a bit out of season, the latest sport rumors floating about the city have at least two new softball clubs being organized for 1939 O.A.S.A. competition in Belleville. The Alemite is returning to softball after a few years of idleness, while a well-known gas and oil company is being counted on to sponsor another entry after next winter's snow has long since melted away. With interest on the wane in other sports the softball moguls are looking towards a banner season in 1939 and may fence in their diamond at Coleman Flats next spring.

Coach Warren Stevens and his University of Toronto Varsity squad stayed at the Quinte Hotel last night. The "blue and white" steamed into the city via Canadian National early last evening, took in a show and rested. This morning they went through a short period of signal practice on the armouries lawn and at noon entrained for Kingston. When approached last night Coach Stevens told us he was not selling the "tri-color" short. "It is a mighty task to beat Queen's at Richardson Stadium, although I am convinced our squad is in excellent condition and should win," Stevens was heard to remark in the hotel this morning.

Take a walk down a busy street. One out of every 37 persons you meet will be a criminal. One out of every 650—and it doesn't take long to meet that many in New York City—is or will be a murderer. This of course, if every sample of our population were representative of the whole.

Among them the criminals cost us $15,000,000,000 annually or about $115 for each man, woman and child in the population—between one-fifth and one-sixth of our present national income.

Lady for Shanghai

— By —

Kaye Fox

Perhaps, she thought, Mrs. Parr had realised that she had gone too far the night before, and was a little sorry—but it was even more likely that this comparative politeness was meant to put her off her guard, so that she might not suspect how closely they were watching her.

Another Midnight Raid

Christine went up to the hospital as soon as she had taken round the morning tea and fruit to her passengers. John Stanhope was in the outer room, drinking the hot tea which the doctor's "tiger" had just brought up to him, and he nodded coldly to Christine without smiling.

"Miss Robins' temperature is quite normal now," he said, "though it may rise again to-night. I will see the Chief Steward now about a special diet for her, and I will try to arrange for one of the passengers to sit with her during the morning, while you are busy, and during the afternoon, too, or part, so that you get your rest."

"You want me to sit up with her to-night?" she asked quietly.

"Until midnight, when I will relieve you. Although I don't really think it is necessary, I want to be on the safe side. If she sleeps through to-night, she can go back to her own room to-morrow."

He went on to give her detailed directions about the patient's meals which would be ready in the pantry, but which Christine would have to take up to the hospital. The doctor's "tiger," who was also the hospital steward, would do the work which was done by the bedroom stewards in the ordinary state-rooms, but of course Christine would have to make the bed and do all the nursing.

It was no easy matter to fit it all into a day which was already full enough, and Christine was so busy that she had no time to think about Fay, whom she must try to see that night, or about John Stanhope. She would never have been ready for inspection if Arthur Grant had not done a great deal of her own work in addition to his own. Cator, though Miss Robins came from his section, and he knew that she was in the hospital, did nothing to help Christine.

"You're not sitting up again tonight?" Miss Crane asked sharply, at ten o'clock, when Christine slipped into their cabin to change her slippers for a heel-less pair.

"Dr. Stanhope thinks it will be safest," Christine answered, and saw the swift, suspicious glance which Miss Crane gave to Mrs. Parr.

She was much too tired to bother about them. After all, if they really thought that she was not going to the hospital, they could always ask the hospital steward, who was up there now, waiting in the out room for her to relieve him. Christine knew by this time that they did not mind whom they questioned, if they were curious about anything.

Miss Robins was quietly asleep when Christine went up, and for the first time that day, she had leisure to think. All that day, she had not had even a distant glimpse of Fay, or heard her name spoken. But she must see Fay that night.

John Stanhope came in a little before twelve, and Christine stood up to make her report.

"Miss Robins has not stirred since I came up at ten," she said.

"Good-night, Miss Jordan. You look dead beat."

She was dead beat, but she still had to see Fay before she went to bed, and that interview would not be too easy. Keeping a sharp look out for the night watchman, she sped down the main companion to the lower deck; that night, the lights were out even in the cabin de luxe, and there seemed to be no one about.

But when she was within a few yards of Fay's door, she heard slow, shuffling footsteps approaching, and saw someone turn the corner from the cross alley-way amidships. At first she thought that it was the night watchman, and that she had escaped discovery by a hair's breadth, but she soon recognized Mrs. Carlyle, the elderly passenger from number ten.

CHAPTER VI

"Pussyfoot."

"Is anything the matter, Mrs. Carlyle?" Christine asked anxiously, for the old lady was in her dressing gown, and there must be some reason why she was wandering about, on the deck below her own.

"I was just looking for the night watch-man—he's supposed to be on duty after eleven o'clock, isn't he? The fact is,' stewardess, that I simply couldn't face hot milk at ten o'clock—the night was then so very warm—but I don't seem able to sleep without it. I thought I might ask the night watchman to heat it up again for me."

"But why didn't you ring your bell, Mrs. Carlyle? Though the bell doesn't actually ring at this time of night, the light flashes up on the bell-indicator. If you'll go back to your room, I'll find him for you," Christine affered.

It struck her that the night watchman might be cleaning shoes on the little deck outside the smoke-room, for the watchman on the Brent Tor had sometimes cleaned shoes there on hot nights.

But it was not the night watchman whom she met on her way to the smoke-room, but Arthur Grant, who ought to have been in his cabin in the stewards' alley-way two decks below, at that hour. It was not even his night to be on watch from nine to eleven.

"Hallo, Christine," he said, with a cheerful grin, "this isn't your way home from the hospital."

"I'm looking for the night watchman. And what are you doing up here, Arthur, so far from your own home?"

"Mind your own business, kid, and you'll hear no lies."

"Which just means that you've been playing poker in the bar," she guessed, "with the bar door closed, so that the passengers think the bar closed at the usual hour."

"And so it did—to passengers, and as I've been drinking lime squashes, and nothing stronger, it's been a very harmless form of amusement. I only came away because we've been playing for drinks and I've been winning steadily, and fourteen lime squashes is as much as I really want, even in this heat."

"Was the night watchman there, because Mrs. Carlyle wants him?"

"He was not. The bar's very exclusive after closing time. Why does Mrs. Carlyle want Pussyfoot?"

"To heat some milk for her—she's been ringing for half an hour and got no answer."

"I expect he's got his eye glued to a key-hole somewhere," Grant suggested. "He' salways sneaking round the ship, trying to earn a little extra by honest means. There's the little blighter himself," Grant said suddenly.

Christine turned and saw Pussyfoot said slyly glancing from Grant—coming quietly out of an empty state-room half way down the alley-way. His face was flushed and his hair rumpled, and it was easy enough to guess that he had been having a sleep in the empty room.

"Hallo, Pussyfoot—you're wanted," Grant said.

"I'm not so sure of that," Pussyfoot said slily, glancing from Grant to Christine.

"We don't want you. It's Mrs. Carlyle from number ten—she's been ringing for several hours and got no answer. You'd better hop off in a hurry."

Pussyfoot gave Grant an angry look, but he hurried off without saying anything, and Christine and Grant followed at a slower pace.

"It's just as well for Pussyfoot that we were the people who saw him," Grant said. "Some people would have jumped at the chance of reporting to Perrin that Pussyfoot was asleep on duty."

"This is a lovely ship," Christine sighed.

"You've said it, Christine."

Christine went down the main companion with Grant, but they parted when they reached the deck below, for he went along the port alley-way to the companion which led to the stewards' quarters, while her way to her own cabin was the starboard alley-way.

She paused as soon as she was out of sight of Grant wondering whether she should go to Fay that night. It was now so late. But the very fact that it was late made it all the safer, and she could explain her delayed return to her own cabin by telling Mrs. Parr and Miss Crane about the fuss over Mrs. Carlyle's milk, if one of them was awake when she went in.

There was no light in Fay's room, but as Christine opened the door, Fay switched on the light over the bed. Christine saw at a glance that she was in a bad mood, for her mouth was set in a sulky line and she stared at Christine without speaking.

"I couldn't get here earlier," she said. "I was on duty in the hospital until midnight, and then I had to do something for one of my passengers."

"I thought you'd come along tonight," Fay muttered, "though goodness knows that I don't want to see you. You've done me enough harm already by butting in where you were not wanted."

"Fay," Christine said gently. "I happened to find out that Royde and Mrs. Smythe were planning that you should be left alone with him in the cabin de luxe last night. Would you expect me not to interfere?"

"That's all a fairy-tale," Fay burst out angrily. "Of course Martin wants to be alone with me sometimes. He's—he's falling in love with me, and how are we going to get to know one another better, if we're always with other people? I shall lose him if I go all coy and silly at the very idea of being alone with him, as if—as if I expected him to make love to me. You're simply jealous, Christine, that's what's the matter with you."

"Jealous?"

"You're jealous that I've got a chance of marrying a wealthy man—and a very attractive one—when you're only a stewardess, with very little chance of marrying anyone at all, unless it's a steward. And I'm so fed up with you, that if I do marry Martin—"

"Marry Martin?" Christine exclaimed. "You don't honestly think that Martin Royde is thinking of marrying you, Fay?"

"Why not? He's not a snob. He knows that I earn my own living but he's spending all his time with me, even though there are lots of girls on board who have never done a hand's turn in their lives. And even you must admit, Christine, that if I was a rich man's wife I could look the part—he'd never have any reason to feel ashamed of me."

Pretty—eand Foolish.

She glanced at herself complacently in the mirror which faced the bed, instinctively putting up a hand to pat her fair curls into place. There was no doubt that she was pretty, and she had learned at the beauty salon to make the very most of apple-blossom skin, big blue eyes and gold-flecked hair — her long, dark lashes were so artistically tinted that no one could be sure that they were due to good management rather than good luck.

"I wouldn't look as though I'd ever earned my living," she said, "if I had furs and jewels, and frocks from Paris, and really good shoes—none of Martin's friends could say that he'd married beneath him."

"None of his friends will have the chance," Christine said bluntly. "I've told you before, Fay, that Martin Royde is notorious, and he's no more likely to marry you than to marry Mrs. Smythe, or any of the other women with whom he has had flirtations, for the duration of the voyage only. I've heard Mrs. Smythe and Mrs. Collins talking—"

"You can't believe anything that they say about him. They've been nice enough to me, I must admit, but they're so cynical and—of course Martin is a good deal older than I am. They've forgotten what it's like to be young so much longer—they'd laugh at the idea that a man of Martin's age can fall in love as romantically as a boy."

"I'd laugh at it too, perhaps, if it was said about Martin Royde, and any other girl but you. But as it is—oh, Fay, can't you see that you're just fooling yourself, that you're dazzled by Royde, and don't see him as he really is?"

"You're completely wrong about Martin—you don't understand," Fay said obstinately, "and because you've got this rotten narrow minded opinion of him, you'll ruin my chances with him—if I let you."

Christine stared at her hopelessly. It seemed almost incredible that Fay, who appeared so sophisticated in many ways, should be so blind about Martin Royde.

"I'm sorry, Fay," Christine said at last, "but if your chances depend on your being alone with Royde in the cabin de luxe—well, I shall just have to ruin them. If you're in there with him again—"

"How will you know if I am?" Fay interrupted, tossing her head defiantly.

"How did I know last night? You don't realize what a very great deal the staff does know about the things that the passengers do—why, I was up in the hospital last night, on the boat deck, but I was told about your being in the cabin de luxe."

"If some sneaking steward comes and tells you that I'm there again, what are you going to do?"

"I'll come and fetch you out again—and if you force me to do it, I'll tell Royde that I'm your sister. I know that I promised not to give you away, since you're ashamed of me, but I'm not going to stand quietly by and watch Royde do what he likes with you."

Fay burst into tears, but they were tears of sheer rage, and between her sobs she gasped out that she never wanted to see Christine again, and began shouting at her to get out of the room. Christine went, for she was afraid that a noisy scene would wake other passengers. She knew Fay's rages of old—if she tried to soothe her, Fay would only get more noisy and violent.

Weary though she was, it was a long time before Christine fell asleep. It was a bitter sorrow to her to quarrel with Fay, especially now. If they were not reconciled before the end of the voyage, Fay's last link with home would be broken, and Christine would be able to take back no news of her to the mother who loved them both, but who loved her baby best.

Christine was a little late in the morning, and Mrs. Parr and Miss Crane were down in the pantry ten minutes ahead of her. They were all in such a rush from then until their breakfast hour that Christine saw nothing of either of the others, and it was not until they sat down to breakfast in the saloon that she realized that they did not intend to speak to her that morning.

She was a little puzzled, for she could not understand why they were openly hostile today, when yesterday they had been ready to ignore her scene with Mrs. Parr in the hospital. But she was so absorbed in her thoughts about Fay that she was not altogether sorry to be left alone.

After her own breakfast, she had to carry Miss Robins' breakfast up to the hospital. There were a good many people in the pantry when she went to fetch it, and she noticed suddenly that some of the stewards were staring at her in a curious way. Cator, who was filling a hot water jug at the urn while Christine was waiting with her own jug, glanced at her over his shoulder with such an expression of satisfied spite that she was startled.

No one said anything to her except the chef, who was standing by the hot press, and who called out "Good morning, Miss Jordan," much more heartily than usual.

Somehow, the chef's heartiness warned her that something was seriously wrong. The chef was one of the few men on the staff whose position was assured, and who could afford to defy the Chief Steward, and from the very beginning of the voyage he had hardly attempted to conceal his contempt for Perrin and his band of toadies. Across Christine's weary brain there flashed the warning—the chef was going out of his way to be extra friendly because, for some reason which she could not guess, there was bad trouble in store for her.

Serious Trouble Ahead.

She hurried up to the hospital with the patient's breakfast, and then ran down to her own section, hoping for a word with Grant, who would be sure to know what was the matter. He was sweeping Mrs. Carlyle's room, number ten, but when Christine passed the doorway, he signed for her to go away.

"For goodness sake, Christine, don't let Edwards see you speaking to me—we may get a chance later," he said urgently, and Christine went on at once to make a start on one of the other rooms.

There was something serious the matter—Grant, who was always so cheerful and happy-go-lucky, was looking pale and worried. And Edwards was watching to see whether she and Grant talked to one another, for he popped out of a bathroom just after Christine had left number ten, and he seemed strangely unwilling to leave Grant's section and go round to Cator's.

Christine was in number ten herself when the men went down to breakfast, but a few minutes after she had seen Grant and Edwards pass the door, Grant came in to her.

"I doubled back," he said breathlessly, "but I daren't stay a moment. Christine—look out for squalls. That little tick, Pussyfoot, has been spreading a wild tale all over the ship about you and me—wanted to get in first, I suppose, in case we reported him for being asleep. It's bound to reach Perrin—of course we can prove the thing's a lie, if they give us a chance, but I'm afraid we're both in for a bad time."

He disappeared, as silently as he had come, and within a minute Cator strolled along the alley-way, glancing into every room—he had obviously missed Grant from his place at the breakfast table, and had slipped up to see whether Grant was talking to Christine. Grant must have been wise enough to go through the smoke-room, and down the outside companion, to avoid meeting anyone who might come in search of him.

Christine, trying to imagine what tale Pussyfoot could have spread about her and Arthur Grant, remembered now how silly he had looked at them. She realized what sort of accusation Pussyfoot was making against them.

But on what other ship, she thought scornfully that morning, would such a silly scandal cause such a commotion? Cator and Edwards were obviously bubbling over with suppressed excitement about it, and for some reason best known to himself, Edwards dogged her and Grant all morning—she wondered whether he would have dashed off and made a report to Perrin, if he had happened to hear her ask Arthur Grant for the loan of a duster, of something equally innocent.

They did not give him that much satisfaction. Arthur, who had been badly rattled at first, recovered some of his usual cheerfulness before long, but though be grinned at Christine when they passed in the alley-way, he did not pause to speak to her.

It was not Perrin's own morning for inspection—on alternate mornings, the Mate and the Second Steward came round instead of the Captain and the Chief. Christine was thankful for that, since she was sure that Perrin would have worked off some of his wrath on her and Grant by finding everything possible the matter with their rooms.

She was not surprised when a bell boy came tearing up the companion, immediately after inspection, calling out that the Chief Steward wanted to speak to Miss Jordan in his office—and it seemed to her that even the bell boy looked pleased and excited because someone else was going to get into trouble. The bell boys saw much too much of Perrin.

As she went down to the office, she told herself that she had nothing to fear, since the night-watchman's accusation could be proved false, but her heart was beating wildly. Perrin was going to bully her, she knew that already, and it would take all her courage to face up to him, innocent though she was.

He was sitting at his desk, entering something in a ledger, when she knocked at the office door, and he kept her waiting for a good five minutes before he turned his head. Then he stood up suddenly, pushing his chair back with an impatient hand, and took a step towards her, so that he towered above her and she had to look up into his heavy bloated face.

"I want you to explain to me, Miss Jordan," he said, with a very dangerous calm, "why you were wandering about the ship—on the promenade deck—at midnight last night. And why Grant was in your company at that time?"

"I was in the hospital until nearly midnight," she said quietly. "On my way down, I met one of my passengers, Mrs. Carlyle, looking for the night watchman, and I offered to find him for her. I met Grant by chance—"

"That's a pack of lies, and you know it," he shouted suddenly crashing his fist down on the desk. "You met Grant by appointment, as you have often done before—"

"Dr. Stanhope will tell you when I left the hospital, Mr. Perrin, and Mrs. Carlyle will tell you that she wanted the night watchman."

The Bully's Warning.

For a brief moment he looked disconcerted, and she realized that he had taken no steps at all to check Pussyfoot' sstory, and that he did not know either that she had been in the hospital or that she had talked to Mrs. Carlyle—he only knew that Pussyfood had seen her and Grant together at midnight. But he had worked himself up into a passion, and he was not going to be convinced that he had no excuse for bullying her.

"So that's your story," he sneered. "You know perfectly well that I won't question a passenger about the staff, and as for your being in the hospital—that was the reason, I suppose, why you had to meet your lover so late. Your affair with Grant is the talk of the whole ship."

"Then the whole ship is talking non-sense," she declared, meeting his eyes bravely, "for I met Grant by sheer accident last night, as I told you, and I have never met him before. There is no one on board who has the slightest real reason to think that there is anything between Grant and me."

"Because you are clever—or lucky," he thundered, crimsoning with anger. "This isn't the first time, by a long way, that you've played this sort of game, and you think you can get away with it—but you've not had me to deal with before, Miss Jordan. I'll catch you yet, you crafty little hussy, and when I do, it won't be a question of being dismissed at the end of the voyage—we cross the Yes Tor at Singapore, and I'll pack you straight back to England in the Yes Tor. Do you get that?"

She did not answer, for she knew that if she spoke she would burst into tears, and that would delight him, that was just what he hoped would happen. Never in her life before had anyone shouted and stormed at her as Perrin was doing, and it seemed to her that his bellowing voice filled the little room, so that she wanted to put her hands over her ears and shrink away from him.

'I'll have no fooling about on my ship," he went on, coming a step closer to her. "I warned you before you signed on at the beginning of the voyage, and I warn you again—if it's your idea of fun to flirt with your bedroom stewards, upsetting their work and getting your own done for you, you've come to the wrong place for it. This affair with Grant will stop here and now, or it'll be your finish, not only on this ship but with the Company. That mother of yours won't be able to persuade them to give you another chance, believe me."

He turned away from her at last, sat down at the dask, and opened the big ledger. Christine lingered for a few moments, in case he had any more to say, but he rang the bell on the deck, and told the bell boy who answered it to send the ship's writer to him, so she knew that he had done with her.

She remembered thankfully, that old Mrs. Carlyle always spent the whole morning with a group of friends who sat gossiping and knitting in their deck chairs, so that number ten would almost certainly be empty. There wasn't any place where she could be alone except in a passenger's room, and she must be alone for a few minutes, before she face the hostility of Mrs. Parr and Miss Crane, or the curiosity of the men—everyone on board knew that Perrin had sent for her, and knew why.

Even in number ten she could not give way to her tears, in case Mrs. Carlyle came in, for it was an unwritten law that passengers must never be allowed to guess that there was any trouble on the staff. She must make a pretence of polishing the silver on the dressing table, while she fought for self-control, wondering desperately how she could possibly endure nearly three more months of this life.

CHAPTER VII

"DON'T LIE TO ME"

"Did Perrin bully the life out of you?" Arthur Grant asked Christine, with a worried frown.

He was "on watch" from three to five that afternoon, a time when the alley-ways were always deserted, since both passengers and staff were resting.

"He shouted me down," she said. "He hasn't checked up Pussyfoot's story, and he's not going to. Arthur—I feel as thought there were eyes everywhere."

"We're pretty safe for a few minutes," he said, but he glanced over his shoulder along the alley-way. "Radlett, who's on watch with me, always oversleeps and comes on duty a quarter of an hour late, and it's only just three. Anyhow, we won't give me away—I've never said anything about his always being late."

She said wearily: "It seems to me that the only way to be safe, in this ship, is to know some black secret about everyone—then they won't give you away for fear you should give them away. It's all too complicated—it makes my head ache to think of it."

"You poor kid," he said sympathetically, "I don't wonder that it's got you down. But you mustn't lose your nerve."

"Because I'm going to need it? Perrin has made up his mind to catch me—and before we reach Singapore, too—and all his toadies will be helping in the good work."

"Did he tell you that he was going to send you home in the Yes Tor? I'm to go home in the Yes Tor too, Christine—Perrin and I had a little chat after lunch, and he told me about the arrangements he was going to make—if he caught us."

"What did you tell him, Arthur?" she asked.

"I didn't say a word. I just bowed to the storm, and believe me, it was some storm. I was in a bit of a fix really, because I couldn't explain just what I was doing at midnight last night, without doing a very bad turn to old George and the others at the poker party.'

"It wouldn't have done any good if you had explained—Perrin wasn't listening to explanations."

"That's what I thought, Christine. I knew that you could prove what you were doing, and if he wouldn't believe you, he certainly wouldn't believe me—but he would have taken up the matter of a poker party in the bar, all the same. So I just stood at attention, while Perrin told me what he thought of me, in language which would have made the boatswain turn pale."

"He didn't actually swear at me."

"Much too careful. He's not going to give you a chance of reporting to the Liverpool office that he swears at women."

They both heard footsteps in the cross alley-way, and Grant immediately disappeared into a bathroom, while Christine walked on. It was only a passenger but for a moment Christine's heart had stood still because she thought it was Radlett coming: it was as though, since that morning, every man on the ship had become her declared enemy, and she had to be on guard against every one of them.

There were some, of course, who were not Perrin's spies, but Perrin had been Chief Steward of the Hay Tor for three trips now, and every trip he had got rid of a few more of the men who would not fawn upon him. Some had been dismissed because of the bad reports he gave of them, and others had escaped him by wangling transfers to other ships. Of the men on board now, only the little group which included George, the bar-steward, Arthur Grant, and three or four of their friends, held aloof from the Perrin faction.

Perrin sent for her again after inspection the next day. He had taken so long over his inspection of Grant's section that Christine had been shaking in her shoes by the time he got to her, but he had passed her without speaking. She was in the stewardesses' cabin, drinking the after-inspection cup of tea, when the bell boy came for her.

"You seem very popular with Mr. Perrin just now, Miss Jordan," Miss Crane said acidly—it was the first word which either of the others had spoken to her since the previous morning.

"Miss Jordan, I have sent for you to warn you that you will gain nothing by this defiant attitude," Perrin said grimly, as soon as she entered the office. "Your work has always been below the standard of this ship, but this morning you seem to have made a childish attempt to show me that you are not afraid of me."

'What have I done, Mr. Perrin?" she asked, genuinely puzzled.

"You know perfectly well what you have done. It was not ordinary carelessness—it was done deliberately. You left a tray with two dirty glasses on it in the alley-way, outside number five, the room which I did not inspect because of Miss Robins' illness, there was a box of powder spilt right across the dressing table in nine, a child's toy engine in the middle of the deck in seventeen."

"I didn't—" she began.

"Don't lie to me," he told her, his voice rising to the angry note which was growing so familiar to her. "Im just warning you, Miss Jordan that that sort of thing won't go down with me. I suppose you thought that I'd just point these things out to Cator, as usual on inspection, and leave him to tell you, but you'll have me to deal with if you ever try such tricks again. You can go now, but I shall go personally through all your rooms tomorrow, after the Second Steward's inspection."

She realized, of course, that Cator was responsible for this new trouble, for it could not be by mere chance that two rooms in this section had been messed up, after she had finished on that side, and she had certainly left no tray in the alley-way. That means that at the very last minute before inspection she must rush through all the rooms on the starboard side, and that even then Cator might trick her by doing something which could not be put right quickly.

A BULLY DEFEATED

Edwards showed his hand the next day. There was some muddle over the baths, so that two of Christine's early passengers, who could be depended on to leave their rooms well before breakfast, were kept waiting until long past their usual time.

It was only by working at frantic speed that Christine finished before inspection, but she was not worrying much about inspection itself that day—it was Perrin's personal tour afterward that she had to fear. What made that so grossly unfair was that many of the passengers were considerate enough to keep out of their rooms until after eleven o'clock, but that they would often dash in for something as soon as they saw that inspection was over.

Perrin kept her waiting for a long time, probably out of sheer spite, since the half-hour inspection was at a time at which all the staff found time for a cup of tea, after the morning rush. Cator, Grant and Edwards all disappeared below, but Christine, longing for a brief rest though she was, had to stand at the head of the companion until Perrin came.

"The numbers of your rooms?" he said gruffly, when he came at last. He knew the numbers perfectly well since it was those very rooms that he had been finding fault with all along, but it pleased him to make Christine repeat them, and then to growl at her to speak up.

Of course that tour of the rooms was a mere farce. The doors of some of the rooms were shut, and as the official inspection was over, Perrin could not insist on going in.

"Another disgraceul room," he said, stalking into number ten. "Two drawers of the dressing table open, the washstand has been left unwiped, the piece of knitting on the settee ought to have been folded up and put away. Don't you know more about your work than that, eh? Did they teach you nothing on the Brent? Or is this impertinence on your part, Miss Jordan?"

A very quiet voice interrupted him: "I've been in this room myself since inspection. It was I who opened the drawers, used the washstand and dropped my knitting on the settee?"

Christine turned, and saw Mrs. Carlyle standing in the doorway—she had come so quietly along the alley-way that neither Perrin nor Christine had heard her.

"There have been some complaints of Miss Jordan's work, Mrs. Carlyle," Perrin said, looking very confused, for her certainly had not expected his words to Christine to be overheard by a passenger.

"Quite unfounded complaints, I am sure, Mr. Perrin," Mrs. Carlyle said quietly. "I've travelled a great deal, and Miss Jordan is one of the best stewardesses I have ever had. She and Grant have been most attentive and obliging—and if any official report is made against either of them, I will most willingly report what I think of them."

"I am very glad to hear that, Mrs. Carlyle," Perrin said, "very glad indeed. But of course you will understand that when any complaint is made, I am bound to look into it."

"You need not look into it in my room," she told him, with an icy little smile, and she stood aside to let him pass into the alley-way, with Christine behind him.

Since Mrs. Carlyle was watching them, Perrin had not the face to go on into the other rooms on the port side, and Christine's ordeal was over for that day. He told her curtly in an undertone, to go back to the starboard side and set the rooms there in order, and then he went into the smoke-room, leaving Christine with just time to tidy up those starboard rooms before she went down to lunch.

Christine did not encounter Mrs. Carlyle again until just before dinner.

"My dear child," she said gently, "does the Chief tSeward often speak to you in that tone? I was horrified—the man is nothing but a bully."

For one moment Christine longed to confide in her, to tell this motherly old lady just what she was being forced to endure from Perrin and his spies. But the tradition of loyalty kept her silent, loyalty not to Perrin but to her ship. There was a barrier set between the staff and the passengers, and even a kindly woman like Mrs. Carlyle must not guess what went on beyond that barrier.

"Mr. Perrin's bark is worse than his bite," she said with a little smile. 'He is very particular about the work, you know, and when people complain—"

"But who can have complained, Miss Jordan, about you? I have heard nothing about you— Mrs. Dewhurst for instance, is most enthusiastic about your kindness to her children.

"Some people are never satisfied", Christine said.

"Surely Mr. Perrin knows that, and makes allowances. He was talking as if you'd committed some crime."

"It's just his way. It means nothing. He does get annoyed if he thinks anyone is being slack—but it soon blows over."

Mrs. Carlyle looked at her doubtfully, as if she guessed that Christine was making light of something which was really serious.

She said emphatically: "If ever you are in real trouble, Miss Jordan count on me. As I told the Chief Steward, I shall always be willing to speak for either you or Grant. I consider you both excellent workers."

"Thank you very much indeed, Mrs. Carlyle," Christine said sincerely.

CHRISTINE'S NEW FRIEND

Grant came swinging down the alley-way towards her as she left Mrs. Carlyle's room. Even Perrin's persecution, and the prospect of more to come could not quite quench Arthur Grant's habitual cheerfulness, and he was grinning now.

"Has Mrs. Parr told you the joyful news, Miss Jordan?" he asked, avoiding her Christian name in case Edwards was lurking in a nearby bathroom.

"Mrs. Parr isn't talking to me just now Grant. What news?"

"One of her passengers is transferring up here, this very night—Mrs. Farrant. She says it's so hot in her room that she can't sleep, and as number sixteen is empty, she's arranged with Mr. Perrin to move up into it?"

"Mrs. Farrant? Isn't she mother of the little boy, Dion?"

"I believe so, though the boy sees so little of her that he must wonder sometimes whether he really belongs to her. You'll have another kid on your hands, Miss Jordan."

"But I'm glad, all the same, that I'm going to have Dion," Christine said.

She had often noticed Dion Farrant, the pale, silent little son of a woman who was as irresponsible as Doria Smythe, and who left the child entirely to himself. Christine had seen him wandering round the promenade deck like an uneasy little ghost, while his mother was playing deck games on the boat deck or bridge in the smoke-room—both places which were barred to children.

When she went down to the stewardesses' cabin, Christine found Mrs. Parr in a furious temper because she was losing a passenger, though Mrs. Farrant was certainly no great loss. Mrs. Parr and Miss Crane were still not speaking to Christine at all, but they were discussing the subject between themselves and they went on talking after Christine came in.

"After all the trouble I've had," Mrs. Parr said indignantly, "with breakfast to take up every day when we were in the Bay dresses to press, and that child to look after. And I don't suppose I shall see a penny from her at the end of the voyage—she'll forget that she's had two stewardesses."

"Some people," Miss Crane said, with a meaning glace at Christine, "would go shares with what they get from her when she leaves the ship at Hong Kong."

"Some people would—but we're dealing with other people this trip, Miss Crane. I can count that room as a dead loss. If there's one thing I hate, it's having a passenger transferred in the middle of the voyage. Well—I must go and help her ladyship put her things together."

Dion Farrant was in bed when Christine went round during the passengers' dinner time to put her rooms in order for the night. It was at this time that she always took a last look at the children, but the three already in her section were very seldom awake so late; Dion Farrant, who was older, was sitting up in bed reading a book when she went in that night.

"Are you my new stewardess?" he said politely, closing his book. "I read your name on the card that hangs up—Miss Jordan, and the steward's name is Grant, an' I asked him if I might knock at the doors in the morning when he takes the teas around, an' he said I might."

"Do you get up as early as that, Dion?" she said, sitting down on the end of the bed.

"I get up ever so early, but Mummy doesn't, you know. May I knock at the doors for you, too?"

"Of course. It will be a great help," she said gravely.

"I like you better'n Mrs. Parr," he declared. "I like Grant, an' George in the bar—he gives me a lime squash every morning. Do you think I might have a lime squash now?—I'm terribly thirsty, an' it's so hot."

She slipped along to the bar.

"Does that kid ever sleep?" George asked, when she told him what she wanted. "His mother never goes near him after dinner, as far as I know, but almost every night lately, since we got into the heat, one of the men on watch has come along for a squash for him any time up to closing time. His mother cheerfully pays for the lot, but it never seems to occur to her that the kid's awake long after all good kids should be fast asleep."

And with that warning in mind, Christine was not surprised to see that the light was still on in number sixteen at ten o'clock. She glanced into the smoke-room and saw that Mrs. Farrant was playing bridge and then opened the door of sixteen and went in.

Dion was still sitting bolt upright in bed, though his small face was pale with weariness and there were dark shadows under his eyes. He had a haunted loog: Christine could see at a glance that something was bothering him badly.

"Can't you go to sleep, Dion?" she said quietly.

"Not—just yet," he whispered.

"Are you too hot? Wouldn't it be rather a good idea if I made your bed all over again and changed your pajamas?"

"Yes—that would be a good idea," he said.

Christine took a long time over making the bed and changing his expensive silk pyjamas for another pair. She had the feeling that it wasn't only because he was hot that he couldn't sleep, and that he wanted her to stay with him—and that if she did stay, she might find out what the trouble was.

"Are you sleepier now?" she asked him, tucking in the sheet. "If I turned out the light——

"Oh, no — don't turn out the light," he gasped, and there was sheer panic in his voice.

"Not if you don't want me to—but Dion, you can't go to sleep with this light in your eyes."

What of Fay?

He said, in a sudden rush: "In the Suez Canal, when the ship was so close to the land, you know—there was a tiger jumped on board. I'm not afraid of tigers in the daylight, but this one—he's always in the room at night."

"If I stay with you until you go to sleep, you wouldn't be afraid of the tiger, would you?" she said. "And tomorrow night you shall have a little light—big enough to keep off tigers, but not big enough to keep you awake. I'll ask Grant to change the bulb in the light over your bunk."

"Grant would think I was a baby," he said doubtfully. "That's what Mummy said, last night, when she found the light on."

"We needn't tell Grant that it's to keep off tigers. Why, there's a passenger in this section, quite an old gentleman, who always has a little light on all night, and hangs his watch under it, so that he can see the time at a glance if he happens to wake up in the night."

"I've got a watch—it doesn't go, but if I hung it up, Grant might think that's why I wanted a light, too," Dion said, and she noticed that already he had stopped thinking about tigers, and that the strained look had gone from his face.

Chamberlain Emerges As Dominant Figure Say London Papers

London, Oct. 7—(CP)—London morning papers today reviewed the four-day emergency session of parliament and expressed these editorial opinions:

"The Daily Mail (Independent): "The Prime Minister emerges from these four days of debate as the dominating national figure, an undisputed leader to whom our people turn with a trust that equals their gratitude. . . .

"National unity is what the Premier wants—unity that will enable Britain to put forth those great efforts that may, he said, be required of all of us in the months to come. . . .

"The most practical gratitude Britain can offer is to rally to the government and labor night and day not only to fill the serious gaps now admitted in our defences, but to render this Island immune to every threat."

Daily Express

The Daily Express (Independent) demanded conscription "or something tantamount to it" and declared "we need it immediately."

It recalled Chancellor Hitler's boast that Germany was safe from any air attack and added "citizens here will not be satisfied until they can boast the same about Britain."

The newspaper urged that Mr. Chamberlain "must find himself persuaded before long to change his views on conscription." (The Prime Minister told the House he was opposed to peacetime compulsory service.)

"Now, Mr. Chamberlain, we believe your policy is that of armed isolation," the paper added. "It cannot be otherwise. What a pity you did not come to it long ago.

"Having reached it, as we are persuaded you have, rest assured that provided an immediate and successful national effort is made to fill the gaps in our defences, . . before the British Empire lies the greatest era of its history."

Daily Herald

The Daily Herald (Labor) said the government's policy combines "what in the record of Fascism seems altogether over-optimistic, confidence in Herr Hitler's good intentions with belief in the necessity for great rearmament in case that confidence should prove to be misplaced."

It objected that the government proposed to remove the causes of war through bilateral negotiations which might result in an attempt "to see how much or how little those who threaten war will take not to make war on you" or "in inevitable suspicion among those nations who are excluded from these private talks."

It added: "As a consequence, if such talks break down, one is likely to find oneself facing in isolation demands which increase all the more rapidly as the extent of that isolation is appreciated."

Daily Telegraph

The Daily Telegraph (Conservative) called for a national register to prepare the country against confusion "in a time of emergency."

The newspaper said Mr. Chamberlain's speech "cannot dispose of all the doubts and misgivings" felt by public opinion in the wake of the recent international crisis.

"Conscription in time of peace he (Mr. Chamberlain) categorically ruled out yesterday," the paper said. "But conscription—as implying compulsory military service—is one thing. Preparation for national register which would afford necessary information to direct authorities as to reserves available and the disposition of them in the most efficient manner. . . ."

News - Chronicle

The News - Chronicle (Liberal) held "that Commons resolute action by Britain, France and Russia during the summer would not only have settled the Sudeten question peacefully and preserved the integrity of Czechoslovakia but would have saved us from ever coming to the brink of war and would have marked a turning point—perhaps decisive—in the hitherto aggressive career of the dictators. . . ."

It added: "In the next few weeks we shall see whether the Premier's hopes of appeasement in Europe have any foundation."

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

Canadians Eat More Meat, Butter, Eggs Than Englishmen

Montreal, Oct. 10— Canadians, along with Australians and New Zealanders, enjoy the distinction of being greater eaters of meat and butter than Englishmen, according to Sir William Crawford, K. B. E., member of the Empire Marketing Board and head of an advertising company, who has just completed an extensive study of British eating habits.

The British eat more fish than Canadians but they play second fiddle to Canada and the United States in egg consumption.

Sir William's survey was based on five social classes which ranged from the richest to the poorest. Amongst all of them beer came a bad second to tea. In the top income bracket the average consumption of beer was just over four pints a week. In the lowest they drank only three per cent of one pint per capita weekly.

But when it comes to tea the per capita consumption sounds too staggering and the statisticians resorts to total annual consumption. Britons, the report says, drink four billion gallons of tea in a year. To support the huge figure Sir William ductors as putting away 62,000 pints ductosr as putting away 62,000 pints of tea every week just in the intervals between runs.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Oct. 8.— (AP)—Selected stocks again bounced to new tops for the past year in today's market as continued high business hopes and lessening of foreign worries stimulated buyers.

Week-end profit taking, in the wake of eight climbing sessions out of nine, was plentiful throughout and, while generally being well absorbed, cut down extreme gains of fractions to more than two points in some instances at the close.

Demand for steels, rails and a wide assortment of specialties kept the ticker tape moving at a fairly fast gait. Transfers for the two hours amounted to around 1,000,000 shares.

U.S. Steel, Bethelehem and Youngstown were well in front of the forward jaunt. Sante Fe, Southern Railway, N.Y. Central and Southern Pacific were also prominent on the advance.

Leading Canadian shares showed modest gains. Ahead around 1-2 point were Distillers, McIntyre Porcupine and Dome while Canadian Pacific showed a smaller gain. Canada 4s were a shade lower. Montreal Funds remained at 99.15 5-8.

TORONTO STOCKS CLOSE

Toronto, Oct. 8 — (CP) — Base Metals hit the high spots on a firming mining list on the Toronto Stock Exchange today while Industrials followed an irregular trend. Nickel, Noranda and Hudson Bay reached new 1938 highs. Western Oils pushed irregularly lower in quiet trading.

Nickel spurted 2 1-4 points to 55, Hudson Bay added 1-4 at 31 3-4 and Noranda advanced a full 2 points to 77 1-2. Waite Amulet added around 10 cents.

Bralorne recovered from yesterday's 10-point loss. [illegible]mour, Pickle Crow and Lake Shore showed gains but Teck Hughes, Macassa and Siscoe softened.

Jellicoe lost 1 1-2 cents in a gold prospect group which had more gains than losses. Uchi and Sudbury contact were a little higher. Hard Rock, Kerr Addison, McLeod and Preston showed strength in junior golds. In the miscellaneous mines list, Oro Plata lost about six cents. Chesterville advanced 13 to 1.24.

Industrial trading was comparatively quiet. Utilities pushed irregularly higher with Brazilian and Montreal Power slightly on the upside. Dominion Coal Preferred added 2 1-2 to 18 1-2. Foods were irregularly lower.

Abitibi paper issues held steady but Great Lakes improved fractionally. Banks and constructions were irregularly higher. Liquors showed no definite trend. Ford added 3-8 at 22 7-8.

Steel of Canada advanced 1 1.2

Dr. Frantisek Chvalkovsky, former Czechoslovak minister to Rome has been appointed foreign minister of the new cabinet of Prime Minister Jan Syrovy. The appointbent of Chvalkovsky is heralded by foreign observers as a step to closer relationship between Germany and Czechoslovakia. Chvalkovsky served for five years as Czech ambassador to Germany and is known to be on friendly terms with the German leaders.

BIG WHEAT YIELDS

Guess we'll have to stop commenting on big wheat yields or we'll overlook some good farmer. Ed. Hocking's 42-bushel story hardly got going the rounds before Ben Matkin, another Magrath district farmer, reported a 52-bushel-to-the-acre return in one field, his son Charles an average of 50 on 100 acres, while E. Wintermute, of Macleod, had 50 bushels to the acre. Looks as though 40 and 50 bushel averages might be common in the good crop districts.—Lethbridge Herald

TURKEYS, DUCKS CHICKENS FEATURE HOLIDAY MARKET

Thanksgiving Display of Produce Attracts Shoppers Despite Rain

EGGS UP

In spite of rain that fell steadily during the early hours and threatened to develop into an allday downpour, a heavy offering of farm and garden produce was displayed on the city market today where all the necessaries for Thanksgiving dinners were available.

Forerunners of what is said by vendors to be a good "crop" were the season's first offering of turkeys. Both gobblers and hens were fairly plentiful and offered a splendid suggestion for the holiday dinner. The birds generally were offered at flat prices, with hens weighing from ten to twelve pounds selling at $3.50. Gobblers were quoted at the same price, which approximate thirty-five cents per pound.

Ducks were abundant with some fine quality birds selling at from ninety cents to one dollar each. A few geese were offered, but these were of a small size and sold for two dollars each.

Chicken fairly crammed the inside market, which was filled to almost capacity when rain started to fall. Four and five months old birds were offered at from ninety cents up per pair with yearling chickens and fowl priced at from seventy-five cents upwards for each bird.

Eggs Up

Eggs shot upward sharply today as city market noted an uptrend in price. "A" selects were offered in most cases at thirty-eight cents per dozen, a three cent increase over last week's quotations although in some cases vendors demanded forty cents for select stock. Mediums were available at thirty-five cents per dozen with pullets and some ungraded stocks at thirty-five and thirty-four cents respectively.

Farmers butter prices remained steady with two-pound rolls moving well at sixty-five cents each, with "singles" selling at thirty-five cents. Homecooking booths catered to a large clientele in the inside market with many shoppers availing themselves of the many delicacies offered.

Fruit Display

The red and yellow of the apples, the blue of the grape and the gold of the peach provided a touch of natural color to the sombreness of the outside market with the greens of vegetables furnishing an additional touch to the drabness of the day.

Macintosh Reds and St. Lawrence headed the apple display with the former selling at fifty and sixty cents per hamper for windfalls, and from one dollar upward for tree-picked fruit. The latter sold at thirty cents per basket. Tolman Sweets were available selling at thirty-five cents per six-quart lot.

Flemish Beauty pears at the height of production, and flavor were offered at $1.75 per hamper lot, with Clapps Favorite selling at the same price. Blue and white grapes were plentiful and moved well at thirty and thirty-five cents per basket. Peaches were not as abundant as usual but moved fairly briskly at thirty-nine cents per basket.

Home grown tomatoes continued their slight uptrend in prices today with bushel lots offered at forty-five cents each. Sweet corn in yellow and white varieties sold at fifteen cents per dozen ears. Chinese lettuce, radishes, beets, carrots sold at five cents bunch lots. Cabbage and cauliflower in a choice display was offered at from eight cents per head upwards. A few mushrooms were noted, that sold at twenty-five cents per six-quart basket.

Potatoes remained steady at last week quotations with bushel lots selling at fifty cents and bags at seventy-five

Fish Plentiful

A fine fish offering was available to lovers of this food today with fresh whitefish and laketrout selling at eighteen cents and twenty cents per pound respectively. Fresh pickerel attracted a number of shoppers with prices at eighteen cents per pound. Mudcats were quoted at two pounds for twenty-five cents with panfish at fifteen cents per dozen.

Grain Market

HOG QUOTATIONS

Toronto, Oct. 8 (CP)—Hog prices dropped on two Ontario markets reporting today. Liveweights were down 15 cents at Chatham and dressedweights decreased 20 cents at Chatham and 25 at Stratford.

Liveweights — Chatham $8.25, Hull $8.15, Peterborough $8.40.

Dressedweights—Chatham $11.30, Hull $11.20, London $11, Peterborough $11.20, Stratford $10.75.

Butter Prices Firmer—Eggs Up

Toronto, October 8—Values worked higher for butter and top-quality graded eggs during yesterday's session of the local produce market. Cheese maintained former levels. There will be no trading in produce lines Monday, Thanksgiving Day.

Ontario creamery solids firmed to the range of 22 1-4c to 22 1-2c for No. 1 grades, and 21 1-2c to 21 3-4c for 38 score. Western make turned over in fair volume at 23c. Retail sales were heavier in view of the long week-end, with prints moving at the improved prices of 24c to 24 1-2c for top grades and 23 1-4c to 23 3-4c for 38 score.

Current supplies continue light on the egg market, particularly on top grades, and prices remained firm, with the graded section showing advances. The approaching holiday was also said to have stimulated trading on this market. Graded shipments were cleared at 38c for grade A-large, 36c to 37c for medium, 30c to 31c for pullets, 26c for B's and 21c to 22c for C grades.

Uptrend General at Montreal

Montreal, October 8—(CP)— A general upward trend in prices, especially in the butter section, marked the week's closing transactions on open produce markets here, the Dominion Department of Agriculture reported.

Eggs and potatoes were slightly higher, but the cheese market was quiet and a little easier during the latter part of the week.

Graded egg shipments in used free cases were offered at 39c to 40c a dozen for A-large; 37c to 38c for A-medium, 30c for A-pullets, 26c to 26 1-2c for B-large, C, 21c. Receipts: 1,084 cases.

Turkeys Not in Demand For the Thanksgiving Dinner

A survey of local shops and the city market today reveals that turkey and cranberry sauce which for a century have been synonymous with Thanksgiving Day will cede top position this year to more common forms of roast chicken, roast pork or as a special epicurean treat, roast goose or duck. Turkeys, were distinctly not in pressing demand, it was learned.

Switching of Thanksgiving Day from November to early October has been one reason for the change in appetites and customs, it was stated by one shopkeeper. At this time of year turkeys are not quite ready for the table. They have had time to develop in size, but not time to fatten and plump out as demanded by critical buyers. The birds, according to the local buyer, will not be in prime condition until the middle of November.

But for those who insist upon turkey there is relief in the fact that year-old birds are quite suitable for table use. And there appears to be plenty of this fowl on hand for purchasers.

Butchers and supply houses have accepted the change over from turkey to other meats philosophically. Instead of trying to cut-guess the turkey market, they have laid in stocks of chickens, a few ducks. Prime roasts of pork and beef are also on feature display counters. "We make just as much, and probably more profit on these lines as we would on turkeys", it was stated by one representative of the business.

50 Licences Available For City Hunters On Amherst Island

Two days of pheasant shooting will be permitted hunters in Eastern Ontario on Amherst Island this season, the days announced by the Department of Game and Fisheries as being October 21st and 22nd.

Game Inspector Herb McCabe announced today that only 150 hunters per day would be permitted to shoot pheasants and that number of licenses only will be issued through the various game wardens in this section of the province. Fifty licences will be available for the Bellevlle district, through Mr. McCabe and equal numbers in Kingston and Picton likewise. The licence fee will be $1.00 per day per person.

A limit of three cock birds per day per licenced hunter was also announced by the Department. Government game wardens will patrol Amherst Island during the two days shoot. This is the only open shoot for pheasant that will be permitted in this section of the province during 1938 and will doubtless attract the full quota of hunters.

Inspector McCabe also revealed that the Millhaven to Amherst Island ferry would operate continuously throughout the two days of shooting in order to accommodate the large number of hunters en route to the hunting grounds.

The Ontario Game and Fishery Department closed Amherst Island as a pheasant ground three years ago and added 500 cock birds to the large number now on the island quite recently, thereby assuring the limited 300 hunters of a good two days shooting.

POLICE COURT

In a special session of Police Court held at the Court House before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., this morning a local young man, who appeared charged with assaulting a woman in Belleville last August, was honorably discharged by His Worship.

The alleged assault took place near the intersection of Bridge and John Streets early on the morning of August 14th last when the woman was returning home from a midnight show. At the time the woman told police she had been attacked by a man and assaulted. Later a local youth was apprehended and charged to the crime.

Today in police court the only evidence adduced by the complainant was the fact the man wore white shoes. His Worship immediately honorably dismissed the accused youth without hearing further testimony.

ITALIAN TROOPS

An Italo-British accord negotiated last Easter to eliminate friction between Italian and British interests in the Mediterranean has not become effective because it was made dependent upon "settlement" in Spain. "Settlement" has been interpreted generally to mean the withdrawal of Italian forces from the civil war.

At the time the accord was negotiated, it seemed likely this end would be achieved automatically by an Insurgent victory.

Withdraw Pact.

Diplomatic circles have expressed the opinion during the course of the Ciano-Perth conversations that Premier Mussolini might be willing to withdraw at least part of his infantry from General Franco's armies permitting aviation, artillery and other specialists to be retained if Great Britain would regard this as an acceptable settlement.

Although some foreign observers estimated 80,000 Italian troops were fighting for Franco at one time, the Fascist government insisted 40,000 was the maximum. This figure was announced in an official bulletin Oct. 18, 1937, and communicated to the governments in London and Paris.

Great Britain complained to Italy Aug. 7 that, far from withdrawing troops from Spain, Italy was continuing to send reinforcements and supplies. It was understood the Italian reply to this declaration, while not admitting the accuracy of the charges, asserted if replacements and supplies were being sent it was because troops already in the field could not be abandoned to their fate.

GERMAN PRAISE

2. The urge of the intellectual section of the population for democracy or at least for intellectual self determination.

3. The repression which has been applied to churches both Catholic and Protestant.

4. The government's anti-Semitic campaign which has had an international repercussion that has adversely affected not only Germany's relations with some other countries but her economic position.

Economic Difficulty.

Experts say the economic difficulty is the most dangerous of the lot.

At present the German man in the street and his family are well enough fed and entertained and their circumstances accord favorably with what they have been accustomed to in prosperous times of the past.

A bird's eye view of the surface gives the immediate impression that the fatherland is flourishing like the bay tree. The people as a whole are said to accept their economic position as satisfactory.

Economic experts, however, assert that Germany is mortgaging the future for vast public works and rearmament which cannot be paid for now. They complain that the orthodox rules of finance and economics are being shattered wholesale and that a day of reckoning must come.

Those same experts, though, decline to stake their lives that the new order of things won't work in the long run.

As regards democracy Germany never has had the democracy which North America knows. It means little to the average citizen.

REACTOR CATTLE FEWER IN NUMBERS

Reactor cattle which have been tested by veterinaries of the Dominion Department of Agriculture through this and other sections of the central district for tuberculosis, have been getting fewer in number, according to Dr. O. J. Reed, local Dominion veterinary. The death rate per 100,000 from all forms of tuberculosis in cattle in 1890 was 245.4 per cent. In the year 1937, it had dropped to 55 per 100,000. The bovine tuberculosis figured in the decrease appears to be shown by the fact that the greatest drop was since 1920 when the federal campaign of eradication had been underway for three years. But better evidence of the relation is the low incidence of glandular tuberculosis of children, much of which is of the bovine type, it is pointed out in an article submitted by Dr. Reed.

Theatres

AT THE CAPITOL

"Letter of Introduction"

Fine, great dramatic situations interspersed with hilarious comedy moments march grandly across the screen of "A Letter of Introduction" which opens Sunday midnite at the Capitol theatre for a four day run.

Adolphe Menjou, Andrea Leeds and George Murphy provide the drama. The comedy is excellently taken care of by that remarkable pair, Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy.

Stahl, the producer-director, is known for his intensely powerful and tragic creations such as "Back Street," "Imitation of Life" and "Only Yesterday." Yet, "Letter of Introduction" shows he is also master of the art of creating high comedy of vividly contrasting emotional scenes, forceful direction, superlative acting and a powerful and dramatic story, the picture stands as John M. Stahl's finest to date.

Dramatic Story.

Andrea Leeds and Adolphe Menjou carry the story of an aging actor who discovers, through a letter of introduction, that he is the father of a grown daughter, the role played by Miss Leeds. The actor's ego, coupled with the fear of losing his screen-idol popularity, prompts him to conceal their true relationship from the world and to extract from his daughter a promise of secrecy.

Through this deception comes a succession of events, some tragic, some dramatic, some hilarious. Enhanced by the extraordinary acting abilities of Miss Leeds and Mr. Menjou, they merge to form a truly great screen offering.

George Murphy reveals unsuspected qualities as Miss Leeds' suspicious fiancee. Rita Johnson as George's dancing partner, Ann Sheridan as Menjou's society-fiancee, and Eve Arden as a sophisticated showgirl are excellently cast.

Charlie Has Rival.

McCarthy, however, emerges as tops in the comedy line, although he has an unexpected rival in Mortimer Snerd, a rural dummy who makes his screen debut in "Letter of Introduction". Mortimer nearly steals the show from Charlie in spots.

AT THE BELLE

"Carefree"

An Astaire-Rogers picture is always a film event. And it is a pleasure to report that Fred and Ginger's latest RKO Radio vehicle, 'Carefree', is in many respects the best thing they have ever done.

The new offering, which is on the Belle screen today, brings the two favorites together again after a year and a half of separation, in an actionful and tuneful romance, full of surprising novelties.

The plot is a sparkling modernized John Alden-Miles Standish, Priscilla affair, with Astaire as a psychiatrist who pleads the suit of his lawyer pal, Ralph Bellamy, with the latter's fiancee, Miss Rogers, a noted actress. Bellamy, certain that there is something wrong with Miss Rogers because she keeps putting off their marriage, begs Astaire to psychoanalyze her.

Secretly in love with her doctor, Ginger embarks on a series of madcap adventures that keep the two men busily struggling to keep themselves—and herself—out of jail. And along about this time Astaire discovers he is in love with the lady himself—but is unable to tell her so, due to Bellamy's machinations and to his own hypnotic suggestions which turn Miss Rogers against him.

It's against this story background that the stars top their previous dancing feats with new creations—Astair's unique solo Golf Dance; the languorously romantic "Change Partners" number; the "Yam", which promises to become the year's most popular ballroom number; and the ream Dance, a gorgeously imaginative routine in a fairyland setting.

Weaving these numbers to catchy Irving Berlin melodies, the stars are also aided by the brilliant work of the supporting cast, including a new comedy "find", Jack Carson, who scores notably as Astaire's well-meaning assistant; Luella Gear, famous Broadway comedienne; Clarence Kolb, Franklin Pangborn and other top-ranking players. The impressive settings, the direction of Mark Sandrich, the production values of Pandro S. Berman and the screen play by Dudley Nichols, Hagar Wilde, Allan Scott and Ernest Pagano, all contribute to make "Carefree" a picture definitely worth seeing.

Three Varied Featurettes.

Three varied featurettes have been arranged for presentation on the same program including Leon Errol and a host of fun makers in "His Pest Friend", Paramount News introducing latest World News Events and Walt Disney's latest color cartoon "Polar Trappers" complete the program.

Marx Bros., Sunday.

As their current uproarious vehicle "Room Service" represents a departure in story production for the Marx Brothers, the gagster-stars of this screen version of the Broadway smash hit.

In previous pictures, stories had been especially "tailor-made" to suit the zanies 'unusual style of funmaking. In "Room Service" the daffy situations were already written in the play so that the Marx maniacal antics are superimposed upon a meaty plot full of suspense as well as of laughter. As a result, the picturization is a true version of the play.

The Marx Bros. in "Room Service" will receive a special holiday preview presentation at the Belle Sunday midnight.

A great surrounding show is announced for presentation. Regular prices will prevail.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Sins of Children"

Belleville and vicinity theatregoers have a grand treat in store for them, when the powerful drama, "Sins of Children" the screen version of Charles M. Sheldon's immortal classic of youth, which has been read by millions of people all over the world entitled "In His Steps," opens its Belleville engagement at the McCarthy theatre on Thanksgiving Day, Monday next.

"Sins of Children" comes as a highly recommended screen production, a picture that both adults and children will thoroughly enjoy and be pleasingly entertained by.

Essentially, it deals with the story of two young people who are the victims of their parents' selfishness and prejudices, which forces them to defy the law and social conventions. But the real plot pivots around the character of one man, whose simple faith and serenity of soul enables him to triumph over persecution and injustice. It is he who comes to the rescue of the youngsters in the hour of their darkest despair and it is he whose nobility of demeanor so affects all who come in contact with him that he brings about their regeneration.

Eric Linden and Cecilia Parker, the stars, play the boy and girl, while Harry Beresford, the "grand old man" of the stage and screen portrays the character of the "miracle man," who challenges the law and man-made justice in the name of love and truth. All three, Linden, Miss Parker, and Beresford, give one of the finest performances of their careers, especially in the court-room scene where many of the story's most drastic situations occur. It is said that a full week was taken in filming this sequence, which sets a new high mark in court scenes.

An atmosphere of realism pervades the picture throughout, which fills it with dramatic suspence and tense human interest. All the action takes place in what might be described as a typical small city, where everybody knows everybody else.

An unusual cast is seen in "Sins of Children," with the stellar roles played by Eric Linden and Cecilia Parker, whose triumphant performances in "Ah, Wilderness," and "Old Hutch" for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer established them as one of the foremost teams on the screen. Harry Beresford is seen in the role of Davidson, the humane man, who helps solve their difficulties, by Henry Kolker, Roger Imhof. Other important roles are played by Clara Blandick, Olive Tell, Charles Richman, Robert Warwick and many others.

Karl Brown directed "Sins of Children," and in conjunction with Hinto Smith, also wrote the screen story which has many deft and modern touches.

Added Screen Attractions

In addition to "Sins of Children" the program includes three exceptionally fine short subjects of outstanding merit and entertainment. Monty Collins and Tom Kennedy are presented in a real riot of fun and slapstick comedy, entitled "Fiddling Around," which we guarantee will make you laugh louder and longer than you have ever done before in any theatre. Floyd Gibbons, "the headline hunter," in another splendid true adventure story "Alibi Mark" will give you ten minutes of the most thrilling experiences that you have ever witnessed on the screen. We urge you not to miss this short subject, its different and one of the best ever produced. Also Bobby May, in a novelty screen vaudeville hit, entitled "The Juggling Fool," will show you some of the best juggling feats that you could imagine. He can juggle any two or more articles that he can lift, this act is tops in entertainment. We assure you that you will all thoroughly enjoy this entire two hour screen show, at the McCarthy Theatre. It was hand-picked for a real "holiday" treat.

"Street Scene"

Sylvia Sidney, Estelle Taylor, William Collier, Jr., Beulah Bondi and other splendid screen favorites will be seen for the last times today at the McCarthy theatre, in the Elmer Rice Pulitzer Prize drama "Street Scene" and in addition the three stooges Larry, Moe and Curly in "Three Dumb Clucks" a twenty minute riot of laughs and also the serial "The Great Adventures of Wild Bill Hickok" will be presented.

LOCAL-BRED HACKNEY WINS AT C. N. E.

A three-year-old Hackney mare Hawkstone Duchess, bred by William Calvert of Thurlow Township won the first ribbon at the C.N.E. this year in the harness class defeating a field of seven, all high bred stock. Mr. Calvert sold the mare previous to the exhibition to Wallace Munroe of Embra, Ontario, and she won at the first asking. Mr. Calvert is the owner of a full brother to this mare, who is five years old and a sure champion, while he also has another younger mare with colt at side from this sire.

PRE-HALLOWE'EN FARE GETS WILD

Chicago, Oct. 11 (AP)—Antoine Larese, a cab driver, complained to police that he objected to taking part in pre-Hallowe'en pranks—such as ringing doorbells—demanded, he said, by his fare, Miss Faye Meyers. When Larese refused to ring any doorbells, he told police, Miss Meyers drew a revolver and began shooting out of the windows of the cab. Police arrested the fare.

NO CAPITAL STOCK

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 11 (AP)—A corporation, asked by the Nebraska Secretary of State why its occupation tax was unpaid, replied by letter: "Our capital stock consisted of one (1) percheron stallion, which has died. Therefore, we no longer have any capital stock."

SHORTAGE AND THEN— A FLOOD OF WATER

Disney, Okla., Oct. 11 (AP)—It was tough when Disney was without water. It was just as tough when water came. Short of supply since mid-July, residents left their faucets open constantly to catch every drop that entered the mains. City engineers found a good flow, hooked it on without notice. The new water supply boomed into the mains, the faucets the homes. Disney suffered a flood.

PUT WATER ON PARROT'S FEATHERS

Danville, Pa., Oct. 11 (AP)—If Elmer Delsite's pet parrot, "Peppy" ever escapes again, Delsite knows how to catch him—put water on his tailfeathers. "Peppy" eluded capture for days until he encountered a hard rain. Soggy and forlorn, he fluttered to the ground and was picked up by a passerby.

Why the Weather?

A famous storm! A storm once greatly aided George Washington. Cornwallis with a large army had established himself in Virginia and was eager for battle. It is well known how Washington went south and with the French laid siege. Cornwallis found himself in an untenable position—really a trap between the York and James rivers. He tried to escape over the York River. Some of his men got across but further operations were stopped by a violent storm just as he seemingly was successful. This storm drove his boats down the river and continued all night. In the morning the project was given up and those that had gotten over recrossed to join and aid the main body of Cornwallis' troops. In this instance the weather very materially aided the fight for independence.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 11—(CP)—Synopsis—An extensive area of high pressure centred in Virginia, covers the eastern half of the continent, while pressure is low over the western provinces, the Mackenzie Valley and the Yukon. The weather has been fair from the Great Lakes eastward with considerably higher temperatures in Ontario and western Quebec, while in the Prairie provinces it has been generally fair and warm with light showers occurring in a few districts.

Lake Superior — Fresh to strong southwesterly winds; partly cloudy and continuing warm today and Wednesday with scattered showers.

Manitoba and Saskatchewan — Fresh or strong southwest winds; partly cloudy today and Wednesday with scattered showers; not much change in temperature.

TRAFFIC JAMMED ONTARIO ROADS ON THANKSGIVING

Highway Accidents Account For Three Deaths On Holiday

SPLENDID WEATHER

Believe Two Drown In North When Empty Canoe Found

(By The Canadian Press)

Ontario highways were jammed with traffic at the Thanksgiving Day holiday as motorists took advantage of balmy weather—but accidents were scarce. Only three persons were killed in auto mishaps.

The springlike conditions which attracted record crowds to football games and horse race tracks, also lured hunters and numerous shooting accidents were reported. One ended in the death of a 17-year-old Toronto youth. In Northern Ontario at Watabeg Lake it was feared two men may have drowned as a search continued after an upturned canoe was discovered.

When two cars collided on a highway six miles from Guelph, Mrs. T. Smith McCutcheon, 60-year-old Bright woman was killed and four others injured. In Brantford, 14-months-old Louise May Monkman was killed almost instantly as she walked into the path of a passing vehicle.

18,000 ITALIANS LEAVE WEDNESDAY

Spanish Gov't Forces Open Attacks On Three Fronts

Hendaye, France, Oct. 11—(AP)—Spanish Government dispatches reported today their militiamen were attacking successfully in three sectors of the Ebro river front in eastern Spain.

The government offensive apparently was intended to cover withdrawl of foreign volunteers, which reports from Barcelona said might be finished this week. The actual withdrawal of international fighters from the Ebro front began yesterday. At almost the same time the government forces increased intensity of their attack.

First to be ordered out were troops that had been fighting since the beginning of the Civil War July 18, 1936.

Border reports from Insurgent territory indicated large numbers of Italion Legionnaires were being massed near the southern Spanish ports to be sent home.

18,000 Leaving

One report from Insurgent sources said 18,000 Italians would leave Seville Wednesday.

(A despatch from Gibraltar said the first group of Italian Legionnaires, 500 in all, left Cadiz Sunday for Naples aboard an Italian steamer. They had fought with the Insurgents 18 months. Further transports of Fascist soldiers were expected to leave Cadiz Oct. 20 on steamers which left Naples yesterday.)

Spanish Government reports indicated no more than 2,500 foreign troops were fighting on the Ebro front.

TRICKS OF THE "GYP" RETAILER REVEALED BY INVESTIGATION

A survey by the New York department of markets recently revealed the startling fact that Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Citizen are gypped out of $60,000,000 a year by unscrupulous retailers. In the process of the survey, department investigators uncovered many ingenious methods of "getting away with it." Two of these methods are shown here. At LEFT, Max Mencher, secretary of public markets, demonstrates how a string from scale plate to a concealed foot pedal makes you pay for a little pressure of the retailer's foot. At right, lead stuffing in a turkey. You pay for bird and lead. After both are weighed the lead is removed as the retailer cleans the bird for the oven.

VOLUNTEER HOME DEFENCE FORCE ON ARMY FOOTING

Decision of British Gov't Meets With Widespread Enthusiasm

NEW UNITS ADDED

London, Oct. 11—(AP)—A British government decision to put its volunteer Home Defence Force on a regular army footing met widespread and enthusiastic response today.

The Territorial Force of about 200,000 men is to undergo complete reorganization, a consequence of deficiencies noted during mobilization of anti-aircraft and coastal units during the Czechoslovak crisis.

New anti-tank, anti-aircraft and motorcycle units will be added. Gun equipment will be increased.

Leslie Hore-Belisha, War Secretary, announced the changes in a speech before an officers' dinner last night, and the announcement inspired lengthy discussions in the British press.

The Daily Mail suggested unemployment be drafted into essential industries to hasten rearament, following the example of Germany.

Urge Need of Recruits

Most papers published along with full reports of the War Secretary's speech pictures of the Territorial Army's activities. Special articles urged the need of recruits.

Mr. Hore-Belisha said the re-

World Trade Barriers Due For Tumble by New Agreement

U. K.-U. S. Trade Pact Will Show Many Tariff Reductions

ANNOUNCED SOON

(By Andrue Berding Associated Press Staff Writer).

Washington, Oct. 11 (AP)—World trade barriers will take another tumble soon when the United States concludes with the United Kingdom an agreement to reduce tariffs on hundreds of products.

Although the terms of the accord have not yet been disclosed, authorities said today it would have vast ramifications and considerable influence on the commerce not only of the countries involved but also of the world in general. They characterize it as a substantial agreement.

What it means to the world is that the two greatest foreign trade nations are agreeing to increase the commerce between them by means of tariff reductions.

The United Kingdom accounts for about 10.6 per cent of the whole world's exports and 18.2 per cent of imports; the United States for 11.7 per cent of the exports and 11.2 per cent of the imports.

What it means may be seen in the fact that the United Kingdom is the best customer of the United States. In 1937 she bought from America practically as much as the republic sold to Germany, France, the Netherlands, Belgium and Sweden combined. Total British purchases of American goods in 1937 were $535,000,000, which is $200,000,000 more than the country sold to all of South America.

PARTRIDGE SWOOPS, SHATTERS WINDOW

Wakened at seven o'clock the other morning by a loud crash, F. J. Burgess, Lakefield resident rushed downstairs to find a large window in the living room shattered.

Investigating he was informed by C. Wingett, a neighbor, who happened to be passing at the time, that a partridge had swooped down against the window. Frightened by the noise, and partially stunned, the bird lay still for a second then flew away, apparently uninjured.

SERVES 17 YEARS ON GOLD COAST

Rev. Father McCoy Speaks At St. Michael's On Mission Work

Rev. Father R. McCoy, a native of Ottawa Valley, and a member of the Order of White Fathers who work in Africa was an interesting visitor in the city over the week end and spoke at the Masses at the Church of St. Michael the Archangel on Sunday.

For seventeen years Father McCoy has been in Africa and for the past nine years he and another priest have been ministering on the Gold Coast, having been assigned to a section whose inhabitants had never heard the Gospel. During the period of their ministry, the priests have brought about the conversion of thirty-thousand natives. Many undergo great hardships in order to attend Mass, coming fifty miles on journeys that last from Friday until Tuesday. The section is divided into four parishes, and on Sundays, ten thousand visit the various missions, the whole day from daybreak until darkness being occupied in teaching the faithful.

Father McCoy gave an interesting account of life in Africa to which he will return in a month's time, after a year's absence through ill health.

HEARST LIQUIDATES RADIO STATIONS

New York, Oct. 11. — (AP) — Liquidation of the radio interests of William Randolph Hearst was furthered today with the sale of Station WINS, New York, to Milton H. Blow, operator of Station WAAM, Newark, N.Y. Stoer, representing Hearst, said the sale was "in line with Mr. Hearst's plan to reorganize his holdings in order to perpetuate his publishing enterprises. When the reorganization is completed, Mr. Hearst proposes to confine himself to the publishing industry".

CZECH SOLDIERS MAY CLASH WITH HUNGARIAN ARMY

Possible Hungary May Try To Take Territory From Slovakia

By LARRY ALLEN
Associated Press Foreign Staff

Komoron, Czechoslovak - Hungarian Frontier, Oct. 11—(AP)—The Czechoslovak government moved fresh troops into areas near the Hungarian border today while the homeward movement of soldiers in other sections of the country jammed highways and railroads.

New units of soldiers with bayonets and small field cases took up positions at Komoron and other frontier towns ready to meet any possible military action by Hungary to take the territory she wants from Slovakia.

Across the Danube river Hungarian soldiers prepared to spring into action immediately should any order for occupation be given.

Red-white-green Hungarian flags decorated homes and business places along the Danube in Slovakia as a welcome for what citizens expected to be an invasion from the Hungarian side.

Keep Strict Watch

Soldiers carrying rifles with fixed bayonets kept watch at all bridges, railway stations and other communication centres.

A Czech commanding officer and several soldiers stationed at a border town near Komoron declared the Czechs wanted to fight to prevent any further dismemberment of the territory by Hungarians, and that officers were having an extremely difficult task to prevent open hostilities.

Great mass military movements were under way, particularly from frontier sectors now occupied by German and Polish troops. Thousands of soldiers crowded into railway box cars, passenger trains, motor transports and old covered wagons. Some rode bicycles. Ambulances, army supply trucks, tents

GAVE NO PARTY FOR NOTED FLIER ON HIS RETURN

Conservative Woman M. P. Says Story of Cliveden Set Invented

SOVIET CRITICISM

Lindbergh Refuses To Comment On Russian Statement

LONDON, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Viscountess Astor, Conservative member of parliament, last night declared the London Communist newspaper, the Daily Worker, was responsible for the story that Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh criticized the Soviet Air Force at a dinner at her home.

"This emanates from the same source—The Daily Worker— which said we gave a dinner to Lindbergh and invented the story of the Cliveden set," Lady Astor said "There is no truth in it".

For months some opposition newspapers have charged an aristocratic pro-German group centring about Lady Astor's home and known as the "Cliveden Set" influenced Prime Minister Chamberlain in his Foreign policy. Lord and Lady Astor both have denied such a group exists.

Says Story 'Complete Lie'

Earlier today the Labor paper, Daily Herald, quoted Lady Astor as declaring the Lindbergh story a "complete lie".

"Col. Lindbergh has not dined with us since he returned from Russia and in fact I have never given a dinner party for him," the newspaper quoted her.

"It is a complete lie, too, that Col. Lindbergh has ever made any sort of pronouncement about the Russian air force or about anything else during a dinner party at my house or in my house at all."

Airmen Denounce Lindbergh

Col. Lindbergh was denounced by eleven Soviet airmen in a letter published in Moscow yesterday. They asserted he was a guest in Lady Astor's home when he made statements derogatory of Soviet aviation and may have encouraged influential Conservative circles to urge Prime Minister Chamberlain to go ahead with his agreement to permit Chancellor Hitler to dismember Czechoslovakia.

Colonel Lindbergh refused comment today when he landed in Rotterdam en route from Paris to Berlin. With Mrs. Lindbergh he left Le Bourget Airport, New Paris, and landed at Waalhaven Airport, Rotterdam.

Russian Air Equipment

Havas News Agency in a London dispatch quoted unanmed United States circles as stating Colonel Lindbergh's investigation of air strength could be summed up as follows:—

Soviet Russian air equipment is excellent and comprises expert copies of United States models. But the flying personnel was insufficient in number and the ground crews, especially the mechanics, have not enough training to handle ships and motors properly.

In Germany where he piloted several newer machines, this account went on, he concluded they were the best of all he had seen in Europe. He also found production capacity of German aviation plants higher than that of any other country.

Mothers' Bodies Cover Those of Their Children To Shield From Flames

Fort Frances Brothers Bereft In Raging Inferno

HOUSES DESTROYED

Mothers Trying To Escape With Children Overcome By Smoke

Fort Frances, Ont., Oct. 11.—(CP)—Two mothers and nine young children died in a blazing inferno which struck Dance Township yesterday as south winds drove a forest fire through fine timber stands and cut pulpwood.

Eating slowly through the timber country fifty miles northwest of Fort Frances for the last two weeks, the flames crackled into roaring fires yesterday as the winds increased, razed valuable timber and piles of cut pulpwood and turned settlers' homes into blackened ruins.

Sparsely Settled District

Victims of the fire were reported to be families of Noah and his brother Bill Labelle, living in sparsely settled Dance Township. Bodies of the mothers and nine children were brought to Fort Frances today by Ontario Provincial Police who sped through the countryside to ascertain if any others fell before the flames which danced along a front of fifty miles, creeping to within mile of Fort Frances at one period yesterday.

Constable Davis Hamilton, who described the situation in the fire zone at present as "slightly topsy turvy" told how searchers stumbled upon the charred bodies of the mothers and their children. The mothers had died with their bodies stretched across their two small infants in a vain attempt to save the little ones from the searing flames.

Finding of Bodies

"We found nine children and two grown ups," the Constable related over one of the few telephone lines left standing in the area. "We believed them the wives and children of Noah Labelle and his brother Bill who homestead in that country.

"The bodies were brought to Fort Frances and the other members of the families will be here today to definitely identify them after which Coroner W. D. Boyle will likely make arrangements for an inquest."

"The fire has been burning for the last two weeks or so," the Constable continued. "Yesterday it was fanned by a south wind and reached its height about one or two o'clock in the afternoon.

Many House Burned

"Many homes of families of settlers were burned but we don't know if there were any other victims and probably won't have any definite information until later today when our men return."

Then the constable told of finding the blackened bodies of the mothers and their children, strewn along the road from their homes.

"Apparently the Labelle women, carrying their babies, ran from their homes with the other children following them, but the thick smoke must have overcome them before they go far. We found their bodies a few feet apart with the mothers' bodies resting over the small babies as if they had tried to hide them from the flames."

Benes May Be Candidate For Rectorship of Glasgow Univ.

Retired President of Czechs May Run As Scottish Nationalist Candidate

NOVEMBER ELECTIONS

London, Oct. 11 (AP)— The Czechoslovak Legation said tonight it had received word from former President Eduard Benes that he had not accepted and had not yet considered an invitation to be the Scottish Nationalist candidate for rector of Glasgow University.

London, Oct. 11 — (AP) — It was announced officially today that Eduard Benes, former President of Czechoslovakia, had agreed to become the Scottish Nationalist Candidate for rector of Glasgow University in the election to be held October 22nd.

Mr. Benes resigned last Wednesday as Chief of the State he helped establish 20 years ago, explaining his continuance in office, in the face of the declared enmity of Germany, would "constitute an obstacle" to revival of the dismembered republic.

He retired to his summer home at Sezimovo Usti, south of Prague, and withdrew from the affairs of state.

Other candidates for the Glasgow University post are Sir Archibald Sinclair, leader of the Liberal opposition in the House of Commons; Sir Henry Lunn, Vice President of the League of Nations Union, and Laurence Housman author and pacifist.

The last rector of Glasgow University—a purely ceremonial post—was Very Rev. H.R.L. Sheppard, Canon of St. Paul's Cathedral, who died Oct. 31, 1937.

KING AND QUEEN TO VISIT CANADA

Three Weeks Tour of Canada Planned For Summer of 1939

Ottawa, Oct. 11—Official Ottawa is tingling with anticipation over the announcement that King George and Queen Elizabeth will visit Canada next summer in a history-making tour of three weeks.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King, on whose suggestion the visit was arranged, immediately caused messages to be sent expressing the "delight" with which the decision of Their Majesties was learned by the Government and by the people of Canada.

It was at once made known that Ottawa would stage one of the outstanding events of Their Majesties' Canadian tour — unveiling the National War Memorial now being erected here.

Apart from the unveiling, there was no official intimation that any details of the tour were known. It was assumed the itinerary would be such that the King and Queen would cross the Dominion from coast to coast.

In some quarters the opinion was expressed that Their Majesties would visit Washington but there was no official confirmation and it was doubted here that arrangements had reached that stage of finality.

STRIKE ORDERED AT OSHAWA PLANT

70 Employees of Ontario Steel Products Vote For Walkout

Oshawa, Ont., Oct. 11—(CP)—Picket lines were formed about the plant of the Ontario Steel Products here today after a decision last night of employees to go on strike. Failure of the company to sign a new agreement with the Oshawa local of the United Automobile Workers of America was given as the reason for the walkout. More than 70 employees are affected.

Police watched the picket lines, but there was no demonstration.

J. L. Cohen, counsel for the Union, said company officials had requested a conference be held this morning in an effort to reach an agreement. The bargaining committee of the Union and Cohen will meet C. E. Wright, General Manager of the Company, who arrived here from Gananoque, head office of the company.

Employees voted unanimously last night to go on strike. The vote followed several weeks of negotiations by employees involved to gain a new agreement with the company. The plant is the only one in Oshawa 100 per cent unionized. The original agreement of March, 1937, marked the first agreement to be signed between an Oshawa company and the U.A.W.A. local.

The company supplies steel products to the General Motors plant here and the Chrysler Company plant in Windsor.

FARMERS BUSY FALL PLOUGHING

Thanksgiving Day, while generally observed by citizens of Belleville, proved no holiday to the majority of farmers of the district who have been busy for the past few days catching up with the Fall plowing while conditions are favorable. A short trip through Sidney and adjoining townships revealed many farmers at this work yesterday.

Land conditions are reported ideal for the work.

THANKSGIVING SERVICE IS HELD

The annual Thanksgiving Day service of Christian Science Society, Belleville was held in Oddfellow's Temple, Monday, at eleven o'clock. After the opening hymn, the First Reader, read the Thanksgiving proclamation and a Bible reading from Psalms. Following the Lesson Sermon, entitled "Thanksgiving' and the solo, many gave grateful testimonies of healings and benefits received through the study of Christian Science.

TEEN-AGED GIRLS SOUGHT BY POLICE

Kingston police authorities today requested the assistance of local and district authorities in the finding of two teen-aged girls, who escaped from a Girls' Detention School in Kingston over the week end. The girls are sisters, Margaret Milne, 15 and May Milne aged 12 years. The two girls were committed to the institution through Inspector T. D. Ruston of the County Children's Aid Society. They formerly resided in Trenton.

NEW GREEN PEAS PICKED, SERVED

New green peas are being served at the home of John Shaw, Schoharie, Prince Edward County, these days. The vegetable is the product of a second growth of June peas, sown from Spring seed, and has a quality that compares favorably with that of the first crop.

400 Licences Sold to Hunters Of Ducks, Partridge

"Half of Belleville must be in the woods or marshes of the district after either wild ducks or partridges," stated Mr. Geo. Finch, local issuer of gun licences following a survey of business wh'ch revealed today that since the middle of September well over 400 gun licences have been given out to local applicants.

Partridge hunters out in the open on Monday holiday found birds plentiful in most sections of North Hastings, but extremely wary and shy. "You couldn't get within half a mile of the birds I saw," stated one local hunter. "They were wilder this year than I ever saw."

Due to fair weather, duck hunters of the city also reported slim bags today after yesterday's dawn vigil in the marshes. The birds were flying high and refused to be decoyed, it was reported.

ATTENDANCE LOW AT TWEED FAIR; SPLENDID RACING

Fair Once Postponed And Rain Fell In Early Morning

STOCK PARADE

Molly Hal And Rosalind Winners of Speed Trials

Tweed, Oct. 11 (Special)—Tweed Fall Fair postponed from September 22nd and 23rd owing to rain, was held on October 7th and 8th. During the intervening period the weather was most delightful, but on Saturday the weatherman turned a frowning countenance upon the Fall Fair directors and their plans. Shortly after eight o'clock in the morning the sky became overcast and a light rain began to fall. Fortunately this condition did not continue for any considerable period, and although the sun did not show itself throughout the day, no further rain fell.

The postponement and threatening weather however, combined to keep the attendance at the smallest figure in several years and the directors are faced with a substantial deficit.

The exhibits, despite the lateness of the date, compared very favourably with other years. In several departments there was a marked increase in the number of exhibits. Space was at a premium in the pavilion, where an excellent display of ladies' work was on exhibit. A novel piece of work in this department was a group of Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs carved from white soap. Skill in the culinary art was exemplified by the showing of pies, cakes, etc.

Children's Work Praised

A section which attracted considerable attention was a display of children's work of the pupils of the local elementary schools. This included art, penmanship, sewing and manual training. This display of manual training was made up of reading lamps, book-ends, lawn-figures, bird houses and other articles. Burton Thompson, an ex-pupil of Tweed Consolidated school, and now an employee of a local sash and door factory displayed a beautiful dressing table and chiffonier.

The farmers of the district were attracted by the fine display of swine, cattle, horses and colts. The Boys' Foal Club, organized this year drew a very large entry of between thirty and forty colts. Keen competition was the result in every class.

A keen track resulted in probably the fastest horse races witnessed locally in some years. Mr. G. O. Tice, starter, got the horses away in fine style.

TRAFFIC LIGHTS FOUND TOO SLOW

'We Are Going To Do Something About Those Lights,' Says Mayor

Motorists who have been irked of late by the seeming slowness of the traffic lights on the four corners of Bridge and Front Streets had a defender in their ranks this morning.

"We're going to do something about those lights," promised Mayor Jamieson Bone. "They're altogether too slow, the red light particularly. The thing must have slipped its gears, and I have instructed the department to take notice and check the light."

"Another thing," pointed out the Mayor. "That's the noise bylaw we had passed some time ago. There have been too many complaints about noise in this city and I've asked the city clerk to read up on this bylaw and find out just where we stand so that action can be taken."

Church Council Chamber Preceded Hotel On Premises

Older residents searching memories, and files of Belleville happenings many years ago have come forth this week with the interesting statement that the old International Hotel property on upper Front St. which is to be demolished soon to make way for a modern gasolene service station, was at one time a location known as Bishop's Court, used then as a council chamber for legislative members of the old Free Methodist Church in this central section. This court was believed to have been established over eighty years ago by the more able of the Belleville historians.

Rev. Dr. E. N. Baker, Pastor 65 Years Ago, Preaches At Church Centenary

Memories of sixty-five years ago were brought back to aged residents of Inglewood, Ontario on Sunday, as they once again listened to the well-beloved voice of their pastor of sixty-five years ago, when the Rev. Dr. E. N. Baker, of this city conducted the services commemorating the 100th anniversary of the founding of Inglewood United Church.

Dr. Baker, then a young man was in the third year of his long distinguished career with the ministry. As was the custom in those days, the young ministers of the various circuits stayed in rural pastorates for approximately one year; when they moved on gaining valuable experience for the sterner tasks ahead. As the conference year of the Methodist Church of those days ended in April, Dr. Baker, however only stayed in Inglewood for a period of three months, leaving there to attend Albert College, an institution of which later he became Principal.

Dr. Baker was one of the first ministers to preach in the brick church that now stands at Inglewood. Records tell of the early Methodists of the district coming great distances" through the gloomy forests', to attend the service in the tiny log cabin which then served as a church. This building was in use until 1840 when a roughcast church was constructed. In 1872 the present brick structure was built.

INVITATION RACE WON BY E. YOUNG

Belleville Soap Box Derby Drivers Perform At Montreal

While four thousand people cheered their approval, a quartette of Belleville Soap-Box Derby drivers, champions all, drove their colorful machines down the eleven-hundred foot course on Van Horne Avenue, Montreal, on Saturday afternoon, to give Canada's eastern metropolis its first sight of a soap-box derby, the latest sports thrill to capture the popular fancy.

Ernest Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Young, Pine Street, Toronto Grand Champion flashed across the line a few feet ahead of Barney Wright, Toronto junior champion and Bobby and George Wilson, Canadian, and ex-Canadian champions respectively in an invitation race, that carried all the thrills connected with this unique sports event.

In the Montreal Derby, eleven-year-old Billy Telfer, won the first Montreal title over fifty-six starters, Telfer was presented with a handsome trophy emblematic of the championship, a suit of clothes and a rugby football. Leonard Applebaum who finished second in the final heat, and who was winner of his class, received a cup and a bicycle.

Young received a handsome cup with the remaining Belleville drivers being presented with medals. The race was run under the auspices of the Montreal Kinsmen Club, while the Belleville youths were proteges of the Belleville Club. President Cleo Colling of the local Kinsmen and Secretary William Hurst accompanied the youngsters to the races, as did Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Young.

60 PRIZED FOWL THIEVES' BOOTY

Carrying Place Farmer Loses Pick of Birds

Ray Terry, Carrying Place farmer, found himself minus his Thanksgiving Day Fowl and really little to be thankful for after chicken thieves had raided his chicken house and stole 60 prized birds over the week end.

Mr. Terry had watched his fine flock of prize chickens with pride and interest, having carefully looked after them all summer in hopes of marketing them for either Thanksgiving or maybe Christmas. The birds were all healthy and at roost on Thursday night when Mr. Terry made his final inspection of his poultry house. When he went to feed his flock on Friday morning however, sixty of his better class birds were gone.

"They must have had a good Thanksgiving market for the chickens they stole, as they only took the best of my flock," stated Mr. Terry to Provincial Police Constable Wm. McBrien who investigated.

So carefully did the chicken thieves carry out their thievings, that no undue disturbances were heard by the Terry family while the robbery was being conducted.

OBITUARY

MRS. JOHN CROSS (Marmora)

Marmora (Special)—Residents of Deloro and Marmora were shocked on Monday morning to hear of the sudden passing of Mrs. John Cross. The deceased was sitting in her chair engaged in the making of a mat. Taken suddenly ill, she called for a drink of water and expired in a few minutes.

The late Mrs. Cross was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Emigh and was born fifty four years ago in Sidney Township. Since her marriage she had resided on the east side of Moira River at Deloro. Besides her sorrowing husband, she is survived by eleven children, John Edward, Port Colborne; James and William, at home; Mrs. Fred Matthews, Deloro; Mrs. F. Vincent at home, Mrs. Harry Pack, Madoc Township; Alice, Belleville; and Gladys, Eva, Stella and Pearl at home. Three half brothers, and two half sisters also survive; Charles, Wesley and Thomas Emigh, Mrs. G. Crawford and Mrs. G. Gifford, all of Madoc. She is also survived by two brothers, George, Trenton; and Asa, Madison, Ohio, and three sisters, Mrs. B. Gifford, Marmora, Mrs. E. Cooney, California and Edna, Toronto. The late Mrs. Cross was a member of the Anglican Church and the funeral will be held on Thursday afternoon, to St. Paul's Church, Marmora.

LATE JOHN BARRETT

The funeral of John Barrett took place Saturday morning, Oct. 8th., from the family residence, 101 College Street, to St. Michael's Church where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rt. Rev. J. F. Nicholson, V.G. Many friends were present in the church. During the offertory Mr. Harold Barrett sang, "Nearer My God to Thee."

Interment was made in St. James' Cemetery, the committal service was said by the Rev. Father Baker.

The bearers were Messrs. Storms, Sladen, Ramsay, McGlynn, Hogan, and Huffman.

LATE WILLIAM LINDSAY

Monday afternoon, Oct. 10th., the funeral of William Lindsay took place from the family residence, 52 Dundas Street East, and many friends were in attendance. The service in the home and at the graveside in Belleville Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, Vicar of St. Thomas' Church.

The late Mr. Lindsay was a member of Eureka Lodge No. 283, A. F. and A. M., and the funeral was under the auspices of that lodge. The last rites of the Order were conducted in the home and at the graveside by Wor. Bro. P. W. Geen, Master of Eureka Lodge, R. W. Bro. R. D. Adams, W. Bro. L. A. Kells, W. Bro. George Dawkins, W. Bro. F. W. Wiggins and W. Bro. J. A. Jervis, (Ottawa.)

The bearers were W. Bro. George Dawkins, Bro. H. Bryant, Bro. H. L. Ketcheson, Bro. W. C. Jack, Bro. W. M. Howie and Bro. E. W. Rutherford.

D. A. VANDERVOORT (Frankford)

Frankford, Oct. 11 —(Special)— The residents of this village, were shocked and grieved to learn of the sudden death of D. A. Vandervoort, which occurred on Sunday, Oct. 9th., in Rochester, N.Y., for which city he left Frankford by motor car on Friday last to visit friends.

The late Mr. Vandervoort was prominent in the life of this village and district for many years. He was a man of fine character and personality and held a high place in the esteem of many friends and the public in general. He will be much missed in the community.

Mr. Vandervoort was born in Frankford, 65 years ago, and resided here all his life. His parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. William Vandervoort. For over twenty years he was superintendent of the division of the Trent Valley Canal from Trenton to Glen Miller and retired two years ago from this position, which he had filled capably and satisfactorily. In religion he was a member of Holy Trinity Anglican Church at Frankford and fraternally he was a member of Frankford Lodge I.O.O.F.

Surviving him and to whom the sympathy of the community will be extended are his widow, who prior to her marriage was Miss Gertrude Pettit; three sisters, Mrs. Coyle and Mrs. L. Elliott, Toronto, and Mrs. W. Latta, Sidney Township; one brother, Mr. William Vandervoort, Havelock, Ont.

The funeral will take place Wednesday afternoon, Oct. 12th.

LATE JACK KILTY Tyendinaga

The funeral of Jack Kilty took place from the residence of Mrs. Edward Walsh, in the 3rd concession of Tyendinaga, near Lonsdale, on Monday morning, Oct 10th., to St. Mary's Church at Marysville where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Father Martin of Kingston. Interment was made in St. Mary's Cemetery.

The bearers wre Messrs. John Brennan, Dennis Callery, William Callaghan, Joseph Forrestel, John Shaughnessy and James Murphy.

LOCAL H. AND S. CLUB MEMBERS PICTON GUESTS

Program Arranged By Picton Branch of Organization

Picton—The opening fall meeting of the H. and S. Club was held in the Legion Rooms on Thursday afternoon with the Pres., Mrs. Ern. Ward in the chair. She extended greetings to six members of the Queen Alexandra H. and S. Club of Belleville who visited the local club. Community singing, followed by prayer, opened the meeting. The reports of the Treasurer, Mrs. Knapman and the Secretary, Mrs. Kemsley were next given. Barbara and Joan Rutter were heard in a delightful piano duet. Plans for the rummage sale that the club is sponsoring later in the month to raise funds were made and committees appointed.

Plans were also made for the social evening in November, when the fathers were especially invited to attend.

Mrs. W. H. Finkle, President of the Belleville Club, gave the feature address of the afternoon. She gave details of interesting programs enjoyed by their club, that were new to the Picton club and her address was heard with great interest. She also invited the local club members to the Book Fair that her club is sponsoring in November, when Lady Tweedsmuir will be present to open the Fair. Mrs. Gullet and Mrs. Saunders thanked Mrs. Finkle for the many ideas she had given, in such an apt manner.

Mrs. Lloyd and Doris were heard in a much enjoyedpi ano due, closing the program.

Mrs. W. V. Bongard is closing her home on the Glenora Road and will take up residence with her daughter Mrs. Donald Smiths who is ill, at her home in Trenton.

Miss Mae Killip is preparing to spend the winter months at the home of Mrs. D. F. Van Dusen.

Miss Alice Lowey has accepted a position in Belleville.

Friend regret the illness of Mrs. Wm. Jones at her home, Church St.

Mrs. Arthur Clark is nursing Mr. Byron Harrison who is seriously ill at the home of his daughter Mrs. Harry Clark, King St.

Dr. A. H. Walton has taken up residence at Grove Place, Main St., the residence of Mrs. M. R. Allison.

Mr. Clarence King of North Bay is expected to spend the week end with friends in Picton.

RHEUMATICS?

Get Relief Similar to a "Spa" in Your own Home

They say conscience makes cowards of us all—but what about Rheumatic troubles? You never know where Rheumatic pains will strike next. You become worn out with anxiety.

And it's probably because your liver isn't working as it should! For this is often the cause of Rheumatic pains. See what happens. Your liver gets clogged, poisons creep sluggishly through your system. Uric Acid crystals form. Pain begins. When you move, these crystals catch you with their spiky points.

This message is not to remind you of your aches and pains but to help you to escape from them. You have heard of the famous European Spas where wealthy leisured people go to take the waters for their Rheumatic pains, Lumbago and Neuritis? Well, among the chief properties of these Mineral Springs are the elements of Sodium, Potassium and Lithium. Now, similar elements have been combined in Fynnon Salt. Stir a ½ teaspoonful in a glassful of water every morning. Drink this relief-giving saline—and enjoy a similar treatment that Spa visitors pay heavily for! Large bottle of Fynnon Salt, 75c at all druggists'. 30R

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

GIRLS FOUND AT PRINCESS LAKE

Violet Mitchell And Margaret Jackson of City Returned to Parents

Following considerable effort on the part of the police two teen aged girls, who were missing from their respective homes all last week, were found by Provincial Police at Princess Lake, 30 miles north of Bancroft, on Saturday. Belleville police learned the girls had gone north from Brighton in search of employment, early last week. Provincial Police were notified with the result that Constable Palmateer located the girls trying to secure employment at Princess Lake. The girls were Violet Mitchell, 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Mitchell, 2nd concession of Sidney, and Marjorie Jackson, 15-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jackson, 286 Albert Street. The girls were returned to their anxious parents on Sunday, after being away from home exactly eight days.

SPECIAL SERVICE FOR THANKSGIVING

Rev. A. G. Sinclair Speaker Before His Own Congregation

Special Thanksgiving Day services at Victoria Baptist Church on Sunday saw the pulpit a kaleidoscopic array of color as the fruits of the good earth in wide variety formed a veritable cornucopia of God's lavish hand.

Basing his morning sermon on St. Paul's words "God hath not left himself without witness" Rev. A. G. Sinclair stated that harvest time was a powerful and appropriate evidence of God's unfailing love and should touch in us a spiritual chord of thanksgiving.

"God has, in every age, had his spiritual witness in the person of some great man" said the preacher, and went on to cite the names of the prophets and champions of Israel, also Luther, Knox, Wesley and others, who in their time had held high the name of the Almighty God. "Our own lives should shine as spiritual witness of God," said Mr. Sinclair.

The choir sang Stainer's anthem: "You Shall Dwell in the Land" and Mr. Claude Luffman rendered a solo, "How Lovely Are Thy Dwellings" in a splendid tenor voice. At the evening service Arthur Wynne sang "The Lord Is My Shepherd" and the choir rendered "The Desert Shall Rejoice."

WORLD TRADE

20 Sign With Canada

Officials believe the agreement will lead to similar arrangements will all of the British Dominions. A pact revising the one concluded in 1936 will be signed with Canada shortly possibly by the end of the month. Exploratory discussions have been held with Australia, New Zealand and the Union of South Africa.

British traders at first were inclined to argue that since the United Kingdom bought from the United States more than 2 1-2 times what this country bought from her, the United States should make the major concessions. American negotiations, however, had at hand a balance sheet showing that inclusion of the Colonies and Dominions and so-called invisible items, such as shipping and freight rates, tourist expenditures, immigrant remittances, insurance, interest and dividends resulted in a practically even balance and that, if United States imports of gold from South Africa were included, the balance was some $414,000,000 in favor of the British Commonwealth.

Mobilization Speed Surpasses Expectations

London, Oct. 11—(CP-Havas) — The speed with which mobilization of the Royal Navy was carried out surpassed all expectations, the press association reported today on the bais of information from authoritative naval sources.

Mobilization operations were divided into two brackets—one involving effectives on active duty, the other covering reservists.

Training was suspended and men were quickly transferred from their garrison posts to combat stations or auxiliary service bases, both at home and overseas. The entire operation was carried out without the least difficulty, it was said.

Speed with which reservists of all categories answered the mobilization order drew particular praise. A total of 29,000 men presented themselves for service. Of these, 13,000 were former naval officers and sailors with a record of from seven to 12 years' service in the Royal Navy. The balance included volunteer and merchant marine reservists.

A great many of these 16,000 presented themselves at their scheduled depots the morning after the midnight announcement of mobilization, even before the proclamation had been posted.

SOUND MOVIES SEEN AS FACTOR IN CHURCH LIFE

New Methods of Teaching Lessons of Religion With Changing Age — Bridge Street United Congregation Sees Religious Films

Motion pictures as a part of the service of the church were shown at Bridge Street United Church on Sunday evening, one picture being of scenes in the Empire capital, London, the second a drama founded on the subject of Barabbas, who was released at the wish of the mob in Jerusalem in preference to Jesus, and who after the crucifixion found his way to the truth, and a drama emphasising the heroism of life in whatever calling man chooses to enter, in this case missions and the medical service.

A large congregation attended, Rev. Dr. Semple conducting the service of hymns, prayers and the lesson before the sound pictures were shown.

A Different Age

"We are living in an age when it is more difficult for organized religion to function than in the past," declared the minister. Reference was made to the fact that there were large congregations in the old days, but in those days there were few telephones, no radio, no motorcars and people came, not only to worship, but to see one another and to hear of events.

"The Gospel of Jesus Christ", the minister went on," must be addressed to the people in the language of their day. There is an element in the Gospels which is timeless and there is another element which has changed." In times past men have stepped outside churches, as St. Francis of Assisi who went into the open country, and John Wesley who spoke on the hillsides of England and General Booth, who was not satisfied with the usual form of service.

"May God give us wisdom so to arrange our plans to appeal to the people," was Dr. Semple's prayer. "Remember the Anglican Church in England has adopted this scheme (sound moving pictures) for their evening service. All persons are persuaded that a change is upon us, and that one way to influence the people is through religious films. It will take some years to perfect this instrument which is to be so beneficial."

TRAFFIC JAMMED

Emerges From Laneway

At Lindsay Albert Michael Doyle 18-year-old farmhand met instant death Sunday afternoon when the bicycle he was riding collided with a car driven by Wesley Lowes of Cannington. The accident occurred on Highway 7, near Sunderland as the youth emerged from a laneway.

The Toronto hunter, whose name was believed to be Hugh Carter, died at Powassan yesterday as he was being brought into the office of Dr. R. H. Dillane for treatment after being accidentally shot by a companion. It was believed the pair were hunting partridge in the district near here.

Details of the accident were not available immediately. Powassan is 20 miles south of North Bay.

Shot Accidentally

Two Toronto youths were shot accidentally while hunting. Jack Moore received two shotgun slugs below the left eye when pellets from a shot fired at partridge by his brother, scattered. Maurice Connolly accidentally shot himself in the foot while hunting rabbits.

Police today continued to investigate the orchard shooting at Stamford of Tony Frank, 16-year-old Niagara Falls boy, from whose face it was necessary to remove 15 shot gun pellets. Police said Frank and four other lads were sighted by the orchard owner who fired a shot gun into the ground to frighten them—he did not notice Frank, who was lying on the ground under a tree.

Donald Davis, a Belleville youth, was shot in the right hip when his gun caught in a tree twig and discharged.

Potatoes Make Men

● Selecting an Irish Cobbler from the Fall Fair exhibit of a potato grower, Mr. Picobac held forth to all and sundry.

"Potatoes make men," said he. "Potatoes, buttermilk and tobacco."

"It wasn't potatoes that made me," said Herb, hired man to the highest bidder, "It was pork and beans."

"I'll tell you something that makes good Canadians better Canadians," declared the Burley philosopher; "Canadian Burley—and Picobac, the pick of Canada's Burley Crop."

"It's a mild . . . cool . . . sweet . . . smoke," agreed Herb. "Don't I know it?"

THEIR MAJESTIES TO VISIT CANADA

The coming state visit to.. Canada. of King George and Queen Elizabeth during the summer of 1939 has stirred the people of Canada with the thrill of anticipation. Canadians have hoped ever since the accession that Their Majesties would. find. it possible after the Coronation to visit.. the Dominion. Now the King and Queen have graciously consented to accept the suggestion of the Prime Minister of Canada that they should visit Canada next year, according to the announcement from Balmoral, Scotland, where the King and Queen have been staying.

This will be a notable occasion for the fact that as yet no sovereign on the throne has visited Canada, nor has a King's consort ever been in Canada. King George as Duke of York has visited Canada and his brother Edward Eighth, his father George Fifth and his grandfather, King Edward Seventh all visited Canada as princes. The precedent to be established will be acclaimed throughout Canada.
